(a) In general. In addition to the credit against the tax allowable for contributions actually paid to State unemployment funds (see § 31.3302 (a)–1), the taxpayer may be entitled to a credit under section 3302 (b). This additional credit is allowable to the taxpayer with respect to the amount of contributions which he is relieved from paying to an unemployment fund under the provisions of a State law which have been certified for the taxable year as provided in section 3303. Generally, an additional credit is available to an employer, if under the provisions of a State law which have been so certified he is permitted to pay contributions to such State for the taxable year, or portion thereof, at a rate which is both lower than the highest rate applied under such law in such year and lower than 2.7 percent. No additional credit is allowable except with respect to a State law certified by the Secretary of Labor for the taxable year as provided in section 3303 (or with respect to any provisions thereof so certified).

(b) Method of computing amount of additional credit allowable with respect to a State law—(1) Certification of a State law as a whole. In ascertaining the additional credit for any taxable year with respect to a particular State law which the Secretary of Labor certifies as a whole to the Secretary of the Treasury in accordance with the provisions of section 3303, the taxpayer must first compute the following amounts:

(i) The amount of contributions (whether or not with respect to employment as defined in section 3306 (c)) which the taxpayer would have been required to pay under the State law for such year if throughout the year he had been subject to the highest rate applied under such law in such year, or to a rate of 2.7 percent, whichever rate is lower.

(ii) The amount of contributions (whether or not with respect to employment as defined in section 3306 (c)) he was required to pay under the State law with respect to such year, whether or not paid.

The amount computed under subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph should then be subtracted from the amount computed under subdivision (i) of this subparagraph and the result will be the additional credit for the taxable year with respect to the law of that State.

Example. A employs individuals only in State X during the calendar year 1955. The unemployment compensation law of State X has been certified in its entirety to the Secretary of the Treasury by the Secretary of Labor for such year. The highest rate applied in such year under such State law to any taxpayer is 3 percent. However, A has obtained a rate of 1 percent under the law of such State and is required to pay his entire year's contributions at that rate. The amount of remuneration of A's employees subject to contributions under such State law is $25,000. The amount of wages paid by A during that year with respect to employment under the Federal law likewise is $25,000, the Federal tax at the 3 percent rate being $750. A's additional credit under section 3302 (b) is $425, computed as follows:

Remuneration subject to contributions	$25,000
Contributions at 2.7 percent rate	675
Less:
Contributions required to be paid at 1 percent rate	250
Additional credit to A	425

Since the 2.7 percent rate is less than the highest rate applied (3 percent), the 2.7 percent rate is used in computing the amount ($675) from which the amount of contributions required to be paid at the 1 percent rate ($250) is deducted in order to ascertain the additional credit ($425).

(2) Certification with respect to particular provisions of a State law. If the Secretary of Labor makes a certification to the Secretary of the Treasury with respect to particular provisions of a State law for any taxable year pursuant to section 3303, the additional credit of the taxpayer for such year with respect to such law shall be computed in such manner as the Commissioner shall determine.

(c) Amount of additional credit allowable to taxpayer with respect to more than one State law. If the taxpayer is entitled to additional credit with respect to more than one State law in any taxable year, the additional credit allowable with respect to each State law shall be computed separately (in accordance with paragraph (b) of this section) and the total additional credit allowable against the tax for such year shall be the aggregate of the additional credits allowable with respect to such State laws. For limitation on total credits, see § 31.3302 (c)–1.

Additional credit under section 3302(b) shall not be allowed against the tax for any calendar year unless there is submitted—

(a) To the Commissioner a certificate of the proper officer of each State (with respect to the law of which the additional credit is claimed) showing the highest rate of contributions applied under the State law in such calendar year to any person having individuals in his employ; and

(b) To the district director a certificate of the proper officer of each State (with respect to the law of which the additional credit is claimed) showing for the taxpayer—

(1) The total remuneration with respect to which contributions were required to be paid by the taxpayer under the State law with respect to such calendar year; and

(2) The rate of contributions applied to the taxpayer under the State law with respect to such calendar year.

If under the law of such State different rates of contributions were applied to the taxpayer during particular periods of such calendar year, the certificate shall set forth the information called for in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph with respect to each such period.

(c) Such other or additional proof as the Commissioner or the district director may deem necessary to establish the right to the additional credit provided for under section 3302 (b).

SEC. 3302. Credits against tax. • • •

(c) Limit on total credits. (1) The total credits allowed to a taxpayer under this section shall not exceed 90 percent of the tax against which such credits are allowable.

(2) If an advance or advances have been made to the unemployment account of a State under title XII of the Social Security Act, and if any balance of such advance or advances has not been returned to the Federal unemployment account as provided in that title before December 1 of the taxable year, then the total credits (after other reductions under this section) otherwise allowable under this section for such taxable year in the case of a taxpayer subject to the unemployment compensation law of such State shall be reduced—

(A) In the case of a taxable year beginning with the fourth consecutive January 1 on which such a balance of unreturned advances existed, by 5 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during such taxable year which are attributable to such State; and

(B) In the case of any succeeding taxable year beginning with a consecutive January 1 on which such a balance of unreturned advances existed, by an additional 5 percent, for each such succeeding taxable year, of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during such taxable year which are attributable to such State.

For purposes of this paragraph, wages shall be attributable to a particular State if they are subject to the unemployment compensation law of the State, or (if not subject to the unemployment compensation law of any State) if they are determined (under rules or regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate) to be attributable to such State.

§ 31.3302(c)–1 Limit on total credits.

(a) Ninety percent limitation on credits against tax. The aggregate of the credit under section 3302 (a) and the additional credit under section 3302 (b) shall not exceed 90 percent of the tax against which credit is taken.

(b) Reduction of amount of total credit otherwise allowable. (1) Section 3302 (c) (2) provides for a reduction, under certain circumstances, of the amount of the total credits allowable under section 3302 (a), (b), and (c) (1). If any balance of an advance or advances made under title XII of the Social Security Act to the unemployment account of a State remains unpaid on January 1 of 4 consecutive taxable years, the total credits which would be allowable under section

3302 (without regard to the provisions of section 3302 (c) (2)) to a taxpayer subject to the unemployment compensation law of such State shall be reduced for the taxable year beginning with the fourth consecutive January 1, unless prior to December 1 of that taxable year the total amount of any advance or advances made to the account of such State has been fully repaid. The reduction in the total credits allowable under section 3302 (without regard to the provisions of section 3302 (c) (2)) for the taxable year beginning with the fourth consecutive January 1 shall be 5 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during such taxable year which are attributable to such State. In the case of any succeeding taxable year beginning with a consecutive January 1 on which such a balance of an unreturned advance or advances exists, the total credits which would be allowable (without regard to the provisions of section 3302 (c) (2)) shall be reduced unless prior to December 1 of such succeeding taxable year the total amount of any advance or advances made to the account of the State has been fully repaid. The reduction for each such succeeding taxable year beginning with a consecutive January 1 on which such a balance exists shall be a percentage of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by the taxpayer during such succeeding taxable year which are attributable to such State. The percentage reduction for any such succeeding taxable year shall be the percentage reduction for the immediately preceding taxable year plus 5 percent.

(2) The computation of the percentage reduction referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). If an advance is made, under title XII of the Social Security Act, to the unemployment account of State X in 1955 and if such advance is not fully returned before December 1, 1959, a balance of an advance will remain unreturned on January 1 of each of 4 consecutive taxable years (1956 through 1959), and will remain unreturned on December 1, 1959. In such event, the total credits which would be allowable under section 3302 (without regard to section 3302 (c) (2)) will be reduced for the taxable year 1959 in the case of any taxpayer who during such year is subject to the unemployment compensation law of State X. The reduction will be 5 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during 1959 which are attributable to State X.

Example (2). If an advance made in 1955 to the unemployment account of State Y is fully returned in 1956 but an advance made to the account of such State in 1956 is not fully returned before December 1, 1959, a reduction of 5 percent (as in example (1)) will be imposed for the taxable year 1959 because a balance of advances will remain unreturned on January 1 of each of 4 consecutive taxable years (1956 through 1959) and will remain unreturned on December 1, 1959. If such a balance also exists on January 1, 1960, and all advances made before December 1, 1960, to the unemployment account of State Y are not fully returned before December 1, 1960, the total credits will be reduced for the taxable year 1960. The reduction in the total credits for the taxable year 1960 in the case of any taxpayer who during such year is subject to the unemployment compensation law of State Y will be 10 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during 1960 which are attributable to State Y. If such a balance also exists on January 1, 1961, and if all advances made before December 1, 1961, to the unemployment account of State Y are not fully returned before December 1, 1961, the total credits will be reduced for the taxable year 1961. The reduction in the total credits for the taxable year 1961 in the case of any taxpayer who during such year is subject to the unemployment compensation law of State Y will be 15 percent of the tax imposed by section 3301 with respect to the wages paid by such taxpayer during 1961 which are attributable to State Y.

(3) For purposes of section 3302 (c) (2), wages are attributable to a particular State if they are subject to the unemployment compensation law of the State. If wages are not subject to the unemployment compensation law of any State, the determination as to whether such wages, or any portion thereof, are attributable to the particular State with respect to which the reduction in total credits is imposed shall be made in accordance with rules prescribed by the Commissioner.

§ 31.3303 Statutory provisions; conditions of additional credit allowance.

SEC. 3303. Conditions of additional credit allowance—(a) State standards. A taxpayer shall be allowed an additional credit under section 3302 (b) with respect to any reduced rate of contributions permitted by a State law, only if the Secretary of Labor finds that under such law—

(1) No reduced rate of contributions to a pooled fund or to a partially pooled account is permitted to a person (or group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ except on the basis of his (or their) experience with respect to unemployment or other factors bearing a direct relation to unemployment risk during not less than the 3 consecutive years immediately preceding the computation date;

(2) No reduced rate of contributions to a guaranteed employment account is permitted to a person (or a group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ unless—

(A) The guaranty of remuneration was fulfilled in the year preceding the computation date; and

(B) The balance of such account amounts to not less than 2½ percent of that part of the payroll or payrolls for the 3 years preceding the computation date by which contributions to such account were measured; and

(C) Such contributions were payable to such account with respect to 3 years preceding the computation date;

(3) No reduced rate of contributions to a reserve account is permitted to a person (or group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ unless—

(A) Compensation has been payable from such account throughout the year preceding the computation date, and

(B) The balance of such account amounts to not less than five times the largest amount of compensation paid from such account within any 1 of the 3 years preceding such date, and

(C) The balance of such account amounts to not less than 2½ percent of that part of the payroll or payrolls for the 3 years preceding such date by which contributions to such account were measured, and

(D) Such contributions were payable to such account with respect to the 3 years preceding the computation date.

For any person (or group of persons) who has (or have) not been subject to the State law for a period of time sufficient to compute the reduced rates permitted by paragraphs (1), (2), and (3) of this subsection on a 3-year basis, the period of time required may be reduced to the amount of time the person (or group of persons) has (or have) had experience under or has (or have) been subject to the State law, whichever is appropriate, but in no case less than 1 year immediately preceding the computation date.

[Sec. 3303 (a) as amended by sec. 2, Act of Sept. 1, 1954 (Pub. Law 767, 83d Cong., 68 Stat. 1130)]

(b) Certification by the Secretary of Labor with respect to additional credit allowance. (1) On December 31 in each taxable year, the Secretary of Labor shall certify to the Secretary the law of each State (certified with respect to such year by the Secretary of Labor as provided in section 3304) with respect to which he finds that reduced rates of contributions were allowable with respect to such taxable year only in accordance with the provisions of subsection (a).

(2) If the Secretary of Labor finds that under the law of a single State (certified by the Secretary of Labor as provided in section 3304) more than one type of fund or account is maintained, and reduced rates of contributions to more than one type of fund or account were allowable with respect to any taxable year, and one or more of such reduced rates were allowable under conditions not fulfilling the requirements of subsection (a), the Secretary of Labor shall, on December 31 of such taxable year, certify to the Secretary only those provisions of the State law pursuant to which reduced rates of contributions were allowable with respect to such taxable year under conditions fulfilling the requirements of subsection (a), and shall, in connection therewith, designate the kind of fund or account, as defined in subsection (c), established by the provisions so certified. If the Secretary of Labor finds that a part of any reduced rate of contributions payable under such law or under such provisions is required to be paid into one fund or account and a part into another fund or account, the Secretary of Labor shall make such certification pursuant to this paragraph as he finds will assure the allowance of additional credits only with respect to that part of the reduced rate of contributions which is allowed under provisions which do fulfill the requirements of subsection (a).

(3) The Secretary of Labor shall, within 30 days after any State law is submitted to him for such purpose, certify to the State agency his findings with respect to reduced rates of contributions to a type of fund or account, as defined in subsection (c), which are allowable under such State law only in accordance with the provisions of subsection (a). After making such findings, the Secretary of Labor shall not withhold his certification to the Secretary of such State law, or of the provisions thereof with respect to which such findings were made, for any taxable year pursuant to paragraph (1) or (2) unless, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency, the Secretary of Labor finds the State law no longer contains the provisions specified in subsection (a) or the State has, with respect to such taxable year, failed to comply substantially with any such provision.

(c) Definitions. As used in this section—

(1) Reserve account. The term "reserve account" means a separate account in an unemployment fund, maintained with respect to a person (or group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ, from which account, unless such account is exhausted, is paid all and only compensation payable on the basis of services performed for such person (or for one or more of the persons comprising the group).

(2) Pooled fund. The term "pooled fund" means an unemployment fund or any part thereof (other than a reserve account or a guaranteed employment account) into which the total contributions of persons contributing thereto are payable, in which all contributions are mingled and undivided, and from which compensation is payable to all individuals eligible for compensation from such fund.

(3) Partially pooled account. The term "partially pooled account" means a part of an unemployment fund in which part of the fund all contributions thereto are mingled and undivided, and from which part of the fund compensation is payable only to individuals to whom compensation would be payable from a reserve account or from a guaranteed employment account but for the exhaustion or termination of such reserve account or of such guaranteed employment account. Payments from a reserve account or guaranteed employment account into a partially pooled account shall not be construed to be inconsistent with the provisions of paragraph (1) or (4).

(4) Guaranteed employment account. The term "guaranteed employment account" means a separate account, in an unemployment fund, maintained with respect to a person (or group of persons) having individuals in his (or their) employ who, in accordance with the provisions of the State law or of a plan thereunder approved by the State agency,

(A) Guarantees in advance at least 30 hours of work, for which remuneration will be paid at not less than stated rates, for each of 40 weeks (or if more, 1 weekly hour may be deducted for each added week guaranteed) in a year, to all the individuals who are in his (or their) employ in, and who continue to be available for suitable work in, one or more distinct establishments, except that any such individual's guaranty may commence after a probationary period (included within the 11 or less consecutive weeks immediately following the first week in which the individual renders services), and

(B) Gives security or assurance, satisfactory to the State agency, for the fulfillment of such guaranties, from which account, unless such account is exhausted or terminated, is paid all and only compensation, payable on the basis of services performed for such person (or for one or more of the persons comprising the group), to any such individual whose guaranteed remuneration has not been paid (either pursuant to the guaranty or from the security or assurance provided for the fulfillment of the guaranty), or whose guaranty is not renewed and who is otherwise eligible for compensation under the State law.

(5) Year. The term "year" means any 12 consecutive calendar months.

(6) Balance. The term "balance", with respect to a reserve account or a guaranteed employment account, means the amount standing to the credit of the account as of the computation date; except that, if subsequent to January 1, 1940, any moneys have been paid into or credited to such account other than payments thereto by persons having individuals in their employ, such term shall mean the amount in such account as of the computation date less the total of such other moneys paid into or credited to such account subsequent to January 1, 1940.

(7) Computation date. The term "computation date" means the date, occuring at least once in each calendar year and within 27 weeks prior to the effective date of new rates of contributions, as of which such rates are computed.

(8) Reduced rate. The term "reduced rate" means a rate of contributions lower than the standard rate applicable under the State law, and the term "standard rate" means the rate on the basis of which variations therefrom are computed.

(d) Voluntary contributions. A State law may, without being deemed to violate the standards set forth in subsection (a), permit voluntary contributions to be used in the computation of reduced rates if such contributions are paid prior to the expiration of 120 days after the beginning of the year for which such rates are effective.

§ 31.3304 Statutory provisions; approval of State laws.

SEC. 3304. Approval of State laws—(a) Requirements. The Secretary of Labor shall approve any State law submitted to him, within 30 days of such submission, which he finds provides that—

(1) All compensation is to be paid through public employment offices or such other agencies as the Secretary of Labor may approve;

(2) No compensation shall be payable with respect to any day of unemployment occurring within 2 years after the first day of the first period with respect to which contributions are required;

(3) All money received in the unemployment fund shall (except for refunds of sums erroneously paid into such fund and except for refunds paid in accordance with the provisions of section 3305 (b)) immediately upon such receipt be paid over to the Secretary to the credit of the Unemployment Trust Fund established by section 904 of the Social Security Act (49 Stat. 640; 52 Stat. 1104, 1105; 42 U. S. C. 1104);

(4) All money withdrawn from the unemployment fund of the State shall be used solely in the payment of unemployment compensation, exclusive of expenses of administration, and for refunds of sums erroneously paid into such fund and refunds paid in accordance with the provisions of section 3305 (b); except that—

(A) An amount equal to the amount of employee payments into the unemployment fund of a State may be used in the payment of cash benefits to individuals with respect to their disability, exclusive of expenses of administration; and

(B) The amounts specified by section 903 (c) (2) of the Social Security Act may, subject to the conditions prescribed in such section, be used for expenses incurred by the State for administration of its unemployment compensation law and public employment offices;

(5) Compensation shall not be denied in such State to any otherwise eligible individual for refusing to accept new work under any of the following conditions:

(A) If the position offered is vacant due directly to a strike, lockout, or other labor dispute;

(B) If the wages, hours, or other conditions of the work offered are substantially less favorable to the individual than those prevailing for similar work in the locality;

(C) If as a condition of being employed the individual would be required to join a company union or to resign from or refrain from joining any bona fide labor organization;

(6) All the rights, privileges, or immunities conferred by such law or by acts done pursuant thereto shall exist subject to the power of the legislature to amend or repeal such law at any time.

(b) Notification. The Secretary of Labor shall, upon approving such law, notify the governor of the State of his approval.

(c) Certification. On December 31 of each taxable year the Secretary of Labor shall certify to the Secretary each State whose law he has previously approved, except that he shall not certify any State which, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency, the Secretary of Labor finds has amended its law so that it no longer contains the provisions specified in subsection (a) or has with respect to such taxable year failed to comply substantially with any such provision and such finding has become effective. Such finding shall become effective on the 90th day after the governor of the State has been notified thereof, unless the State has before such 90th day so amended its law that it will comply substantially with the Secretary of Labor's interpretation of the provision of subsection (a), in which event such finding shall not become effective. No finding of a failure to comply substantially with the provision in State law specified in paragraph (5) of subsection (a) shall be based on an application or interpretation of State law with respect to which further administrative or judicial review is provided for under the laws of the State.

(d) Notice of Noncertification. If, at any time during the taxable year, the Secretary of Labor has reason to believe that a State whose law he has previously approved may not be certified under subsection (c), he shall promptly so notify the governor of such State.

§ 31.3305 Statutory provisions; applicability of State law.

SEC. 3305. Applicability of State law—(a) Interstate and foreign commerce. No person required under a State law to make payments to an unemployment fund shall be relieved from compliance therewith on the ground that he is engaged in interstate or foreign commerce, or that the State law does not distinguish between employees engaged in interstate or foreign commerce and those engaged in intrastate commerce.

(b) Federal instrumentalities in general. The legislature of any State may require any instrumentality of the United States (except such as are (1) wholly owned by the United States, or (2) exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301 by virtue of any other provision of law), and the individuals in its employ, to make contributions to an unemployment fund under a State unemployment compensation law approved by the Secretary of Labor under section 3304 and (except as provided in section 5240 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (12 U. S. C. 484), and as modified by subsection (c)) to comply otherwise with such law. The permission granted in this subsection shall apply (A) only to the extent that no discrimination is made against such instrumentality, so that if the rate of contribution is uniform upon all other persons subject to such law on account of having individuals in their employ, and upon all employees of such persons, respectively, the contributions required of such instrumentality or the individuals in its employ shall not be at a greater rate than is required of such other persons and such employees, and if the rates are determined separately for different persons or classes of persons having individuals in their employ or for different classes of employees, the determination shall be based solely upon unemployment experience and other factors bearing a direct relation to unemployment risk, and (B) only if such State law makes provision for the refund of any contributions required under such law from an instrumentality of the United States or its employees for any year in the event said State is not certified by the Secretary of Labor under section 3304 with respect to such year.

(c) National banks. Nothing contained in section 5240 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (12 U. S. C. 484), shall prevent any State from requiring any national banking association to render returns and reports relative to the association's employees, their remuneration and services, to the same extent that other persons are required to render like returns and reports under a State law requiring contributions to an unemployment fund. The Comptroller of the Currency shall, upon receipt of a copy of any such return or report of a national banking association from, and upon request of, any duly authorized official, body, or commission of a State, cause an examination of the correctness of such return or report to be made at the time of the next succeeding examination of such association, and shall thereupon transmit to such official, body, or commission a complete statement of his findings respecting the accuracy of such returns or reports.

(d) Federal property. No person shall be relieved from compliance with a State unemployment compensation law on the ground that services were performed on land or premises owned, held, or possessed by the United States, and any State shall have full jurisdiction and power to enforce the provisions of such law to the same extent and with the same effect as though such place were not owned, held, or possessed by the United States.

(e) Bonneville Power Administrator. [Repealed, effective with respect to services performed after 1954, by sec. 4 (c), Act of Sept. 1, 1954, 68 Stat. 1135]

(f) American vessels. The legislature of any State in which a person maintains the operating office, from which the operations of an American vessel operating on navigable waters within or within and without the United States are ordinarily and regularly supervised, managed, directed and controlled, may require such person and the officers and members of the crew of such vessel to make contributions to its unemployment fund under its State unemployment compensation law approved by the Secretary of Labor under section 3304 and otherwise to comply with its unemployment compensation law with respect to the service performed by an officer or member of the crew on or in connection with such vessel to the same extent and with the same effect as though such service was performed entirely within such State. Such person and the officers and members of the crew of such vessel shall not be required to make contributions, with respect to such service, to the unemployment fund of any other State. The permission granted by this subsection is subject to the condition that such service shall be treated, for purposes of wage credits given employees, like other service subject to such State unemployment compensation law performed for such person in such State, and also subject to the same limitation, with respect to contributions required from such person and from the officers and members of the crew of such vessel, as is imposed by the second sentence (other than clause (B) thereof) of subsection (b) with respect to contributions required from instrumentalities of the United States and from individuals in their employ.

(g) Vessels operated by general agents of United States. The permission granted by subsection (f) shall apply in the same manner and under the same conditions (including the obligation to comply with all requirements of State unemployment compensation laws) to general agents of the Secretary of Commerce with respect to service performed on or after July 1, 1953, by officers and members of the crew on or in connection with American vessels—

(1) Owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States, and

(2) Whose business is conducted by such general agents.

As to any such vessel, the State permitted to require contributions on account of such service shall be the State to which the general agent would make contributions if the vessel were operated for his own account. Such general agents are designated, for this purpose, instrumentalities of the United States not wholly owned by it and shall not be exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301. The permission granted by this subsection is subject to the same conditions and limitations as are imposed in subsection (f), except that clause (B) of the second sentence of subsection (b) shall apply.

(h) Requirement by State of contributions. Any State may, as to service performed on or after July 1, 1953, and on account of which contributions are made pursuant to subsection (g)—

(1) Require contributions from persons performing such service under its unemployment compensation law or temporary disability insurance law administered in connection therewith, and

(2) Require general agents of the Secretary of Commerce to make contributions under such temporary disability insurance law and to make such deductions from wages or remuneration as are required by such unemployment compensation or temporary disability insurance law.

(i) General agent as legal entity. Each general agent of the Secretary of Commerce making contributions pursuant to subsection (g) or (h) shall, for purposes of such subsections, be considered a legal entity in his capacity as an instrumentality of the United States, separate and distinct from his identity as a person employing individuals on his own account.

§ 31.3306(a) Statutory provisions; definitions; employer.

SEC. 3306. Definitions—(a) Employer. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" does not include any person unless on each of some 20 days during the taxable year, each day being in a different calendar week, the total number of individuals who were employed by him in employment for some portion of the day (whether or not at the same moment of time) was 4 or more.

[Sec. 3306 (a) as amended by sec. 1, Act of Sept. 1, 1954 (Pub. Law 767, 83d Cong., 68 Stat. 1130), effective with respect to services performed after December 31, 1955. With respect to services performed before 1956, sec. 3306(a), as set forth below, is applicable.

SEC. 3306. Definitions—(a) Employer. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" does not include any person unless on each of some 20 days during the taxable year, each day being in a different calendar week, the total number of individuals who were employed by him in employment for some portion of the day (whether or not at the same moment of time) was 8 or more.]

§ 31.3306(a)–1 Who are employers.

(a) Definition—(1) For 1956 and subsequent calendar years. Every person who employs 4 or more employees in employment (within the meaning of section 3306 (c) and (d)) on a total of 20 or more calendar days during any calendar year after 1955, each such day being in a different calendar week, is with respect to such year an employer subject to the tax.

(2) For calendar year 1955. Every person who employs 8 or more employees in employment (within the meaning of section 3306 (c) and (d)) on a total of 20 or more calendar days during the calendar year 1955, each such day being in a different calendar week, is with respect to such year an employer subject to the tax.

(3) General agents of the Secretary of Commerce. For provisions relating to the circumstances under which an employee who performs services as an officer or member of the crew of an American vessel (i) which is owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States and (ii) whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce shall be deemed to be performing services for such general agent rather than for the United States, see § 31.3306 (n)–1.

(b) The several weeks in each of which occurs a day on which the prescribed number of employees are employed need not be consecutive weeks. It is not necessary that the employees so employed be the same individuals; they may be different individuals on each day. Neither is it necessary that the prescribed number of employees be employed at the same moment of time or for any particular length of time or on any particular basis of compensation. It is sufficient if the total number of employees employed during the 24 hours of a calendar day is 4 or more (8 or more for the calendar year 1955).

(c) In determining whether a person employs a sufficient number of employees to be an employer subject to the tax, each employee is counted with respect to services which constitute employment as defined in section 3306 (c) (see § 31.3306 (c)–2). No employee is counted with respect to services which do not constitute employment as so defined. See, however, paragraph (d) of this section.

(d) The provisions of paragraph (c) of this section are subject to the provisions of section 3306 (d), relating to services which do not constitute employment but which are deemed to be employment, and relating to services which constitute employment but which are deemed not to be employment (see § 31.3306 (d)–1). For example, if the services of an employee during a pay period are deemed to be employment under section 3306 (d), even though a portion thereof does not constitute employment under section 3306 (c), the employee is counted with respect to all services during the pay period. On the other hand, if the services of an employee during a pay period are deemed not to be employment, even though a portion thereof constitutes employment, the employee is not counted with respect to any services during the pay period.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(b) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include—

§ 31.3306(b)–1 Wages.

(a) Applicable law and regulations—(1) Remuneration paid after 1954. Whether remuneration paid after 1954 for employment performed after 1938 constitutes wages is determined under section 3306(b). Accordingly, only remuneration paid after 1954 for employment performed after 1938 is covered by this section of the regulations and by the sections relating to the statutory exclusions from wages (§§ 31.3306(b)(1)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1).

(2) Remuneration paid after 1939 and before 1955. Whether remuneration paid after 1939 and before 1955 for employment performed after 1938 constitutes wages shall be determined in accordance with the applicable provisions of law and of 26 CFR (1939) Part 403 (Regulations 107).

(3) Remuneration paid in 1939. Whether remuneration paid in 1939 for employment performed after 1938 constitutes wages shall be determined in accordance with the applicable provisions of law and of 26 CFR (1939) Part 400 (Regulations 90).

(b) The term "wages" means all remuneration for employment unless specifically excepted under section 3306 (b) (see §§ 31.3306 (b) (1)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive) or paragraph (j) of this section.

(c) The name by which the remuneration for employment is designated is immaterial. Thus, salaries, fees, bonuses, and commissions are wages if paid as compensation for employment.

(d) The basis upon which the remuneration is paid is immaterial in determining whether the remuneration constitutes wages. Thus, it may be paid on the basis of piecework or a percentage of profits; and it may be paid hourly, daily, weekly, monthly, or annually.

(e) Except in the case of remuneration paid for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business (see § 31.3306 (b) (7)–1), the medium in which the remuneration is paid is also immaterial. It may be paid in cash or in something other than cash, as for example, goods, lodging, food, or clothing. Remuneration paid in items other than cash shall be computed on the basis of the fair value of such items at the time of payment.

(f) Ordinarily, facilities or privileges (such as entertainment, medical services, or so-called "courtesy" discounts on purchases), furnished or offered by an employer to his employees generally, are not considered as remuneration for employment if such facilities or privileges are of relatively small value and are offered or furnished by the employer merely as a means of promoting the health, good will, contentment, or efficiency of his employees. The term "facilities or privileges", however, does not ordinarily include the value of meals or lodging furnished, for example, to restaurant or hotel employees, or to seamen or other employees aboard vessels, since generally these items constitute an appreciable part of the total remuneration of such employees.

(g) Amounts of so-called "vacation allowances" paid to an employee constitute wages. Thus, the salary of an employee on vacation, paid notwithstanding his absence from work, constitutes wages.

(h) Amounts paid specifically—either as advances or reimbursements—for traveling or other bona fide ordinary and necessary expenses incurred or reasonably expected to be incurred in the business of the employer are not wages. Traveling and other reimbursed expenses must be identified either by making a separate payment or by specifically indicating the separate amounts where both wages and expense allowances are combined in a single payment.

(i) Remuneration paid by an employer to an individual for employment, unless such remuneration is specifically excepted under section 3306 (b), constitutes wages even though at the time paid the individual is no longer an employee.

Example. A is employed by B, an employer, during the month of June 1955 in employment and is entitled to receive remuneration of $100 for the services performed for B during the month. A leaves the employ of B at the close of business on June 30, 1955. On July 15, 1955 (when A is no longer an employee of B), B pays A the remuneration of $100 which was earned for the services performed in June. The $100 is wages, and the tax is payable with respect thereto.

(j) In addition to the exclusions specified in §§ 31.3306 (b) (1)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive, the following types of payments are excluded from wages:

(1) Remuneration for services which do not constitute employment under section 3306 (c) (§§ 31.3306 (c) (1)–1 to 31.3306 (c) (17)–1, inclusive).

(2) Remuneration for services which are deemed not to be employment under section 3306 (d) (§ 31.3306 (d)–1).

(3) Tips or gratuities paid directly to an employee by a customer of an employer, and not accounted for by the employee to the employer.

(k) For provisions relating to the treatment of deductions from remuneration as payments of remuneration, see § 31.3307–1.

§ 31.3306(b)(1) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; $3,000 limitation.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(b) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include—

(1) That part of the remuneration which, after remuneration (other than remuneration referred to in the succeeding paragraphs of this subsection) equal to $3,000 with respect to employment has been paid to an individual by an employer during any calendar year, is paid to such individual by such employer during such calendar year. If an employer (hereinafter referred to as successor employer) during any calendar year acquires substantially all the property used in a trade or business of another employer (hereinafter referred to as a predecessor), or used in a separate unit of a trade or business of a predecessor, and immediately after the acquisition employs in his trade or business an individual who immediately prior to the acquisition was employed in the trade or business of such predecessor, then, for the purpose of determining whether the successor employer has paid remuneration (other than remuneration referred to in the succeeding paragraphs of this subsection) with respect to employment equal to $3,000 to such individual during such calendar year, any remuneration (other than remuneration referred to in the succeeding paragraphs of this subsection) with respect to employment paid (or considered under this paragraph as having been paid) to such individual by such predecessor during such calendar year and prior to such acquisition shall be considered as having been paid by such successor employer;

§ 31.3306(b)(1)–1 $3,000 limitation.

(a) In general. (1) The term "wages" does not include that part of the remuneration paid within any calendar year by an employer to an employee which exceeds the first $3,000 of remuneration (exclusive of remuneration excepted from wages in accordance with paragraph (j) of § 31.3306 (b)–1 or §§ 31.3306 (b) (2)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive), paid within such calendar year by such employer to such employee for employment performed for him at any time after 1938.

(2) The $3,000 limitation applies only if the remuneration paid during any one calendar year by an employer to the same employee for employment performed after 1938 exceeds $3,000. The limitation in such case relates to the amount of remuneration paid during any one calendar year for employment after 1938 and not to the amount of remuneration for employment performed in any one calendar year.

Example. Employer B, in 1955, pays employee A $2,500 on account of $3,000 due him for employment performed in 1955. In 1956 employer B pays employee A the balance of $500 due him for employment performed in the prior year (1955), and thereafter in 1956 also pays A $3,000 for employment performed in 1956. The $2,500 paid in 1955 is subject to tax in 1955. The balance of $500 paid in 1956 for employment during 1955 is subject to tax in 1956, as is also the first $2,500 paid of the $3,000 for employment during 1956 (this $500 for 1955 employment added to the first $2,500 paid for 1956 employment constitutes the maximum wages subject to the tax which could be paid in 1956 by B to A). The final $500 paid by B to A in 1956 is not included as wages and is not subject to the tax.

(3) If during a calendar year an employee is paid remuneration by more than one employer, the limitation of wages to the first $3,000 of remuneration paid applies, not to the aggregate remuneration paid by all employers with respect to employment performed after 1938, but instead to the remuneration paid during such calendar year by each employer with respect to employment performed after 1938. In such case the first $3,000 paid during the calendar year by each employer constitutes wages and is subject to the tax. In connection with the application of the $3,000 limitation, see also paragraph (b) of this section relating to the circumstances under which wages paid by a predecessor employer are deemed to be paid by his successor.

Example (1). During 1955 employer D pays to employee C a salary of $600 a month for employment performed for D during the first seven months of 1955, or total remuneration of $4,200. At the end of the fifth month C has been paid $3,000 by employer D, and only that part of his total remuneration from D constitutes wages subject to the tax. The $600 paid to employee C by employer D in the sixth month, and the like amount paid in the seventh month, are not included as wages and are not subject to the tax. At the end of the seventh month C leaves the employ of D and enters the employ of E. Employer E pays to C remuneration of $600 a month in each of the remaining five months of 1955, or total remuneration of $3,000. The entire $3,000 paid by E to employee C constitutes wages and is subject to the tax. Thus, the first $3,000 paid by employer D and the entire $3,000 paid by employer E constitute wages.

Example (2). During the calendar year 1955 F is simultaneously an officer (an employee) of the X Corporation, the Y Corporation, and the Z Corporation, each such corporation being an employer for such year. During such year F is paid a salary of $3,000 by each corporation. Each $3,000 paid to F by each of the corporations, X, Y, and Z (whether or not such corporations are related), constitutes wages and is subject to the tax.

(b) Wages paid by predecessor attributed to successor. (1) If an employer (hereinafter referred to as a successor) during any calendar year acquires substantially all the property used in a trade or business of another employer (hereinafter referred to as a predecessor), or used in a separate unit of a trade or business of a predecessor, and if immediately after the acquisition the successor employs in his trade or business an individual who immediately prior to the acquisition was employed in the trade or business of such predecessor, then, for purposes of the application of the $3,000 limitation set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, any remuneration (exclusive of remuneration excepted from wages in accordance with paragraph (j) of § 31.3306 (b)–1 or §§ 31.3306 (b) (2)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive), with respect to employment paid (or considered under this provision as having been paid) to such individual by such predecessor during such calendar year and prior to such acquisition shall be considered as having been paid by such successor. Wages paid by a predecessor shall not be considered as having been paid by the successor unless both the predecessor and the successor are employers as defined in section 3306 (a) for the calendar year in which the acquisition occurs (see § 31.3306 (a)–1, relating to who are employers).

(2) The wages paid, or considered as having been paid, by a predecessor to an employee shall, for purposes of the $3,000 limitation, be treated as having been paid to such employee by a successor, if:

(i) The successor during a calendar year acquired substantially all the property used in a trade or business, or used in a separate unit of a trade or business, of the predecessor;

(ii) Such employee was employed in the trade or business of the predecessor immediately prior to the acquisition and is employed by the successor in his trade or business immediately after the acquisition; and

(iii) Such wages were paid during the calendar year in which the acquisition occurred and prior to such acquisition.

(3) The method of acquisition of the property is immaterial. The acquisition may occur as a consequence of a corporate merger or consolidation, the incorporation of a business by a sole proprietor or a partnership, the continuance without interruption of the business of a previously existing partnership by a new partnership or by a sole proprietor, or a purchase or any other transaction whereby substantially all the property used in a trade or business, or used in a separate unit of a trade or business, of one employer is acquired by another employer.

(4) Substantially all the property used in a separate unit of a trade or business may consist of substantially all the property used in the performance of an essential operation of the trade or business, or it may consist of substantially all the property used in a relatively self-sustaining entity which forms a part of the trade or business.

Example (1). The M Corporation which is engaged in the manufacture of automobiles, including the manufacture of automobile engines, discontinues the manufacture of the engines and transfers all the property used in such manufacturing operations to the N Company. The N Company is considered to have acquired a separate unit of the trade or business of the M Corporation, namely, its engine manufacturing unit.

Example (2). The R Corporation which is engaged in the operation of a chain of grocery stores transfers one of such stores to the S Company. The S Company is considered to have acquired a separate unit of the trade or business of the R Corporation.

(5) A successor may receive credit for wages paid to an employee by a predecessor only if immediately prior to the acquisition the employee was employed by the predecessor in his trade or business which was acquired by the successor and if immediately after the acquisition such employee is employed by the successor in his trade or business (whether or not in the same trade or business in which the acquired property is used). If the acquisition involves only a separate unit of a trade or business of the predecessor, the employee need not have been employed by the predecessor in that unit provided he was employed in the trade or business of which the acquired unit was a part.

Example. The Y Corporation in 1955 acquires all the property of the X Manufacturing Company and immediately after the acquisition employs in its trade or business employee A, who, immediately prior to the acquisition, was employed by the X Company. Both the Y Corporation and the X Company are employers, as defined in the Act, for the calendar year 1955. The X Company has in 1955 (the calendar year in which the acquisition occurs) and prior to the acquisition paid $2,000 of wages to A. The Y Corporation in 1955 pays to A remuneration with respect to employment of $2,000. Only $1,000 of such remuneration is considered to be wages. For purposes of the $3,000 limitation, the Y Corporation is credited with the $2,000 paid to A by the X Company. If, in the same calendar year, the property is acquired from the Y Corporation by the Z Company, an employer for such year, and A immediately after the the acquisition is employed by the Z Company in its trade or business, no part of the remuneration paid to A by the Z Company in the year of the acquisition will be considered to be wages. The Z Company will be credited with the remuneration paid to A by the Y Corporation and also with the wages paid to A by the X Company (considered for purposes of the application of the $3,000 limitation as having also been paid by the Y Corporation).

(b) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include—

(2) The amount of any payment (including any amount paid by an employer for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment) made to, or on behalf of, an employee or any of his dependents under a plan or system established by an employer which makes provision for his employees generally (or for his employees generally and their dependents) or for a class or classes of his employees (or for a class or classes of his employees and their dependents), on account of—

(A) Retirement, or

(B) Sickness or accident disability, or

(C) Medical or hospitalization expenses in connection with sickness or accident disability, or

(D) Death;

§ 31.3306(b)(2)–1 Payments under employers' plans on account of retirement, sickness or accident disability, medical or hospitalization expenses, or death.

(a) The term "wages" does not include the amount of any payment (including any amount paid by an employer for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment) made to, or on behalf of, an employee or any of his dependents under a plan or system established by an employer which makes provision for his employees generally (or for his employees generally and their dependents) or for a class or classes of his employees (or for a class or classes of his employees and their dependents), on account of:

(1) An employee's retirement,

(2) Sickness or accident disability of an employee or any of his dependents,

(3) Medical or hospitalization expenses in connection with sickness or accident disability of an employee or any of his dependents, or

(4) Death of an employee or any of his dependents.

(b) The plan or system established by an employer need not provide for payments on account of all of the specified items, but such plan or system may provide for any one or more of such items. Payments for any one or more of such items under a plan or system established by an employer solely for the dependents of his employees are not within this exclusion from wages.

(c) Dependents of an employee include the employee's husband or wife, children, and any other members of the employee's immediate family.

(d) It is immaterial for purposes of this exclusion whether the amount or possibility of such benefit payments is taken into consideration in fixing the amount of an employee's remuneration or whether such payments are required, expressly or impliedly, by the contract of service.

(b) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include—

(3) Any payment made to an employee (including any amount paid by an employer for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment) on account of retirement;

§ 31.3306(b)(3)–1 Retirement payments.

The term "wages" does not include any payment made by an employer to an employee (including any amount paid by an employer for insurance or annuities, or into a fund, to provide for any such payment) on account of the employee's retirement. Thus, payments made to an employee on account of his retirement are excluded from wages under this exception even though not made under a plan or system.

(4) Any payment on account of sickness or accident disability, or medical or hospitalization expenses in connection with sickness or accident disability, made by an employer to, or on behalf of, an employee after the expiration of 6 calendar months following the last calendar month in which the employee worked for such employer;

§ 31.3306(b)(4)–1 Payments on account of sickness or accident disability, or medical or hospitalization expenses.

The term "wages" does not include any payment made by an employer to, or on behalf of, an employee on account of the employee's sickness or accident disability or the medical or hospitalization expenses in connection with the employee's sickness or accident disability, if such payment is made after the expiration of 6 calendar months following the last calendar month in which such employee worked for such employer. Such payments are excluded from wages under this exception even though not made under a plan or system. If the employee does not actually perform services for the employer during the requisite period, the existence of the employer-employee relationship during that period is immaterial.

(5) Any payment made to, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary—

(A) From or to a trust described in section 401 (a) which is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) at the time of such payment unless such payment is made to an employee of the trust as remuneration for services rendered as such employee and not as a beneficiary of the trust, or

(B) Under or to an annuity plan which, at the time of such payment, meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6);

§ 31.3306(b)(5)–1 Payments from or to certain tax-exempt trusts or under or to certain annuity plans.

The term "wages" does not include—

(a) Any payment made by an employer, on behalf of an employee or his beneficiary, into a trust or annuity plan, if at the time of such payment the trust is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) as an organization described in section 401 (a) or the annuity plan meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6); or

(b) Any payment made to, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary from a trust or under an annuity plan, if at the time of such payment the trust is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) as an organization described in section 401 (a) or the annuity plan meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6).

A payment made to an employee of a trust described in section 401 (a) which is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) for services rendered as an employee of such trust and not as a beneficiary of the trust is not within this exclusion from wages.

(A) Of the tax imposed upon an employee under section 3101 (or the corresponding section of prior law), or

(B) Of any payment required from an employee under a State unemployment compensation law;

§ 31.3306(b)(6)–1 Payment by an employer of employee tax under section 3101 or employee contributions under a State law.

The term "wages" does not include any payment by an employer (without deduction from the remuneration of, or other reimbursement from, the employee) of either (a) the employee tax imposed by section 3101 or the corresponding section of prior law, or (b) any payment required from an employee under a State unemployment compensation law.

§ 31.3306(b)(7)–1 Payments other than in cash for service not in the course of employer's trade or business.

The term "wages" does not include remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business. Cash remuneration includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business does not constitute wages. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for other types of services does not come within this exclusion from wages. For provisions relating to the circumstances under which service not in the course of the employer's trade or business does not constitute employment, see § 31.3306 (c) (3)–1.

(8) Any payment (other than vacation or sick pay) made to an employee after the month in which he attains the age of 65, if he did not work for the employer in the period for which such payment is made.

§ 31.3306(b)(8)–1 Payments to stand-by employees.

The term "wages" does not include any payment (other than vacation or sick pay) made by an employer to an employee after the calendar month in which the employee attains age 65, if—

(a) Such employee does no work (other than being subject to call for the performance of work) for such employer in the period for which such payment is made; and

(b) The employer-employee relationship exists between the employer and employee throughout the period for which such payment is made.

Vacation or sick pay is not within this exclusion from wages. If the employee does any work for the employer in the period for which the payment is made, no remuneration paid by such employer to such employee with respect to such period is within this exclusion from wages. For example, if employee A, who attained the age of 65 in January 1955, is employed by the X Company on a stand-by basis and is paid $200 by the X Company for being subject to call during the month of February 1955 and an additional $25 for work performed for the X Company on one day in February 1955, then none of the $225 is excluded from wages under this exception.

§ 31.3306(c) Statutory provisions; definitions; employment.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(c) Employment. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employment" means any service performed prior to 1955, which was employment for purposes of subchapter C of chapter 9 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 under the law applicable to the period in which such service was performed, and any service, of whatever nature, performed after 1954 by an employee for the person employing him, irrespective of the citizenship or residence of either, (A) within the United States, or (B) on or in connection with an American vessel under a contract of service which is entered into within the United States or during the performance of which the vessel touches at a port in the United States, if the employee is employed on and in connection with such vessel when outside the United States, except—

§ 31.3306(c)–1 Employment; services performed before 1955.

(a) Services performed after 1938 and before 1955 constitute employment under section 3306(c) if such services were employment under the law applicable to the period in which they were performed.

(b) The tax applies with respect to remuneration paid by an employer after 1954 for services performed after 1938 and before 1955, as well as for services performed after 1954, to the extent that the remuneration and services constitute wages and employment. See §§ 31.3306 (b)–1 to 31.3306 (b) (8)–1, inclusive, relating to wages.

(c) Determination of whether services performed after 1938 and before 1955 constitute employment shall be made in accordance with the provisions of law applicable to the period in which they were performed and of the regulations thereunder. The regulations applicable in determining whether services performed after 1938 and before 1955 constitute employment are as follows:

(1) Services performed in 1939—26 CFR (1939) Part 400 (Regulations 90).

(2) Services performed after 1939 and before 1955—26 CFR (1939) Part 403 (Regulations 107).

§ 31.3306(c)–2 Employment; services performed after 1954.

(a) In general. Whether services performed after 1954 constitute employment is determined under section 3306(c). This section, and §§ 31.3306(c)–3 to 31.3306(c)(17)–1, inclusive, apply with respect only to services performed after 1954. (For provisions relating to the circumstances under which services which do not constitute employment are nevertheless deemed to be employment, and relating to the circumstances under which services which constitute employment are nevertheless deemed not to be employment, see § 31.3306(d)–1. For provisions relating to services performed before 1955, see § 31.3306(c)–1.)

(b) Services performed within the United States. (1) Services performed after 1954 within the United States, that is, within any of the several States, the District of Columbia, or the Territory of Alaska or Hawaii, by an employee for the person employing him, unless specifically excepted by section 3306 (c), constitute employment. Services performed outside the United States, that is, outside the several States, the District of Columbia, and the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii (except certain services performed on or in connection with an American vessel—see paragraph (c) of this section), do not constitute employment.

(2) With respect to services performed within the United States, the place where the contract of service is entered into and the citizenship or residence of the employee or of the person employing him are immaterial. Thus, the employee and the person employing him may be citizens and residents of a foreign country and the contract of service may be entered into in a foreign country, and yet, if the employee under such contract actually performs services within the United States, there may be to that extent employment.

(c) Services performed outside the United States. (1) Services performed after 1954 by an employee for the person employing him "on or in connection with" an American vessel outside the United States constitute employment provided—

(i) The employee is also employed "on and in connection with" such vessel when outside the United States; and

(ii) The services are performed under a contract of service, between the employee and the person employing him, which is entered into within the United States, or during the performance of which the vessel touches at a port within the United States; and

(iii) The services are not excepted under section 3306 (c). (See particularly § 31.3306 (c) (17)–1, relating to fishing.)

(2) An employee performs services on and in connection with the vessel if he performs services on the vessel which are also in connection with the vessel. Services performed on the vessel as officers or members of the crew, or as employees of concessionaires, of the vessel, for example, are performed under such circumstances, since such services are also connected with the vessel. Services may be performed on the vessel, however, which have no connection with it, as in the case of services performed by an employee while on the vessel merely as a passenger in the general sense. For example, the services of a buyer in the employ of a department store while he is a passenger on a vessel are not in connection with the vessel.

(3) If services are performed by an employee "on and in connection with" an American vessel when outside the United States and the conditions in subparagraph (1) (ii) and (iii) of this paragraph are met, then the services of that employee performed on or in connection with the vessel constitute employment. The expression "on or in connection with" refers not only to services performed on the vessel but also to services connected with the vessel which are not actually performed on it (for example, shore services performed as officers or members of the crew, or as employees of concessionaires, of the vessel).

(4) Services performed by a member of the crew or other employee whose contract of service is not entered into within the United States, and during the performance of which the vessel does not touch at a port within the United States, do not constitute employment, notwithstanding services performed by other members of the crew or other employees on or in connection with the vessel may constitute employment.

(5) A vessel includes every description of watercraft, or other contrivance, used as a means of transportation on water. It does not include any type of aircraft.

(6) For definition of the term "American vessel", see § 31.3306 (m)–1.

(7) With respect to services performed outside the United States, the citizenship or residence of the employee is immaterial, and the citizenship or residence of the person employing him is material only in case it has a bearing in determining whether a vessel is an American vessel.

§ 31.3306(c)–3 Employment; excepted services in general.

(a) Services performed after 1954 by an employee for the person employing him do not constitute employment for purposes of the tax if they are specifically excepted by any of the numbered paragraphs of section 3306(c). Services so excepted do not constitute employment for purposes of the tax even though they are performed within the United States or are performed outside the United States on or in connection with an American vessel. For provisions relating to the circumstances under which services which are excepted are nevertheless deemed to be employment, and relating to the circumstances under which services which are not excepted are nevertheless deemed not to be employment, see § 31.3306 (d)–1.

(b) The exception attaches to the services performed by the employee and not to the employee as an individual; that is, the exception applies only to the services rendered by the employee in an excepted class.

Example. A is an individual who is employed part time by B to perform services which constitute "agricultural labor" (see § 31.3306 (k)–1). A is also employed by C part time to perform services as a grocery clerk in a store owned by him. While A's services which constitute "agricultural labor" are excepted, the exception does not embrace the services performed by A as a grocery clerk in the employ of C and the latter services are not excepted from employment.

(c) This section, §§ 31.3306 (c) (1)–1 to 31.3306 (c) (17)–1, inclusive (relating to the several classes of excepted services), and § 31.3306 (d)–1 (relating to included and excluded services) apply with respect to services performed after 1954. For provisions relating to services performed before 1955, see § 31.3306 (c)–1.

§ 31.3306(c)(1)–1 Agricultural labor.

Services performed by an employee for the person employing him which constitute "agricultural labor" as defined in section 3306 (k) are excepted from employment. For provisions relating to the definition of the term "agricultural labor", see § 31.3306 (k)–1.

(2) Domestic service in a private home, local college club, or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority;

§ 31.3306(c)(2)–1 Domestic service.

(a) In a private home. (1) Services of a household nature performed by an employee in or about a private home of the person by whom he is employed are excepted from employment. A private home is a fixed place of abode of an individual or family. A separate and distinct dwelling unit maintained by an individual in an apartment house, hotel, or other similar establishment may constitute a private home. If a dwelling house is used primarily as a boarding or lodging house for the purpose of supplying board or lodging to the public as a business enterprise, it is not a private home and the services performed therein are not excepted.

(2) In general, services of a household nature in or about a private home include services performed by cooks, waiters, butlers, housekeepers, governesses, maids, valets, baby sitters, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, caretakers, handymen, gardeners, footmen, grooms, and chauffeurs of automobile for family use.

(b) In a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority. (1) Services of a household nature performed by an employee in or about the club rooms or house of a local college club or of a local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority by which he is employed are excepted from employment. A local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority does not include an alumni club or chapter. If the club rooms or house of a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority is used primarily for the purpose of supplying board or lodging to students or the public as a business enterprise, the services performed therein are not within the exception.

(2) In general, services of a household nature in or about the club rooms or house of a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority include services rendered by cooks, waiters, butlers, maids, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, handymen, gardeners, housekeepers, and housemothers.

(c) Services not excepted. Services not of a household nature, such as services performed as a private secretary, tutor, or librarian, even though performed in the employer's private home or in a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority, are not within the exception. Services of a household nature are not within the exception if performed in or about rooming or lodging houses, boarding houses, clubs (except local college clubs, hotels, hospitals, eleemosynary institutions, or commercial offices or establishments.

(3) Service not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed in any calendar quarter by an employee, unless the cash remuneration paid for such service is $50 or more and such service is performed by an individual who is regularly employed by such employer to perform such service. For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(A) On each of some 24 days during such quarter such individual performs for such employer for some portion of the day service not in the course of the employer's trade or business, or

(B) Such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (A)) by such employer in the performance of such service during the preceding calendar quarter;

§ 31.3306(c)(3)–1 Services not in the course of employer's trade or business.

(a) Services not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed by an employee for an employer in a calendar quarter are excepted from employment unless—

(1) The cash remuneration paid for such services performed by the employee for the employer in the calendar quarter is $50 or more; and

(2) Such employee is regularly employed in the calendar quarter by such employer to perform such services.

Unless the tests set forth in both subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph are met, the services are excepted from employment.

(b) The term "services not in the course of the employer's trade or business" includes services that do not promote or advance the trade or business of the employer. Services performed for a corporation do not come within the exception.

(c) The test relating to cash remuneration of $50 or more is based on the remuneration earned during a calendar quarter rather than on the remuneration paid in a calendar quarter. However, for purposes of determining whether the test is met, it is also required that the remuneration be paid, although it is immaterial when the remuneration is paid. Furthermore, in determining whether $50 or more has been paid for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, only cash remuneration for such services shall be taken into account. The term "cash remuneration" includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any other medium, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, is disregarded in determining whether the cash-remuneration test is met.

(d) For purposes of this exception, an individual is deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(1) Such individual performs services not in the course of the employer's trade or business for such employer for some portion of the day on at least 24 days (whether or not consecutive) during such calendar quarter; or

(2) Such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph) by such employer in the performance of services not in the course of the employer's trade or business during the preceding calendar quarter (including the last calendar quarter of 1954).

(e) In determining whether an employee has performed services not in the course of the employer's trade or business on at least 24 days during a calendar quarter, there shall be counted as one day—

(1) Any day or portion thereof on which the employee actually performs such services; and

(2) Any day or portion thereof on which the employee does not perform services of the prescribed character but with respect to which cash remuneration is paid or payable to the employee for such services, such as a day on which the employee is sick or on vacation.

An employee who on a particular day reports for work and, at the direction of his employer, holds himself in readiness to perform services not in the course of the employer's trade or business shall be considered to be engaged in the actual performance of such services on that day. For purposes of this exception, a day is a period of 24 hours commencing at midnight and ending at midnight.

(f) For provisions relating to the exclusion from wages of remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, see § 31.3306 (b)(7)–1.

(4) Service performed on or in connection with a vessel not an American vessel by an employee, if the employee is employed on and in connection with such vessel when outside the United States;

§ 31.3306(c)(4)–1 Services on or in connection with a non-American vessel.

(a) In order for services performed within the United States "on or in connection with" a vessel not an American vessel to be excepted from employment under section 3306 (c) (4), the services must be performed by an employee who is also employed "on and in connection with" the vessel when outside the United States.

(b) An employee performs services on and in connection with the vessel if he performs services on the vessel when outside the United States which are also in connection with the vessel. Services performed on the vessel outside the United States by employees as officers or members of the crew, or by employees of concessionaires, of the vessel, for example, are performed under such circumstances, since such services are also connected with the vessel. Services may be performed on the vessel, however, which have no connection with it, as in the case of services performed by an employee while on the vessel merely as a passenger in the general sense. For example, the services of a buyer in the employ of a department store while he is a passenger on a vessel are not in connection with the vessel.

(c) The expression "on or in connection with" refers not only to services performed on the vessel but also to services connected with the vessel which are not actually performed on it (for example, shore services performed as officers or members of the crew, or as employees of concessionaires, of the vessel).

(d) The citizenship or residence of the employee and the place where the contract of service is entered into are immaterial for purposes of this exception, and the citizenship or residence of the person employing him is material only in case it has a bearing in determining whether the vessel is an American vessel. For definitions of the terms "vessel" and "American vessel", see paragraph (c) (5) of § 31.3306 (c)–2 and § 31.3306 (m)–1, respectively.

(e) Since the only services performed outside the United States which constitute employment are those described in section 3306(c) and paragraph (c) of § 31.3306(c)–2 (relating to services performed outside the United States on or in connection with an American vessel), services performed outside the United States on or in connection with a vessel not an American vessel do not constitute employment in any event.

(5) Service performed by an individual in the employ of his son, daughter, or spouse, and service performed by a child under the age of 21 in the employ of his father or mother;

§ 31.3306(c)(5)–1 Family employment.

(a) Certain services are excepted from employment because of the existence of a family relationship between the employee and the individual employing him. The exceptions are as follows:

(1) Services performed by an individual in the employ of his or her spouse;

(2) Services performed by a father or mother in the employ of his or her son or daughter; and

(3) Services performed by a son or daughter under the age of 21 in the employ of his or her father or mother.

(b) Under paragraph (a) (1) and (2) of this section, the exception is conditioned solely upon the family relationship between the employee and the individual employing him. Under paragraph (a) (3) of this section, in addition to the family relationship, there is a further requirement that the son or daughter shall be under the age of 21, and the exception continues only during the time that such son or daughter is under the age of 21.

(c) Services performed in the employ of a corporation are not within the exception. Services performed in the employ of a partnership are not within the exception unless the requisite family relationship exists between the employee and each of the partners comprising the partnership.

(A) Wholly owned by the United States, or

(B) Exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301 by virtue of any other provision of law;

§ 31.3306(c)(6)–1 Services in employ of United States or instrumentality thereof.

(a) Services performed in the employ of the United States Government, except as provided in section 3306 (n) (see § 31.3306 (n)–1), are excepted from employment. Services performed in the employ of an instrumentality of the United States are also excepted if the instrumentality is either wholly owned by the United States or exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301 by virtue of any other provision of law.

(b) Services performed in the employ of an instrumentality of the United States which is neither wholly owned by the United States nor exempt from the tax imposed by section 3301 by virtue of any other provision of law are not within the exception. For example, services performed in the employ of a national bank or a State member bank of the Federal Reserve System are not within the exception.

§ 31.3306(c)(7)–1 Services in employ of States or their political subdivisions or instrumentalities.

(a) Services performed in the employ of any State, or of any political subdivision thereof, are excepted from employment. Services performed in the employ of one or more States or political subdivisions thereof are excepted if the instrumentality is wholly owned by one or more of the foregoing. Services performed in the employ of an instrumentality of one or more of the several States or political subdivisions thereof which is not wholly owned by one or more of the foregoing are excepted only to the extent that the instrumentality is with respect to such services immune under the Constitution of the United States from the tax imposed by section 3301.

(b) The term "State" includes the District of Columbia and the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii. (See § 31.3306 (j).)

(8) Service performed in the employ of a corporation, community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, testing for public safety, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, and no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting, to influence legislation;

§ 31.3306(c)(8)–1 Services in employ of religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational organization, community chest, or organization testing for public safety.

Services performed by an employee in the employ of an organization described in section 3306(c)(8), that is, a corporation, community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, testing for public safety, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, and no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting, to influence legislation, are excepted from employment. Any organization which is an organization of a type described in section 501 (c) (3) and which—

(a) Is exempt from income tax under section 501 (a), or

(b) Has been denied exemption from income tax under section 501 (a) by reason of the provisions of section 503 or

504, relating to prohibited transactions and to accumulations out of income, respectively, is an organization of a type described in section 3306 (c) (8). An organization which would be an organization of a type described in section 501 (c) (3) except for those provisions of section 501 (c) (3) which are not contained in section 3306 (c) (8) (provisions relating to participation or intervention in a political campaign on behalf of a candidate for public office) is also an organization of a type described in section 3306 (c) (8). For provisions relating to organizations of the types described in section 501 (c) (3) and their status as exempt or nonexempt for income tax purposes, see the provisions of §§ 1.501(a)–1 and 1.501 (c)(3)–1 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(9) Service performed by an individual as an employee or employee representative as defined in section 1 of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act (52 Stat. 1094, 1095; 45 U. S. C. 351);

§ 31.3306(c)(9)–1 Railroad industry; services performed by an employee or an employee representative under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act.

(a) Services performed by an individual as an "employee" or as an "employee representative", as those terms are defined in section 1 of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, as amended, are excepted from employment.

(b) Section 1 of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act (45 U.S.C. 351), as amended, provides, in part, as follows:

For the purposes of this Act, except when used in amending the provisions of other Acts—

(a) The term "employer" means any carrier (as defined in subsection (b) of this section), and any company which is directly or indirectly owned or controlled by one or more such carriers or under common control therewith, and which operates any equipment or facility or performs any service (except trucking service, casual service, and the casual operation of equipment or facilities) in connection with the transportation of passengers or property by railroad, or the receipt, delivery, elevation, transfer in transit, refrigeration or icing, storage, or handling of property transported by railroad, and any receiver, trustee, or other individual or body, judicial or otherwise, when in the possession of the property or operating all or any part of the business of any such employer: Provided, however, That the term "employer" shall not include any street, interurban, or suburban electric railway, unless such railway is operating as a part of a general steam-railroad system of transportation, but shall not exclude any part of the general steam-railroad system of transportation now or hereafter operated by any other motive power. The Interstate Commerce Commission is hereby authorized and directed upon request of the Board, or upon complaint of any party interested, to determine after hearing whether any line operated by electric power falls within the terms of this proviso. The term "employer" shall also include railroad associations, traffic associations, tariff bureaus, demurrage bureaus, weighing and inspection bureaus, collection agencies, and other associations, bureaus, agencies, or organizations controlled and maintained wholly or principally by two or more employers as hereinbefore defined and engaged in the performance of services in connection with or incidental to railroad transportation; and railway labor organizations, national in scope, which have been or may be organized in accordance with the provisions of the Railway Labor Act, and their State and National legislative committees and their general committees and their insurance departments and their local lodges and divisions, established pursuant to the constitution and bylaws of such organizations. The term "employer" shall not include any company by reason of its being engaged in the mining of coal, the supplying of coal to an employer where delivery is not beyond the mine tipple, and the operation of equipment or facilities therefor, or in any of such activities.

(b) The term "carrier" means an express company, sleeping-car company, or carrier by railroad, subject to part I of the Interstate Commerce Act.

(c) The term "company" includes corporations, associations, and joint-stock companies.

(d) The term "employee" (except when used in phrases establishing a different meaning) means any individual who is or has been (1) in the service of one or more employers for compensation, or (11) an employee representative. The term "employee" shall include an employee of a local lodge or division defined as an employer in section 1 (a) only if he was in the service of a carrier on or after August 29, 1935. The term "employee" includes an officer of an employer.

The term "employee" shall not include any individual while such individual is engaged in the physical operations consisting of the mining of coal, the preparation of coal, the handling (other than movement by rail with standard railroad locomotives) of coal not beyond the mine tipple, or the loading of coal at the tipple.

(e) An individual is in the service of an employer whether his service is rendered within or without the United States if (i) he is subject to the continuing authority of the employer to supervise and direct the manner of rendition of his service, or he is rendering professional or technical services and is integrated into the staff of the employer, or he is rendering, on the property used in the employer's operations, other personal services the rendition of which is integrated into the employer's operations, and (ii) he renders such service for compensation: Provided, however, That an individual shall be deemed to be in the service of an employer, other than a local lodge or division or a general committee of a railway-labor-organization employer, not conducting the principal part of its business in the United States only when he is rendering service to it in the United States; and an individual shall be deemed to be in the service of such a local lodge or division only if (1) all, or substantially all, the individuals constituting its membership are employees of an employer conducting the principal part of its business in the United States; or (2) the headquarters of such local lodge or division is located in the United States; and an individual shall be deemed to be in the service of such a general committee only if (1) he is representing a local lodge or division described in clauses (1) or (2) immediately above; or (2) all, or substantially all, the individuals represented by it are employees of an employer conducting the principal part of its business in the United States; or (3) he acts in the capacity of a general chairman or an assistant general chairman of a general committee which represents individuals rendering service in the United States to an employer, but in such case if his office or headquarters is not located in the United States and the individuals represented by such general committee are employees of an employer not conducting the principal part of its business in the United States, only such proportion of the remuneration for such service shall be regarded as compensation as the proportion which the mileage in the United States under the jurisdiction of such general committee bears to the total mileage under its jurisdiction, unless such mileage formula is inapplicable, in which case the Board may prescribe such other formula as it finds to be equitable, and if the application of such mileage formula, or such other formula as the Board may prescribe, would result in the compensation of the individual being less than 10 per centum of his remuneration for such service no part of such remuneration shall be regarded as compensation: Provided further, That an individual not a citizen or resident of the United States shall not be deemed to be in the service of an employer when rendering service outside the United States to an employer who is required under the laws applicable in the place where the service is rendered to employ therein, in whole or in part, citizens or residents thereof.

(f) The term "employee representative" means any officer or official representative of a railway labor organization other than a labor organization included in the term employer as defined in section 1 (a) who before or after August 29, 1935, was in the service of an employer as defined in section 1 (a) and who is duly authorized and designated to represent employees in accordance with the Railway Labor Act, and any individual who is regularly assigned to or regularly employed by such officer or official representative in connection with the duties of his office.

(l) The term "compensation" means any form of money remuneration, including pay for time lost but excluding tips, paid for services rendered as an employee to one or more employers, or as an employee representative: Provided, however, That in computing the compensation paid to any employee with respect to any calendar month before July 1, 1954, no part of any compensation in excess of $300 shall be recognized, and with respect to any calendar month after June 30, 1954, no part of any compensation in excess of $350 shall be recognized. A payment made by an employer to an individual through the employer's pay roll shall be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be compensation for service rendered by such individual as an employee of the employer in the period with respect to which the payment is made. An employee shall be deemed to be paid, "for time lost" the amount he is paid by an employer with respect to an identifiable period of absence from the active service of the employer, including absence on account of personal injury, and the amount he is paid by the employer for loss of earnings resulting from his displacement to a less remunerative position or occupation. If a payment is made by an employer with respect to a personal injury and includes pay for time lost, the total payment shall be deemed to be paid for time lost unless, at the time of payment, a part of such payment is specifically apportioned to factors other than time lost, in which event only such part of the payment as is not so apportioned shall be deemed to be paid for time lost. Compensation earned in any calendar month before 1947 shall be deemed paid in such month regardless of whether or when payment will have been in fact made, and compensation earned in any calendar year after 1946 but paid after the end of such calendar year shall be deemed to be compensation paid in the calendar year in which it will have been earned if it is so reported by the employer before February 1 of the next succeeding calendar year or, if the employee establishes, subject to the provisions of section 8, the period during which such compensation will have been earned.

(10) (A) Service performed in any calendar quarter in the employ of any organization exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) (other than an organization described in section 401 (a)) or under section 521, if—

(i) The remuneration for such service is less than $50, or

(ii) Such service is in connection with the collection of dues or premiums for a fraternal beneficiary society, order, or association, and is performed away from the home office, or is ritualistic service in connection with any such society, order, or association, or

(iii) Such service is performed by a student who is enrolled and is regularly attending classes at a school, college, or university;

§ 31.3306(c)(10)(A)–1 Services in employ of certain organizations exempt from income tax.

(a) In general. (1) This section deals with the exception from employment of certain services performed in the employ of any organization exempt from income tax under section 501(a) (other than an organization described in section 401(a)) or under section 521. (See the provisions of §§ 1.401–1, 1.501(a)–1, and 1.521–1 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations.) If the services meet the tests set forth in paragraph (b), (c), or (d) of this section, such services are excepted.

(2) See also § 31.3306 (c) (8)–1 for provisions relating to the exception of services performed in the employ of a religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational organization, community chest, or organization testing for public safety; § 31.3306 (c) (10) (B)–1 for provisions relating to the exception of services performed in the employ of an agricultural or horticultural organization; § 31.3306 (c) (10) (C)–1 for provisions relating to the exception of services performed in the employ of a voluntary employees' beneficiary association; and § 31.3306 (c) (10) (D)–1 for provisions relating to the exception of services performed in the employ of a Federal employees' beneficiary association.

(b) Remuneration less than $50 for calendar quarter. Services performed by an employee in a calendar quarter in the employ of an organization exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) (other than an organization described in section 401 (a)) or under section 521 are excepted from employment, if the remuneration for the services is less than $50. The test relating to remuneration of $50 is based on the remuneration earned during a calendar quarter rather than on the remuneration paid in a calendar quarter. The exception applies separately with respect to each organization for which the employee renders services in a calendar quarter. The type of services performed by the employee and the place where the services are performed are immaterial; the statutory tests are the character of the organization in the employ of which the services are performed and the amount of the remuneration for services performed by the employee in the calendar quarter.

Example (1). X is a local lodge of a fraternal organization and is exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) as an organization of the character described in section 501 (c) (8). X has a number of paid employees, among them being A who serves exclusively as recording secretary for the lodge, and B who performs services for the lodge as janitor of its clubhouse. For services performed during the first calendar quarter of 1955 (that is, January 1, 1955, through March 31, 1955, both dates inclusive) A earns a total of $30. For services performed during the same calendar quarter B earns $180. Since the remuneration for the services performed by A during such quarter is less than $50, all of such services are excepted. Thus, A is not counted as an employee in employment on any of the days during such quarter for purposes of determining whether the X organization is an employer (see § 31.3306 (a)–1). Even though it is subsequently determined that X is an employer, A's remuneration of $30 for services performed during the first calendar quarter of such year is not subject to tax. B's services, however, are not excepted during such quarter since the remuneration therefor is not less than $50. Thus, B is counted as an employee in employment during all of such quarter for purposes of determining whether the X organization is an employer. If it is determined that the X organization is an employer, B's remuneration of $180 for services performed during the first calendar quarter is included in computing the tax.

Example (2). The facts are the same as in example (1), above, except that on April 1, 1955, A's salary is increased and, for services performed during the calendar quarter beginning on that date (that is, April 1, 1955, through June 30, 1955, both dates inclusive), A earns $60. Although all of the services performed by A during the first quarter were excepted, none of A's services performed during the second quarter are excepted since the remuneration for such services is not less than $50. A, therefore, is counted as an employee in employment during all of the second quarter for the purpose of determining whether the X organization is an employer. If it is determined that the X organization is an employer, A's remuneration of $60 for services performed during the second calendar quarter is included in computing the tax.

Example (3). The facts are the same as in example (1), above, except that A earns $120 for services performed during the year 1955, and such amount is paid to him in a lump sum at the end of the year. The services performed by A in any calendar quarter during the year are excepted if the portion of the $120 attributable to services performed in that quarter is less than $50. In such case, A is not counted as an employee in employment on any of the days during such quarter for purposes of determining whether the X organization is an employer. If, however, the portion of the $120 attributable to services performed in any calendar quarter during the year is not less than $50, the services during that quarter are not excepted. In the latter case, A is counted as an employee in employment during all of such quarter and, if the X organization is determined to be an employer, that portion of the $120 attributable to services performed in such quarter is included in computing the tax.

(c) Collection of dues or premiums for fraternal beneficiary societies, and ritualistic services in connection with such societies. The following services performed by an employee in the employ of a fraternal beneficiary society, order, or association exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) are excepted from employment:

(1) Services performed away from the home office of such a society, order, or association in connection with the collection of dues or premiums for such society, order, or association; and

(2) Ritualistic services (wherever performed) in connection with such a society, order, or association.

For purposes of this paragraph the amount of the remuneration for services performed by the employee in the calendar quarter is immaterial; the statutory tests are the character of the organization in whose employ the services are performed, the type of services, and, in the case of collection of dues or premiums, the place where the services are performed.

(d) Students employed by organizations exempt from income tax. (1) Services performed in the employ of an organization exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) (other than an organization described in section 401 (a)) or under section 521 by a student who is enrolled and is regularly attending classes at a school, college, or university, are excepted from employment. For purposes of this paragraph, the amount of remuneration for services performed by the employee in the calendar quarter, the type of services, and the place where such services are performed are immaterial; the statutory tests are the character of the organization in whose employ the services are performed and the status of the employee as a student enrolled and regularly attending classes at a school, college, or university.

(2) The term "school, college, or university" within the meaning of this exception is to be taken in its commonly or generally accepted sense. For provisions relating to services performed by a student enrolled and regularly attending classes at a school, college, or university not exempt from income tax in the employ of such school, college, or university, see § 31.3306 (c) (10) (E)–1.

(a) Services performed by a student in the employ of a school, college, or university not exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) are excepted from employment, if the student is enrolled and is regularly attending classes at such school, college, or university.

(b) For purposes of this section, the type of services performed by the employee, the place where the services are performed, and the amount of remuneration for services performed by the employee are immaterial; the statutory tests are the character of the organization in the employ of which the services are performed and the status of the employee as a student enrolled and regularly attending classes at the school, college, or university in the employ of which he performs the services.

(c) The status of the employee as a student performing the services shall be determined on the basis of the relationship of such employee with the organization for which the services are performed. An employee who performs services in the employ of a school, college, or university as an incident to and for the purpose of pursuing a course of study at such school, college, or university has the status of a student in the performance of such services.

(d) The term "school, college, or university" within the meaning of this exception is to be taken in its commonly or generally accepted sense.

§ 31.3306(c)(15) Statutory provisions; definitions; employment; services in delivery or distribution of newspapers, shopping news, or magazines.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(c) Employment. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employment" means • • • any service, of whatever nature, performed • • • by an employee for the person employing him • • • except—

(15) (A) Service performed by an individual under the age of 18 in the delivery or distribution of newspapers or shopping news, not including delivery or distribution to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution;

(B) Service performed by an individual in, and at the time of, the sale of newspapers or magazines to ultimate consumers, under an arrangement under which the newspapers or magazines are to be sold by him at a fixed price, his compensation being based on the retention of the excess of such price over the amount at which the newspapers or magazines are charged to him, whether or not he is guaranteed a minimum amount of compensation for such service, or is entitled to be credited with the unsold newspapers or magazines turned back;

§ 31.3306(c)(15)–1 Services in delivery or distribution of newspapers, shopping news, or magazines.

(a) Services of individuals under age 18. Services performed by an employee under the age of 18 in the delivery or distribution of newspapers or shopping news, not including delivery or distribution (as, for example, by a regional distributor) to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution, are excepted from employment. Thus, the services performed by an employee under the age of 18 in making house-to-house delivery or sale of newspapers or shopping news, including handbills and other similar types of advertising material, are excepted. The services are excepted irrespective of the form or method of compensation. Incidental services by the employee who makes the house-to-house delivery, such as services in assembling newspapers, are considered to be within the exception. The exception continues only during the time that the employee is under the age of 18.

(b) Services of individuals of any age. Services performed by an employee in, and at the time of, the sale of newspapers or magazines to ultimate consumers under an arrangement under which the newspapers or magazines are to be sold by him at a fixed price, his compensation being based on the retention of the excess of such price over the amount at which the newspapers or magazines are charged to him, are excepted from employment. The services are excepted whether or not the employee is guaranteed a minimum amount of compensation for such services, or is entitled to be credited with the unsold newspapers or magazines turned back. Moreover, the services are excepted without regard to the age of the employee. Services performed other than at the time of sale to the ultimate consumer are not within the exception. Thus, the services of a regional distributor which are antecedent to but not immediately part of the sale to the ultimate consumer are not within the exception. However, incidental services by the employee who makes the sale to the ultimate consumer, such as services in assembling newspapers or in taking newspapers or magazines to the place of sale, are considered to be within the exception.

(16) Service performed in the employ of an international organization; or § 31.3306(c)(16)–1 Services in employ of international organization.

(a) Subject to the provisions of section 1 of the International Organizations Immunities Act (22 U.S.C. 288), services performed in the employ of an international organization as defined in section 7701(a)(18) are excepted from employment.

(b)(1) Section 7701 (a) (18) provides as follows:

SEC. 7701. Definitions. (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

• • • • •

(18) International organization. The term "international organization" means a public international organization entitled to enjoy privileges, exemptions, and immunities as an international organization under the International Organizations Immunities Act (22 U. S. C. 288–288f).

(2) Section 1 of the International Organizations Immunities Act provides as follows:

SEC. 1. [International Organizations Immunities Act.] For the purposes of this title [International Organizations Immunities Act], the term "international organization" means a public international organization in which the United States participates pursuant to any treaty or under the authority of any Act of Congress authorizing such participation or making an appropriation for such participation, and which shall have been designated by the President through appropriate Executive order as being entitled to enjoy the privileges, exemptions, and immunities herein provided. The President shall be authorized, in the light of the functions performed by any such international organization, by appropriate Executive order to withhold or withdraw from any such organization or its officers or employees any of the privileges, exemptions, and immunities provided for in this title (including the amendments made by this title) or to condition or limit the enjoyment by any such organization or its officers or employees of any such privilege, exemption, or immunity. The President shall be authorized, if in his judgment such action should be justified by reason of the abuse by an international organization or its officers and employees of the privileges, exemptions, and immunities herein provided or for any other reason, at any time to revoke the designation of any international organization under this section, whereupon the international organization in question shall cease to be classed as an international organization for the purposes of this title.

§ 31.3306(c)(17) Statutory provisions; definitions; employment; fishing services.

(c) Employment. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employment" means • • • any service, of whatever nature, performed • • • by an employee for the person employing him • • • except—

(17) Service performed by an individual in (or as an officer or member of the crew of a vessel while it is engaged in) the catching, taking, harvesting, cultivating, or farming of any kind of fish, shellfish, crustacea, sponges, seaweeds, or other aquatic forms of animal and vegetable life (including service performed by any such individual as an ordinary incident to any such activity), except—

(A) Service performed in connection with the catching or taking of salmon or halibut, for commercial purposes, and

(B) Service performed on or in connection with a vessel of more than 10 net tons (determined in the manner provided for determining the register tonnage of merchant vessels under the laws of the United States).

§ 31.3306(c)(17)–1 Fishing services.

(a) In general. Subject to the limitations prescribed in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, services described in this paragraph are excepted from employment. Services performed by an individual in the catching, taking, harvesting, cultivating, or farming of any kind of fish, shell-fish (for example, oysters, clams, and mussels), crustacea (for example, lobsters, crabs, and shrimps), sponges, seaweeds, or other aquatic forms of animal and vegetable life are excepted. The exception extends to services performed as an officer or member of the crew of a vessel while the vessel is engaged in any such activity whether or not the officer or member of the crew is himself so engaged. In the case of an individual who is engaged in any such activity in the employ of any person, the services performed, by such individual in the employ of such person, as an ordinary incident to any such activity are also excepted. Similarly, for example, the shore services of an officer or member of the crew of a vessel engaged in any such activity are excepted if such services are an ordinary incident to any such activity. Services performed as an ordinary incident to any such activity may include, for example, services performed in such cleaning, icing, and packing of fish as are necessary for the immediate preservation of the catch.

(b) Salmon and halibut fishing. Services performed in connection with the catching or taking of salmon or halibut, for commercial purposes, are not within the exception. Thus, neither the services of an officer or member of the crew of a vessel (irrespective of its tonnage) which is engaged in the catching or taking of salmon or halibut, for commercial purposes, nor the services of any other individual in connection with such activity, are within the exception.

(c) Vessels of more than 10 net tons. Services described in paragraph (a) of this section performed on or in connection with a vessel of more than 10 net tons are not within the exception. For purposes of the exception, the tonnage of the vessel shall be determined in the manner provided for determining the register tonnage of merchant vessels under the laws of the United States.

§ 31.3306(d) Statutory provisions; definitions; included and excluded services.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(d) Included and excluded service. For purposes of this chapter, if the services performed during one-half or more of any pay period by an employee for the person employing him constitute employment, all the services of such employee for such period shall be deemed to be employment; but if the services performed during more than one-half of any such pay period by an employee for the person employing him do not constitute employment, then none of the services of such employee for such period shall be deemed to be employment. As used in this subsection, the term "pay period" means a period (of not more than 31 consecutive days) for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee by the person employing him. This subsection shall not be applicable with respect to services performed in a pay period by an employee for the person employing him, where any of such service is excepted by subsection (c) (9).

§ 31.3306(d)–1 Included and excluded services.

(a) If a portion of the services performed by an employee for the person employing him during a pay period constitutes employment, and the remainder does not constitute employment, all the services of the employee during the period shall for purposes of the tax be treated alike, that is, either all as included or all as excluded. The time during which the employee performs services which under section 3306 (c) constitute employment, and the time during which he performs services which under such section do not constitute employment, within the pay period, determine whether all the services during the pay period shall be deemed to be included or excluded.

(b) If one-half or more of the employee's time in the employ of a particular person in a pay period is spent in performing services which constitute employment, then all the services of that employee for that person in that pay period shall be deemed to be employment.

(c) If less than one-half of the employee's time in the employ of a particular person in a pay period is spent in performing services which constitute employment, then none of the services of that employee for that person in that pay period shall be deemed to be employment.

(d) The application of the provisions of paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Employer B, who operates a farm and a store, employs A to perform services in connection with both operations. A's services on the farm are such that they are excepted as agricultural labor and do not constitute employment, and his services in the store constitute employment. He is paid at the end of each month. During a particular month A works 120 hours on the farm and 80 hours in the store. None of A's services during the month are deemed to be employment, since less than one-half of his services during the month constitutes employment. During another month A works 75 hours on the farm and 120 hours in the store. All of A's services during the month are deemed to be employment, since one-half or more of his services during the month constitutes employment.

Example (2). Employee C is employed as a maid by D, a medical doctor, whose home and office are located in the same building. C's services in the home are excepted as domestic service and do not constitute employment, and her services in the office constitute employment. She is paid each week. During a particular week C works 20 hours in the home and 20 hours in the office. All of C's services during that week are deemed to be employment, since one-half or more of her services during the week constitutes employment. During another week C works 22 hours in the home and 15 hours in the office. None of C's services during that week are deemed to be employment, since less than one-half of her services during the week constitutes employment.

(e) For purposes of this section, a "pay period" is the period (of not more than 31 consecutive calendar days) for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee by the person employing him. Thus, if the periods for which payments of remuneration are made to the employee by such person are of uniform duration, each such period constitutes a "pay period". If, however, the periods occasionally vary in duration, the "pay period" is the period for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee by such person, even though that period does not coincide with the actual period for which a particular payment of remuneration is made. For example, if a person ordinarily pays a particular employee for each calendar week at the end of the week, but the employee receives a payment in the middle of the week for the portion of the week already elapsed and receives the remainder at the end of the week, the "pay period" is still the calendar week; or if, instead, that employee is sent on a trip by such person and receives at the end of the third week a single remuneration payment for 3 weeks' services, the "pay period" is still the calendar week.

(f) If there is only one period (and such period does not exceed 31 consecutive calendar days) for which a payment of remuneration is made to the employee by the person employing him, such period is deemed to be a "pay period" for purposes of this section.

(g) The rules set forth in this section do not apply (1) with respect to any services performed by the employee for the person employing him if the periods for which such person makes payments of remuneration to the employee vary to the extent that there is no period "for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee", or (2) with respect to any services performed by the employee for the person employing him if the period for which a payment of remuneration is ordinarily made to the employee by such person exceeds 31 consecutive calendar days, or (3) with respect to any service performed by the employee for the person employing him during a pay period if any of such service is excepted by section 3306 (c) (9) (see § 31.3306 (c) (9)–1).

(h) If during any period for which a person makes a payment of remuneration to an employee only a portion of the employee's services constitutes employment, but the rules prescribed in this section are not applicable, the tax attaches with respect to such services as constitute employment as defined in section 3306 (c) (provided such person is an employer as defined in section 3306 (a) and § 31.3306 (a)–1).

(f) Unemployment fund. For purposes of this chapter, the term "unemployment fund" means a special fund, established under a State law and administered by a State agency, for the payment of compensation. Any sums standing to the account of the State agency in the Unemployment Trust Fund established by section 904 of the Social Security Act, as amended (49 Stat. 640; 52 Stat. 1104, 1108; 42 U. S. C. 1104), shall be deemed to be a part of the unemployment fund of the State, and no sums paid out of the Unemployment Trust Fund to such State agency shall cease to be a part of the unemployment fund of the State until expended by such State agency. An unemployment fund shall be deemed to be maintained during a taxable year only if throughout such year, or such portion of the year as the unemployment fund was in existence, no part of the moneys of such fund was expended for any purpose other than the payment of compensation (exclusive of expenses of administration) and for refunds of sums erroneously paid into such fund and refunds paid in accordance with the provisions of section 3305 (b); except that—

(1) An amount equal to the amount of employee payments into the unemployment fund of a State may be used in the payment of cash benefits to individuals with respect to their disability, exclusive of expenses of administration; and

(2) The amounts specified by section 903 (c) (2) of the Social Security Act may, subject to the conditions prescribed in such section, be used for expenses incurred by the State for administration of its unemployment compensation law and public employment offices.

§ 31.3306(i) Statutory provisions; definitions; employee.

SEC. 3306. Definitions. • • •

(i) Employee. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes an officer of a corporation, but such term does not include—

(1) Any individual who, under the usual common law rules applicable in determining the employer-employee relationship, has the status of an independent contractor, or

(2) Any individual (except an officer of a corporation) who is not an employee under such common law rules.

§ 31.3306(i)–1 Who are employees.

(a) Every individual is an employee if the relationship between him and the person for whom he performs services is the legal relationship of employer and employee.. (The word "employer" as used in this section only, notwithstanding the provisions of § 31.3306 (a)–1, includes a person who employs one or more employees.)

(b) Generally such relationship exists when the person for whom services are performed has the right to control and direct the individual who performs the services, not only as to the result to be accomplished by the work but also as to the details and means by which that result is accomplished. That is, an employee is subject to the will and control of the employer not only as to what shall be done but how it shall be done. In this connection, it is not necessary that the employer actually direct or control the manner in which the services are performed; it is sufficient if he has the right to do so. The right to discharge is also an important factor indicating that the person possessing that right is an employer. Other factors characteristic of an employer, but not necessarily present in every case, are the furnishing of tools and the furnishing of a place to work, to the individual who performs the services. In general, if an individual is subject to the control or direction of another merely as to the result to be accomplished by the work and not as to the means and methods for accomplishing the result, he is an independent contractor. An individual performing services as an independent contractor is not as to such services an employee. Individuals such as physicians, lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, construction contractors, public stenographers, and auctioneers, engaged in the pursuit of an independent trade, business, or profession, in which they offer their services to the public, are independent contractors and not employees.

(c) Whether the relationship of employer and employee exists will in doubtful cases be determined upon an examination of the particular facts of each case.

(d) If the relationship of employer and employee exists, the designation or description of the relationship by the parties as anything other than that of employer and employee is immaterial. Thus, if such relationship exists, it is of no consequence that the employee is designated as a partner, coadventurer, agent, independent contractor, or the like.

(e) All classes or grades of employees are included within the relationship of employer and employee. Thus, superintendents, managers, and other supervisory personnel are employees. Generally, an officer of a corporation is an employee of the corporation. However, an officer of a corporation who as such does not perform any services or performs only minor services and who neither receives nor is entitled to receive, directly or indirectly, any remuneration is considered not to be an employee of the corporation. A director of a corporation in his capacity as such is not an employee of the corporation.

(f) Although an individual may be an employee under this section, his services may be of such a nature, or performed under such circumstances, as not to constitute employment (see § 31.3306 (c)–2).

(k) Agricultural labor. For purposes of this chapter, the term "agricultural labor" includes all service performed—

(1) On a farm, in the employ of any person, in connection with cultivating the soil, or in connection with raising or harvesting any agricultural or horticultural commodity, including the raising, shearing, feeding, caring for, training, and management of livestock, bees, poultry, and fur-bearing animals and wildlife;

(2) In the employ of the owner or tenant or other operator of a farm, in connection with the operation, management, conservation, improvement, or maintenance of such farm and its tools and equipment, or in salvaging timber or clearing land of brush and other debris left by a hurricane, if the major part of such service is performed on a farm;

(3) In connection with the production or harvesting of maple sirup or maple sugar or any commodity defined as an agricultural commodity in section 15 (g) of the Agricultural Marketing Act, as amended (46 Stat. 1550, § 3; 12 U. S. C. 1141j), or in connection with the raising or harvesting of mushrooms, or in connection with the hatching of poultry, or in connection with the ginning of cotton, or in connection with the operation or maintenance of ditches, canals, reservoirs, or waterways used exclusively for supplying and storing water for farming purposes; or

(4) In handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, any agricultural or horticultural commodity; but only if such service is performed as an incident to ordinary farming operations or, in the case of fruits and vegetables, as an incident to the preparation of such fruits or vegetables for market. The provisions of this paragraph shall not be deemed to be applicable with respect to service performed in connection with commercial canning or commercial freezing or in connection with any agricultural or horticultural commodity after its delivery to a terminal market for distribution for consumption.

As used in this subsection, the term "farm" includes stock, dairy, poultry, fruit, fur-bearing animal, and truck farms, plantations, ranches, nurseries, ranges, greenhouses or other similar structures used primarily for the raising of agricultural or horticultural commodities, and orchards.

§ 31.3306(k)–1 Agricultural labor.

(a) In general. (1) Services performed by an employee for the person employing him which constitute "agricultural labor" as defined in section 3306 (k) are excepted from employment by reason of section 3306 (c) (1). See § 31.3306 (c) (1)–1. The term "agricultural labor" as defined in section 3306 (k) includes services of the character described in paragraphs (b), (c), (d), and (e) of this section. In general, however, the term does not include services performed in connection with forestry, lumbering, or landscaping.

(2) The term "farm" as used in this subpart includes stock, dairy, poultry, fruit, fur-bearing animal, and truck farms, plantations, ranches, nurseries, ranges, orchards, and such greenhouses and other similar structures as are used primarily for the raising of agricultural or horticultural commodities. Greenhouses and other similar structures used primarily for other purposes (for example, display, storage, and fabrication of wreaths, corsages, and bouquets) do not constitute "farms".

(b) Services described in section 3306 (k) (1). Services performed on a farm by an employee of any person in connection with any of the following activities constitute agricultural labor:

(1) The cultivation of the soil;

(2) The raising, shearing, feeding, caring for, training, or management of livestock, bees, poultry, fur-bearing animals, or wildlife; or

(3) The raising or harvesting of any other agricultural or horticultural commodity.

(c) Services described in section 3306 (k) (2). (1) The following services performed by an employee in the employ of the owner or tenant or other operator of one or more farms constitute agricultural labor, if the major part of such services is performed on a farm:

(i) Services performed in connection with the operation, management, conservation, improvement, or maintenance of any of such farms or its tools or equipment; or

(ii) Services performed in salvaging timber, or clearing land of brush and other debris, left by a hurricane.

(2) The services described in subparagraph (1) (i) of this paragraph may include, for example, services performed by carpenters, painters, mechanics, farm supervisors, irrigation engineers, bookkeepers, and other skilled or semiskilled workers, which contribute in any way to the conduct of the farm or farms, as such, operated by the person employing them, as distinguished from any other enterprise in which such person may be engaged.

(3) Since the services described in this paragraph must be performed in the employ of the owner or tenant or other operator of the farm, services performed by employees of a commercial painting concern, for example, which contracts with a farmer to renovate his farm properties, do not constitute agricultural labor.

(d) Services described in section 3306 (k) (3). Services performed by an employee in the employ of any person in connection with any of the following operations constitute agricultural labor without regard to the place where such services are performed:

(1) The ginning of cotton;

(2) The hatching of poultry;

(3) The raising or harvesting of mushrooms;

(4) The operation or maintenance of ditches, canals, reservoirs, or waterways used exclusively for supplying or storing water for farming purposes;

(5) The production or harvesting of maple sap or the processing of maple sap into maple sirup or maple sugar (but not the subsequent blending or other processing of such sirup or sugar with other products); or

(6) The production or harvesting of crude gum (oleoresin) from a living tree or the processing of such crude gum into gum spirits of turpentine and gum rosin, provided such processing is carried on by the original producer of such crude gum.

(e) Services described in section 3306 (k) (4). (1) (i) Services performed by an employee in the employ of a farmer or a farmers' cooperative organization or group in the handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, of any agricultural or horticultural commodity, other than fruits and vegetables (see subparagraph (2) of this paragraph), produced by such farmer or farmer-members of such organization or group of farmers constitute agricultural labor, if such services are performed as an incident to ordinary farming operations.

(ii) Generally services are performed "as an incident to ordinary farming operations" within the meaning of this paragraph if they are services of the character ordinarily performed by the employees of a farmer or of a farmers' cooperative organization or group as a prerequisite to the marketing, in its unmanufactured state, of any agricultural or horticultural commodity produced by such farmer or by the members of such farmers' organization or group. Services performed by employees of such farmer or farmers' organization or group in the handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, of commodities produced by persons other than such farmer or members of such farmers' organization or group are not performed "as an incident to ordinary farming operations".

(2) Services performed by an employee in the employ of any person in the handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, of fruits and vegetables, whether or not of a perishable nature, constitute agricultural labor, if such services are performed as an incident to the preparation of such fruits and vegetables for market. For example, if services in the sorting, grading, or storing of fruits, or in the cleaning of beans, are performed as an incident to their preparation for market, such services may constitute agricultural labor, whether performed in the employ of a farmer, a farmers' cooperative, or a commercial handler of such commodities.

(3) The services described in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph do not include services performed in connection with commercial canning or commercial freezing or in connection with any commodity after its delivery to a terminal market for distribution for consumption. Moreover, since the services described in such subparagraphs must be rendered in the actual handling, planting, drying, packing, packaging, processing, freezing, grading, storing, or delivering to storage or to market or to a carrier for transportation to market, of the commodity, such services do not, for example, include services performed as stenographers, bookkeepers, clerks, and other office employees, even though such services may be in connection with such activities. However, to the extent that the services of such individuals are performed in the employ of the owner or tenant or other operator of a farm and are rendered in major part on a farm, they may be within the provisions of paragraph (c) of this section.

(m) American vessel. For purposes of this chapter, the term "American vessel" means any vessel documented or numbered under the laws of the United States; and includes any vessel which is neither documented or numbered under the laws of the United States nor documented under the laws of any foreign country, if its crew is employed solely by one or more citizens or residents of the United States or corporations organized under the laws of the United States or of any State.

§ 31.3306(m)–1 American vessel.

The term "American vessel" means any vessel which is documented (that is, registered, enrolled, or licensed) or numbered in conformity with the laws of the United States. It also includes any vessel which is neither documented nor numbered under the laws of the United States, nor documented under the laws of any foreign country, if the crew of such vessel is employed solely by one or more citizens or residents of the United States or corporations organized under the laws of the United States or of any State (including the District of Columbia or the Territory of Alaska or Hawaii). For provisions relating to services performed outside the United States on or in connection with an American vessel, see paragraph (c) of § 31.3306 (c)–2.

(n) Vessels operated by general agents of United States. Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (c) (6), service performed on or after July 1, 1953, by officers and members of the crew of a vessel which would otherwise be included as employment under subsection (c) shall not be excluded by reason of the fact that it is performed on or in connection with an American vessel—

(1) Owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States and

(2) Whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce.

For purposes of this chapter, each such general agent shall be considered a legal entity in his capacity as such general agent, separate and distinct from his identity as a person employing individuals on his own account, and the officers and members of the crew of such an American vessel whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce shall be deemed to be performing services for such general agent rather than the United States. Each such general agent who in his capacity as such is an employer within the meaning of subsection (a) shall be subject to all the requirements imposed upon an employer under this chapter with respect to service which constitutes employment by reason of this subsection.

§ 31.3306(n)–1 Services on American vessel whose business is conducted by general agent of Secretary of Commerce.

(a) Section 3306(n) and this section of the regulations apply with respect only to services performed by an officer or member of the crew of an American vessel (1) which is owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States, and (2) whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce. Whether services performed by such an officer or member of a crew under the above conditions constitute employment is determined under section 3306 (c) and (n), but without regard to section 3306 (c) (6). See § 31.3306 (c) (6)–1, relating to services performed in the employ of the United States and instrumentalities thereof. If, without regard to section 3306 (c) (6), such services constitute employment, they are not excepted from employment by reason of the fact that they are performed on or in connection with an American vessel which is owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States and whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce, that is, such services are not excepted from employment by section 3306 (c) (6). For provisions relating to services performed within the United States and services performed outside the United States which constitute employment, see § 31.3306 (c)–2.

(b) The expression "officer or member of the crew" includes the master or officer in charge of the vessel, however designated, and every individual, subject to his authority, serving on board and contributing in any way to the operation and welfare of the vessel. Thus, the expression includes, for example, the master, mates, pilots, pursers, surgeons, stewards, engineers, firemen, cooks, clerks, carpenters, and deck hands.

(c) An employee of the United States who performs services as an officer or member of the crew of an American vessel which is owned by or bareboat chartered to the United States and whose business is conducted by a general agent of the Secretary of Commerce shall be deemed, under section 3306 (n), to be performing services for such general agent rather than for the United States. Any such general agent of the Secretary of Commerce is considered a legal entity in his capacity as such general agent, separate and distinct from his identity as a person employing individuals on his own account. Each such general agent who in his capacity as such qualifies as an employer under section 3306 (a) is with respect to each calendar year for which he so qualifies subject to the tax imposed by section 3301, and to all the requirements imposed upon an employer as defined in section 3306 (a) by the regulations in this part, with respect to services which constitute employment by reason of section 3306 (n) and this section of the regulations.

Subpart E—Collection of Income Tax at Source on Wages (Chapter 24, Internal Revenue Code of 1954)

§ 31.3401(a) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

§ 31.3401(a)–1 Wages.

(a) In general. (1) The term "wages" means all remuneration for services performed by an employee for his employer unless specifically excepted under section 3401(a) or excepted under section 3402(e). See §§ 31.3401(a) to 31.3401(a)(12)–1, inclusive, and § 31.3402 (e)–1.

(2) The name by which the remuneration for services is designated is immaterial. Thus, salaries, fees, bonuses, commissions on sales or on insurance premiums, pensions, and retired pay are wages within the meaning of the statute if paid as compensation for services performed by the employee for his employer.

(3) The basis upon which the remuneration is paid is immaterial in determining whether the remuneration constitutes wages. Thus, it may be paid on the basis of piecework, or a percentage of profits; and may be paid hourly, daily, weekly, monthly, or annually.

(4) Generally the medium in which the remuneration is paid is also immaterial. It may be paid in cash or in something other than cash, as for example, stocks, bonds, or other forms of property. (See, however, § 31.3401 (a) (11)–1, relating to the exclusion from wages of remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business.) If services are paid for in a medium other than cash, the fair market value of the thing taken in payment is the amount to be included as wages. If the services were rendered at a stipulated price, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, such price will be presumed to be the fair value of the remuneration received. If a corporation transfers to its employees its own stock as remuneration for services rendered by the employee, the amount of such remunera-

§ 31.3307 Statutory provisions; deductions as constructive payments.

SEC. 3307. Deductions as constructive payments. Whenever under this chapter or any act of Congress, or under the law of any State, an employer is required or permitted to deduct any amount from the remuneration of an employee and to pay the amount deducted to the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, then for purposes of this chapter the amount so deducted shall be considered to have been paid to the employee at the time of such deduction.

§ 31.3307–1 Deductions by an employer from remuneration of an employee.

Any amount deducted by an employer from the remuneration of an employee is considered to be a part of the employee's remuneration and is considered to be paid to the employee as remuneration at the time that the deduction is made. It is immaterial that any act of Congress or the law of any State requires or permits such deductions and the payment of the amount thereof to the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof.

§ 31.3308 Statutory provisions; short title.

SEC. 3308. Short title. This chapter may be cited as the "Federal Unemployment Tax Act."

tion is the fair market value of the stock at the time of the transfer.

(5) Remuneration for services, unless such remuneration is specifically excepted by the statute, constitutes wages even though at the time paid the relationship of employer and employee no longer exists between the person in whose employ the services were performed and the individual who performed them.

Example. A is employed by R during the month of January 1955 and is entitled to receive remuneration of $100 for the services performed for R, the employer, during the month. A leaves the employ of R at the close of business on January 31, 1955. On February 15, 1955 (when A is no longer an employee of R), R pays A the remuneration of $100 which was earned for the services performed in January. The $100 is wages within the meaning of the statute.

(b) Certain specific items—(1) Pensions and retirement pay. (i) In general, pensions and retired pay are wages subject to withholding. However, no withholding is required with respect to amounts paid to an employee upon retirement which are taxable as annuities under the provisions of section 72 or 403. So-called pensions awarded by one to whom no services have been rendered are mere gifts or gratuities and do not constitute wages. Those payments of pensions or other benefits by the Federal Government under Title 38 of the United States Code which are excluded from gross income are not wages subject to withholding.

(ii) Retirement pay for service in the Armed Forces of the United States, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, or the Public Health Service is subject to withholding unless such pay is excluded from gross income under section 104 (a) (4), or is taxable as an annuity under the provisions of section 72. Where such retirement pay (not excluded from gross income under section 104 (a) (4) and not taxable as an annuity under the provisions of section 72) is paid to a nonresident alien individual, withholding is required only in the case of such amounts paid to a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico.

(2) Traveling and other expenses. Amounts paid specifically—either as advances or reimbursements—for traveling or other bona fide ordinary and necessary expenses incurred or reasonably expected to be incurred in the business of the employer are not wages and are not subject to withholding. Traveling and other reimbursed expenses must be identified either by making a separate payment or by specifically indicating the separate amounts where both wages and expense allowances are combined in a single payment.

(3) Vacation allowances. Amounts of so-called "vacation allowances" paid to an employee constitute wages. Thus, the salary of an employee on vacation, paid notwithstanding his absence from work, constitutes wages.

(4) Dismissal payments. Any payments made by an employer to an employee on account of dismissal, that is, involuntary separation from the service of the employer, constitute wages regardless of whether the employer is legally bound by contract, statute, or otherwise to make such payments.

(5) Deductions by employer from remuneration of an employee. Any amount deducted by an employer from the remuneration of an employee is considered to be a part of the employee's remuneration and is considered to be paid to the employee as remuneration at the time that the deduction is made. It is immaterial that any act of Congress, or the law of any State or of Puerto Rico, requires or permits such deductions and the payment of the amounts thereof to the United States, a State, a Territory, Puerto Rico, or the District of Columbia, or any political subdivision of any one or more of the foregoing.

(6) Payment by an employer of employee's tax, or employee's contributions under a State law. The term "wages" includes the amount paid by an employer on behalf of an employee (without deduction from the remuneration of, or other reimbursement from, the employee) on account of any payment required from an employee under a State unemployment compensation law, or on account of any tax imposed upon the employee by any taxing authority, including the taxes imposed by sections 3101 and 3201.

(7) Remuneration for services as employee of nonresident alien individual or foreign entity. The term "wages" includes remuneration for services performed by a citizen or resident of the United States as an employee of a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation whether or not such alien individual or foreign entity is engaged in trade or business within the United States. Any person paying wages on behalf of a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States (including Puerto Rico as if a part of the United States), is subject to all the provisions of law and regulations applicable with respect to an employer. See § 31.3401 (d)–1, relating to the term "employer", and § 31.3401 (a) (8) (C)–1, relating to remuneration paid for services performed by a citizen of the United States in Puerto Rico.

(8) Amounts paid under wage continuation plans—(i) Amounts paid before January 1, 1956—(a) Amounts paid by employer for whom services are performed. (1) Withholding is not required upon amounts paid before January 1, 1956, to an employee by his employer under a wage continuation plan for a period during which the employee is absent from work on account of personal injuries or sickness, if such amounts are excludable from the gross income of the employee under section 105 (d) and the records maintained by the employer in accordance with the provisions of sections 6001 and 6051 and the provisions thereunder in Subpart G of the regulations in this part—

(i) Separately show the amounts of such payments and distinguish such amounts from all other payments, and

(ii) Establish the facts necessary to show that the employee is entitled to the exclusion provided by section 105 (d), either by means of a written statement from the employee as to the injury, illness, or hospitalization, or by any other information which the employer believes to be accurate and which he is willing to accept for purposes of payments under the wage continuation plan.

(2) For the purpose of section 6051 and the regulations thereunder, relating to the requirement of receipts for employees, amounts paid before January 1, 1956, which are excludable from gross income under the provisions of section 105 (d) shall be included in the total wages required to be shown on Form W–2. The amount of any such wages on which the employer, in reliance on section 105 (d), does not withhold must be shown separately, and properly identified, on Form W–2 in such manner that it may be read on each copy of the form.

(3) See sections 6001 and 6051 and the provisions thereunder in Subpart G of the regulations in this part for rules with respect to the records which must be maintained in connection with wage continuation payments and for rules with respect to the statements which must be furnished an employee in connection with wage continuation payments, respectively. See also section 105 and § 1.105–4 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(b) Amounts paid by person other than employer for whom services are performed. Withholding is not required upon any amounts paid before January 1, 1956, to an employee for a period during which the employee is absent from work on account of personal injuries or sickness, whether or not such amounts are excludable from the gross income of the employee, if such amounts are paid through accident or health insurance or under an accident or health plan by a person who is not the employer for whom the employee performs services but who is regarded as an employer under section 3401 (d) (1). For example, no withholding is required in connection with accident or health benefits paid by an insurance company under an accident or health policy, by a separate trust under an accident or health plan, or by a State agency from a sickness and disability fund maintained under State law.

(ii) Amounts paid after December 31, 1955—(a) In general. The term "wage continuation payment", as used in this subdivision, means any payment to an employee which is made after December 31, 1955, under a wage continuation plan (as defined in paragraph (a) (2) (i) of § 1.105–4 and § 1.105–5 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations)) for a period of absence from work on account of personal injuries or sickness, to the extent such payment is attributable to contributions made by the employer which were not includible in the employee's gross income or is paid by the employer. Any such payment, whether or not excluded from the gross income of the employee under section 105(d), constitutes "wages" (unless specifically excepted under any of the numbered paragraphs of section 3401(a) or under section 3402(e)) and withholding thereon is required except as provided in (b) and (c) of this subdivision.

(c) Amounts paid by person other than the employer for whom services are performed. No tax shall be withheld upon any wage continuation payment made to an employee by or on behalf of a person who is not the employer for whom the employee performs services but who is regarded as an employer under section 3401 (d) (1). For example, no tax shall be withheld with respect to wage continuation payments made on behalf of an employer by an insurance company under an accident or health policy, by a separate trust under an accident or health plan, or by a State agency from a sickness and disability fund maintained under State law.

(d) Cross references. See sections 6001 and 6051 and the regulations thereunder for rules with respect to the records which must be maintained in connection with wage continuation payments and for rules with respect to the statements which must be furnished an employee in connection with wage continuation payments, respectively. See also section 105 and § 1.105–4 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(9) Value of meals and lodging. The value of any meals or lodging furnished to an employee by his employer is not subject to withholding if the value of the meals or lodging is excludable from the gross income of the employee. See § 1.119–1 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(10) Facilities or privileges. Ordinarily, facilities or privileges (such as entertainment, medical services, or so-called "courtesy" discounts on purchases), furnished or offered by an employer to his employees generally, are not considered as wages subject to withholding if such facilities or privileges are of relatively small value and are offered or furnished by the employer merely as a means of promoting the health, good will, contentment, or efficiency of his employees.

(11) Tips or gratuities. Tips or gratuities paid directly to an employee by a customer of an employer, and not accounted for by the employee to the employer, are not subject to withholding.

(12) Remuneration for services performed by permanent resident of Virgin Islands—(i) Exemption from withholding. No tax shall be withheld for the United States under chapter 24 from a payment of wages by an employer, including the United States or any agency thereof, to an employee if at the time of payment it is reasonable to believe that the employee will be required to satisfy his income tax obligations with respect to such wages under section 28 (a) of the Revised Organic Act of the Virgin Islands (68 Stat. 508). That section provides that all persons whose permanent residence is in the Virgin Islands "shall satisfy their income tax obligations under applicable taxing statutes of the United States by paying their tax on income derived from all sources both within and outside the Virgin Islands into the treasury of the Virgin Islands".

(ii) Claiming exemption. If the employee furnishes to the employer a statement in duplicate that he expects to satisfy his income tax obligations under section 28 (a) of the Revised Organic Act of the Virgin Islands with respect to all wages subsequently to be paid to him by the employer during the taxable year to which the statement relates, the employer may, in the absence of information to the contrary, rely on such statement as establishing reasonable belief that the employee will so satisfy his income tax obligations. The employee's statement shall identify the taxable year to which it relates, and both the original and the duplicate copy thereof shall be signed and dated by the employee.

(iii) Disposition of statement. The original of the statement shall be retained by the employer. The duplicate copy of the statement shall be sent by the employer to the Director of International Operations, Washington 25, D. C., on or before the last day of the calendar year in which the employer receives the statement from the employee.

(iv) Applicability of subparagraph. This subparagraph has no application with respect to any payment of remuneration which is not subject to withholding by reason of any other provision of the regulations in this subpart.

§ 31.3401(a)–2 Exclusions from wages.

(a) In general. (1) The term "wages" does not include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for his employer which is specifically excepted from wages under section 3401 (a) (see paragraph (b) of this section and §§ 31.3401 (a) (1)–1 to 31.3401 (a) (12)–1, inclusive).

(2) The exception attaches to the remuneration for services performed by an employee and not to the employee as an individual; that is, the exception applies only to the remuneration in an excepted category.

Example. A is an individual who is employed part time by B to perform domestic service in his home (see § 31.3401 (a) (3)–1). A is also employed by C part time to perform services as a clerk in a department store owned by him. While no withholding is required with respect to A's remuneration for services performed in the employ of B (the remuneration being excluded from wages), the exception does not embrace the remuneration for services performed by A in the employ of C and withholding is required with respect to the wages for such services.

(3) For provisions relating to the circumstances under which remuneration which is excepted is nevertheless deemed to be wages, and relating to the circumstances under which remuneration which is not excepted is nevertheless deemed not to be wages, see § 31.3402 (e)–1.

(b) Fees paid a public official. (1) Authorized fees paid to public officials such as notaries public, clerks of courts, sheriffs, etc., for services rendered in the performance of their official duties are excepted from wages and hence are not subject to withholding. However, salaries paid such officials by the Government, or by a Government agency or instrumentality, are subject to withholding.

(2) Amounts paid to precinct workers for services performed at election booths in State, county, and municipal elections and fees paid to jurors and witnesses are in the nature of fees paid to public officials and therefore are not subject to withholding.

§ 31.3401(a)(1) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; certain remuneration of members of the Armed Forces.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

(1) For active service as a member of the Armed Forces of the United States performed in a month for which such member is entitled to the benefits of section 112; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (1)–1 Remuneration of members of the Armed Forces of the United States for active service in combat zone or while hospitalized as a result of such service.

Remuneration paid for active service as a member of the Armed Forces of the United States performed in a month during any part of which such member served in a combat zone (as determined under section 112) or is hospitalized at any place as a result of wounds, disease, or injury incurred while serving in such a combat zone is excepted from wages and is, therefore, not subject to withholding. The exception with respect to hospitalization is applicable, however, only if during all of such month there are combatant activities in some combat zone (as determined under section 112). See § 1.112–1 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

§ 31.3401(a)(2) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration paid for agricultural labor.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(2) For agricultural labor (as defined in section 3121 (g)); or

§ 31.3401(a)(2)–1 Agricultural labor.

The term "wages" does not include remuneration for services which constitute agricultural labor as defined in section 3121 (g). For regulations relating to the definition of the term "agricultural labor", see § 31.3121(g)–1.

§ 31.3401(a)(3) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration paid for domestic service.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(3) For domestic service in a private home, local college club, or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority; or

§ 31.3401(a)(3)–1 Remuneration for domestic service.

(a) In a private home. (1) Remuneration paid for services of a household nature performed by an employee in or about a private home of the person by whom he is employed is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. A private home is a fixed place of abode of an individual or family. A separate and distinct dwelling unit maintained by an individual in an apartment house, hotel, or other similar establishment may constitute a private home. If a dwelling house is used primarily as a boarding or lodging house for the purpose of supplying board or lodging to the public as a business enterprise, it is not a private home, and the remuneration paid for services performed therein is not within the exception.

(2) In general, services of a household nature in or about a private home include services performed by cooks, waiters, butlers, housekeepers, governesses, maids, valets, baby sitters, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, caretakers, handymen, gardeners, footmen, grooms, and chauffeurs of automobiles for family use.

(b) In a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority. (1) Remuneration paid for services of a household nature performed by an employee in or about the club rooms or house of a local college club or of a local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority by which he is employed is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. A local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority does not include an alumni club or chapter. If the club rooms or house of a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority is used primarily for the purpose of supplying board or lodging to students or the public as a business enterprise, the remuneration paid for services performed therein is not within the exception.

(2) In general, services of a household nature in or about the club rooms or house of a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority include services rendered by cooks, waiters, butlers, maids, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, handymen, gardeners, housekeepers, and housemothers.

(c) Remuneration not excepted. Remuneration paid for services not of a household nature, such as services performed as a private secretary, tutor, or librarian, even though performed in the employer's private home or in a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority, is not within the exception. Remuneration paid for services of a household nature is not within the exception if performed in or about rooming or lodging houses, boarding houses, clubs (except local college clubs), hotels, hospitals, eleemosynary institutions, or commercial offices or establishments.

§ 31.3401(a)(4) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; cash remuneration for service not in the course of employer's trade or business.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(4) For service not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed in any calendar quarter by an employee, unless the cash remuneration paid for such service is $50 or more and such service is performed by an individual who is regularly employed by such employer to perform such service. For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(A) On each of some 24 days during such quarter such individual performs for such employer for some portion of the day service not in the course of the employer's trade or business; or

(B) Such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (A)) by such employer in the performance of such service during the preceding calendar quarter; or

§ 31.3401(a)(4)–1 Cash remuneration for service not in the course of employer's trade or business.

(a) Cash remuneration paid for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed by an employee for an employer in a calendar quarter is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding unless—

(1) The cash remuneration paid for such services performed by the employee for the employer in the calendar quarter is $50 or more; and

(2) Such employee is regularly employed in the calendar quarter by such employer to perform such services.

Unless the tests set forth in both subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph are met, cash remuneration for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business is excluded from wages. (For provisions relating to the exclusion from wages of remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, see § 31.3401 (a) (11)–1.)

(b) The term "services not in the course of the employer's trade or business" includes services that do not promote or advance the trade or business of the employer. As used in this section, the term does not include service not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed on a farm operated for profit or domestic service in a private home, local college club, or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority. Accordingly, this exception does not apply with respect to remuneration which is excepted from wages under section 3401 (a) (2) or section 3401 (a) (3) (see §§ 31.3401 (a) (2)–1 and 31.3401 (a) (3)–1, respectively). Remuneration paid for service performed for a corporation does not come within the exception.

(c) The test relating to cash remuneration of $50 or more is based on the remuneration earned during a calendar quarter rather than on the remuneration paid in a calendar quarter. However, for purposes of determining whether the test is met, it is also required that the remuneration be paid, although it is immaterial when the remuneration is paid. Furthermore, in determining whether $50 or more has been paid for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business, only cash remuneration for such service shall be taken into account. The term "cash remuneration" includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any other medium, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, is disregarded in determining whether the cash-remuneration test is met.

(d) For purposes of this exception, an individual is deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(1) Such individual performs service not in the course of the employer's trade or business for such employer for some portion of the day on at least 24 days (whether or not consecutive) during such calendar quarter; or

(2) Such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph) by such employer in the performance of service not in the course of the employer's trade or business during the preceding calendar quarter.

(e) In determining whether an employee has performed service not in the course of the employer's trade or business on at least 24 days during a calendar quarter, there shall be counted as one day—

(1) Any day or portion thereof on which the employee actually performs such service; and

(2) Any day or portion thereof on which the employee does not perform service of the prescribed character but with respect to which cash remuneration is paid or payable to the employee for such service, such as a day on which the employee is sick or on vacation.

An employee who on a particular day reports for work and, at the direction of his employer, holds himself in readiness to perform service not in the course of the employer's trade or business shall be considered to be engaged in the actual performance of such service on that day. For purposes of this exception, a day is a continuous period of 24 hours commencing at midnight and ending at midnight.

§ 31.3401(a)(5) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services for foreign government or international organization.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(5) For services by a citizen or resident of the United States for a foreign government or an international organization; or

§ 31.3401(a)(5)–1 Remuneration for services for foreign government or international organization.

(a) Services for foreign government. (1) Remuneration paid for services performed as an employee of a foreign government is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. The exception includes not only remuneration paid for services performed by ambassadors, ministers, and other diplomatic officers and employees but also remuneration paid for services performed as a consular or other officer or employee of a foreign government or as a nondiplomatic representative of such a government. However, the exception does not include remuneration for services performed for a corporation created or organized in the United States or under the laws of the United States or any State (including the District of Columbia or the Territory of Alaska or Hawaii) or of Puerto Rico even though such corporation is wholly owned by such a government.

(2) The citizenship or residence of the employee and the place where the services are performed are immaterial for purposes of the exception.

(b) Services for international organization. (1) Subject to the provisions of section 1 of the International Organizations Immunities Act (22 U.S.C. 288), remuneration paid for services performed within or without the United States by an employee for an international organization as defined in section 7701 (a) (18) is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. The term "employee" as used in the preceding sentence includes not only an employee who is a citizen or resident of the United States but also an employee who is a nonresident alien individual. The term "employee" also includes an officer. An organization designated by the President through appropriate Executive order as entitled to enjoy the privileges, exemptions, and immunities provided in the International Organizations Immunities Act may enjoy the benefits of the exclusion from wages with respect to remuneration paid for services performed for such organization prior to the date of the issuance of such Executive order, if (i) the Executive order does not provide otherwise and (ii) the organization is a public international organization in which the United States participates, pursuant to a treaty or under the authority of an act of Congress authorizing such participation or making an appropriation for such participation, at the time such services are performed.

(2) Section 7701 (a) (18) provides as follows:

SEC. 7701. Definitions. (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

• • • • •

(18) International organization. The term "international organization" means a public international organization entitled to enjoy privileges, exemptions, and immunities as an international organization under the International Organizations Immunities Act (22 U. S. C. 288–288f).

(3) Section 1 of the International Organizations Immunities Act provides as follows:

SECTION 1. [International Organizations Immunities Act.] For the purposes of this title [International Organizations Immunities Act], the term "international organization" means a public international organization in which the United States participates pursuant to any treaty or under the authority of any Act of Congress authorizing such participation or making an appropriation for such participation, and which shall have been designated by the President through appropriate Executive order as being entitled to enjoy the privileges, exemptions, and immunities herein provided. The President shall be authorized, in the light of the functions performed by any such international organization, by appropriate Executive order to withhold or withdraw from any such organization or its officers or employees any of the privileges, exemptions, and immunities provided for in this title (including the amendments made by this title) or to condition or limit the enjoyment by any such organization or its officers or employees of any such privilege, exemption, or immunity. The President shall be authorized, if in his judgment such action should be justified by reason of the abuse by an international organization or its officers and employees of the privileges, exemptions, and immunities herein provided or for any other reason, at any time to revoke the designation of any international organization under this section, whereupon the international organization in question shall cease to be classed as an international organization for the purposes of this title.

§ 31.3401(a)(6) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services of certain nonresident alien individuals.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(6) For services performed by a nonresident alien individual, other than—

(A) A resident of a contiguous country who enters and leaves the United States at frequent intervals; or

(B) A resident of Puerto Rico if such services are performed as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof; or § 31.3401(a)(6)–1 Remuneration for services of certain nonresident alien individuals.

(a) Except in the case of certain nonresident alien individuals who are residents of Canada, Mexico, or Puerto Rico, remuneration for services performed by nonresident alien individuals does not constitute wages subject to withholding under section 3402. For withholding of income tax on remuneration paid for services performed within the United States in the case of nonresident alien individuals generally, see § 1.1441–1 and following of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(b) Remuneration paid to nonresident aliens who are residents of a contiguous country (Canada or Mexico) and who enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals is not excepted from wages under section 3401 (a) (6). See, however, § 31.3401 (a) (7)–1, relating to remuneration paid to such nonresident alien individuals when engaged in transportation service.

(c) Remuneration paid to a nonresident alien individual for services performed in Puerto Rico for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding, even though such alien individual is a resident of Puerto Rico at the time when such services are performed. Wages paid for services performed by a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico are subject to withholding if such services are performed as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof. The place of performance of such services is immaterial, provided such alien individual is a resident of Puerto Rico at the time of performance of the services. Wages representing retirement pay for service in the Armed Forces of the United States, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, or the Public Health Service are subject to withholding, under the limitations specified in paragraph (b) (1) (ii) of § 31.3401 (a)–1, in the case of an alien resident of Puerto Rico.

§ 31.3401(a)(7) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services performed by nonresident alien individuals who are residents of a contiguous country and who enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(7) For such services, performed by a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of a contiguous country and who enters and leaves the United States at frequent intervals, as may be designated by regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate; or

§ 31.3401(a)(7)–1 Remuneration for services performed by nonresident alien individuals who are residents of a contiguous country and who enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals.

(a) Transportation service. Remuneration paid to nonresident aliens who are residents of a contiguous country (Canada or Mexico) and who, in the performance of their duties in transportation service between points in the United States and points in a contiguous country, enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals, is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. This exception applies to personnel engaged in railroad, bus, ferry, steamboat, and aircraft services and applies whether the employer is a domestic or foreign entity. Thus, the remuneration of a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of Canada and an employee of a domestic railroad, for services as a member of the crew of a train operating between points in Canada and points in the United States, is not subject to withholding under section 3402.

(b) Service on international projects. Remuneration paid to nonresident aliens who are residents of a contiguous country (Canada or Mexico) and who, in the performance of their duties in connection with the construction, maintenance, or operation of a waterway, viaduct, dam, or bridge traversed by or traversing the boundary between the United States and Canada or the boundary between the United States and Mexico, as the case may be, enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals, is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. Thus, the remuneration of a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of Canada, for services as an employee in connection with the construction, maintenance, or operation of the Saint Lawrence Seaway and who, in the performance of such services, enters and leaves the United States at frequent intervals, is not subject to withholding under section 3402.

(c) Limitation on application of section. The exception provided by this section has no application to the remuneration of a resident of Canada or of Mexico who is employed wholly within the United States as, for example, where such a resident is employed to perform service at a fixed point or points in the United States, such as a factory, store, office, or designated area or areas within the United States, and who commutes from his home in Canada or Mexico in the pursuit of his employment within the United States.

(d) Certificate required. In order for the exception to apply, the nonresident alien employee must furnish his employer a statement setting forth the employee's name and address and certifying (1) that he is not a citizen of the United States, (2) that he is a resident of Canada or Mexico, as the case may be, and (3) the approximate period of time during which he has had such status. Such statement shall be dated, shall be signed by the employee, and shall contain, or be verified by, a written declaration that it is made under the penalties of perjury. No particular form is prescribed for this statement.

§ 31.3401(a)(8)(A) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration paid for services performed by citizens outside the United States.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(8) (A) For services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof)—

(i) Performed by a citizen of the United States if, at the time of the payment of such remuneration, it is reasonable to believe that such remuneration will be excluded from gross income under section 911; or

(ii) Performed in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States by such a citizen if, at the time of the payment of such remuneration, the employer is required by the law of any foreign country or possession of the United States to withhold income tax upon such remuneration; or

[Sec. 3401(a)(8) as amended by Act of Aug. 9, 1955 (Pub. Law 321, 84th Cong., 69 Stat. 617)]

§ 31.3401(a)(8)(A)–1 Remuneration for services performed outside the United States by citizens of the United States.

(a) Remuneration excluded from gross income under section 911—(1) Resident of a foreign country. (i) Remuneration paid for services performed outside the United States for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) by a citizen of the United States does not constitute wages and hence is not subject to withholding, if at the time of payment it is reasonable to believe that such remuneration will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1). The reasonable belief contemplated by the statute may be based upon any evidence reasonably sufficient to induce such belief, even though such evidence may be insufficient upon closer examination by the district director or the courts finally to establish that the remuneration is excludable from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1).

(ii) If an individual citizen of the United States establishes to the satisfaction of the district director that he has been a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year, amounts received by such individual from sources without the United States (except amounts paid by the United States or any agency thereof) are excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1), provided that such amounts constitute earned income, as defined in section 911 (b), which is attributable to such uninterrupted period. See § 1.911–1 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(iii) The employer may, in the absence of cause for a reasonable belief to the contrary, presume that remuneration for services performed outside the United States during the taxable year, or applicable portion thereof, will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1) for each taxable year in respect of which the employee properly executes and furnishes in duplicate to the employer a statement in the following form:

Statement for claiming benefits of Section 911 (a) (1) for calendar year _____ or fiscal year beginning _____ and ending _____.

(A) My name is _____. My present address is _____. I am employed by _____.

(B) My last address in the United States was _____. The internal revenue district in which I filed my last income tax return is _____.

(C) I _____ file my income tax return on the calendar-year basis.
(Do or do not)

(D) I file my income tax return on the basis of the fiscal year beginning _____, 19__, and ending _____, 19__.

(E) I am a citizen of the United States.

(F) I have been a bona fide resident of the following foreign country or countries, namely, _____, for an uninterrupted period which began on _____, 19__.

(G) I expect to remain a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries from the date of this statement until the end of the taxable year in respect of which this statement is executed.

(H) On the basis of the facts in my case I have good reason to believe that, with respect to the above period of foreign residence falling within the taxable year, I will satisfy the bona fide foreign-residence requirement prescribed by section 911 (a) (1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

(I) I understand that any exemption from withholding of tax permitted by reason of the furnishing of this statement is not a determination by the district director of internal revenue that any remuneration paid to me for any services performed during the taxable year is excludable from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1).

I declare under the penalties of perjury that this statement has been examined by me and to the best of my knowledge and belief is true and correct.

(iv) If the employer was entitled to presume for the two consecutive taxable years immediately preceding an employee's current taxable year that such employee's remuneration for services performed outside the United States during such preceding taxable years would be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1) (or section 116 (a) (1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939), he may, if such employee is residing in a foreign country on the first day of such current taxable year, presume that, in the absence of cause for a reasonable belief to the contrary, the remuneration for services performed outside the United States during such current taxable year will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1) without obtaining from the employee the statement prescribed in subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph.

(2) Physical presence in a foreign country. (i) Remuneration paid for services performed outside the United States for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) by a citizen of the United States does not constitute wages and hence is not subject to withholding, if at the time of payment it is reasonable to believe that such remuneration will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2). The reasonable belief contemplated by the statute may be based upon any evidence reasonably sufficient to induce such belief, even though such evidence may be insufficient upon closer examination by the district director or the courts finally to establish that the remuneration is excludable from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2), provided that such amounts constitute earned income, as defined in section 911 (b), which is attributable to such period. However, the total amount so excluded from gross income under the provisions of such section may not exceed $20,000 for each taxable year if the 18-month period includes the entire taxable year. If the 18-month period does not include the entire taxable year, the amount excluded from gross income under such section for such taxable year may not exceed an amount which bears the same ratio to $20,000 as the number of days in the part of the taxable year within the 18-month period bears to the total number of days in such year. See § 1.911–1 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(ii) If an individual citizen of the United States is present in a foreign country or countries during at least 510 full days during any period of 18 consecutive months, amounts received by such individual from sources without the United States (except amounts paid by the United States or any agency thereof) are excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2), provided that such amounts constitute earned income, as defined in section 911 (b), which is attributable to such period. However, the total amount so excluded from gross income under the provisions of such section may not exceed $20,000 for each taxable year if the 18-month period includes the entire taxable year. If the 18-month period does not include the entire taxable year, the amount excluded from gross income under such section for such taxable year may not exceed an amount which bears the same ratio to $20,000 as the number of days in the part of the taxable year within the 18-month period bears to the total number of days in such year. See § 1.911–1 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(iii) The employer may, in the absence of cause for a reasonable belief to the contrary, presume that remuneration for services performed outside the United States during the taxable year, or applicable portion thereof, will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2) for each taxable year in respect of which the employee properly executes and furnishes in duplicate to the employer a statement in the form set forth below. The presumption shall not apply after the total payments made during the taxable year of the employee equal $20,000 or such lesser amount as may be allowable under section 911 (a) (2) on the basis of the facts shown in such statement.

(G) I expect to be present in a foreign country or countries, except for occasional absences not disqualifying me for the benefit of section 911 (a) (2), from the date of this statement until the end of the taxable year in respect of which this statement is executed, or, if not for such period, from the date of this statement until the following date within such taxable year, namely, _____, 19__.

(H) On the basis of the facts in my case I have good reason to believe that, with respect to the above period of presence in a foreign country or countries falling within the taxable year, I will satisfy the 510 full-day requirement prescribed by section 911 (a) (2).

I declare under the penalties of perjury that this statement has been examined by me and to the best of my knowledge and belief is true and correct.

Date: _____, 19__.

(3) Disposition of statements for claiming benefits of section 911. The original of each statement furnished to the employer pursuant to subparagraph (1) (iii) or (2) (iii) of this paragraph shall be transmitted to the district director with the employer's return filed pursuant to the provisions of Subpart G of the regulations in this part for the tax-return period in which such statement is received by the employer. The duplicate copy of each such statement shall be retained by the employer.

(b) Remuneration subject to withholding of income tax under law of a foreign country or a possession of the United States. (1) Remuneration paid for services performed in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) by a citizen of the United States does not constitute wages and hence is not subject to withholding, if at the time of the payment of such remuneration the employer is required by the law of any foreign country or of any possession of the United States to withhold income tax upon such remuneration. This paragraph, insofar as it relates to remuneration paid for services performed in a possession of the United States, applies only with respect to remuneration paid on or after August 9, 1955.

(2) Remuneration is not exempt from withholding under this paragraph if the employer is not required by the law of a foreign country or of a possession of the United States to withhold income tax upon such remuneration. Mere agreements between the employer and the employee whereby the estimated income tax of a foreign country or of a possession of the United States is withheld from the remuneration in anticipation of actual liability under the law of such country or possession will not suffice.

(3) The exemption from withholding provided by this paragraph does not apply by reason of withholding of income tax pursuant to the law of a territory of the United States, of a political subdivision of a possession of the United States, or of a political subdivision of a foreign state.

(4) For provisions relating to remuneration for services performed by a permanent resident of the Virgin Islands, see paragraph (b) (12) of § 31.3401 (a)–1.

(c) Limitation on application of section. This section has no application to the remuneration paid to a citizen of the United States for services performed outside the United States as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof.

(8) (B) For services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) performed by a citizen of the United States within a possession of the United States (other than Puerto Rico), if it is reasonable to believe that at least 80 percent of the remuneration to be paid to the employee by such employer during the calendar year will be for such services; or § 31.3401(a)(8)(B)–1 Remuneration for services performed in possession of the United States (other than Puerto Rico) by citizen of the United States.

(a) Remuneration paid for services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) performed by a citizen of the United States within a possession of the United States (other than Puerto Rico) does not constitute wages and hence is not subject to withholding, if it is reasonable to believe that at least 80 percent of the remuneration to be paid to the employee by such employer during the calendar year will be for such services. The reasonable belief contemplated by section 3401 (a) (8) (B) may be based upon any evidence reasonably sufficient to induce such belief, even though such evidence may be insufficient upon closer examination by the district director or the courts finally to establish that at least 80 percent of the remuneration paid by the employer to the employee during the calendar year was for services performed within such a possession of the United States.

(b) This section has no application to remuneration paid to a citizen of the United States for services performed in any possession of the United States as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof.

(c) For provisions relating to remuneration for services performed by a permanent resident of the Virgin Islands, see paragraph (b) (12) of § 31.3401 (a)–1.

§ 31.3401(a)(8)(C) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services performed in Puerto Rico by citizen of the United States.

• • • • •

(8) (C) For services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) performed by a citizen of the United States within Puerto Rico, if it is reasonable to believe that during the entire calendar year the employee will be a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico; or § 31.3401(a)(8)(C)–1 Remuneration for services performed in Puerto Rico by citizen of the United States.

(a) Remuneration paid for services performed within Puerto Rico for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) by a citizen of the United States does not constitute wages and hence is not subject to withholding, if it is reasonable to believe that during the entire calendar year the employee will be a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico. The reasonable belief contemplated by section 3401 (a) (8) (C) may be based upon any evidence reasonably sufficient to induce such belief, even though such evidence may be insufficient upon closer examination by the district director or the courts finally to establish that the employee was a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico for the entire calendar year.

(b) The employer may, in the absence of cause for a reasonable belief to the contrary, presume that an employee will be a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico during the entire calendar year—

(1) Unless the employee is known by the employer to have maintained his abode at a place outside Puerto Rico at some time during the current or the preceding calendar year; or

(2) In any case where the employee files with the employer a statement (containing a declaration under the penalties of perjury that such statement is true to the best of the employee's knowledge and belief) that such employee has at all times during the current calendar year been a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico and that he intends to remain a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico during the entire remaining portion of such current calendar year.

(c) This section has no application to remuneration paid to a citizen of the United States for services performed in Puerto Rico as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof.

§ 31.3401(a)(9) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services performed by a minister of a church or a member of a religious order.

(9) For services performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the exercise of his ministry or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order; or

§ 31.3401(a)(9)–1 Remuneration for services performed by a minister of a church or a member of a religious order.

(a) In general. Remuneration paid for services performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the exercise of his ministry, or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order, is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

(b) Service by a minister in the exercise of his ministry. Except as provided in paragraph (c) (3) of this section, service performed by a minister in the exercise of his ministry includes the ministration of sacerdotal functions and the conduct of religious worship, and the control, conduct, and maintenance of religious organizations (including the religious boards, societies, and other integral agencies of such organizations), under the authority of a religious body constituting a church or church denomination. The following rules are applicable in determining whether services performed by a minister are performed in the exercise of his ministry:

(1) Whether service performed by a minister constitutes the conduct of religious worship or the ministration of sacerdotal functions depends on the tenets and practices of the particular religious body constituting his church or church denomination.

(2) Service performed by a minister in the control, conduct, and maintenance of a religious organization relates to directing, managing, or promoting the activities of such organization. Any religious organization is deemed to be under the authority of a religious body constituting a church or church denomination if it is organized and dedicated to carrying out the tenets and principles of a faith in accordance with either the requirements or sanctions governing the creation of institutions of the faith. The term "religious organization" has the same meaning and application as is given to the term for income tax purposes.

(3) (i) If a minister is performing service in the conduct of religious worship or the ministration of sacerdotal functions, such service is in the exercise of his ministry whether or not it is performed for a religious organization.

(ii) The rule in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. M, a duly ordained minister, is engaged to perform service as chaplain at N University. M devotes his entire time to performing his duties as chaplain which include the conduct of religious worship, offering spiritual counsel to the university students, and teaching a class in religion. M is performing service in the exercise of his ministry.

(4) (i) If a minister is performing service for an organization which is operated as an integral agency of a religious organization under the authority of a religious body constituting a church or church denomination, all service performed by the minister in the conduct of religious worship, in the ministration of sacerdotal functions, or in the control, conduct, and maintenance of such organization (see subparagraph (2) of this paragraph) is in the exercise of his ministry.

(ii) The rule in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. M, a duly ordained minister, is engaged by the N Religious Board to serve as director of one of its departments. He performs no other service. The N Religious Board is an integral agency of O, a religious organization operating under the authority of a religious body constituting a church denomination. M is performing service in the exercise of his ministry.

(5) (i) If a minister, pursuant to an assignment or designation by a religious body constituting his church, performs service for an organization which is neither a religious organization nor operated as an integral agency of a religious organization, all service performed by him, even though such service may not involve the conduct of religious worship or the ministration of sacerdotal functions, is in the exercise of his ministry.

(ii) The rule in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. M, a duly ordained minister, is assigned by X, the religious body constituting his church, to perform advisory service to Y Company in connection with the publication of a book dealing with the history of M's church denomination. Y is neither a religious organization nor operated as an integral agency of a religious organization. M performs no other service for X or Y. M is performing service in the exercise of his ministry.

(c) Service by a minister not in the exercise of his ministry. (1) Section 3401 (a) (9) does not except from wages remuneration for service performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church which is not in the exercise of his ministry.

(2) (i) If a minister is performing service for an organization which is neither a religious organization nor operated as an integral agency of a religious organization and the service is not performed pursuant to an assignment or designation by his ecclesiastical superiors, then only the service performed by him in the conduct of religious worship or the ministration of sacerdotal functions is in the exercise of his ministry. See, however, subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

(ii) The rule in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. M, a duly ordained minister, is engaged by N University to teach history and mathematics. He performs no other service for N although from time to time he performs marriages and conducts funerals for relatives and friends. N University is neither a religious organization nor operated as an integral agency of a religious organization. M is not performing the service for N pursuant to an assignment or designation by his ecclesiastical superiors. The service performed by M for N University is not in the exercise of his ministry. However, service performed by M in performing marriages and conducting funerals is in the exercise of his ministry.

(3) Service performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church as an employee of the United States, or a State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or the District of Columbia, or a foreign government, or a political subdivision of any of the foregoing, is not considered to be in the exercise of his ministry for purposes of the collection of income tax at source on wages, even though such service may involve the ministration of sacerdotal functions or the conduct of religious worship. Thus, for example, service performed by an individual as a chaplain in the Armed Forces of the United States is considered to be performed by a commissioned officer in his capacity as such, and not by a minister in the exercise of his ministry. Similarly, service performed by an employee of a State as a chaplain in a State prison is considered to be performed by a civil servant of the State and not by a minister in the exercise of his ministry.

(d) Service in the exercise of duties required by a religious order. Service performed by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order includes all duties required of the member by the order. The nature or extent of such service is immaterial so long as it is a service which he is directed or required to perform by his ecclesiastical superiors.

§ 31.3401(a)(10) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services in the delivery or distribution of newspapers, shopping news, or magazines.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(10) (A) For services performed by an individual under the age of 18 in the delivery or distribution of newspapers or shopping news, not including delivery or distribution to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution; or

(B) For services performed by an individual in, and at the time of, the sale of newspapers or magazines to ultimate consumers, under an arrangement under which the newspapers or magazines are to be sold by him at a fixed price, his compensation being based on the retention of the excess of such price over the amount at which the newspapers or magazines are charged to him, whether or not he is guaranteed a minimum amount of compensation for such services, or is entitled to be credited with the unsold newspapers or magazines turned back; or

§ 31.3401(a)(10)–1 Remuneration for services in delivery or distribution of newspapers, shopping news, or magazines.

(a) Services of individuals under age 18. Remuneration for services performed by an employee under the age of 18 in the delivery or distribution of newspapers, or shopping news, not including delivery or distribution (as, for example, by a regional distributor) to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution, is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. Thus, remuneration for services performed by an employee under the age of 18 in making house-to-house delivery or sale of newspapers or shopping news, including handbills and other similar types of advertising material, is excepted from wages. The remuneration is excepted irrespective of the form or method thereof. Remuneration for incidental services by the employee who makes the house-to-house delivery, such as services in assembling newspapers, is considered to be within the exception. The exception continues only during the time that the employee is under the age of 18.

(b) Services of individuals of any age. Remuneration for services performed by an employee in, and at the time of, the sale of newspapers or magazines to ultimate consumers under an arrangement under which the newspapers or magazines are to be sold by him at a fixed price, his remuneration being based on the retention of the excess of such price over the amount at which the newspapers or magazines are charged to him, is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. The remuneration is excepted whether or not the employee is guaranteed a minimum amount of remuneration, or is entitled to be credited with the unsold newspapers or magazines turned back. Moreover, the remuneration is excepted without regard to the age of the employee. Remuneration for services performed other than at the time of sale to the ultimate consumer is not within the exception. Thus, remuneration for services of a regional distributor which are antecedent to but not immediately part of the sale to the ultimate consumer is not within the exception. However, remuneration for incidental services by the employee who makes the sale to the ultimate consumer, such as services in assembling newspapers or in taking newspapers or magazines to the place of sale, is considered to be within the exception.

§ 31.3401(a)(11) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration other than in cash for services not in the course of employer's trade or business.

SEC. 3401. Definition—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(11) For services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, to the extent paid in any medium other than cash; or

§ 31.3401(a)(11)–1 Remuneration other than in cash for service not in the course of employer's trade or business.

(a) Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. Cash remuneration includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business does not constitute wages. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for other types of services does not come within this exception from wages. For provisions relating to cash remuneration for service not in the course of employer's trade or business, see § 31.3401(a) (4)–1.

(b) As used in this section, the term "services not in the course of the employer's trade or business" has the same meaning as when used in § 31.3401 (a) (4)–1.

§ 31.3401(a)(12) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; payments from or to certain tax-exempt trusts or under or to certain annuity plans.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(12) To, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary—

(A) From or to a trust described in section 401 (a) which is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) at the time of such payment unless such payment is made to an employee of the trust as remuneration for services rendered as such employee and not as a beneficiary of the trust; or

(B) Under or to an annuity plan which, at the time of such payment, meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6).

§ 31.3401(a)(12)–1 Payments from or to certain tax-exempt trusts or under or to certain annuity plans.

The term "wages" does not include—

(a) Any payment made by an employer, on behalf of an employee or his beneficiary, into a trust or annuity plan, if at the time of such payment the trust is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) as an organization described in section 401 (a) or the annuity plan meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6); or

(b) Any payment made to, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary from a trust or under an annuity plan, if at the time of such payment the trust is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) as an organization described in section 401 (a) or the annuity plan meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6).

A payment made to an employee of a trust described in section 401 (a) which is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) for services rendered as an employee of such trust and not as a beneficiary of the trust is not within this exception from wages.

§ 31.3401(b) Statutory provisions; definitions; payroll period.

SEC. 3401. Definitions. • • •

(b) Payroll period. For purposes of this chapter, the term "payroll period" means a period for which a payment of wages is ordinarily made to the employee by his employer, and the term "miscellaneous payroll period" means a payroll period other than a daily, weekly, biweekly, semimonthly, monthly, quarterly, semiannual, or annual payroll period.

§ 31.3401(b)–1 Payroll period.

(a) The term "payroll period" means the period of service for which a payment of wages is ordinarily made to an employee by his employer. It is immaterial that the wages are not always paid at regular intervals. For example, if an employer ordinarily pays a particular employee for each calendar week at the end of the week, but if for some reason the employee in a given week receives a payment in the middle of the week for the portion of the week already elapsed and receives the remainder at the end of the week, the payroll period is still the calendar week; or if, instead, that employee is sent on a 3-week trip by his employer and receives at the end of the trip a single wage payment for three weeks' services, the payroll period is still the calendar week, and the wage payment shall be treated as though it were three separate weekly wage payments.

(b) For the purpose of section 3402, an employee can have but one payroll period with respect to wages paid by any one employer. Thus, if an employee is paid a regular wage for a weekly payroll period and in addition thereto is paid supplemental wages (for example, bonuses) determined with respect to a different period, the payroll period is the weekly payroll period. For computation of tax on supplemental wage payments, see § 31.3402 (g)–1.

(c) The term "miscellaneous payroll period" means a payroll period other than a daily, weekly, biweekly, semimonthly, monthly, quarterly, semiannual, or annual payroll period.

§ 31.3401(c) Statutory provisions; definitions; employee.

SEC. 3401. Definitions. • • •

(c) Employee. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation.

§ 31.3401(c)–1 Employee.

(a) The term "employee" includes every individual performing services if the relationship between him and the person for whom he performs such services is the legal relationship of employer and employee. The term includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a State, Territory, Puerto Rico, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing.

(b) Generally the relationship of employer and employee exists when the person for whom services are performed has the right to control and direct the individual who performs the services, not only as to the result to be accomplished by the work but also as to the details and means by which that result is accomplished. That is, an employee is subject to the will and control of the employer not only as to what shall be done but how it shall be done. In this connection, it is not necessary that the employer actually direct or control the manner in which the services are performed; it is sufficient if he has the right to do so. The right to discharge is also an important factor indicating that the person possessing that right is an employer. Other factors characteristic of an employer, but not necessarily present in every case, are the furnishing of tools and the furnishing of a place to work to the individual who performs the services. In general, if an individual is subject to the control or direction of another merely as to the result to be accomplished by the work and not as to the means and methods for accomplishing the result, he is not an employee.

(c) Generally, physicians, lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, contractors, subcontractors, public stenographers, auctioneers, and others who follow an independent trade, business, or profession, in which they offer their services to the public, are not employees.

(d) Whether the relationship of employer and employee exists will in doubtful cases be determined upon an examination of the particular facts of each case.

(e) If the relationship of employer and employee exists, the designation or description of the relationship by the parties as anything other than that of employer and employee is immaterial. Thus, if such relationship exists, it is of no consequence that the employee is designated as a partner, coadventurer, agent, independent contractor, or the like.

(f) All classes or grades of employees are included within the relationship of employer and employee. Thus, superintendents, managers, and other supervisory personnel are employees. Generally, an officer of a corporation is an employee of the corporation. However, an officer of a corporation who as such does not perform any services or performs only minor services and who neither receives nor is entitled to receive, directly or indirectly, any remuneration is not considered to be an employee of the corporation. A director of a corporation in his capacity as such is not an employee of the corporation.

(g) Although an individual may be an employee under this section, his services may be of such a nature, or performed under such circumstances, that the remuneration paid for such services does not constitute wages within the meaning of section 3401 (a).

§ 31.3401(d) Statutory provisions; definitions; employer.

SEC. 3401. Definitions. • • •

(d) Employer. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" means the person for whom an individual performs or performed any service, of whatever nature, as the employee of such person, except that—

(1) If the person for whom the individual performs or performed the services does not have control of the payment of the wages for such services, the term "employer" (except for purposes of subsection (a)) means the person having control of the payment of such wages, and

(2) In the case of a person paying wages on behalf of a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States, the term "employer" (except for purposes of subsection (a)) means such person.

§ 31.3401(d)–1 Employer.

(a) The term "employer" means any person for whom an individual performs or performed any service, of whatever nature, as the employee of such person.

(b) It is not necessary that the services be continuing at the time the wages are paid in order that the status of employer exist. Thus, for purposes of withholding, a person for whom an individual has performed past services for which he is still receiving wages from such person is an "employer."

(c) An employer may be an individual, a corporation, a partnership, a trust, an estate, a joint-stock company, an association, or a syndicate, group, pool, joint venture, or other unincorporated organization, group or entity. A trust or estate, rather than the fiduciary acting for or on behalf of the trust or estate, is generally the employer.

(d) The term "employer" embraces not only individuals and organizations engaged in trade or business, but organizations exempt from income tax, such as religious and charitable organizations, educational institutions, clubs, social organizations and societies, as well as the governments of the United States, the States, Territories, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia, including their agencies, instrumentalities, and political subdivisions.

(e) The term "employer" also means (except for the purpose of the definition of "wages") any person paying wages on behalf of a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States (including Puerto Rico as if a part of the United States).

(f) If the person for whom the services are or were performed does not have legal control of the payment of the wages for such services, the term "employer" means (except for the purpose of the definition of "wages") the person having such control. For example, where wages, such as certain types of pensions or retired pay, are paid by a trust and the person for whom the services were performed has no legal control over the payment of such wages, the trust is the "employer."

(g) It is a basic purpose to centralize in the employer the responsibility for withholding, returning, and paying the tax, and for furnishing the statements required under section 6051 and § 31.6051–1. The two special definitions of the term "employer" in paragraphs (e) and (f) of this section are designed solely to meet unusual situations. They are not intended as a departure from the basic purpose.

§ 31.3401(e) Statutory provisions; definitions; number of withholding exemptions claimed.

SEC. 3401. Definitions. • • •

(e) Number of withholding exemptions claimed. For purposes of this chapter, the term "number of withholding exemptions claimed" means the number of withholding exemptions claimed in a withholding exemption certificate in effect under section 3402 (f), or in effect under the corresponding section of prior law, except that if no such certificate is in effect, the number of withholding exemptions claimed shall be considered to be zero.

§ 31.3401(e)–1 Number of withholding exemptions claimed.

(a) The term "number of withholding exemptions claimed" means the number of withholding exemptions claimed in a withholding exemption certificate in effect under section 3402 (f) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or in effect under section 1622(h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. If no such certificate is in effect, the number of withholding exemptions claimed shall be considered to be zero. The number of withholding exemptions claimed must be taken into account in determining the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld under section 3402, whether the employer computes the tax in accordance with the provisions of subsection (a) or subsection (c) of section 3402.

(b) The employer is not required to ascertain whether or not the number of withholding exemptions claimed is greater than the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled. If, however, the employer has reason to believe that the number of withholding exemptions claimed by an employee is greater than the number to which such employee is entitled, the district director should be so advised.

(c) As to the number of withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled, see § 31.3402 (f) (1)–1.

§ 31.3402(a) Statutory provisions: income tax collected at source; requirement of withholding.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source—

(a) Requirement of withholding. Every employer making payment of wages shall deduct and withhold upon such wages (except as provided in subsection (j)) a tax equal to 18 percent of the amount by which the wages exceed the number of withholding exemptions claimed, multiplied by the amount of one such exemption as shown in subsection (b) (1).

[Sec. 3402(a) as amended by sec. 2(a), Act of Aug. 9, 1955 (Pub. Law 306, 84th Cong., 69 Stat. 605)]

§ 31.3402(a)–1 Requirement of withholding.

(a) Section 3402 provides alternative methods, at the election of the employer, for use in computing the income tax to be collected at source on wages. Under the percentage method of withholding (see § 31.3402 (b)–1), the employer is required to deduct and withhold a tax computed in accordance with the provisions of section 3402 (a). Under the wage bracket method of withholding (see § 31.3402 (c)–1), the employer is required to deduct and withhold a tax determined in accordance with the tables provided in section 3402 (c). The employer may elect to use the percentage method in the case of one group of employees and the wage bracket method in the case of another group of employees.

(b) The employer is required to collect the tax by deducting and withholding the amount thereof from the employee's wages as and when paid, either actually or constructively. Wages are constructively paid when they are credited to the account of or set apart for an employee so that they may be drawn upon by him at any time although not then actually reduced to possession. To constitute payment in such a case, the wages must be credited to or set apart for the employee without any substantial limitation or restriction as to the time or manner of payment or condition upon which payment is to be made, and must be made available to him so that they may be drawn upon at any time, and their payment brought within his own control and disposition.

(c) Except as provided in section 3402 (j) (see § 31.3402 (j)–1, relating to noncash remuneration paid to retail commission salesmen), an employer is required to deduct and withhold the tax notwithstanding the wages are paid in something other than money (for example, wages paid in stocks or bonds; see § 31.3401 (a)–1) and to pay over the tax in money. If wages are paid in property other than money, the employer should make necessary arrangements to insure that the amount of the tax required to be withheld is available for payment in money.

(d) For provisions relating to the circumstances under which tax is not required to be deducted and withheld from certain wage payments, see paragraph (b) (8) of § 31.3401 (a)–1 relating to amounts paid under wage continuation plans.

(e) As a matter of business administration, certain of the mechanical details of the withholding process may be handled by representatives of the employer. Thus, in the case of an employer having branch offices, the branch manager or other representative may actually, as a matter of internal administration, withhold the tax or prepare the statements required under section 6051. Nevertheless, the legal responsibility for withholding, paying, and returning the tax and furnishing such statements rests with the employer. For provisions relating to statements under section 6051, see § 31.6051–1.

(f) The amount of any tax withheld and collected by the employer is a special fund in trust for the United States. See section 7501.

§ 31.3402(b) Statutory provisions; income tax collected at source; percentage method of withholding.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • • (b) Percentage method of withholding. (1) The table referred to in subsection (a) is as follows:

PERCENTAGE METHOD WITHHOLDING TABLE

Payroll period:	Amount of one withholding exemption
Weekly	$13.00
Biweekly	26.00
Semimonthly	28.00
Monthly	56.00
Quarterly	167.00
Semiannual	333.00
Annual	667.00
Daily or miscellaneous (per day of such period)	1.80

(2) If wages are paid with respect to a period which is not a payroll period, the withholding exemption allowable with respect to each payment of such wages shall be the exemption allowed for a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days in the period with respect to which such wages are paid.

(3) In any case in which wages are paid by an employer without regard to any payroll period or other period, the withholding exemption allowable with respect to each payment of such wages shall be the exemption allowed for a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) which have elapsed since the date of the last payment of such wages by such employer during the calendar year, or the date of commencement of employment with such employer during such year, or January 1 of such year, whichever is the later.

(4) In any case in which the period, or the time described in paragraph (3), in respect of any wages is less than one week, the Secretary or his delegate, under regulations prescribed by him, may authorize an employer, in computing the tax required to be deducted and withheld, to use the excess of the aggregate of the wages paid to the employee during the calendar week over the withholding exemption allowed by this subsection for a weekly payroll period.

(5) In determining the amount to be deducted and withheld under this subsection, the wages may, at the election of the employer, be computed to the nearest dollar.

§ 31.3402(b)–1 Percentage method of withholding.

(a) In general. (1) The percentage method of computing the amount of tax to be withheld makes use of the percentage method withholding table contained in section 3402(b)(1). This table shows with respect to each of the designated payroll periods the amount allowable for one withholding exemption. The amount of the withholding exemption allowable with respect to a particular payroll period depends upon the number of withholding exemptions claimed. The term "payroll period" is defined in section 3401 (b) (see § 31.3401 (b)–1). The term "number of withholding exemptions claimed" is defined in section 3401 (e) (see § 31.3401 (e)–1).

(2) The steps in computing the tax under the percentage method of withholding are summarized as follows:

Step 1. Determine the amount of one withholding exemption for the particular payroll period from the percentage method withholding table.

Step 2. Multiply the amount determined in Step 1 by the number of exemptions claimed by the employee.

Step 3. Subtract the amount determined in Step 2 from the employee's wages.

Step 4. Multiply the difference by the applicable percentage figure under section 3402 (a) (see § 31.3402 (a)).

The result is the amount of tax to be withheld.

Example. During a period in which the rate under the percentage method of withholding is 18 percent, an employee has a weekly payroll period, for which he is paid $75, and has in effect a withholding exemption certificate claiming three withholding exemptions. His employer, using the percentage method, computes the tax to be withheld as follows:

Step 1:
Amount of one withholding exemption	$13.00
Step 2:
Multiplied by number of exemptions claimed on Form W-4	×3
Total withholding exemption	39.00
Step 3:
Total wage payment	$75.00
Less amount determined in Step 2	39.00
Balance subject to tax	36.00
Step 4:
Tax to be withheld (balance multiplied by 0.18)	6.48

(3) For provisions relating to the treatment of wages paid under wage continuation plans and wages paid other than in cash to retail commission salesmen, see paragraph (b) (8) of § 31.3401 (a)–1 and § 31.3402 (j)–1, respectively.

(b) Established payroll periods, other than daily or miscellaneous, as shown in percentage method withholding table. The amount of one withholding exemption, allowable with respect to each of the established payroll periods contained in the percentage method withholding table, is determined by reference to the line applicable to such payroll period and without reference to the time the employee is actually engaged in the performance of services during such payroll period.

Example (1). During 1955 employee C has a semimonthly payroll period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by C is two. C's wages are determined at the rate of $1.20 per hour. During a certain payroll period he works only 40 hours and earns $48. Although C worked only 40 hours during the semimonthly payroll period, the applicable withholding exemption is $26, and the amount of two withholding exemptions, or $56, is allowable. Since the amount of the wages paid for the semimonthly payroll period is less than the amount allowed for two withholding exemptions for such period, the employer is not required to withhold any tax.

Example (2). During 1955 employee D has a weekly payroll period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by D is two. D's wages are determined at the rate of $1.20 per hour. During a certain payroll period D works 30 hours and earns $36. Although D worked only 30 hours during the weekly payroll period, the applicable withholding exemption is $13, and the amount of two withholding exemptions, or $26, is allowable. The balance of $10 is subject to withholding.

(c) Periods to which the daily or miscellaneous withholding exemption is applicable—(1) In general. The percentage method withholding table shows for a daily or miscellaneous payroll period the amount of one withholding exemption allowable with respect to one day. For the purpose of determining the amount of tax to be withheld with respect to wages paid for a particular miscellaneous payroll period (see paragraph (c) of § 31.3401 (b)–1), the amount of one withholding exemption shown in the table for one day of such period and the wages paid for the period must be placed on a comparable basis. The amount of tax to be withheld may be determined by either of the following methods:

(i) Under the first method the following steps are taken:

Step 1. Multiply the amount shown in the percentage method withholding table as applicable per day of a miscellaneous payroll period by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in such period.

Step 2. Multiply the amount determined in Step 1 by the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee.

Step 3. Subtract the amount determined in Step 2 from the employee's wages.

Step 4. Multiply the difference by the applicable percentage figure under section 3402 (a) (see § 31.3402 (a)).

(ii) Under the second method the following steps are taken:

Step 1. Divide the wages paid to the employee for the period by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period.

Step 2. Multiply the amount shown in the percentage method withholding table as applicable per day of a miscellaneous payroll period by the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee.

Step 3. Subtract the amount determined in Step 2 from the amount determined in Step 1.

Step 4. Multiply the difference by the applicable percentage figure under section 3402 (a) (see § 31.3402 (a)).

Step 5. Multiply the amount determined in Step 4 by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period.

(2) Period not a payroll period. If wages are paid for a period which is not a payroll period, the withholding exemption allowable with respect to each payment of such wages shall be the exemption allowable for a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period with respect to which such wages are paid.

Example. During 1955 an individual is hired by a contractor to perform services in connection with a building project. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by such individual is two. Wages are fixed at the rate of $9 per day, to be paid upon completion of the project. The project is completed during 1955 in 12 consecutive days, at the end of which period the individual is paid wages of $90 for 10 days' services performed during the period. For the purpose of computing the tax the amount of the withholding exemption allowable for the 12-day period is $43.20 (12×(2×$1.80)). Tax is required to be withheld with respect to $46.80 ($90 minus $43.20).

(3) Wages paid without regard to any period. In the case of wages paid to an employee without regard to any particular period, as, for example, commissions paid to a salesman upon completion of a sale, the withholding exemption is measured by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) which have elapsed, beginning with the latest of the following days:

(i) The first day after the last payment of wages to such employee by such employer in the calendar year, or

(ii) The date on which such individual's employment with such employer began in the calendar year, or

(iii) January 1 of such calendar year, and ending with (and including) the date on which such wages are paid.

Example. On April 2, 1955, A is employed by the X Real Estate Co. to sell real estate on a commission basis, commissions to be paid only upon consummation of sales. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by A is one. On May 21, 1955, A receives a commission of $300. Again, on June 16, 1955, A receives a commission of $400. The amount of the withholding exemption with respect to the commission paid on May 21 is $90 ($1.80×50). With respect to the commission paid on June 16, the amount of the withholding exemption is $46.80 ($1.80×26).

(d) Period or elapsed time less than one week. (1) It is the general rule that if wages are paid for a payroll period or other period of less than one week, the withholding exemption allowable shall be the exemption allowable for a daily payroll period, or a miscellaneous payroll period containing the same number of days (including Sundays and holidays) as the payroll period or other period for which such wages are paid. The same rule is applicable in the case of wages paid without regard to a payroll period or other period, where the elapsed time as determined in accordance with the rule prescribed in paragraph (c) of this section is less than 1 week.

Example (1). During 1955 an employee having a daily payroll period is paid wages of $12 per day. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by such employee is one. The amount of each such daily wage payment subject to withholding is $10.20 ($12.00–$1.80).

Example (2). During 1955 an employee works for a certain employer on four consecutive days, for which he is paid wages of $36. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee is two. The amount of the withholding exemption allowable is $14.40 (4×$3.60).

(2) Under certain conditions, if the payroll period, other period, or elapsed time where wages are paid without regard to any period, is less than one week, the employer may, at his election, compute the tax to be withheld as if the aggregate of the wages paid to the employee during the calendar week were paid for a weekly payroll period. Such election may be made by the employer only if he is the only employer for whom the employee works for wages during the calendar week. Any employer electing to compute the tax upon the excess of the wages paid during the calendar week over the weekly exemption must secure a statement in writing from the employee, stating that he works for wages for such employer only, and that if he should thereafter secure additional employment for wages, he will within 10 days after the beginning of such additional employment, notify such employer of that fact. Such statement shall be signed by the employee and shall contain or be verified by a written declaration that it is made under the penalties of perjury. No particular form is prescribed for the statement.

Example. During 1955 an employee works for a certain employer on four consecutive days, for which he is paid wages of $36. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee is two. The employer elects to use the weekly withholding exemption after securing the proper statement from the employee. In such case, the amount of the withholding exemption allowable is $26 (2×$13).

(3) If such employee secures additional employment for wages, the daily or miscellaneous exemption will take effect as of the beginning of the first payroll period ending, or the first payment of wages made without regard to a payroll period, on or after the thirtieth day following the date on which such employee notifies such employer that he has secured additional employment for wages. After the daily or miscellaneous exemption takes effect the employer may not thereafter use the weekly exemption in computing the amount of tax to be withheld from the wages of such employee.

(4) As used in this paragraph the term "calendar week" means a period of 7 consecutive days beginning with Sunday and ending with Saturday.

(e) Rounding off of wage payment. In determining the amount to be deducted and withheld under the percentage method, the last digit of the wage amount may, at the election of the employer, be reduced to zero, or the wage amount may, at the election of the employer, be computed to the nearest dollar. For the purpose of the computation to the nearest dollar, the payment of a fractional part of a dollar shall be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half dollar or more, in which case it shall be increased to $1.00. Thus, if the weekly wage is $45.37, the employer may, in determining the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld, determine the tax on the basis of a wage payment of $45.30 or on the basis of a wage payment of $45. If the weekly wage is $45.50, the employer may determine the tax to be deducted and withheld on the basis of a wage payment of $46.

(2) If wages are paid with respect to a period which is not a payroll period, the amount to be deducted and withheld shall be that applicable in the case of a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days in the period with respect to which such wages are paid.

(3) In any case in which wages are paid by an employer without regard to any payroll period or other period, the amount to be deducted and withheld shall be that applicable in the case of a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) which have elapsed since the date of the last payment of such wages by such employer during the calendar year, or the date of commencement of employment with such employer during such year, or January 1 of such year, whichever is the later.

(4) In any case in which the period, or the time described in paragraph (3), in respect of any wages is less than one week, the Secretary or his delegate, under regulations prescribed by him, may authorize an employer to determine the amount to be deducted and withheld under the tables applicable in the case of a weekly payroll period, in which case the aggregate of the wages paid to the employee during the calendar week shall be considered the weekly wages.

(5) If the wages exceed the highest wage bracket, in determining the amount to be deducted and withheld under this subsection, the wages may, at the election of the employer, be computed to the nearest dollar.

§ 31.3402(c)–1 Wage bracket withholding.

(a) In general. (1) The employer may elect to use the wage bracket method provided in section 3402 (c) instead of the percentage method with respect to any employee. The tax computed under the wage bracket method shall be in lieu of the tax required to be deducted and withheld under section 3402 (a). Wage bracket withholding tables for weekly, biweekly, semimonthly, monthly, and daily or miscellaneous payroll periods are contained in section 3402 (c).

(2) For provisions relating to the treatment of wages paid under wage continuation plans and wages paid other than in cash to retail commission salesmen, see paragraph (b) (8) of § 31.3401 (a)–1 and § 31.3402 (j)–1, respectively.

(b) Established payroll periods, other than daily or miscellaneous, covered by wage bracket withholding tables. The wage bracket withholding tables contained in section 3402 (c) for established payroll periods other than daily or miscellaneous should be used in determining the tax to be withheld for any such period without reference to the time the employee is actually engaged in the performance of services during such payroll period.

Example (1). During 1955 employee C has a semimonthly payroll period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by C is two. During a certain payroll period C works only 40 hours and earns $48. Although C worked only 40 hours during the semimonthly payroll period, the wage bracket withholding table for a semimonthly payroll period should be used in determining the tax to be withheld. Under this table it will be found that no tax is required to be withheld from a wage payment of $48 when two withholding exemptions are claimed.

Example (2). During 1955 employee D has a weekly payroll period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by D is two. D's wages are determined at the rate of $1.20 per hour. During a certain payroll period D works 30 hours and earns $36. Although D worked only 30 hours during the weekly payroll period, the wage bracket withholding table for a weekly payroll period should be used in determining the tax to be withheld. Under this table it will be found that $2.00 is the amount of tax to be withheld from a wage payment of $36 when two withholding exemptions are claimed.

(c) Periods to which the table for a daily or miscellaneous payroll period is applicable—(1) In general. The table applicable to a daily or miscellaneous payroll period shows the tax on the amount of wages for one day. Where the withholding is computed under the rules applicable to a miscellaneous payroll period, the wages and the amounts shown in the table must be placed on a comparable basis. This may be accomplished by reducing the wages paid for the period to a daily basis by dividing the total wages by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period. The amount of the tax shown in the table as the tax required to be withheld from the wages, as so reduced to a daily basis, should then be multiplied by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period.

(2) Period not a payroll period. If wages are paid for a period which is not a payroll period, the amount to be deducted and withheld under the wage bracket method shall be the amount applicable in the case of a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period with respect to which such wages are paid.

Example. During 1955, an individual is hired by a contractor to perform services in connection with a construction project. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by the individual is two. Wages are fixed at the rate of $9 per day, to be paid upon completion of the project. The project is completed during 1955 in 12 days, at the end of which period the individual is paid wages of $90 for ten days' services performed during the period. Under the wage bracket method the amount to be deducted and withheld from such wages is determined by dividing the amount of the wages ($90) by the number of days in the period (12), the result being $7.50. The amount of tax required to be withheld is determined under the table applicable to a miscellaneous payroll period. Under this table the tax required to be withheld is $8.40 (12×$0.70).

(3) Wages paid without regard to any period. If wages are paid to an employee without regard to any particular period, as, for example, commissions paid to a salesman upon consummation of a sale, the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld shall be determined in the same manner as in the case of a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) which have elapsed, beginning with the latest of the following days:

(i) The first day after the last payment of wages to such employee by such employer in the calendar year, or

(ii) The date on which such individual's employment with such employer began in the calendar year, or

(iii) January 1 of such calendar year, and ending with (and including) the date on which such wages are paid.

Example. On April 2, 1955, A is employed by the X Real Estate Co. to sell real estate on a commission basis, commissions to be paid only upon consummation of sales. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by A is one. On May 21, 1955, A receives a commission of $300. Again, on June 16, 1955, A receives a commission of $400. Under the wage bracket method, the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld in respect of the commission paid on May 21, is $37.50, which amount is obtained by multiplying $0.75 (tax under wage bracket table for a daily or miscellaneous payroll period where wages are at least $6 but less than $6.25 a day) by 50 (number of days elapsed); and the amount of tax to be withheld with respect to the commission paid on June 16 is $62.40, which amount is obtained by multiplying $2.40 (tax under wage bracket table for a daily or miscellaneous payroll period where wages are at least $15 but less than $15.50 a day) by 26 (number of days elapsed).

(d) Period or elapsed time less than one week. (1) It is the general rule that if wages are paid for a payroll period or other period of less than one week, the tax to be deducted and withheld under the wage bracket method shall be the amount computed for a daily payroll period, or for a miscellaneous payroll period containing the same number of days (including Sundays and holidays) as the payroll period, or other period, for which such wages are paid. In the case of wages paid without regard to any period, if the elapsed time computed as provided in paragraph (c) of this section is less than 1 week, the same rule is applicable.

Example (1). During 1955 an employee having a daily payroll period is paid wages of $7 per day. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee is one. Under the table applicable to a daily payroll period, the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld from each such payment of wages is $0.95.

Example (2). During 1955 an individual is employed for four days, for which he is paid wages of $36. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by him is two. The amount of tax to be deducted and withheld under the wage bracket method is $4.00 (4×$1.00).

(2) If the payroll period, other period, or elapsed time where wages are paid without regard to any period, is less than one week, the employer may, under certain conditions, elect to deduct and withhold the tax determined by the application of the wage table for a weekly payroll period to the aggregate of the wages paid to the employee during the calendar week. The election to use the weekly wage table in such cases is subject to the limitations and conditions prescribed in paragraph (d) of § 31.3402 (b)–1 with respect to employers using the percentage method in similar cases.

(3) As used in this paragraph the term "calendar week" means a period of seven consecutive days beginning with Sunday and ending with Saturday.

(e) Rounding off of wage payment. In determining the amount to be deducted and withheld under the wage bracket method the wages may, at the election of the employer, be computed to the nearest dollar, provided such wages are in excess of the highest wage bracket of the applicable table. For the purpose of the computation to the nearest dollar, the payment of a fractional part of a dollar shall be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half dollar or more, in which case it shall be increased to $1.00. Thus, if the payroll period of an employee is weekly and the wage payment of such employee is $255.49, the employer may compute the tax on the excess over $200 as if the excess were $55 instead of $55.49. If the weekly wage payment is $255.50, the employer may, in computing the tax, consider the excess over $200 to be $56 instead of $55.50.

(d) Tax paid by recipient. If the employer, in violation of the provisions of this chapter, fails to deduct and withhold the tax under this chapter, and thereafter the tax against which such tax may be credited is paid, the tax so required to be deducted and withheld shall not be collected from the employer; but this subsection shall in no case relieve the employer from liability for any penalties or additions to the tax otherwise applicable in respect of such failure to deduct and withhold.

§ 31.3402(d)–1 Failure to withhold.

If the employer in violation of the provisions of section 3402 fails to deduct and withhold the tax, and thereafter the income tax against which the tax under section 3402 may be credited is paid, the tax under section 3402 shall not be collected from the employer. Such payment does not, however, operate to relieve the employer from liability for penalties or additions to the tax applicable in respect of such failure to deduct and withhold. The employer will not be relieved of his liability for payment of the tax required to be withheld unless he can show that the tax against which the tax under section 3402 may be credited has been paid. See § 31.3403–1, relating to liability for tax.

(e) Included and excluded wages. If the remuneration paid by an employer to an employee for services performed during one-half or more of any payroll period of not more than 31 consecutive days constitutes wages, all the remuneration paid by such employer to such employee for such period shall be deemed to be wages; but if the remuneration paid by an employer to an employee for services performed during more than one-half of any such payroll period does not constitute wages, then none of the remuneration paid by such employer to such employee for such period shall be deemed to be wages.

§ 31.3402(e)–1 Included and excluded wages.

(a) If a portion of the remuneration paid by an employer to his employee for services performed during a payroll period of not more than 31 consecutive days constitutes wages, and the remainder does not constitute wages, all the remuneration paid the employee for services performed during such period shall for purposes of withholding be treated alike, that is, either all included as wages or all excluded. The time during which the employee performs services, the remuneration for which under section 3401 (a) constitutes wages, and the time during which he performs services, the remuneration for which under such section does not constitute wages, determine whether all the remuneration for services performed during the payroll period shall be deemed to be included or excluded.

(b) If one-half or more of the employee's time in the employ of a particular employer in a payroll period is spent in performing services the remuneration for which constitutes wages, then all the remuneration paid the employee for services performed in that payroll period shall be deemed to be wages.

(c) If less than one-half of the employee's time in the employ of a particular employer in a payroll period is spent in performing services the remuneration for which constitutes wages, then none of the remuneration paid the employee for services performed in that payroll period shall be deemed to be wages.

(d) The application of the provisions of paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Employer B, who operates a store and a farm, employs A to perform services in connection with both operations. The remuneration paid A for services on the farm is excepted as remuneration for agricultural labor, and the remuneration for services performed in the store constitutes wages. Employee A is paid on a monthly basis. During a particular month, A works 120 hours on the farm and 80 hours in the store. None of the remuneration paid by B to A for services performed during the month is deemed to be wages, since the remuneration paid for less than one-half of the services performed during the month constitutes wages. During another month A works 75 hours on the farm and 120 hours in the store. All of the remuneration paid by B to A for services performed during the month is deemed to be wages since the remuneration paid for one-half or more of the services performed during the month constitutes wages.

Example (2). Employee C is employed as a maid by D, a physician, whose home and office are located in the same building. The remuneration paid C for services in the home is excepted as remuneration for domestic service, and the remuneration paid for her services in the office constitutes wages. C is paid on a weekly basis. During a particular week C works 20 hours in the home and 20 hours in the office. All of the remuneration paid by D to C for services performed during that week is deemed to be wages, since the remuneration paid for one-half or more of the services performed during the week constitutes wages. During another week C works 22 hours in the home and 15 hours in the office. None of the remuneration paid by D to C for services performed during that week is deemed to be wages, since the remuneration paid for less than one-half of the services performed during the week constitutes wages.

(e) The rules set forth in this section do not apply (1) with respect to any remuneration paid for services performed by an employee for his employer if the periods for which remuneration is paid by the employer vary to the extent that there is no period which constitutes a payroll period within the meaning of section 3401 (b) (see § 31.3401 (b)–1), or (2) with respect to any remuneration paid for services performed by an employee for his employer if the payroll period for which remuneration is paid exceeds 31 consecutive days. In any such case withholding is required with respect to that portion of such remuneration which constitutes wages.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source.

(f) Withholding exemptions—(1) In general. An employee receiving wages shall on any day be entitled to the following withholding exemptions:

(A) An exemption for himself;

(B) One additional exemption for himself if, on the basis of facts existing at the beginning of such day, there may reasonably be expected to be allowable an exemption under section 151 (c) (1) (relating to old age) for the taxable year under subtitle A in respect of which amounts deducted and withheld under this chapter in the calendar year in which such day falls are allowed as a credit;

(C) One additional exemption for himself if, on the basis of facts existing at the beginning of such day, there may reasonably be expected to be allowable an exemption under section 151 (d) (1) (relating to the blind) for the taxable year under subtitle A in respect of which amounts deducted and withheld under this chapter in the calendar year in which such day falls are allowed as a credit;

(D) If the employee is married, any exemption to which his spouse is entitled, or would be entitled if such spouse were an employee receiving wages, under subparagraph (A), (B), or (C), but only if such spouse does not have in effect a withholding exemption certificate claiming such exemption; and

(E) An exemption for each individual with respect to whom, on the basis of facts existing at the beginning of such day, there may reasonably be expected to be allowable an exemption under section 151 (e) for the taxable year under subtitle A in respect of which amounts deducted and withheld under this chapter in the calendar year in which such day falls are allowed as a credit.

§31.3402(f)(1)–1 Withholding exemptions.

(a) In general. (1) An employee receiving wages shall on any day be entitled to withholding exemptions as provided in section 3402 (f) (1). In order to receive the benefit of such exemptions, the employee must file with his employer a withholding exemption certificate as provided in section 3402 (f) (2). See § 31.3402 (f) (2)–1.

(2) The number of exemptions to which an employee is entitled on any day depends upon his status as single or married, upon his status as to old age and blindness, upon the number of his dependents, and, if married, upon the number of exemptions claimed by his spouse.

(b) Withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled in respect of himself. An employee is entitled to one withholding exemption for himself. An employee shall on any day be entitled to an additional withholding exemption for himself if he will have attained the age of 65 before the close of his taxable year which begins in, or with, the calendar year in which such day falls. If the employee is blind, he may claim an additional withholding exemption for blindness. For purposes of claiming a withholding exemption for blindness, an individual shall be considered blind only if his central visual acuity does not exceed 20/200 in the better eye with correcting lenses or if his visual acuity is greater than 20/200 but is accompanied by a limitation in the fields of vision such that the widest diameter of the visual field subtends an angle no greater than 20 degrees. For definition of the term "blindness", see section 151 (d) (3).

(c) Withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled in respect of his spouse. (1) A married employee, whose spouse is an employee receiving wages, is entitled to claim any withholding exemption to which his spouse is entitled under paragraph (b) of this section, unless the spouse has in effect a withholding exemption certificate claiming such withholding exemption. A married employee, whose spouse is not an employee receiving wages, is entitled to claim any withholding exemption to which his spouse would be entitled under paragraph (b) of this section if the spouse were an employee receiving wages.

Example (1). Assume that both the husband and wife have attained the age of 65 and are employees receiving wages. Each spouse is entitled under paragraph (b) of this section to claim 2 withholding exemptions in respect of himself or herself. Either spouse may claim, in addition to the withholding exemptions to which he or she is entitled in respect of himself or herself, any withholding exemption to which the other spouse is entitled under such paragraph (b) but does not claim on a withholding exemption certificate.

Example (2). Assume the same facts as in Example (1) except that only the husband is an employee receiving wages. The husband is entitled to claim 4 withholding exemptions, that is, the 2 withholding exemptions to which he is entitled in respect of himself and the 2 withholding exemptions to which his spouse would be entitled under paragraph (b) of this section if she were an employee receiving wages.

(2) In determining the number of withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled for himself and his spouse on any day, the employee's status as a single person or a married person and, if married, whether a withholding exemption is claimed by his spouse shall be determined as of such day. However, in the case of an employee whose spouse dies in the taxable year of the employee which begins in, or with, the calendar year in which the spouse dies, any withholding exemption which would be allowable to the employee in respect of such spouse, if living and not an employee receiving wages, may be claimed by the employee for that portion of the calendar year which occurs after his spouse's death. For provisions applicable in the case of an employee whose taxable year is not a calendar year, and whose spouse dies in that portion of the calendar year which precedes the first day of the taxable year of the employee which begins in the calendar year, see paragraph (b) of § 31.3402 (f) (2)–1.

(d) Withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled in respect of dependents. Subject to the limitations stated in this paragraph, an employee shall be entitled on any day to a withholding exemption for each individual who may reasonably be expected to be his dependent for his taxable year beginning in, or with, the calendar year in which such day falls. For purposes of the withholding exemption for an individual who may reasonably be expected to be a dependent, the following rules shall apply:

(1) The determination that an individual may or may not reasonably be expected to be a dependent shall be made on the basis of facts existing at the beginning of the day for which a withholding exemption for such individual is to be claimed. The individual in respect of whom an exemption is claimed by an employee must, on the day in question, be in existence and be within one of the categories listed in section 152 (a), which defines the term "dependent". However, a withholding exemption for a dependent who dies continues for the portion of the calendar year which occurs after the dependent's death, except that, in the case of an employee whose taxable year is not a calendar year, the withholding exemption does not continue for a dependent, within the meaning of section 152 (a) (9) or (10), whose death occurs before the first day of the employee's taxable year beginning in the calendar year of death.

(2) The determination that an individual may or may not reasonably be expected to be a dependent shall be made for the taxable year of the employee in respect of which amounts deducted and withheld in the calendar year in which the day in question falls are allowed as a credit. In general, amounts deducted and withheld during any calendar year are allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by chapter 1 of the Code for the taxable year which begins in, or with, such calendar year. Thus, in order for an employee to be able to claim for a calendar year a withholding exemption with respect to a particular individual as a dependent there must be a reasonable expectation that the employee will be allowed an exemption with respect to such individual under section 151 (e) for his taxable year which begins in, or with, such calendar year.

(3) For the employee to be entitled on any day of the calendar year to a withholding exemption for an individual as a dependent, such individual must on such day—

(i) Be an individual referred to in one of the numbered paragraphs in section 152 (a),

(ii) Reasonably be expected to receive over one-half of his support, within the meaning of section 152, from the employee in the calendar year, and

(iii) Either (a) reasonably be expected to receive less than $600 of gross income in the calendar year or (b) be a child (son, stepson, daughter, stepdaughter, adopted son, or adopted daughter) of the employee who (1) will not have attained the age of 19 at the close of the calendar year or (2) is a student as defined in section 151.

(4) An employee is not entitled to claim a withholding exemption for an individual otherwise reasonably expected to be a dependent of the employee if such individual is not a citizen of the United States, unless such individual (i) is at any time during the calendar year a resident of the United States, Canada, Mexico, the Canal Zone, or the Republic of Panama, or (ii) is a child of the employee born to him, or legally adopted by him, in the Philippine Islands before January 1, 1956, and the child is a resident of the Republic of the Philippines, and the employee was a member of the Armed Forces of the United States at the time the child was born to him or legally adopted by him.

(f) Withholding exemptions—• • •

(2) Exemption certificates—(A) On commencement of employment. On or before the date of the commencement of employment with an employer, the employee shall furnish the employer with a signed withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which he claims, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled.

(B) Change of status. If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled is less than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee on the withholding exemption certificate then in effect with respect to him, the employee shall within 10 days thereafter furnish the employer with a new withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which the employee then claims, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled on such day. If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled is greater than the number of withholding exemptions claimed, the employee may furnish the employer with a new withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which the employee then claims, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled on such day.

(C) Change of status which affects next calendar year. If on any day during the calendar year the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee will be, or may reasonably be expected to be, entitled at the beginning of his next taxable year under subtitle A is different from the number to which the employee is entitled on such day, the employee shall, in such cases and at such times as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe, furnish the employer with a withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which he claims with respect to such next taxable year, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he will be, or may reasonably be expected to be, so entitled.

§ 31.3402(f)(2)–1 Withholding exemption certificates.

(a) On commencement of employment. On or before the date on which an individual commences employment with an employer, the individual shall furnish the employer with a signed withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which he claims, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled. For form and contents of such certificate, see § 31.3402 (f) (5)–1. The employer is required to request a withholding exemption certificate from each employee, but if the employee fails to furnish such certificate, such employee shall be considered as claiming no withholding exemptions.

(b) Change in exemptions which affects calendar year. (1) If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled is less than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by him on the withholding exemption certificate then in effect, the employee must within 10 days after the change occurs furnish the employer with a new withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which the employee then claims, which must in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled on such day. The number of withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled decreases, for example, for any one of the following reasons:

(i) The employee's wife (or husband) for whom the employee has been claiming a withholding exemption (a) is divorced or legally separated from the employee, or (b) claims her (or his) own withholding exemption on a separate certificate.

(ii) In the case of an employee whose taxable year is not a calendar year, the employee's wife (or husband) for whom the employee has been claiming a withholding exemption dies in that portion of the calendar year which precedes the first day of the taxable year of the employee which begins in the calendar year in which the spouse dies.

(iii) The employee finds that no exemption for his taxable year which begins in, or with, the current calendar year will be allowable to him under section 151 (e) in respect of an individual claimed as a dependent on the employee's withholding exemption certificate.

(2) If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled is more than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by him on the withholding exemption certificate then in effect, the employee may furnish the employer with a new withholding exemption certificate on which the employee must in no event claim more than the number of withholding exemptions to which he is entitled on such day.

(c) Change in exemptions which affects next calendar year. (1) If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of exemptions to which the employee will be, or may reasonably be expected to be, entitled under section 151 for his taxable year which begins in, or with, the next calendar year is different from the number to which the employee is entitled on such day, the following rules shall be applicable:

(i) If such number is less than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee on a withholding exemption certificate in effect on such day, the employee must, on or before December 1 of the year in which the change occurs, unless such change occurs in December, furnish his employer with a new withholding exemption certificate reflecting the decrease in the number of withholding exemptions. If the change occurs in December, the new certificate must be furnished within 10 days after the change occurs. The number of exemptions to which an employee is entitled for his taxable year which begins in, or with, the next calendar year decreases, for example, for any of the following reasons:

(a) The spouse or a dependent of the employee dies.

(b) The employee finds that it is not reasonable to expect that an individual claimed as a dependent on the employee's withholding exemption certificate will qualify as a dependent of the employee for such taxable year.

(ii) If such number is greater than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee on a withholding exemption certificate in effect on such day, the employee may, on or before December 1 of the year in which such change occurs, unless such change occurs in December, furnish his employer with a new withholding exemption certificate reflecting the increase in the number of withholding exemptions. If the change occurs in December, the certificate may be furnished on or after the date on which the change occurs.

(2) Before December 1 of each year, every employer should request each of his employees to file a new withholding extemption certificate for the ensuing calendar year, in the event of change in the employee's exemption status since the filing of his latest certificate.

(f) Withholding exemptions—• • •

(3) When certificate takes effect—(A) First certificate furnished. A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer in cases in which no previous such certificate is in effect shall take effect as of the beginning of the first payroll period ending, or the first payment of wages made without regard to a payroll period, on or after the date on which such certificate is so furnished.

(B) Furnished to take place of existing certificate. A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer in cases in which a previous such certificate is in effect shall take effect with respect to the first payment of wages made on or after the first status determination date which occurs at least 30 days from the date on which such certificate is so furnished, except that at the election of the employer such certificate may be made effective with respect to any payment of wages made on or after the date on which such certificate is so furnished; but a certificate furnished pursuant to paragraph (2) (C) shall not take effect, and may not be made effective, with respect to any payment of wages made in the calendar year in which the certificate is furnished. For purposes of this subparagraph the term "status determination date" means January 1 and July 1 of each year.

§ 31.3402(f)(3)–1 When withholding exemption certificate takes effect.

(a) A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer in any case in which no previous withholding exemption certificate is in effect with such employer, shall take effect as of the beginning of the first payroll period ending, or the first payment of wages made without regard to a payroll period, on or after the date on which such certificate is so furnished.

(b) A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer in any case in which a previous withholding exemption certificate is in effect with such employer shall, except as hereinafter provided, take effect with respect to the first payment of wages made on or after the first status determination date which occurs at least 30 days after the date on which such certificate is so furnished. However, at the election of the employer, except as hereinafter provided, such certificate may be made effective with respect to any payment of wages made on or after the date on which such certificate is so furnished and before such status determination date.

(c) A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer pursuant to section 3402 (f) (2) (C) (see paragraph (c) of § 31.3402 (f) (2)–1) which effects a change for the next calendar year, shall not take effect, and may not be made effective, with respect to the calendar year in which the certificate is furnished.

(d) For purposes of this section the term "status determination date" means January 1 and July 1 of each year.

(4) Period during which certificate remains in effect. A withholding exemption certificate which takes effect under this subsection, or which on December 31, 1954, was in effect under the corresponding subsection of prior law, shall continue in effect with respect to the employer until another such certificate takes effect under this subsection.

§ 31.3402(f)(4)–1 Period during which withholding exemption certificate remains in effect.

A withholding exemption certificate which takes effect under section 3402(f) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, or which on December 31, 1954, was in effect under section 1622(h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, shall continue in effect with respect to the employee until another withholding exemption certificate takes effect under section 3402 (f).

(5) Form and contents of certificate. Withholding exemption certificates shall be in such form and contain such information as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

§ 31.3402(f)(5)–1 Form and contents of withholding exemption certificate.

Form W–4 is the form prescribed for the withholding exemption certificate required to be filed under section 3402 (f) (2). See § 31.3402 (f) (2)–1. A withholding exemption certificate on Form W–4 shall be prepared in accordance with the instructions and regulations applicable thereto, and shall set forth fully and clearly the data therein called for. Blank copies of Form W–4 will be supplied employers upon request to the district director. In lieu of the prescribed form of certificate, employers may prepare and use a form the provisions of which are identical with those of the prescribed form.

§ 31.3402(g) Statutory provisions; income tax collected at source; overlapping pay periods, and payment by agent or fiduciary.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • •

(g) Overlapping pay periods, and payment by agent or fiduciary. If a payment of wages is made to an employee by an employer—

(1) With respect to a payroll period or other period, any part of which is included in a payroll period or other period with respect to which wages are also paid to such employee by such employer, or

(2) Without regard to any payroll period or other period, but on or prior to the expiration of a payroll period or other period with respect to which wages are also paid to such employee by such employer, or

(3) With respect to a period beginning in one and ending in another calendar year, or

(4) Through an agent, fiduciary, or other person who also has the control, receipt, custody, or disposal of, or pays, the wages payable by another employer to such employee, the manner of withholding and the amount to be deducted and withheld under this chapter shall be determined in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate under which the withholding exemption allowed to the employee in any calendar year shall approximate the withholding exemption allowable with respect to an annual payroll period.

§ 31.3402(g)–1 Supplemental wage payments.

(a) In general. (1) An employee's remuneration may consist of wages paid for a payroll period and supplemental wages, such as bonuses, commissions, and overtime pay, paid for the same or a different period, or without regard to a particular period. When such supplemental wages are paid (whether or not at the same time as the regular wages) the amount of the tax required to be withheld under section 3402 (a) (the percentage method) or under section 3402 (c) (the wage bracket method) shall be determined in accordance with this paragraph or paragraph (b) of this section.

(2) The supplemental wages, if paid concurrently with wages for a payroll period, shall be aggregated with the wages paid for such payroll period. If not paid concurrently, the supplemental wages shall be aggregated with the wages paid or to be paid within the same calendar year for the last preceding payroll period or for the current payroll period. The amount of tax to be withheld shall be determined as if the aggregate of the supplemental wages and the regular wages constituted a single wage payment for the regular payroll period.

Example (1). A is employed as a salesman at a monthly salary of $100 plus commissions on sales made during the month. The number of withholding exemptions claimed is one. During January 1955 A earns $275 in commissions, which together with the salary of $100 is paid on February 10, 1955. Under the wage bracket method the amount of the tax required to be withheld is shown in the table applicable to a monthly payroll period. Under this table it will be found that the amount of tax required to be withheld is $57.00.

Example (2). B is employed at a salary of $3,000 per annum paid semimonthly on the 15th day and the last day of each month, plus a bonus and commission determined at the end of each 3-month period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed is four. The bonus and commissioh for the 3-month period ending on March 31, 1955, amount to $250, which is paid on April 10, 1955. Under the wage bracket method, the amount of tax required to be withheld on the aggregate of the bonus of $250 and the last preceding semimonthly wage payment of $125, or $375, is $46.60. Since tax in the amount of $2.70 was withheld on the semimonthly wage payment of $125, the amount to be withheld on April 10, 1955, is $43.90.

If, however, supplemental wages are paid and tax has been withheld from the employee's regular wages, the employer may determine the tax to be withheld from supplemental wages by using the applicable rate under section 3402 (a) without allowance for exemption and without reference to any regular payment of wages.

(3) For provisions relating to the treatment of wages paid other than in cash to retail commission salesmen, see § 31.3402 (j)–1.

(b) Special rule where aggregate withholding exemption exceeds wages paid. (1) If supplemental wages are paid to an employee during a calendar year for a period which involves two or more consecutive payroll periods, for which other wages also are paid during such calendar year, and the aggregate of such other wages is less than the aggregate of the amounts determined under the table provided in section 3402 (b) (1) as the withholding exemptions applicable for such payroll periods, the amount of the tax required to be withheld on the supplemental wages shall be computed as follows:

Step 1. Determine an average wage for each of such payroll periods by dividing the sum of the supplemental wages and the wages paid for such payroll periods by the number of such payroll periods.

Step 2. Determine a tax for each payroll period as if the amount of the average wage constituted the wages paid for such payroll period.

Step 3. From the sum of the amounts of tax determined in Step 2 subtract the total amount of tax withheld, or to be withheld, from the wages, other than the supplemental wages, for such payroll periods. The remainder, if any, shall constitute the amount of the tax to be withheld upon the supplemental wages.

Example. An employee has a weekly payroll period ending on Saturday of each week, the wages for which are paid on Friday of the succeeding week. On the 10th day of each month he is paid a bonus based upon production during the payroll periods for which wages were paid in the preceding month. The employee is paid a weekly wage of $64 on each of the five Fridays occurring in April 1955. On May 10, 1955, the employee is paid a bonus of $125 based upon production during the five payroll periods covered by the wages paid in April. On the date of payment of the bonus, the employee, who is married and has three children, has a withholding exemption certificate in effect claiming five withholding exemptions. The amount of the tax to be withheld from the bonus paid on May 10, 1955, is computed as follows:

Wages paid in April 1955 for 5 payroll periods (5×$64)	$320.00
Bonus paid May 10, 1955	125.00
Aggregate of wages and bonus	445.00
Average wage per payroll period ($445÷5)	$89.00
Computation of tax under percentage method: Withholding exemptions (5×$13)	65.00
Remainder subject to tax	24.00
Tax on average wage for 1 week (18 percent of $24)	$4.32
Tax on average wage for 5 weeks	$21.60
Less: Tax previously withheld on weekly wage payments of $64	None
Tax to be withheld on supplemental wages	21.60
Computation of tax under wage bracket method:
Tax on $89 wage under weekly wage table ($4.50 per week for 5 weeks)	$22.50
Less: Tax previously withheld on weekly wage payments of $64 ($0.20 per week for 5 weeks)	1.00
Tax to be withheld on supplemental wages	21.50

(2) The rules prescribed in this paragraph shall, at the election of the employer, be applied in lieu of the rules prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section except that this paragraph shall not be applicable in any case in which the payroll period of the employee is less than one week.

(c) Vacation allowances. Amounts of so-called "vacation allowances" shall be subject to withholding as though they were regular wage payments made for the period covered by the vacation. If the vacation allowance is paid in addition to the regular wage payment for such period, the rules applicable with respect to supplemental wage payments shall apply to such vacation allowance.

§ 31.3402(g)–2 Wages paid for payroll period of more than one year.

If wages are paid to an employee for a payroll period of more than one year, for the purpose of determining the amount of tax required to be deducted and withheld in respect of such wages—

(a) Under the percentage method, the amount of the tax shall be determined as if such payroll period constituted an annual payroll period, and

(b) Under the wage bracket method, the amount of the tax shall be determined as if such payroll period constituted a miscellaneous payroll period of 365 days.

§ 31.3402(g)–3 Wages paid through an agent, fiduciary, or other person on behalf of two or more employers.

(a) If a payment of wages is made to an employee by an employer through an agent, fiduciary, or other person who also has the control, receipt, custody, or disposal of, or pays the wages payable by another employer to such employee, the amount of the tax required to be withheld on each wage payment made through such agent, fiduciary, or person shall, whether the wages are paid separately on behalf of each employer or paid in a lump sum on behalf of all such employers, be determined upon the aggregate amount of such wage payment or payments in the same manner as if such aggregate amount had been paid by one employer. Hence, under either the percentage method or the wage bracket method the tax shall be determined upon the aggregate amount of the wage payment.

(b) In any such case, each employer shall be liable for the return and payment of a pro rata portion of the tax so determined, such portion to be determined in the ratio which the amount contributed by the particular employer bears to the aggregate of such wages.

(c) For example, three companies maintain a central management agency which carries on the administrative work of the several companies. The central agency organization consists of a staff of clerks, bookkeepers, stenographers, etc., who are the common employees of the three companies. The expenses of the central agency, including wages paid to the foregoing employees, are borne by the several companies in certain agreed proportions. Company X pays 45 percent, Company Y pays 35 percent and Company Z pays 20 percent of such expenses. The amount of the tax required to be withheld on the wages paid to persons employed in the central agency should be determined in accordance with the provisions of this section. In such event, Company X is liable as an employer for the return and payment of 45 percent of the tax required to be withheld, Company Y is liable for the return and payment of 35 percent of the tax and Company Z is liable for the return and payment of 20 percent of the tax. (See § 31.3504–1, relating to acts to be performed by agents.)

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • •

(h) Withholding on basis of average wages. The Secretary or his delegate may, under regulations prescribed by him, authorize employers—

(1) To estimate the wages which will be paid to any employee in any quarter of the calendar year,

(2) To determine the amount to be deducted and withheld upon each payment of wages to such employee during such quarter as if the appropriate average of the wages so estimated constituted the actual wages paid, and

(3) To deduct and withhold upon any payment of wages to such employee during such quarter such amount as may be necessary to adjust the amount actually deducted and withheld upon the wages of such employee during such quarter to the amount required to be deducted and withheld during such quarter without regard to this subsection.

§ 31.3402(h)–1 Withholding on basis of average wages.

The Commissioner may authorize the employer to withhold the tax under section 3402 on the basis of the employee's average estimated wages, with necessary adjustments, for any quarter. Before using such method the employer must receive authorization from the Commissioner. Applications to use such method must be accompanied by evidence establishing the need for the use of such method.

§ 31.3402(i) Statutory provisions; income tax collected at source; additional withholding.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • •

(i) Additional withholding. The Secretary or his delegate is authorized by regulations to provide, under such conditions and to such extent as he deems proper, for withholding in addition to that otherwise required under this section in cases in which the employer and the employee agree (in such form as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe) to such additional withholding. Such additional withholding shall for all purposes be considered tax required to be deducted and withheld under this chapter.

§ 31.3402(i)–1 Additional withholding.

(a) In addition to the tax required to be deducted and withheld in accordance with the provisions of section 3402, the employer and employee may agree that an additional amount shall be withheld from the employee's wages. The agreement shall be in writing and shall be in such form as the employer may prescribe. The agreement shall be effective for such period as the employer and employee mutually agree upon. However, unless the agreement provides for an earlier termination, either the employer or the employee, by furnishing a written notice to the other, may terminate the agreement effective with respect to the first payment of wages made on or after the first "status determination date" (January 1 and July 1 of each year) which occurs at least 30 days after the date on which such notice is furnished.

(b) The amount deducted and withheld pursuant to an agreement between the employer and employee shall be considered as tax required to be deducted and withheld under section 3402. All provisions of law and regulations applicable with respect to the tax required to be deducted and withheld under section 3402 shall be applicable with respect to any amount deducted and withheld pursuant to the agreement.

SEC. 3402 Income tax collected at source. • • •

(j) Noncash remuneration to retail commission salesman. In the case of remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services performed by an individual as a retail salesman for a person, where the service performed by such individual for such person is ordinarily performed for remuneration solely by way of cash commission an employer shall not be required to deduct or withhold any tax under this subchapter [chapter] with respect to such remuneration, provided that such employer files with the Secretary or his delegate such information with respect to such remuneration as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulation prescribe.

[Sec. 3402(j) as added by sec. 2(b), Act of Aug. 9, 1955 (Pub. Law 306, 84th Cong., 69 Stat. 606)]

§ 31.3402(j)–1 Remuneration other than in cash for service performed by retail commission salesman.

(a) In general. (1) An employer, in computing the amount to be deducted and withheld as tax in accordance with section 3402, may, at his election, disregard any wages paid, after August 9, 1955, in a medium other than cash for services performed for him by an employee if (i) the noncash remuneration is paid for services performed by the employee as a retail commission salesman and (ii) the employer ordinarily pays the employee remuneration solely by way of cash commissions for services performed by him as a retail commission salesman.

(2) Section 3402 (j) and this section are not applicable with respect to noncash wages paid to a retail commission salesman for services performed by him in a capacity other than as such a salesman. Such sections are not applicable with respect to noncash wages paid by an employer to an employee for services performed as a retail commission salesman if the employer ordinarily pays the employee remuneration other than by way of cash commissions for such services. Thus, noncash remuneration may not be disregarded in computing the amount to be deducted and withheld in a case where the employee, for services performed as a retail commission salesman, is paid both a salary and cash commissions on sales, or is ordinarily paid in something other than cash (stocks, bonds, or other forms of property) notwithstanding that the amount of remuneration paid to the employee is measured by sales.

(b) Retail commission salesman. For purposes of section 3402 (j) and this section, the term "retail commission salesman" includes an employee who is engaged in the solicitation of orders at retail, that is, from the ultimate consumer, for merchandise or other products offered for sale by his employer. The term does not include an employee salesman engaged in the solicitation on behalf of his employer of orders from wholesalers, retailers, or others, for merchandise for resale. However, if the salesman solicits orders for more than one principal, he is not excluded from the term solely because he solicits orders from wholesalers or retailers on behalf of one or more principals. In such case the salesman may be a retail commission salesman with respect to services performed for one or more principals and not with respect to services performed for his other principals.

(c) Noncash remuneration. The term "noncash remuneration" includes remuneration paid in any medium other than cash, such as goods or commodities, stocks, bonds, or other forms of property. The term does not include checks or other monetary media of exchange.

(d) Cross reference. For provisions relating to records required to be kept and statements which must be furnished an employee with respect to wage payments, see sections 6001 and 6051 and the regulations thereunder in Subpart G of this part.

§ 31.3403 Statutory provisions; liability for tax.

SEC. 3403. Liability for tax. The employer shall be liable for the payment of the tax required to be deducted and withheld under this chapter, and shall not be liable to any person for the amount of any such payment.

§ 31.3403–1 Liability for tax.

Every employer required to deduct and withhold the tax under section 3402 from the wages of an employee is liable for the payment of such tax whether or not it is collected from the employee by the employer. If, for example, the employer deducts less than the correct amount of tax, or if he fails to deduct any part of the tax, he is nevertheless liable for the correct amount of the tax. See, however, § 31.3402 (d)–1. The employer is relieved of liability to any other person for the amount of any such tax withheld and paid to the district director or deposited with a duly designated depositary of the United States.

§ 31.3404 Statutory provisions; return and payment by governmental employer.

SEC. 3404. Return and payment by governmental employer. If the employer is the United States, or a State, Territory, or political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing, the return of the amount deducted and withheld upon any wages may be made by any officer or employee of the United States, or of such State, Territory, or political subdivision, or of the District of Columbia, or of such agency or instrumentality, as the case may be, having control of the payment of such wages, or appropriately designated for that purpose.

§ 31.3404–1 Return and payment by governmental employer.

If the United States, or a State, Territory, Puerto Rico, or a political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing, is an employer required to deduct and withhold tax under chapter 24, the return of the amount deducted and withheld as such tax may be made by the officer or employee having control of the payment of the wages or other officer or employee appropriately designated for that purpose. (For provisions relating to the execution and filing of returns, see Subpart G of the regulations in this part.)

Subpart F—General Provisions Relating to Employment Taxes (Chapter 25, Internal Revenue Code of 1954)

§ 31.3501 Statutory provisions; collection and payment of taxes.

SEC. 3501. Collection and payment of taxes. The taxes imposed by this subtitle shall be collected by the Secretary or his delegate and shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States as internal-revenue collections.

§ 31.3502 Statutory provisions; nondeductibility of taxes in computing taxable income.

SEC. 3502. Nondeductibility of taxes in computing taxable income. (a) The taxes imposed by section 3101 of chapter 21, and by sections 3201 and 3211 of chapter 22 shall not be allowed as a deduction to the taxpayer in computing taxable income under subtitle A.

(b) The tax deducted and withheld under chapter 24 shall not be allowed as a deduction either to the employer or to the recipient of the income in computing taxable income under subtitle A.

§ 31.3502–1 Nondeductibility of taxes in computing taxable income.

For provisions relating to the nondeductibility, in computing taxable income under subtitle A, of the taxes imposed by sections 3101, 3201, and 3211, and of the tax deducted and withheld under chapter 24, see § 1.164–2 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations). For provisions relating to the credit allowable to the recipient of the income in respect of the tax deducted and withheld under chapter 24, see § 1.31–1 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

§ 31.3503 Statutory provisions; erroneous payments.

SEC. 3503. Erroneous payments. Any tax paid under chapter 21 or 22 by a taxpayer with respect to any period with respect to which he is not liable to tax under such chapter shall be credited against the tax, if any, imposed by such other chapter upon the taxpayer, and the balance, if any, shall be refunded.

§ 31.3503–1 Tax under chapter 21 or 22 paid under wrong chapter.

If, for any period, an amount is paid as tax—

(a) Under chapter 21 or corresponding provisions of prior law by a person who is not liable for tax for such period under such chapter or prior law, but who is liable for tax for such period under chapter 22 or corresponding provisions of prior law, or

(b) Under chapter 22 or corresponding provisions of prior law by a person who is not liable for tax for such period under such chapter or prior law, but who is liable for tax for such period under chapter 21 or corresponding provisions of prior law, the amount so paid shall be credited against the tax for which such person is liable and the balance, if any, shall be refunded. Each claim for refund or credit under this section shall be made on Form 843 and in accordance with § 31.6402(a)–2 and the applicable provisions of section 6402(a) and the regulations thereunder in Part 301 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration).

§ 31.3504 Statutory provisions; acts to be performed by agents.

SEC. 3504. Acts to be performed by agents. In case a fiduciary, agent, or other person has the control, receipt, custody, or disposal of, or pays the wages of an employee or group of employees, employed by one or more employers, the Secretary or his delegate, under regulations prescribed by him, is authorized to designate such fiduciary, agent, or other person to perform such acts as are required of employers under this title and as the Secretary or his delegate may specify. Except as may be otherwise prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate, all provisions of law (including penalties) applicable in respect of an employer shall be applicable to a fiduciary, agent, or other person so designated but, except as so provided, the employer for whom such fiduciary, agent, or other person acts shall remain subject to the provisions of law (including penalties) applicable in respect of employers.

§ 31.3504–1 Acts to be performed by agents.

(a) In general. In the event wages as defined in chapter 21 or 24 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, or compensation as defined in chapter 22 of such Code, of an employee or group of employees, employed by one or more employers, is paid by a fiduciary, agent, or other person, or if such fiduciary, agent, or other person has the control, receipt, custody, or disposal of such wages or compensation, the district director may, subject to such terms and conditions as he deems proper, authorize such fiduciary, agent, or other person to perform such acts as are required of such employer or employers under those provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 and the regulations thereunder which have application, for purposes of the taxes imposed by such chapter or chapters, in respect of such wages or compensation. If the fiduciary, agent, or other person is authorized by the district director to perform such acts, all provisions of law (including penalties) and of the regulations prescribed in pursuance of law applicable to employers in respect of such acts shall be applicable to such fiduciary, agent, or other person. However, each employer for whom such fiduciary, agent, or other person performs such acts shall remain subject to all provisions of law (including penalties) and of the regulations prescribed in pursuance of law applicable to an employer in respect of such acts. Any application for authorization to perform such acts, signed by such fiduciary, agent, or other person, shall be filed with the district director with whom the fiduciary, agent, or other person will, upon approval of such application, file returns in accordance with such authorization.

(b) Prior authorizations continued. An authorization in effect under section 1632 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 on December 31, 1954, continues in effect under section 3504 and is subject to the provisions of paragraph (a) of this section.

Subpart G—Administrative Provisions of Special Application to Employment Taxes (Selected Provisions of Subtitle F, Internal Revenue Code of 1954)

§ 31.6001 Statutory provisions; notice or regulations requiring records, statements, and special returns.

SEC. 6001. Notice or regulations requiring records, statements, and special returns. Every person liable for any tax imposed by this title, or for the collection thereof, shall keep such records, render such statements, make such returns, and comply with such rules and regulations as the Secretary or his delegate may from time to time prescribe. Whenever in the judgment of the Secretary or his delegate it is necessary, he may require any person, by notice served upon such person or by regulations, to make such returns, render such statements, or keep such records, as the Secretary or his delegate deems sufficient to show whether or not such person is liable for tax under this title.

§ 31.6001–1 Records in general.

(a) Form of records. The records required by the regulations in this part shall be kept accurately, but no particular form is required for keeping the records. Such forms and systems of accounting shall be used as will enable the district director to ascertain whether liability for tax is incurred and, if so, the amount thereof.

(b) Copies of returns, schedules, and statements. Every person who is required, by the regulations in this part or by instructions applicable to any form prescribed thereunder, to keep any copy of any return, schedule, statement, or other document, shall keep such copy as a part of his records.

(c) Records of claimants. Any person (including an employee) who, pursuant to the regulations in this part, claims a refund, credit, or abatement, shall keep a complete and detailed record with respect to the tax, interest, addition to the tax, additional amount, or assessable penalty to which the claim relates. Such record shall include any records required of the claimant by paragraph (b) of this section and by §§ 31.6001–2 to 31.6001–5, inclusive, which relate to the claim.

(d) Records of employees. While not mandatory (except in the case of claims), it is advisable for each employee to keep permanent, accurate records showing the name and address of each employer for whom he performs services as an employee, the dates of beginning and termination of such services, the information with respect to himself which is required by the regulations in this subpart to be kept by employers, and the statements furnished in accordance with the provisions of § 31.6051–1.

(e) Place and period for keeping records. (1) All records required by the regulations in this part shall be kept, by the person required to keep them, at one or more convenient and safe locations accessible to internal revenue officers, and shall at all times be available for inspection by such officers.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in the following sentence, every person required by the regulations in this part to keep records in respect of a tax (whether or not such person incurs liability for such tax) shall maintain such records for at least four years after the due date of such tax for the return period to which the records relate, or the date such tax is paid, whichever is the later. The records of claimants required by paragraph (c) of this section shall be maintained for a period of at least four years after the date the claim is filed.

(f) Cross reference. See §§ 31.6001–2 to 31.6001–5, inclusive, for additional records required with respect to the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, the Railroad Retirement Tax Act, the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, and the collection of income tax at source on wages, respectively.

§ 31.6001–2 Additional records under Federal Insurance Contributions Act.

(a) In general. (1) Every employer liable for tax under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act shall keep records of all remuneration, whether in cash or in a medium other than cash, paid to his employees after 1954 for services (other than agricultural labor which constitutes or is deemed to constitute employment, domestic service in a private home of the employer, or service not in the course of the employer's trade or business) performed for him after 1936. Such records shall show with respect to each employee receiving such remuneration—

(i) The name, address, and account number of the employee and such additional information with respect to the employee as is required by paragraph

(c) of § 31.6011(b)–2 when the employee does not advise the employer what his account number and name are as shown on an account number card issued to the employee by the Social Security Administration.

(ii) The total amount and date of each payment of remuneration (including any sum withheld therefrom as tax or for any other reason) and the period of services covered by such payment.

(iii) The amount of each such remuneration payment which constitutes wages subject to tax. See §§ 31.3121(a)–1 to 31.3121(a)(10)–1, inclusive.

(iv) The amount of employee tax, or any amount equivalent to employee tax, collected with respect to such payment, and, if collected at a time other than the time such payment was made, the date collected. See paragraph (b) of § 31.3102–1 for provisions relating to collection of amounts equivalent to employee tax.

(v) If the total remuneration payment (subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph) and the amount thereof which is taxable (subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph) are not equal, the reason therefor.

(2) Every employer shall keep records of the details of each adjustment or settlement of taxes under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act made pursuant to the regulations in this part. The employer shall keep as a part of his records a copy of each statement furnished pursuant to paragraph (c) of § 31.6011(a)–1.

(b) Agricultural labor, domestic service, and service not in the course of employer's trade or business. (1) Every employer who pays cash remuneration after 1954 for the performance for him after 1950 of agricultural labor which constitutes or is deemed to constitute employment, of domestic service in a private home of the employer not on a farm operated for profit, or of service not in the course of his trade or business shall keep records of all such cash remuneration with respect to which he incurs, or expects to incur, liability for the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, or with respect to which amounts equivalent to employee tax are deducted pursuant to section 3102(a). See §§ 31.3101–3, 31.3111–3, and 31.3121(a)–2 for provisions relating, respectively, to the liability for employee tax which is incurred when wages are received, the liability for employer tax which is incurred when wages are paid, and the time when wages are paid and received. Such records shall show with respect to each employee receiving such cash remuneration—

(i) The name of the employee.

(ii) The account number of each employee to whom wages for such services are paid within the meaning of § 31.3121(a)–2, and such additional information as is required by paragraph (c) of § 31.6011(b)–2 when the employee does not advise the employer what his account number and name are as shown on an account number card issued to the employee by the Social Security Administration.

(iii) The amount of such cash remuneration paid to the employee (including any sum withheld therefrom as tax or for any other reason) for agricultural labor which constitutes or is deemed to constitute employment, for domestic service in a private home of the employer not on a farm operated for profit, or for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business; the calendar month in which such cash remuneration was paid; and the character of the services for which such cash remuneration was paid. When the employer incurs liability for the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act with respect to any such cash remuneration which he did not previously expect would be subject to the taxes, the amount of any such cash remuneration not previously made a matter of record shall be determined by the employer to the best of his knowledge and belief.

(iv) The amount of employee tax, or any amount equivalent to employee tax, collected with respect to such cash remuneration and the calendar month in which collected. See paragraph (b) of § 31.3102–1 for provisions relating to collection of amounts equivalent to employee tax.

(v) To the extent material to a determination of tax liability, the number of days during each calendar year after 1956 on which agricultural labor which constitutes or is deemed to constitute employment is performed by the employee for cash remuneration computed on a time basis.

(2) Every person to whom a "crew leader", as that term is defined in section 3121(o), furnishes individuals for the performance of agricultural labor after December 31, 1958, shall keep records of the name; permanent mailing address, or if none, present address; and identification number, if any, of such "crew leader".

§ 31.6001–3 Additional records under Railroad Retirement Tax Act.

(a) Records of employers. (1) Every employer liable for tax under the Railroad Retirement Tax Act shall keep records of all remuneration (whether in money or in something which may be used in lieu of money), other than tips, paid to his employees after 1954 for services rendered to him (including "time lost") after 1954. Such records shall show with respect to each employee—

(i) The name and address of the employee.

(ii) The total amount and date of each payment of remuneration to the employee (including any sum withheld therefrom as tax or for any other reason) and the period of service (including any period of absence from active service) covered by such payment.

(iii) The amount of such remuneration payment with respect to which the tax is imposed.

(iv) The amount of employee tax collected with respect to such payment, and, if collected at a time other than the time such payment was made, the date collected.

(v) If the total payment of remuneration (subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph) and the amount thereof with respect to which the tax is imposed (subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph) are not equal, the reason therefor.

(2) The employer shall keep records of the details of each adjustment or settlement of taxes under the Railroad Retirement Tax Act made pursuant to the regulations in this part.

(b) Records of employee representatives. Every individual liable for employee representative tax under the Railroad Retirement Tax Act shall keep records of all remuneration (whether in money or in something which may be used in lieu of money) paid to him after 1954 for services rendered (including "time lost") by him as an employee representative after 1954. Such records shall show—

(1) The name and address of each employee organization employing him.

(2) The total amount and date of each payment of remuneration for services rendered as an employee representative (including any sum withheld therefrom as tax or for any other reason) and the period of service (including any period of absence from active service) covered by such payment.

(3) The amount of such remuneration payment with respect to which the employee representative tax is imposed.

(4) If the total payment of remuneration (subparagraph (2) of this paragraph) and the amount thereof with respect to which the employee representative tax is imposed (subparagraph (3) of this paragraph) are not equal, the reason therefor.

§ 31.6001–4 Additional records under Federal Unemployment Tax Act.

(a) Records of employers. Every employer liable for tax under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act for any calendar year shall, with respect to each such year, keep such records as are necessary to establish—

(1) The total amount of remuneration (including any sum withheld therefrom as tax or for any other reason) paid to his employees during the calendar year for services performed after 1938.

(2) The amount of such remuneration which constitutes wages subject to the tax. See § 31.3306(b)–1 through § 31.3306(b)(8)–1.

(3) The amount of contributions paid by him into each State unemployment fund, with respect to services subject to the law of such State, showing separately (i) payments made and neither deducted nor to be deducted from the remuneration of his employees, and (ii) payments made and deducted or to be deducted from the remuneration of his employees.

(4) The information required to be shown on the prescribed return and the extent to which the employer is liable for the tax.

(5) If the total remuneration paid (subparagraph (1) of this paragraph) and the amount thereof which is subject to the tax (subparagraph (2) of this paragraph) are not equal, the reason therefor.

(6) To the extent material to a determination of tax liability, the dates, in each calendar quarter, on which each employee performed services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, and the amount of cash remuneration paid at any time for such services performed within such quarter. See § 31.3306(c)(3)–1.

The term "remuneration," as used in this paragraph, includes all payments whether in cash or in a medium other than cash, except that the term does not include payments in a medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business. See § 31.3306(b)(7)–1.

(b) Records of persons who are not employers. Any person who employs individuals in employment (see § 31.3306(c)–2 through § 31.3306(c)(17)–1 during any calendar year but who considers that he is not an employer subject to the tax (see § 31.3306(a)–1) shall, with respect to each such year, be prepared to establish by proper records (including, where necessary, records of the number of employees employed each day) that he is not an employer subject to the tax.

§ 31.6001–5 Additional records in connection with collection of income tax at source on wages.

(a) Every employer required under section 3402 to deduct and withhold income tax upon the wages of employees shall keep records of all remuneration paid to such employees. Such records shall show with respect to each employee—

(1) The name and address of the employee.

(2) The total amount and date of each payment of remuneration (including any sum withheld therefrom as tax or for any other reason) and the period of services covered by such payment.

(3) The amount of such remuneration payment which constitutes wages subject to withholding.

(4) The amount of tax collected with respect to such remuneration payment, and, if collected at a time other than the time such payment was made, the date collected.

(5) If the total remuneration payment (subparagraph (2) of this paragraph) and the amount thereof which is taxable (subparagraph (3) of this paragraph) are not equal, the reason therefor.

(6) Copies of any statements furnished by the employee pursuant to paragraph (b)(12) of § 31.3401(a)–1 (relating to permanent residents of the Virgin Islands).

(7) Copies of any statements furnished by the employee pursuant to § 31.3401(a)(7)–1 (relating to nonresident alien individuals who are residents of a contiguous country).

(9) Copies of any statements furnished by the employee pursuant to § 31.3401(a)(8)(C)–1 (relating to citizens resident in Puerto Rico).

(10) The fair market value and date of each payment of noncash remuneration, made to an employee after August 9, 1955, for services performed as a retail commission salesman, with respect to which no income tax is withheld by reason of § 31.3402(j)–1.

(11) With respect to payments made in 1955 under a wage continuation plan (as defined in paragraph (a)(2)(i) of § 1.105–4 and §1.105–5 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations)), the records required to be kept in respect of such payments are those prescribed under paragraph (b)(8)(i) of § 31.3401(a)–1.

(12) In the case of the employer for whom services are performed, with respect to payments made directly by him after December 31, 1955, under a wage continuation plan (as defined in paragraph (a)(2)(i) of § 1.105–4 and § 1.105–5 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations))—

(i) The beginning and ending dates of each period of absence from work for which any such payment was made; and

(ii) Sufficient information to establish the amount and weekly rate of each such payment.

(13) The withholding exemption certificates (Form W–4) filed with the employer by the employee.

(14) The agreement, if any, between the employer and the employee for the withholding of additional amounts of tax pursuant to § 31.3402(i)–1.

(15) To the extent material to a determination of tax liability, the dates, in each calendar quarter, on which the employee performed services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, and the amount of cash remuneration paid at any time for such services performed within such quarter. See § 31.3401(a)(4)–1.

The term "remuneration," as used in this paragraph, includes all payments whether in cash or in a medium other than cash, except that the term does not include payments in a medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business. See § 31.3401(a)(11)–1.

(b) The employer shall keep records of the details of each adjustment or settlement of income tax withheld under section 3402 made pursuant to the regulations in this part.

§ 31.6001–6 Notice by district director requiring returns, statements, or the keeping of records.

The district director may require any person, by notice served upon him, to make such returns, render such statements, or keep such specific records as will enable the district director to determine whether or not such person is liable for any of the taxes to which the regulations in this part have application.

§ 31.6011(a) Statutory provisions; general requirement of return, statement, or list; general rule.

SEC. 6011. General requirement of return, statement, or list—(a) General rule. When required by regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate any person made liable for any tax imposed by this title, or for the collection thereof, shall make a return or statement according to the forms and regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate. Every person required to make a return or statement shall include therein the information required by such forms or regulations.

§ 31.6011(a)–1 Returns under Federal Insurance Contributions Act.

(a) Requirement—(1) In general. Except as otherwise provided in § 31.6011(a)–5, every employer required to make a return under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, as in effect prior to 1955, for the calendar quarter ended December 31, 1954, in respect of wages other than wages for agricultural labor, shall make a return for each subsequent calendar quarter (whether or not wages are paid in such quarter) until he has filed a final return in accordance with § 31.6011(a)–6. Except as otherwise provided in § 31.6011(a)–5, every employer not required to make a return for the calendar quarter ended December 31, 1954, shall make a return for the first calendar quarter thereafter in which he pays wages, other than wages for agricultural labor, subject to the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act as in effect after 1954, and shall make a return for each subsequent calendar quarter (whether or not wages are paid therein) until he has filed a final return in accordance with § 31.6011(a)–6. Except as otherwise provided in subparagraphs (3) and (4) of this paragraph, Form 941 is the form prescribed for making the return required by this subparagraph. Such return shall not include wages for agricultural labor required to be reported on any return prescribed by subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

(2) Employers of agricultural workers—(i) Quarterly returns for 1955. Every employer who, at any time before October 1 of the calendar year 1955, incurs liability of $100 or more for the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act with respect to wages paid in such year for agricultural labor shall make a return—

(a) For the first calendar quarter of such year if the liability for such taxes incurred in such quarter is $100 or more,

(b) For the period consisting of the first and second calendar quarters of such year if the liability for such taxes incurred in those quarters totals $100 or more, except that such return shall be made only for the second calendar quarter if a return was required under (a) of this subdivision and if the liability for such taxes incurred in the second calendar quarter is $100 or more, and

(c) For the period consisting of the first, second, and third calendar quarters of such year if the liability for such taxes incurred in those quarters totals $100 or more, except that such return shall be made (1) only for the period consisting of the second and third calendar quarters if a return was required under (a) of this subdivision but not under (b) of this subdivision, and if the total liability for such taxes incurred in the second and third calendar quarters totals $100 or more; or (2) only for the third calendar quarter if a return was required under (b) of this subdivision, and if the liability for such taxes incurred in the third calendar quarter is $100 or more.

Form 943A is the form prescribed for making the return required by this subdivision, except that, if the return is required to be filed with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico, the return shall be made on Form 943A–PR if the Internal Revenue Service furnishes Form 943A–PR to the employer for use in lieu of Form 943A (see § 31.6091–1).

(ii) Annual returns for 1955 and subsequent years. Every employer who pays wages after 1954 for agricultural labor with respect to which taxes are imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act shall make a return for the first calendar year in which he pays such wages and for each calendar year thereafter (whether or not wages are paid therein) until he has filed a final return in accordance with § 31.6011(a)–6. Form 943 is the form prescribed for making the annual return required by this subdivision, except that, if the return is required to be filed with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico, the return shall be made on Form 943PR if the Internal Revenue Service furnishes Form 943PR to the employer for use in lieu of Form 943 (see § 31.6091–1).

(3) Employers of domestic workers. Form 942 is the form prescribed for use by every employer in making a return as required under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph in respect of wages, as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, paid by him in any calendar quarter for domestic service in a private home of the employer not on a farm operated for profit. If, however, the employer is required under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph to make a return on Form 941 for such calendar quarter, such employer, at his election, may—

(i) Report all wages on Form 941, or

(ii) Report on Form 942 the wages for domestic service in a private home of the employer not on a farm operated for profit and omit such wages from the return on Form 941.

An employer entitled to make the election referred to in the preceding sentence who has chosen one method shall not change to the other method without first notifying the district director with whom he is required to file his returns that he will thereafter use such other method. See, however, § 31.6011(a)–6, relating to final returns on Form 941. The provisions of this subparagraph shall not apply to any employer required to file the return prescribed under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico (see § 31.6091–1).

(4) Employers in Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands. Form 941PR is the form prescribed for use in making the return required under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph in the case of every employer who is required to file such return with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico, except that the return shall be made on Form 941VI if the Internal Revenue Service furnishes Form 941VI to the employer for use in lieu of Form 941PR. However, Form 941 is the form prescribed for making such return in the case of every such employer who is required pursuant to § 31.6011(a)–4 to make a return of income tax withheld from wages.

(b) When to report wages. Wages with respect to which taxes are imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act shall be reported in the return of such taxes required under this section or § 31.6011(a)–5 for the return period in which they are actually paid unless they were constructively paid in a prior return period, in which case such wages shall be reported only in the return for such prior period. However, if such wages are deemed to be paid in a later return period, they shall be reported only in the return for such later period. See § 31.3121(a)–2 relating to the time when wages are paid or deemed to be paid.

(c) Correction of returns or schedules. If in a return required under this section or § 31.6011(a)–5, or in any other manner, the employer fails to report, or incorrectly reports, to the district director, the name, account number, or wages of an employee, the employer shall furnish to the district director a written statement fully explaining the omission or error; except that such statement is not required by this paragraph if correction of the omission or error is made in connection with a supplemental return, adjustment, credit, refund, or abatement. The employer shall include in such statement his identification number (except that an identification number need not be included if the omission or error is with respect to information required to be reported on a return on Form 942), each return period for which the data were omitted or for which the incorrect data were furnished, the data incorrectly reported for each period, and the data which should have been reported. A copy of such statement shall be retained by the employer as a part of his records under § 31.6001–2. No particular form is prescribed for making such statement, but if printed forms are desired, the district director will supply copies of Form 941c or Form 941c PR, whichever is appropriate, upon request.

(d) Time and place for filing returns. For provisions relating to the time and place for filing returns, see §§ 31.6071 (a)–1 and 31.6091–1, respectively.

§ 31.6011(a)–2 Returns under Railroad Retirement Tax Act.

(a) Requirement—(1) Employers. Every employer shall make a return for the first calendar quarter after 1954 within which compensation taxable under the Railroad Retirement Tax Act is paid to his employee or employees for services rendered after 1954, and for each subsequent calendar quarter (whether or not taxable compensation is paid therein) until he has filed a final return in accordance with § 31.6011(a)–6. Form CT–1 is the form prescribed for making the return required under this subparagraph. One original and a duplicate of each return on Form CT–1 shall be filed with the district director.

(2) Employee representatives. Every employee representative shall make a return for the first calendar quarter after 1954 within which he is paid taxable compensation for services rendered after 1954 as an employee representative, and for each subsequent calendar quarter (whether or not he is paid taxable compensation therein) until he has filed a final return in accordance with § 31.6011(a)–6. Form CT–2 is the form prescribed for making the return required under this subparagraph. One original and a duplicate of each return on Form CT–2 shall be filed with the district director.

(b) When to report compensation—(1) In general. Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, compensation taxable under the Railroad Retirement Tax Act shall be reported in the return required under this section for the period in which it is deemed, under paragraph (d) of § 31.3231(e)–1 to be paid, unless under such section the compensation may be deemed to be paid in more than one return period, in which case it shall be reported only in the return for the first return period in which it is deemed to be paid.

(2) Returns of employers required by State law to pay compensation on weekly basis—(i) In general. If any employer is required by the laws of any State to pay compensation weekly, the return of tax with respect to such compensation may, at the election of such employer, cover all payroll weeks which, or the major part of which, fall within the period for which a return of tax is required by paragraph (a)(1) of this section. This provision shall not apply, however, to any payroll week which falls in two calendar years. Any employer who elects to file a return as provided in this subparagraph shall notify the district director in writing of such election and shall include therein a statement setting forth the facts which entitle him to make the election. Such notice shall be in duplicate and shall be attached to the original and duplicate of the return for the first period to which such election applies. Any election so made shall be binding upon the employer with respect to all returns subsequently made by him until the district director authorizes or directs the employer to make a return on a different basis. For the purpose of determining the time when compensation is deemed to be paid in accordance with paragraph (d) of § 31.3231(e)–1 and of determining the due date of a return in accordance with paragraph (b) of § 31.6071(a)–1, the calendar month following the period covered by the return of an employer making such election is the same calendar month which would be determinative for such purposes if the employer had not made the election.

(ii) Prior elections. An election made by an employer, pursuant to the provisions of 26 CFR (1939) 410.501(b) (Regulations 100) or of 26 CFR (1939) 411.601 (b), (Regulations 114), which is in force and effect at the time the employer makes his first return under this section shall satisfy the requirements of subdivision (i) of this subparagraph with respect to the making of an election and shall be binding upon the employer with respect to all returns made by him under this section until the district director authorizes or directs the employer to make a return on a different basis.

(iii) Example. Employer X is required by State law to pay his employees within 6 days after the compensation is earned. In compliance with the State law, employer X, for services rendered to him for the payroll week of June 27 to July 2, 1955, pays his employees on the last-named date, June 1955 is the last month of a period for which a return of tax is required by paragraph (a)(1) of this section. Employer X may elect to include in the return required by paragraph (a)(1) of this section for the period April 1 to June 30, 1955, the compensation paid to his employees for the payroll week of June 27 to July 2, 1955, inclusive, although the compensation for July 1 and 2 falls within another period for which a return is required by paragraph (a)(1) of this section. If, in this example, the payroll week ended on July 5, 1955, the compensation paid for the payroll week of June 29 to July 5 would be included in the return period in which July falls although the compensation earned for June 29 and 30 fell in a prior return period under the general rule.

(c) Time and place for filing returns. For provisions relating to the time and place for filing returns, see §§ 31.6071 (a)–1 and 31.6091–1, respectively.

§ 31.6011(a)–3 Returns under Federal Unemployment Tax Act.

(a) Requirement. Every person shall make a return of tax under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act for each calendar year with respect to which he is an employer as defined in § 31.3306(a)–1. Form 940 is the form prescribed for use in making the return.

(b) When to report wages. Wages taxable under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act shall be reported in the return required under this section for the return period in which they are actually paid unless they were constructively paid in a prior return period, in which case such wages shall be reported only in the return for such prior period.

(c) Time and place for filing returns. For provisions relating to the time and place for filing returns, see §§ 31.6071 (a)–1 and 31.6091–1, respectively.

§ 31.6011(a)–4 Returns of income tax withheld from wages.

(a) In general. Except as otherwise provided in § 31.6011(a)–5, every person required to make a return of income tax withheld from wages pursuant to section 1622 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 for the calendar quarter ended December 31, 1954, shall make a return for each subsequent calendar quarter (whether or not wages are paid therein) until he has filed a final return in accordance with § 31.6011(a)–6. Except as otherwise provided in § 31.6011(a)–5, every person not required to make a return for the calendar quarter ended December 31, 1954, shall make a return of income tax withheld from wages pursuant to section 3402 for the first calendar quarter thereafter in which he is required to deduct and withhold such tax and for each subsequent calendar quarter (whether or not wages are paid therein) until he has filed a final return in accordance with § 31.6011(a)–6. Form 941 is the form prescribed for making the return required under this paragraph.

(b) District director's copies of Form W–2. (1) Every employer who is required under paragraph (a) of this section to make a return of income tax withheld from wages for a period ending December 31, or for any period for which such return is made as a final return, shall submit as part of such return the district director's copy of each withholding statement on Form W–2 required under § 31.6051–1 to be furnished by the employer with respect to wages paid during the calendar year. For the penalty provided in case of each failure to file Form W–2, see paragraph (a) of § 301.6652–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration).

(2) The copies of withholding statements for the current calendar year transmitted with the return required under paragraph (a) of this section shall be accompanied by an information statement on Form W–3. This subparagraph has no application to any return filed under this section in 1955.

(3) The copies of withholding statements for the current calendar year transmitted with the return shall be accompanied by a list (preferably in the form of an adding machine tape) of the amounts of income tax withheld shown on such statements. If an employer's total payroll is made up on the basis of a number of separate units or establishments, the statements may be assembled accordingly and a separate list or tape submitted for each unit. In such case, a summary list or tape should be submitted, the total of which will agree with the corresponding entry to be made on Form W–3. If the number of statements is large, they may be forwarded in packages of convenient size. When this is done, the packages should be identified with the name of the employer and consecutively numbered, and Form W–3 should be placed in package No. 1. The number of packages should be indicated immediately after the employer's name on Form W–3. The return, Form 941, and remittance in cases of this kind should be submitted in the usual manner, accompanied by a brief statement that the district director's copies of Form W–2 and Form W–3 are in separate packages.

(4) The district director's copies of corrected Forms W–2 for a prior calendar year shall be submitted to the district director on or before the date fixed for filing the employer's return of income tax withheld from wages for the period ending December 31 of the year in which the correction is made, or for any period in such year for which the return is made as a final return. Such copies of corrected Forms W–2 shall be accompanied by a statement explaining the corrections and, if submitted with the employer's return for such period ending December 31 or with such final return, shall be assembled separately from the district director's copies of Forms W–2 for the current calendar year (see subparagraph (1) of this paragraph).

(5) For provisions relating to extensions of time for filing the district director's copies of Form W–2 and Form W–3, see paragraph (a)(3) of § 31.6081(a)–1.

(c) Time and place for filing returns. For provisions relating to the time and place for filing returns, see §§ 31.6071 (a)–1 and 31.6091–1, respectively.

§ 31.6011(a)–5 Monthly returns.

(a) In general—(1) Requirement. The provisions of this section are applicable in respect of the taxes reportable on Form 941, Form 941PR, or Form 941VI pursuant to § 31.6011(a)–1 or § 31.6011 (a)–4. An employer who is required by § 31.6011(a)–1 or § 31.6011(a)–4 to make quarterly returns on any such form shall, in lieu of making such quarterly returns, make returns of such taxes in accordance with the provisions of this section if he is so notified in writing by the district director. The district director may so notify any employer (i) who, by reason of notification as provided in § 301.7512–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration), is required to comply with the provisions of such § 301.7512–1, or (ii) who has failed to (a) make any such return on Form 941, Form 941PR, or Form 941VI, (b) pay tax reportable on any such form, or (c) deposit any such tax as required under the provisions of § 31.6302(c)–1. Every employer so notified by the district director shall make a return for the calendar month in which the notice is received and for each calendar month thereafter (whether or not wages are paid in any such month) until he has filed a final return or is required to make quarterly returns pursuant to notification as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph. However, if the notice provided for in this subparagraph is received after the close of the first calendar month of a calendar quarter, the first return under this section shall be made for the period beginning with the first day of such quarter and ending with the last day of the month in which the notice is received. Each return required under this section shall be made on the form prescribed for making the return which would otherwise be required of the employer under the provisions of § 31.6011 (a)–1 or § 31.6011(a)–4, except that, if some other form is furnished by the district director for use in lieu of such prescribed form, the return shall be made on such other form.

(2) Termination of requirement. The district director, in his discretion, may notify the employer in writing that he shall discontinue the filing of monthly returns under this section. If the employer is so notified, the last month for which a return shall be made under this section is the last month of the calendar quarter in which such notice of discontinuance is received. Thereafter, the employer shall make quarterly returns in accordance with the provisions of § 31.6011(a)–1 or § 31.6011(a)–4.

(b) Information returns or statements—(1) Federal Insurance Contributions Act. Every employer who is required under paragraph (a) of this section to make a return of tax under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act for any period within a calendar quarter shall make an information return for such calendar quarter. Such return shall be made on Schedule A of Form 941, or the equivalent schedule of Form 941PR or Form 941VI, except that, if some other form or schedule is furnished by the district director for the purpose of making such return, the return shall be made on such other form or schedule. The information reported on such return shall include, with respect to each employee to whom the employer pays wages as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, the account number of the employee, the employee's name, the total amount of wages paid by the employer to the employee during the calendar quarter, and such other information as may be called for on the form provided for making such return.

(2) Income tax withheld from wages. (i) Every employer who is required under paragraph (a) of this section to make a return of income tax withheld from wages for a period ending December 31, or for any period for which such return is made as a final return, shall make an information statement for the calendar year which includes such period. Such information statement shall be made on Form W–3, except that, if some other form is furnished by the district director for use in lieu of Form W–3, the information statement shall be made on such other form. The information statement shall be accompanied by the district director's copy of each withholding statement on Form W–2 required under § 31.6051–1 to be furnished by the employer with respect to wages paid during the calendar year. The provisions of paragraph (b)(3) of § 31.6011(a)–4 shall be applicable in respect of such withholding statements. For provisions relating to the submission of the district director's copies of corrected Forms W–2 for a prior year, see paragraph (b)(4) of § 31.6011(a)–4. For the penalty provided in case of each failure to file Form W–2, see the provisions of paragraph (a) of § 301.6652–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration).

(ii) For provisions relating to extensions of time for filing the district director's copies of Form W–2 and Form W–3, or such other form as may be furnished for use in lieu of Form W–3, see paragraph (a)(3) of § 31.6081(a)–1.

(c) Time and place for filing returns. For provisions relating to the time and place for filing returns, see §§ 31.6071(a)–1 and 31.6091–1, respectively.

§ 31.6011(a)–6 Final returns.

(a) In general—(1) Federal Insurance Contributions Act; income tax withheld from wages. An employer who is required to make a return on a particular form pursuant to § 31.6011(a)–1, § 31.6011(a)–4, or § 31.6011(a)–5, and who in any return period ceases to pay wages in respect of which he is required to make a return on such form, shall make such return for such period as a final return. Each return made as a final return shall be marked "Final return" by the person filing the return. Every such person filing a final return (other than a final return on Form 942 or Form 943) shall furnish information showing the date of the last payment of wages, as defined in section 3121(a) or section 3401(a). An employer (other than an employer making returns on Form 942) who has only temporarily ceased to pay wages, because of seasonal activities or for other reasons, shall not make a final return but shall continue to file returns. If (i) for any return period an employer makes a final return on a particular form, and (ii) after the close of such period the employer pays wages, as defined in section 3121(a) or section 3401(a), in respect of which the same or a different return form is prescribed, such employer shall make returns on the appropriate return form. For example, if an employer who has filed a final return on Form 941 pays wages only for domestic service in his private home not on a farm operated for profit, the employer is required to make returns on Form 942 in respect of such wages.

(2) Railroad Retirement Tax Act—(i) Form CT–1. An employer required to make returns on Form CT–1 who in any calendar quarter ceases to pay taxable compensation shall make the return on Form CT–1 for such quarter as a final return. Such return shall be marked "Final return" by the person filing the return, and such person shall furnish information showing the date of the last payment of taxable compensation. An employer who has only temporarily ceased to pay taxable compensation shall continue to file returns on Form CT–1.

(ii) Form CT–2. An employee representative required to make returns on Form CT–2 who in any calendar quarter ceases to be paid taxable compensation for services as an employee representative shall make the return on Form CT–2 for such quarter as a final return. Such return shall be marked "Final return" by the person filing the return, and such person shall furnish information showing the date of the last payment of taxable compensation. An employee representative who only temporarily ceases to be paid taxable compensation for services as an employee representative shall continue to file returns on Form CT–2.

(3) Federal Unemployment Tax Act. An employer required to make a return on Form 940 for a calendar year in which he ceases to be an employer, as defined in § 31.3306(a)–1, because of the discontinuance, sale, or other transfer of his business, shall make such return as a final return. Such return shall be marked "Final return" by the person filing the return.

(b) Statement to accompany final return. There shall be executed as a part of each final return, except in the case of a final return on Form 942, a statement showing the address at which the records required by the regulations in this part will be kept, the name of the person keeping such records, and, if the business of an employer has been sold or otherwise transferred to another person, the name and address of such person and the date on which such sale or other transfer took place. If no such sale or transfer occurred or the employer does not know the name of the person to whom the business was sold or transferred, that fact should be included in the statement. Such statement shall include any information required by this section as to the date of the last payment of wages or compensation. If the statement is executed as a part of a final return on Form CT–1 or Form CT–2, such statement shall be furnished in duplicate.

(c) Time and place for filing returns. For provisions relating to the time and place for filing returns, see §§ 31.6071(a)–1 and 31.6091–1, respectively.

§ 31.6011(a)–7 Execution of returns.

(a) In general. Each return required under the regulations in this part, together with any prescribed copies or supporting data, shall be filled in and disposed of in accordance with the forms, instructions, and regulations applicable thereto. The return shall be carefully prepared so as fully and accurately to set forth the data required to be furnished therein. Returns which have not been so prepared will not be accepted as meeting the requirements of the regulations in this part. The return may be made by an agent in the name of the person required to make the return if an acceptable power of attorney is filed with the district director and if such return includes all taxes required to be reported by such person on such return for the period covered by the return. Only one return on any one prescribed form for a return period shall be filed by or for a taxpayer. Any supplemental return made on such form in accordance with § 31.6205–1 shall constitute a part of the return which it supplements. Consolidated returns of two or more employers are not permitted, as for example, returns of a parent and a subsidiary corporation. For provisions relating to the filing of returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act and of income tax withheld under section 3402 in the case of governmental employers, see § 31.3122 and § 31.3404–1.

(b) Use of prescribed forms. Copies of the prescribed return forms will so far as possible be regularly furnished taxpayers by district directors. A taxpayer will not be excused from making a return, however, by the fact that no return form has been furnished to him. Taxpayers not supplied with the proper forms should make application therefor to the district director in ample time to have their returns prepared, verified, and filed with the district director on or before the due date. See §§ 31.6071(a)–1 and 31.6091–1, relating, respectively, to the time and place for filing returns. In the absence of a prescribed return form, a statement made by a taxpayer disclosing the aggregate amount of wages or compensation reportable on such form for the period in respect of which a return is required and the amount of taxes due may be accepted as a tentative return. If filed within the prescribed time, the statement so made will relieve the taxpayer from liability for the addition to tax imposed for the delinquent filing of the return, provided that without unnecessary delay such tentative return is supplemented by a return made on the proper form. For additions to the tax in case of failure to file a return within the prescribed time, see the provisions of § 301.6651–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration).

(c) Signing and verification. For provisions relating to the signing of returns, see § 31.6061–1. For provisions relating to the verifying of returns, see § 31.6065(a)–1.

§ 31.6011(b) Statutory provisions; identification of taxpayer.

SEC. 6011. General requirement of return, statement, or list. • • •

(b) Identification of taxpayer. The Secretary or his delegate is authorized to require such information with respect to persons subject to the taxes imposed by chapter 21 or chapter 24 as is necessary or helpful in securing proper identification of such persons.

§ 31.6011(b)–1 Employers' identification numbers.

(a) Requirement of application—(1) In general. Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, every employer who on or after January 1, 1955, has in his employ one or more individuals in employment for wages subject to the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, but who prior to such date has neither secured an identification number nor made application therefor, shall make an application on Form SS–4 for an identification number. Each application, together with any supplementary statement, shall be prepared in accordance with the form, instructions, and regulations applicable thereto, and shall set forth fully and clearly the data therein called for. Copies of Form SS–4 may be obtained from any district director, or any district office of the Social Security Administration. The application shall be filed with the district director with whom the employer will file returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, or with the nearest district office of the Social Security Administration. Each application shall be signed by (i) the individual, if the employer is an individual; (ii) the president, vice president, or other principal officer, if the employer is a corporation; (iii) a responsible and duly authorized member or officer having knowledge of its affairs, if the employer is a partnership or other unincorporated organization; or (iv) the fiduciary, if the employer is a trust or estate. An identification number will be assigned to the employer in due course upon the basis of information reported on the application required under this section.

(2) Exception. An employer, other than an employer who is required to file returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico, who has in his employ only employees who are engaged exclusively in the performance of domestic service in his private home not on a farm operated for profit (see § 31.3121(a)(7)–1) is not required to apply for an identification number.

(3) Time for filing Form SS–4. The application for an identification number shall be filed on or before the seventh day after the date on which the first payment of wages, as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, is made by the employer. For provisions relating to the time when wages are paid, see § 31.3121(a)–2.

(b) Employers who are assigned identification numbers without application. An identification number will be assigned by a district director in the case of (1) an employer who is required to make returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act but who by reason of the provisions of paragraph (a)(2) of this section is not required to apply for an identification number, and (2) an employer who is required to make returns of income tax withheld from wages pursuant to section 3402 but who is not required to make returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act.

(c) Crew leaders. Any person who, as a crew leader within the meaning of section 3121(o), furnishes individuals to perform agricultural labor for another person shall, on or before the first date on which he furnishes such individuals to perform such labor for such other person, advise such other person of his name; permanent mailing address, or if none, present address; and identification number, if any.

(d) Use of identification number. The identification number assigned to an employer (other than a household employer referred to in paragraph (a)(2) of this section) shall be shown in the employer's records, returns, statements for employees, depositary receipts, and claims to the extent required by the applicable forms, regulations, and instructions.

§ 31.6011(b)–2 Employees' account numbers.

(a) Requirement of application—(1) In general. Every employee who on or after January 1, 1955, is in employment for wages subject to the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, but who prior to such date has neither secured an account number nor made application therefor, shall make an application on Form SS–5 for an account number. Each application shall be prepared in accordance with the form, instructions, and regulations applicable thereto, and shall set forth fully and clearly the data therein called for. Such employee shall file the application with any district office of the Social Security Administration or, if the employee is not working within the United States, with the district office of the Social Security Administration at Baltimore, Maryland. Copies of Form SS–5 may be obtained from any district office of the Social Security Administration or from any district director. An account number will be assigned to the employee by the Social Security Administration in due course upon the basis of information reported on the application required under this section. A card showing the name and account number of an employee to whom an account number has been assigned will be furnished to the employee by the Social Security Administration.

(2) Time for filing Form SS–5. The application shall be filed on or before the seventh day after the date on which the employee first performs employment for wages, unless the employee leaves the employ of his employer before such seventh day, in which case the application shall be filed on or before the date on which the employee leaves the employ of his employer.

(3) Changes and corrections. Any employee may have his account number changed at any time by applying to a district office of the Social Security Administration and showing good reasons for a change. With that exception, only one account number will be assigned to an employee. Any employee whose name is changed by marriage or otherwise, or who has stated incorrect information on Form SS–5, should report such change or correction to a district office of the Social Security Administration. Copies of the form for making such reports may be obtained from any district office of the Administration.

(b) Duties of employee with respect to his account number—(1) Information to be furnished to employer. An employee shall, on the day on which he enters the employ of any employer for wages, comply with the provisions of subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), or (iv) of this subparagraph, except that, if the employee's services for the employer consist solely of agricultural labor, domestic service in a private home of the employer not on a farm operated for profit, or service not in the course of the employer's trade or business, the employee shall comply with such provisions on the first day on which wages are paid to him by such employer, within the meaning of § 31.3121(a)–2:

(i) Employee who has account number card. If the employee has been issued an account number card by the Social Security Administration and has the card available, the employee shall show it to the employer.

(ii) Employee who has number but card not available. If the employee does not have available the account number card issued to him by the Social Security Administration but knows what his account number is, and what his name is, exactly as shown on such card, the employee shall advise the employer of such number and name. Care must be exercised that the employer is correctly advised of such number and name.

(iii) Employee who has receipt acknowledging application. If the employee does not have an account number card but has available a receipt issued to him by an office of the Social Security Administration acknowledging that an application for an account number has been received, the employee shall show such receipt to the employer.

(iv) Employee who is unable to furnish number or receipt. If an employee is unable to comply with the requirement of subdivision (i), (ii), or (iii) of this subparagraph, the employee shall furnish to the employer a statement in writing, signed by the employee, setting forth the date of the statement, the employee's full name, present address, date and place of birth, father's full name, mother's full name before marriage, and the employee's sex, including a statement as to whether the employee has previously filed an application on Form SS–5 and, if so, the date and place of such filing. The information required by this subdivision shall be furnished on Form SS–5, if a copy of Form SS–5 is available. The furnishing of such a Form SS–5 or other statement by the employee to the employer does not relieve the employee of his obligation to make an application on Form SS–5 and file it with a district office of the Social Security Administration as required by paragraph (a) of this section. The foregoing provisions of this subdivision are not applicable to an employee engaged exclusively in the performance of domestic service in a private home of his employer not on a farm operated for profit, or in the performance of agricultural labor, if the services are performed for an employer other than an employer required to file returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico. However, such employee shall advise the employer of his full name and present address.

For provisions relating to the duties of an employer when furnished the information required by subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), or (iv) of this subparagraph, see paragraph (c) of this section.

(2) Additional information to be furnished by employee to employer. Every employee who, on the day on which he is required to comply with subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), or (iv) of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, has an account number card but for any reason does not show such card to the employer on such day shall promptly thereafter show the card to the employer. An employee who does not have an account number card on such day shall, upon receipt of an account number card from the Social Security Administration, promptly show such card to the employer, if he is still in the employ of that employer. If the employee has left the employ of the employer when the employee receives an account number card from the Social Security Administration, he shall promptly advise the employer of his account number and name exactly as shown on such card. The account number originally assigned to an employee (or the number as changed in accordance with paragraph (a)(3) of this section) shall be used by the employee as required by this paragraph even though he enters the employ of other employers.

(c) Duties of employer with respect to employees' account numbers.—(1) Employee who shows account number. Upon being shown the account number card issued to an employee by the Social Security Administration, the employer shall enter the account number and name, exactly as shown on the card, in the employer's records, returns, statements for employees, and claims to the extent required by the applicable forms, regulations, and instructions.

(2) Employee who does not show account number card. With respect to an employee who, on the day on which he is required to comply with subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), or (iv) of paragraph (b)(1) of this section, does not show the employer an account number card issued to the employee by the Social Security Administration, the employer shall request such employee to show him such card. If the card is not shown, the employer shall comply with the applicable provisions of subdivision (i), (ii), (iii), (iv), or (v) of this subparagraph:

(i) Employee who has not applied for account number. If the employee has not been assigned an account number and has not made application therefor with a district office of the Social Security Administration, the employer shall inform the employee of his duties under this section.

(ii) Employee who has account number. If the employee advises the employer of his number and name as shown on his account number card, as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(ii) of this section, the employer shall enter such number and name in his records.

(iii) Employee who has receipt for application. If the employee shows the employer, as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(iii) of this section, a receipt issued to him by an office of the Social Security Administration acknowledging that an application for an account number has been received from the employee, the employer shall enter in his records with respect to such employee the name and address of the employee exactly as shown on the receipt, the expiration date of the receipt, and the address of the issuing office. The receipt shall be retained by the employee.

(iv) Employee who furnishes Form SS–5 or statement. If the employee furnishes information to the employer as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(iv) of this section, the employer shall retain such information for use as provided in subparagraph (3)(ii) of this paragraph.

(v) Household or agricultural employees. If the employee advises the employer of his full name and present address in accordance with those provisions of paragraph (b)(1)(iv) of this section which are applicable in the case of employees engaged exclusively in the performance of domestic service in a private home of the employer not on a farm operated for profit, or agricultural labor, the employer shall enter such name and address in his records.

(3) Account number unknown when return is filed. In any case in which the employee's account number is for any reason unknown to the employer at the time the employer's return is filed for any return period with respect to which the employer is required to report the wages paid to such employee—

(i) If employee has shown receipt for application. If the employee has shown to the employer, as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(iii) of this section, a receipt issued to him by an office of the Social Security Administration acknowledging that an application for an account number has been received from the employee, the employer shall enter on the return, with the entry with respect to the employee, the name and address of the employee exactly as shown on the receipt, the expiration date of the receipt, and the address of the issuing office.

(ii) If employee furnished Form SS–5 or statement. If the employee has furnished information to the employer as provided in paragraph (b)(1)(iv) of this section, the employer shall prepare a copy of the Form SS–5 or statement furnished by the employee and attach the copy to the return.

(iii) If employee did not furnish receipt, Form SS–5, or statement. If neither subdivision (i) nor (ii) of this subparagraph is applicable, the employer shall, except as provided in subparagraph (4) of this paragraph, attach to the return a Form SS–5 or statement, signed by the employer, setting forth as fully and clearly as practicable the employee's full name, his present or last known address, date and place of birth, father's full name, mother's full name before marriage, the employee's sex, and a statement as to whether an application for an account number has previously been filed by the employee and, if so, the date and place of such filing. The employer shall also insert in such Form SS–5 or statement an explanation of why he has not secured from the employee the information referred to in paragraph (b)(1)(iv) of this section, and shall insert the word "Employer" as part of his signature.

(4) Household or agricultural employees. The provisions of subparagraph (3)(iii) of this paragraph are not applicable with respect to an employee engaged exclusively in the performance of domestic service in a private home of his employer not on a farm operated for profit, or in the performance of agricultural labor, if the services are performed for an employer other than an employer required to file returns of the taxes imposed by the Federal Insurance Contributions Act with the office of the United States Internal Revenue Service in Puerto Rico. If any such employee has not furnished to the employer the information required by paragraph (b)(1)(i), (ii), or (iii) of this section prior to the time the employer's return is filed for any return period with respect to which the employer is required to report wages paid to such employee, the employer shall enter the word "Unknown" in the account number column of the return and (i) file with the return a statement showing the employee's full name and present or last known address, or (ii) enter such address on the return form immediately below the name of the employee.

(5) Where to obtain Form SS–5. Employers may obtain copies of Form SS–5 from any district office of the Social Security Administration or from any district director.

(6) Prospective employees. While not mandatory, it is suggested that the employer advise any prospective employee who does not have an account number of the requirements of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section.

§ 31.6051 Statutory provisions; receipts for employees.

SEC. 6051. Receipts for employees.—(a) Requirement. Every person required to deduct and withhold from an employee a tax under section 3101 or 3402, or who would have been required to deduct and withhold a tax under section 3402 if the employee had claimed no more than one withholding exemption, shall furnish to each such employee in respect of the remuneration paid by such person to such employee during the calendar year, on or before January 31 of the succeeding year, or, if his employment is terminated before the close of such calendar year, on the day on which the last payment of remuneration is made, a written statement showing the following:

(1) The name of such person,

(2) The name of the employee (and his social security account number if wages as defined in section 3121(a) have been paid),

(3) The total amount of wages as defined in section 3401(a),

(4) The total amount deducted and withheld as tax under section 3402,

(5) The total amount of wages as defined in section 3121(a), and

(6) The total amount deducted and withheld as tax under section 3101.

In the case of compensation paid for service as a member of a uniformed service, the statement shall show, in lieu of the amount required to be shown by paragraph (5), the total amount of wages as defined in section 3121(a), computed in accordance with such section and section 3121(i)(2).

(b) Special rule as to compensation of members of Armed Forces. In the case of compensation paid for service as a member of the Armed Forces, the statement required by subsection (a) shall be furnished if any tax was withheld during the calendar year under section 3402, or if any of the compensation paid during such year is includible in gross income under chapter 1, or if during the calendar year any amount was required to be withheld as tax under section 3101. In lieu of the amount required to be shown by paragraph (3) of subsection (a), such statement shall show as wages paid during the calendar year the amount of such compensation paid during the calendar year which is not excluded from gross income under chapter 1 (whether or not such compensation constituted wages as defined in section 3401(a)).

(c) Additional requirements. The statements required to be furnished pursuant to this section in respect of any remuneration shall be furnished at such other times, shall contain such other information, and shall be in such form as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

(d) Statements to constitute information returns. A duplicate of any statement made pursuant to this section and in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate shall, when required by such regulations, be filed with the Secretary or his delegate.

§ 31.6051–1 Statements for employees.

(a) Requirement if wages are subject to withholding of income tax.—(1) General rule. (i) Every employer, as defined in section 3401(d), required to deduct and withhold from an employee a tax under section 3402, or who would have been required to deduct and withhold a tax under section 3402 if the employee had claimed no more than one withholding exemption, shall furnish to each such employee, in respect of the remuneration paid by such employer to such employee during the calendar year, the tax return copy and the employee's copy of a statement on Form W–2. For example, if the wage bracket method of withholding provided in section 3402(c)(1) is used, a statement on Form W–2 must be furnished to each employee whose wages during any payroll period are equal to or in excess of the smallest wage from which tax must be withheld in the case of an employee claiming one exemption. If the percentage method is used, a statement on Form W–2 must be furnished to each employee whose wages during any payroll period are in excess of one withholding exemption for such payroll period as shown in the percentage method withholding table contained in section 3402(b)(1). Each statement on Form W–2 shall show the following:

(a) The name, address, and identification number of the employer,

(b) The name and address of the employee, and, if wages as defined in section 3121(a) have been paid, his social security account number,

(c) The total amount of wages as defined in section 3401(a),

(d) The total amount deducted and withheld as tax under section 3402,

(e) The total amount of wages as defined in section 3121(a), and

(f) The total amount of employee tax under section 3101 deducted and withheld (increased by any adjustment in the calendar year for overcollection, or decreased by any adjustment in such year for undercollection, of such tax during any prior year).

See paragraph (d) of this section for provisions relating to the time for furnishing the statement required by this subparagraph.

(ii) Payments made in 1955 under a wage continuation plan shall be reported on Form W–2 to the extent, and in the manner, provided in paragraph (b)(8)(i) of § 31.3401(a)–1.

(iii) In the case of statements furnished by the employer for whom services are performed, with respect to wages paid after December 31, 1955, "the total amount of wages as defined in section 3401(a)", as used in section 6051(a)(3), shall include all payments made directly by such employer under a wage continuation plan which constitute wages in accordance with paragraph (b)(8)(ii)(a) of § 31.3401(a)–1, without regard to whether tax has been withheld on such amounts.

(iv) Form W–2 is not required in respect of any wage continuation payment made to an employee by or on behalf of a person who is not the employer for whom the employee performs services but who is regarded as an employer under section 3401(d)(1). See paragraph (b)(8) of § 31.3401(a)–1.

(v) In the case of remuneration paid for service described in section 3121(m), relating to service in the uniformed services, performed after 1956, "wages as defined in section 3121(a)", as used in section 6051(a)(2) and (5), shall be determined in accordance with section 3121(i)(2) and section 3122.

(2) Statements for members of the Armed Forces of the United States. Section 6051(b) contains certain special provisions which are applicable in the case of members of the Armed Forces of the United States in active service. In such case, Form W–2 shall be furnished to each such member of the Armed Forces if any tax has been withheld under section 3402 during the calendar year from the remuneration of such member or if any of the remuneration paid during the calendar year for such active service is includible under chapter 1 of the Code in the gross income of such member. Form W–2, in the case of such member, shall show, as "the total amount of wages as defined in section 3401(a)", as used in section 6051(a)(3), the amount of the remuneration paid during the calendar year which is not excluded under chapter 1 from the gross income of such member, whether or not such remuneration constitutes wages as defined in section 3401(a) and whether or not paid for such active service.

(3) Undelivered Forms W–2. The tax return copy and the employee's copy of each withholding statement on Form W–2 for the calendar year which the employer is required to furnish to the employee and which after reasonable effort he is unable to deliver to the employee shall be transmitted to the district director with the return on Form 941 filed by the employer for the return period ending June 30 in the next succeeding calendar year or with the employer's final return if filed for a period ending on an earlier date. Thus, the undelivered copies of Forms W–2 ordinarily will be transmitted to the district director on or before July 31 or August 10 of the year following that for which they were issued, depending upon when the return for such return period is required to be filed. In the case of an employer having branch offices, the undelivered copies of Forms W–2 held in such branch offices may be transmitted by the employer with such return or, at the option of the employer, may be transmitted by the branch office directly to the district director for the internal revenue district in which the branch office is located. Such direct transmittal by branch offices shall be made at the time prescribed for the filing of the employer's return for the return period ending June 30 in the calendar year following that for which the Forms W–2 were issued or at the time of the filing of the employer's final return if filed for a period ending on an earlier date. The provisions of this subparagraph are also applicable with respect to any undelivered corrected statements issued for a prior calendar year.

(b) Requirement if wages are not subject to withholding of income tax.—(1) General rule. If during the calendar year an employer pays to an employee wages subject to the employee tax imposed by section 3101, and the employer is not required by paragraph (a) of this section to furnish to such employee a statement on Form W–2 for such calendar year, the employer shall, in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph, furnish a written statement to the employee with respect to such wages. Such statement shall be in a form suitable for retention by the employee and shall show, with respect to the wages paid by the employer to the employee during the calendar year for employment after 1936, the following:

(i) The name and address of the employer,

(ii) The name, address, and social security account number of the employee,

(iii) The total amount of wages as defined in section 3121(a), and

(iv) The total amount of employee tax deducted and withheld from such wages (increased by any adjustment in such year for overcollection, or decreased by any adjustment in such year for undercollection, of employee tax during any prior year).

See paragraph (d) of this section for provisions relating to the time for furnishing the statement required by this paragraph.

(2) Uniformed services. In the case of remuneration paid for service described in section 3121(m), relating to service in the uniformed services, performed after 1956, "wages as defined in section 3121(a)", as used in section 6051(a)(5), shall be determined in accordance with section 3121(i)(2) and section 3122.

(3) Form of statement. No particular form is prescribed for the statement required by this paragraph. For the convenience of employers in complying with the requirements of this paragraph, copies of a form of statement, Form SS–14, will be furnished by district directors upon request.

(c) Correction of statements—(1) Federal Insurance Contributions Act. If (i) the amount of employee tax under section 3101 deducted and withheld in the calendar year from the wages, as defined in section 3121(a), paid during such year was less or greater than the tax imposed by section 3101 on such wages by reason of the adjustment in such year of an overcollection or undercollection of the tax in any prior year, or (ii) regardless of the reason for the error or the method of its correction, the amount of wages as defined in section 3121(a), or tax under section 3101, entered on a statement furnished pursuant to this section to an employee for a prior year was incorrect, a corrected statement for such prior year reflecting the adjustment or the correct data shall be furnished to the employee. Such statement shall be marked "Corrected by Employer".

(2) Income tax withholding. A corrected statement on Form W–2 shall be furnished to the employee with respect to a prior calendar year (i) to show the correct amount of wages, as defined in section 3401(a), paid during the prior calendar year if the amount of such wages entered on a statement furnished to the employee for such prior year is incorrect, or (ii) to show the amount actually deducted and withheld as tax under section 3402 if such amount is less or greater than the amount entered as tax withheld on the statement furnished the employee for such prior year. Such statement shall be marked "Corrected by Employer".

(3) Cross reference. For provisions relating to the disposition of the district director's copy of a corrected Form W–2, see paragraph (b)(4) of § 31.6011(a)–4.

(d) Time for furnishing statements—(1) In general. Each statement required by this section for a calendar year and each corrected statement required for any prior year shall be furnished to the employee on or before January 31 of the year succeeding such calendar year, or, if his employment is terminated before the close of such calendar year, on the day on which the last payment of wages is made. For provisions relating to the filing of the district director's copies of Form W–2, see paragraph (b) of § 31.6011(a)–4.

(2) Extensions of time. (i) For good cause shown upon written application by an employer, the district director may grant an extension of time not exceeding 30 days in which to furnish to employees the statements required by this section. Each application for an extension of time under this subdivision shall be made in writing, properly signed by the employer or his duly authorized agent; shall be addressed to the district director with whom the employer files his returns; and shall contain a full recital of the reasons for requesting the extension, to aid the district director in determining the period of the extension, if any, which will be granted. Such a request in the form of a letter to the district director will suffice as an application. The application shall be filed on or before the date prescribed in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph for furnishing the statements required by this section. In any case in which an employer is unable, by reason of illness, absence, or other good cause, to sign a request for an extension, any person standing in close personal or business relationship to the employer may sign the request on his behalf, and shall be considered as a duly authorized agent for this purpose, provided the request sets forth a reason for a signature other than the employer's and the relationship existing between the employer and the signer. For provisions relating to extensions of time for filing the district director's copies of Form W–2, see paragraph (a)(3) of § 31.6081(a)–1.

(ii) An extension of time, not exceeding 30 days, within which to furnish any statement required by this section upon termination of employment is hereby granted to any employer with respect to any employee whose employment is terminated during the calendar year. In the case of intermittent or interrupted employment where there is reasonable expectation on the part of both employer and employee of further employment, there is no requirement that a written statement be immediately furnished the employee; but when such expectation ceases to exist, the statement must be furnished within 30 days from that time.

(iv) The amount of wages which should have been reported on such return for each such employee.

No particular form is prescribed for furnishing the information required by this subparagraph, but if printed forms are desired, the district director will supply Form 941c or Form 941c PR, whichever is appropriate, upon request.

(6) No underpayment shall be reported pursuant to this section after receipt from the district director of notice and demand for payment thereof based upon an assessment, but the amount shall be paid in accordance with such notice and demand.

(7) For provisions relating to correction of erroneous statements furnished to employees in respect of wages subject to withholding of income tax under section 3402, and of wages under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, see paragraph (c) of § 31.6051–1.

(b) Federal Insurance Contributions Act and Railroad Retirement Tax Act—(1) Undercollection ascertained before return is filed. If no employee tax or less than the correct amount of employee tax is deducted from any payment to an employee of wages, as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, or compensation as defined in the Railroad Retirement Tax Act, and the error is ascertained before the filing of the return on which the employee tax with respect to such wages or compensation is required to be reported, the employer shall nevertheless report on such return and pay to the district director the correct amount of such employee tax. However, the reporting and payment by the employer of the correct amount of such tax in accordance with this subparagraph do not constitute an adjustment.

(2) Underpayment ascertained after return is filed. (i) If a return is filed, and if no employee tax, no employer tax, or less than the correct amount of either such tax with respect to any payment to an employee of wages as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or corresponding provisions of prior law, or compensation as defined in the Railroad Retirement Tax Act or corresponding provisions of prior law, is reported on such return and paid to the district director, the employer shall adjust the underpayment (a) by reporting the additional amount due by reason of the underpayment as an adjustment on a return filed on or before the last day on which the return is required to be filed for the return period in which the error is ascertained, or (b) by reporting such additional amount on a supplemental return for the return period in which such payment of wages or compensation is made. The reporting of such underpayment on a supplemental return constitutes an adjustment within the meaning of this section only when the supplemental return is filed on or before the last day on which the return is required to be filed for the return period in which the error is ascertained. The amount of each underpayment adjusted in accordance with this subdivision shall be paid to the district director, without interest, at the time fixed for reporting the adjustment. If an adjustment is reported pursuant to this subdivision, but the amount thereof is not paid when due, interest thereafter accrues (see section 6601).

(ii) If a return is filed, and if no employee tax, no employer tax, or less than the correct amount of either such tax with respect to a payment to an employee of wages or compensation is reported on such return and paid to the district director, and such underpayment is not reported as an adjustment within the time prescribed by subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, the amount of such underpayment shall be (a) reported on the employer's next return, or (b) reported immediately on a supplemental return. For interest accruing on amounts so reported, see section 6601 and corresponding provisions of prior law.

(3) Deductions from employees. If an employer collects no employee tax or less than the correct amount of employee tax from an employee with respect to a payment of wages as defined in the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or corresponding provisions of prior law, or compensation as defined in the Railroad Retirement Tax Act or corresponding provisions of prior law, the employer shall collect the amount of the undercollection by deducting such amount from remuneration of the employee, if any, under his control after he ascertains the error. Such deductions may be made even though the remuneration, for any reason, does not constitute wages or compensation. The amount of an undercollection of employee tax from an employee shall be reported and paid, as provided in subparagraph (1) or (2) of this paragraph, whether or not the undercollection is corrected by a deduction made as prescribed in the foregoing provisions of this subparagraph. If such a deduction is not made, the obligation of the employee to the employer with respect to the undercollection is a matter for settlement between the employee and the employer. If any employer makes an erroneous collection of employee tax from two or more of his employees, a separate settlement must be made with respect to each employee. Thus, an overcollection of employee tax from one employee may not be used to offset an undercollection of such tax from another employee.

(c) Income tax required to be withheld from wages—(1) Undercollection ascertained before return is filed. If no income tax, or less than the correct amount of income tax, required under section 3402 to be withheld from wages is deducted from wages paid to an employee in any return period, and if the error is ascertained before the return is filed for the period in which such wages are paid, the employer shall nevertheless report on such return the correct amount of the tax required to be withheld. However, the reporting and payment by an employer of tax in accordance with this subparagraph do not constitute an adjustment.

(2) Underpayment ascertained after return is filed. (i) If a return is filed for a return period, and if no income tax, or less than the correct amount of income tax, required under section 3402 to be withheld from wages paid to an employee in such period, is reported on a return and paid to the district director, the employer shall (a) report the additional amount due by reason of the underpayment on a return for any return period in the calendar year in which the wages were paid, or (b) report such additional amount on a supplemental return for the return period in which such wages were paid. Such reporting constitutes an adjustment within the meaning of this section only if the return or supplemental return on which the underpayment is reported is filed on or before the last day on which the return is required to be filed for the return period in which the error was ascertained.

(ii) If a return is filed for a return period, and if no income tax, or less than the correct amount of income tax, required under section 3402 to be withheld from wages paid to an employee in such period is reported on such return and paid to the district director, and such underpayment is not reported as an adjustment within the time prescribed by subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, the amount of such underpayment shall be (a) reported on the employer's next return, if such next return is for any return period in the calendar year in which the wages were paid, or (b) reported immediately on a supplemental return.

(3) Payment of amounts reported as undercollections or underpayments. (i) For provisions relating to the employer's liability for an underpayment of tax unless he can show that the income tax against which the tax under section 3402 may be credited has been paid, see § 31.3402(d)–1.

(ii) Except as provided in § 31.3402 (d)–1, any amount reported as an adjustment within the meaning of this paragraph shall be paid to the district director, without interest, at the time fixed for reporting the adjustment.

(iii) For interest accruing on amounts which are not paid when due, see section 6601.

(4) Deductions from employee. If no income tax, or less than the correct amount of income tax, required under section 3402 to be withheld from wages is deducted from wages paid to an employee in a calendar year, the employer shall collect the amount of the undercollection on or before the last day of such year by deducting such amount from remuneration of the employee, if any, under his control. Such deductions may be made even though the remuneration, for any reason, does not constitute wages. Any undercollection in a calendar year not corrected by a deduction made pursuant to the foregoing provisions of this subparagraph is a matter for settlement between the employee and the employer within such calendar year. For provisions relating to the employer's liability for the tax, whether or not he collects it from the employee, see § 31.3403–1.

§ 31.6302(b) Statutory provisions; mode or time of collection; discretionary method.

SEC. 6302. Mode or time of collection. • • •

(b) Discretionary method. Whether or not the method of collecting any tax imposed by chapters 21, 31, 32, 33, section 4481 of chapter 36, sections 4501(a) or 4511 of chapter 37, or sections 4701 or 4721 of chapter 39 is specifically provided for by this title, any such tax may, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate, be collected by means of returns, stamps, coupons, tickets, books, or such other reasonable devices or methods as may be necessary or helpful in securing a complete and proper collection of the tax.

§ 31.6302(b)–1 Method of collection.

For provisions relating to collection by means of returns of the taxes imposed by chapter 21 (Federal Insurance Contributions Act), see §§ 31.6011(a)–1 and 31.6011(a)–5.

§ 31.6302(c) Statutory provisions; mode or time of collection; use of Government depositaries.

SEC. 6302. Mode or time of collection. • • •

(c) Use of Government depositaries. The Secretary or his delegate may authorize Federal Reserve banks, and incorporated banks or trust companies which are depositaries or financial agents of the United States, to receive any tax imposed under the internal revenue laws, in such manner, at such times, and under such conditions as he may prescribe; and he shall prescribe the manner, times, and conditions under which the receipt of such tax by such banks and trust companies is to be treated as payment of such tax to the Secretary or his delegate.

§ 31.6302(c)–1 Use of Government depositaries in connection with taxes under Federal Insurance Contributions Act and income tax withheld.

(a) Requirement—(1) In general. Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, if during any calendar month, other than the last month of a calendar quarter, the aggregate amount of—

(i) The employee tax withheld under section 3102,

(ii) The employer tax for such month under section 3111, and

(iii) The income tax withheld under section 3402, exclusive of taxes with respect to wages for agricultural labor or for domestic service in a private home of the employer, exceeds $100 in the case of an employer, such employer shall deposit such aggregate amount within 15 days after the close of such calendar month with a Federal Reserve bank.

(2) Employers of agricultural workers—(i) Requirement for 1955. If during any calendar month, other than the last month of a calendar quarter, in 1955 the aggregate amount of—

(a) The employee tax withheld under section 3102 with respect to wages for agricultural labor, and

(b) The employer tax under section 3111 for such month with respect to wages for agricultural labor, exceeds $100 in the case of an employer, such employer shall deposit such aggregate amount within 15 days after the close of such calendar month with a Federal Reserve bank.

(ii) Requirement for 1956 and subsequent years. Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, if during any calendar month other than December, in any calendar year after 1955, the aggregate amount of—exceeds $100 in the case of an employer, such employer shall deposit such aggregate amount within 15 days after the close of such calendar month with a Federal Reserve bank.

(a) The employee tax withheld under section 3102 during such month with respect to wages for agricultural labor, plus any such employee tax which was previously withheld in the same calendar year with respect to such wages but which was neither deposited nor required to be deposited on or before the last day of such month, and

(b) The employer tax under section 3111 for such month with respect to wages for agricultural labor, plus any such employer tax, which was neither deposited nor required to be deposited on or before the last day of such month, for any prior month of the same calendar year with respect to wages for agricultural labor,

(3) Depositary receipts. Any deposit required to be made by an employer under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph shall be made separately from any deposit required to be made by him under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph. However, an employer required to make deposits under subparagraph (1) or subparagraph (2) may make one, or more than one, remittance of the amount required by such subparagraph to be deposited for a calendar month. Each such remittance shall be accompanied by a Federal Depositary Receipt (Form 450) which shall be prepared in accordance with the instructions applicable thereto. The employer shall forward such remittance, together with such depositary receipt, to a Federal Reserve bank or, at his election, to a commercial bank authorized in accordance with Treasury Department Circular No. 848 to accept remittances of the taxes for transmission to a Federal Reserve bank. After the Federal Reserve bank has validated the depositary receipt, such depositary receipt will be returned to the employer. Every employer making deposits pursuant to this section shall attach to his return for the period with respect to which such deposits are made, in part or in full payment of the taxes shown thereon, depositary receipts so validated, and shall pay to the district director the balance, if any, of the taxes due for such period. An amount of tax which is not required to be deposited may nevertheless be deposited if the employer so desires. If a deposit is made for the last month of a return period, the employer shall make it in ample time (whether before, on, or after the fifteenth day of the succeeding month) to enable the Federal Reserve bank to return the validated receipt to the employer so that it can be attached to and filed with the employer's return.

(4) Procurement of prescribed forms. Initially, Form 450, Federal Depositary Receipt, will so far as possible be furnished the employer by the district director. An employer not supplied with the proper form should make application therefor to the district director in ample time to have such form available for use in making his initial deposit within the time prescribed in this paragraph. Thereafter, a blank form will be sent to the employer by the Federal Reserve bank when returning the validated depositary receipt. An employer may secure additional forms from a Federal Reserve bank by applying therefor and advising the bank of his identification number. The employer's identification number and name, as entered on each depositary receipt, shall be the same as they are required to be shown on the return to be filed with the district director. The address of the employer, as entered on each depositary receipt, should be the address to which the receipt should be returned following validation by the Federal Reserve bank.

(b) Monthly returns. The provisions of this section are not applicable with respect to taxes for the month in which the employer receives notice from the district director that returns are required under § 31.6011(a)–5, or for any subsequent month for which such a return is required.

§ 31.6302(c)–2 Use of Government depositaries in connection with employee and employer taxes under Railroad Retirement Tax Act.

(a) Requirement. If during any calendar month the aggregate amount of—

(1) The employee tax withheld under section 3202 or under corresponding provisions of prior law, and

(2) The employer tax for such month under section 3221 or under corresponding provisions of prior law, exceeds $100 in the case of an employer, such employer shall deposit such aggregate amount within 15 days after the close of such calendar month with a Federal Reserve bank, except that the deposit for the last month of a return period shall be made on or before the last day of the first month following such period. If a portion of the taxes for a calendar month is reportable under § 31.6011(a)–2 on the return on Form CT–1 for the return period immediately preceding such month, the employer is required to deposit such portion in the same manner as if it were for the last calendar month in such return period.

(b) Depositary receipts. The employer may make one, or more than one, remittance of the amounts required by paragraph (a) of this section to be deposited for a calendar month. Each such remittance shall be accompanied by a Railroad Retirement Depositary Receipt (Form 515), which shall be prepared in accordance with the instructions applicable thereto. The employer shall forward such remittance, together with such depositary receipt, to a Federal Reserve bank or, at his election, to a commercial bank authorized in accordance with Treasury Department Circular No. 848 to accept remittances of the taxes for transmission to a Federal Reserve bank. After the Federal Reserve bank has validated the depositary receipt, such depositary receipt will be returned to the employer. Every employer making deposits pursuant to this section shall attach to his return for the period with respect to which such deposits are made, in part or in full payment of the taxes shown thereon, depositary receipts so validated and shall pay to the district director the balance, if any, of the taxes due for such period. If the aggregate amount of the taxes deposited, as shown on the depositary receipt or receipts attached to such return, is in excess of the taxes shown on such return, a credit or refund may be obtained; and in the event the excess is applied as a credit against taxes reported by the employer on a return on Form CT–1 for a subsequent return period, the employer shall reduce the amount of the deposit otherwise required under paragraph (a) of this section for one of the months of such subsequent return period by the amount of such credit.

(c) Procurement of prescribed form. Initially, Form 515, Railroad Retirement Depositary Receipt, will so far as possible be furnished the employer by the district director. An employer not supplied with the proper form should make application therefor to the district director in ample time to have such form available for use in making his initial deposit within the time prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section. Thereafter, a blank form will be sent to the employer by the Federal Reserve bank when returning the validated depositary receipt. An employer may secure additional forms from a Federal Reserve bank by applying therefor and advising the bank of the identification number to be shown on his depositary receipts. The identification number, as entered on each depositary receipt, shall be the same as the identification number assigned to the employer pursuant to § 31.6011(b)–1. The address of the employer, as entered on each depositary receipt, should be the address to which the receipt should be returned following validation by the Federal Reserve bank.

§ 31.6402(a)–2 Credit or refund of tax under Federal Insurance Contributions Act or Railroad Retirement Tax Act.

(a) Claim by person who paid tax to district director—(1) In general. Any person who pays to the district director more than the correct amount of—

(i) Employee tax under section 3101, or employer tax under section 3111, of the Federal Insurance Contributions Act,

(ii) Employee tax under section 3201, employee representative tax under section 3211, or employer tax under section 3221, of the Railroad Retirement Tax Act,

(iii) Any such tax under a corresponding provision of prior law, or

(iv) Interest, addition to the tax, additional amount, or penalty with respect to any such tax, may file a claim for refund of the overpayment (except to the extent that the overpayment must be credited pursuant to § 31.3503–1, or may claim credit for such overpayment, in the manner and subject to the conditions stated in this section and § 301.6402–2 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). If credit is claimed pursuant to this section, the amount thereof shall be claimed by entering such amount as a deduction on a return filed by the person making the claim. The return on which the credit is claimed must be on a form which is prescribed for use, at the time of the claim, in reporting tax which corresponds to the tax overpaid. If credit is taken pursuant to this section, a claim on Form 843 is not required, but the return on which the credit is claimed shall have attached as a part thereof a statement which shall constitute the claim for credit, setting forth in detail the grounds and facts relied upon in support of the credit, designating the return period in which the error was ascertained, and setting forth such other information as may be required by the regulations in this subpart and by the instructions relating to the return. No refund or credit of employee tax under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act shall be allowed if for any reason (for example, an overcollection of employee tax having been inadvertently included by the employee in computing a special refund—see § 31.6413(c)–1) the employee has taken the amount of such tax into account in claiming a credit against, or refund of, his income tax, or if so, such claim has been rejected.

(2) Statements supporting employers' claims for employee tax. (i) Every claim filed by an employer for refund or credit of employee tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law, collected from an employee shall include a statement that the employer has repaid the tax to such employee or has secured the written consent of such employee to allowance of the refund or credit. The employer shall retain as part of his records the written receipt of the employee showing the date and amount of the repayment, or the written consent of the employee, whichever is used in support of the claim.

(ii) Every claim filed by an employer for refund or credit of employee tax under section 3101, or a corresponding provision of prior law, collected from an employee in a calendar year prior to the year in which the credit or refund is claimed, also shall include a statement that the employer has obtained from the employee a written statement (a) that the employee has not claimed refund or credit of the amount of the overcollection, or if so, such claim has been rejected, and (b) that the employee will not claim refund or credit of such amount. The employer shall retain the employee's written statement as part of the employer's records.

(b) Claim by employee—(1) In general. If more than the correct amount of employee tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law, is collected by an employer from an employee and paid to the district director, the employee may file a claim for refund of the overpayment if (i) the employee does not receive reimbursement in any manner from the employer and does not authorize the employer to file a claim and receive refund or credit, (ii) the overcollection cannot be corrected under § 31.3503–1, and (iii) in the case of employee tax under section 3101 or a corresponding provision of prior law, the employee has not taken the overcollection into account in claiming a credit against, or refund of, his income tax, or if so, such claim has been rejected. See § 31.6413(c)–1.

(2) Statements supporting employee's claim. (i) Each employee who makes a claim under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph shall submit with such claim a statement setting forth (a) the extent, if any, to which the employer has reimbursed the employee in any manner for the overcollection, and (b) the amount, if any, of credit or refund of such overpayment claimed by the employer or authorized by the employee to be claimed by the employer. The employee shall obtain such statement, if possible, from the employer, who should include in such statement the fact that it is made in support of a claim against the United States to be filed by the employee for refund of employee tax paid by such employer to the district director. If the employer's statement is not submitted with the claim, the employee shall make the statement to the best of his knowledge and belief, and shall include therein an explanation of his inability to obtain the statement from the employer.

(ii) Each individual who makes a claim under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph for refund of employee tax under section 3101, or a corresponding provision of prior law, also shall submit with such claim a statement setting forth whether the individual has taken the amount of the overcollection into account in claiming a credit against, or refund of, his income tax, and the amount, if any, so claimed (see § 31.6413(c)–1).

(c) Statements to accompany employers' and employees' claims under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act. Whenever a claim for credit or refund of employee tax under section 3101, employer tax under section 3111, or either such tax under a corresponding provision of prior law, is made with respect to remuneration which was erroneously reported on a return or schedule as wages paid to an employee, such claim shall include a statement showing (1) the identification number of the employer, if he was required to make application therefor, (2) the name and account number of such employee, (3) the period covered by such return or schedule, (4) the amount of remuneration actually reported as wages for such employee, and (5) the amount of wages which should have been reported for such employee. No particular form is prescribed for making such statement, but if printed forms are desired, the district director will supply copies of Form 941c or Form 941c PR, whichever is appropriate, upon request.

§ 31.6402(a)–3 Refund of Federal unemployment tax.

Any person who pays to the district director more than the correct amount of—

(a) Tax under section 3301 of the Federal Unemployment Tax Act or a corresponding provision of prior law, or

(b) Interest, addition to the tax, additional amount, or penalty with respect to such tax, may file a claim for refund of the overpayment, in the manner and subject to the conditions stated in § 301.6402–2 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). See § 31.6413(d) and the corresponding section of prior law for provisions which bar the allowance or payment of interest on the amount of any refund based on credit allowable for contributions paid under the unemployment compensation law of a State.

§ 31.6404(a) Statutory provisions; abatements.

SEC. 6404. Abatements—(a) General rule. The Secretary or his delegate is authorized to abate the unpaid portion of the assessment of any tax or any liability in respect thereof, which—

(1) Is excessive in amount, or

(2) Is assessed after the expiration of the period of limitation properly applicable thereto, or

(3) Is erroneously or illegally assessed.

§ 31.6404(a)–1 Abatements.

For regulations under section 6404 of general application to the abatement of taxes, see § 301.6404–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). Every claim filed by an employer for abatement of employee tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law, shall be made in the manner and subject to the conditions stated in paragraphs (a) (2) and (c) of § 31.6402(a)–2, as if the claim for abatement were a claim for refund.

§ 31.6413(a) Statutory provisions; special rules applicable to certain employment taxes; adjustment of tax.

SEC. 6413. Special rules applicable to certain employment taxes—(a) Adjustment of tax—(1) General rule. If more than the correct amount of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, 3221, or 3402 is paid with respect to any payment of remuneration, proper adjustments, with respect to both the tax and the amount to be deducted, shall be made, without interest, in such manner and at such times as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

(2) United States as employer. For purposes of this subsection, in the case of remuneration received from the United States or a wholly-owned instrumentality thereof during any calendar year, each head of a Federal agency or instrumentality who makes a return pursuant to section 3122 and each agent, designated by the head of a Federal agency or instrumentality, who makes a return pursuant to such section shall be deemed a separate employer.

§ 31.6413(a)–1 Repayment by employer of tax erroneously collected from employee.

(a) Before employer files return—(1) Employee tax under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or the Railroad Retirement Tax Act. (i) If an employer—

(a) During any return period collects from an employee more than the correct amount of tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law,

(b) Repays the amount of the overcollection to the employee before the return for such period is filed with the district director, and the employer shall not report on any return or pay to the district director the amount of the overcollection.

(c) Obtains and keeps as part of his records the written receipt of the employee showing the date and amount of the repayment,

(ii) Any overcollection not repaid to and receipted for by the employee as provided in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph shall be reported and paid to the district director with the return for the return period in which the overcollection was made. Such return shall be accompanied by a statement explaining the overcollection, setting forth the account number (if known) and name of the individual from whom the overcollection was made, and showing the total amount overcollected from and not repaid to the individual. If the employer is not required to make a return for such period, the employer nevertheless shall furnish to the district director a statement as described in the preceding sentence, on or before the date fixed for filing a return for such period, and shall pay the amount of the overcollection with such statement.

(2) Income tax withheld from wages. (i) If an employer—

(a) During any return period collects from an employee more than the correct amount of tax under section 3402,

(b) Repays the amount of the overcollection to the employee before the return for such period is filed with the district director and before the end of the calendar year in which the overcollection was made, and

(c) Obtains and keeps as part of his records the written receipt of the employee showing the date and amount of the repayment,

the employer shall not report on any return or pay to the district director the amount of the overcollection.

(ii) Any overcollection not repaid to and receipted for by the employee as provided in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph shall be reported and paid to the district director with the return for the return period in which the overcollection was made.

(b) After employer files return—(1) Employee tax under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or the Railroad Retirement Tax Act. (i) If an employer collects from any employee and pays to the district director more than the correct amount of employee tax under section 3101 or section 3201, or a corresponding provision of prior law, and if the error is ascertained within the applicable period of limitation on credit or refund, the employer shall repay or reimburse the employee in the amount thereof prior to the expiration of the return period following the return period in which the error is ascertained and prior to the expiration of such limitation period. This subparagraph has no application in any case in which an overcollection is made the subject of a claim by the employer for refund or credit, and the employer elects to secure the written consent of the employee to the allowance of the refund or credit under the procedure provided in paragraph (a)(2)(i) of § 31.6402(a)–2.

(ii) If the amount of an overcollection is repaid to an employee, the employer shall obtain and keep as part of his records the written receipt of the employee, showing the date and amount of the repayment. If, in any calendar year, an employer repays or reimburses an employee in the amount of an overcollection of employee tax under section 3101, or a corresponding provision of prior law, which was collected from the employee in a prior calendar year, the employer shall obtain from the employee and keep as part of his records a written statement (a) that the employee has not claimed refund or credit of the amount of the overcollection, or if so, such claim has been rejected, and (b) that the employee will not claim refund or credit of such amount. See § 31.6413(c)–1.

(iii) If the employer does not repay the employee the amount overcollected, the employer shall reimburse the employee by applying the amount of the overcollection against the employee tax which attaches to wages or compensation paid to the employee prior to the expiration of the return period following the return period in which the error is ascertained and prior to the expiration of the applicable period of limitation on credit or refund. If the amount of the overcollection exceeds the amount so applied against such employee tax, the excess amount shall be repaid to the employee as required by this subparagraph.

(iv) For purposes of this subparagraph, an error is ascertained when the employer has sufficient knowledge of the error to be able to correct it.

(v) For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, see § 301.6511(a)–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of any tax imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, see the regulations applicable with respect to such tax.

(2) Income tax withheld from wages. (i) If, in any return period in a calendar year, an employer collects from any employee more than the correct amount of tax under section 3402, and the employer pays the amount of such overcollection to the district director, the employer may repay or reimburse the employee in the amount thereof in any subsequent return period in such calendar year.

(ii) If the amount of the overcollection is repaid to the employee, the employer shall obtain and keep as part of his records the written receipt of the employee, showing the date and amount of the repayment. If the employer does not repay the amount of the overcollection, the employer may reimburse the employee by applying the amount of the overcollection against the tax under section 3402 which otherwise would be required to be withheld from wages paid by the employer to the employee in the calendar year in which the overcollection is made.

§ 31.6413(a)–2 Adjustment of overpayments.

(a) Taxes under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act or the Railroad Retirement Tax Act—(1) Employee tax. After an employer repays or reimburses an employee in the amount of an overcollection, as provided in paragraph (b)(1) of § 31.6413(a)–1, the employer may claim credit for such amount in the manner, and subject to the conditions, stated in § 31.6402(a)–2. Such credit shall constitute an adjustment, without interest, if the amount thereof is entered on a return for a period ending on or before the last day of the return period following the return period in which the error was ascertained. No credit or adjustment in respect of an overpayment shall be entered on a return after the filing of a claim for refund of such overpayment.

(2) Employer tax. If an employer pays more than the correct amount of employer tax under section 3111 or section 3221, or a corresponding provision of prior law, the employer may claim credit for the amount of the overpayment in the manner, and subject to the conditions, stated in § 31.6402(a)–2. Such credit shall constitute an adjustment, without interest, if the amount thereof is entered on the same return on which the employer adjusts, pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, a corresponding overpayment of employee tax.

(b) Income tax withheld from wages. If, pursuant to paragraph (b)(2) of § 31.6413(a)–1, an employer repays or reimburses an employee in the amount of an overcollection of tax under section 3402, the employer may adjust the overcollection, without interest, by entering the amount thereof as a deduction on a return of tax under section 3402, filed by the employer for any return period in the calendar year in which the employer repays or reimburses the employee. The return on which the adjustment is entered as a deduction shall have attached thereto a statement explaining the adjustment, designating the return period in which the error occurred, and setting forth such other information as is required by the regulations in this subpart and by the instructions relating to the return.

§ 31.6413(b) Statutory provisions; special rules applicable to certain employment taxes; overpayments of certain employment taxes.

(b) Overpayments of certain employment taxes. If more than the correct amount of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, 3221, or 3402 is paid or deducted with respect to any payment of remuneration and the overpayment cannot be adjusted under subsection (a) of this section, the amount of the overpayment shall be refunded in such manner and at such times (subject to the statute of limitations properly applicable thereto) as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

§ 31.6413(b)–1 Overpayments of certain employment taxes.

For provisions relating to the adjustment of overpayments of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, 3221, or 3402, see § 31.6413(a)–2. For provisions relating to refunds of tax imposed by section 3101, 3111, 3201, or 3221, see §§ 31.6402(a)–1 and 31.6402(a)–2. For provisions relating to refunds of tax imposed by section 3402, see §§ 31.6402(a)–1 and 31.6414–1.

§ 31.6413(c) Statutory provisions; special rules applicable to certain employment taxes; special refunds.

SEC. 6413. Special rules applicable to certain employment taxes. • • •

(c) Special refunds—(1) In general. If by reason of an employee receiving wages from more than one employer during a calendar year after the calendar year 1950 and prior to the calendar year 1955, the wages received by him during such year exceed $3,600, the employee shall be entitled (subject to the provisions of section 31(b)) to a credit or refund of any amount of tax, with respect to such wages, imposed by section 1400 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 and deducted from the employee's wages (whether or not paid to the Secretary or his delegate), which exceeds the tax with respect to the first $3,600 of such wages received; or if by reason of an employee receiving wages from more than one employer (A) during any calendar year after the calendar year 1954 and prior to the calendar year 1959, the wages received by him during such year exceed $4,200, or (B) during any calendar year after the calendar year 1958, the wages received by him during such year exceed $4,800, the employee shall be entitled (subject to the provisions of section 31(b)) to a credit or refund of any amount of tax, with respect to such wages, imposed by section 3101 and deducted from the employee's wages (whether or not paid to the Secretary or his delegate), which exceeds the tax with respect to the first $4,200 of such wages received in such calendar year after 1954 and before 1959, or which exceeds the tax with respect to the first $4,800 of such wages received in such calendar year after 1958.

(2) Applicability in case of Federal and State employees and employees of certain foreign corporations—(A) Federal employees. In the case of remuneration received from the United States or a wholly-owned instrumentality thereof during any calendar year, each head of a Federal agency or instrumentality who makes a return pursuant to section 3122 and each agent, designated by the head of a Federal agency or instrumentality, who makes a return pursuant to such section shall, for purposes of this subsection, be deemed a separate employer, and the term "wages" includes for purposes of this subsection the amount, not to exceed $3,600 for the calendar year 1951, 1952, 1953, or 1954, $4,200 for the calendar year 1955, 1956, 1957, or 1958, or $4,800 for any calendar year after 1958, determined by each such head or agent as constituting wages paid to an employee.

(B) State employees. For purposes of this subsection, in the case of remuneration received during any calendar year, the term "wages" includes such remuneration for services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act as would be wages if such services constituted employment; the term "employer" includes a State or any political subdivision thereof, or any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing; the term "tax" or "tax imposed by section 3101" includes, in the case of services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act, an amount equivalent to the tax which would be imposed by section 3101, if such services constituted employment as defined in section 3121; and the provisions of this subsection shall apply whether or not any amount deducted from the employee's remuneration as a result of an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act has been paid to the Secretary.

(C) Employees of certain foreign corporations. For purposes of paragraph (1) of this subsection, the term "wages" includes such remuneration for services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 3121(l) as would be wages if such services constituted employment; the term "employer" includes any domestic corporation which has entered into an agreement pursuant to section 3121(l); the term "tax" or "tax imposed by section 3101", includes, in the case of services covered by an agreement entered into pursuant to section 3121(l), an amount equivalent to the tax which would be imposed by section 3101, if such services constituted employment as defined in section 3121; and the provisions of paragraph (1) of this subsection shall apply whether or not any amount deducted from the employee's remuneration as a result of the agreement entered into pursuant to section 3121 (l) has been paid to the Secretary or his delegate.

[Sec. 6413(c) as amended by sec. 202(a)(1), Social Security Amendments 1954 (68 Stat. 1089); sec. 402(d), Social Security Amendments 1958 (72 Stat. 1043)]

§ 31.6413(c)–1 Special refunds.

(a) Who may make claims—(1) In general. (i) If, during any calendar year after 1954 and before 1959, an employee receives wages, as defined in section 3121(a), in excess of $4,200 from two or more employers, or if during any calendar year after 1958, an employee receives wages, as defined in section 3121(a), in excess of $4,800 from two or more employers, the employee shall be entitled to a special refund of the amount, if any, by which the employee tax imposed by section 3101 with respect to such wages and deducted therefrom (whether or not paid to the district director) exceeds the employee tax with respect to the first $4,200 or $4,800, whichever is appropriate, of such wages. If the employee is required to file an income tax return for such calendar year (or for his last taxable year beginning in such calendar year) he may obtain the benefit of the special refund only by claiming credit as provided in § 1.31–2 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations).

(ii) The application of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Employee A in the calendar year 1959 receives taxable wages in the amount of $3,000 from each of his employers, B, C, and D, for services performed during such year (or at any time after 1936), or a total of $9,000. Employee tax (computed at 2½ percent, the employee tax rate in effect in 1959) is deducted from A's wages in the amount of $75 by B and $75 by C, or a total of $150. Employer D pays employee tax in the amount of $75 to the district director without deducting such tax from A's wages. The employee tax with respect to the first $4,800 of such wages is $120. A is entitled to a special refund of $30 ($150 minus $120). The $3,000 of wages received from employer D and the $75 of employee tax paid with respect thereto have no bearing in computing A's special refund since such tax was not deducted from his wages.

Example (2). Employee E in the calendar year 1959 performs services for employers F and G, for which E is entitled to wages of $4,800 from each employer, or a total of $9,600. On account of such services, E in 1958 received an advance payment of $600 of wages from F; and in 1959, receives wages in the amount of $4,200 from F and $4,800 from G. Employee tax was deducted as follows: In 1958, $13.50 ($600×2¼%, the employee tax rate in effect in 1958) by employer F; and in 1959, $105 ($4,200×2½%, the employee tax rate in effect in 1959) by employer F, and $120 ($4,800×2½%) by employer G. Thus, E in the calendar year 1959 received $9,000 in wages, from which $225 of employee tax was deducted. The amount of employee tax with respect to the first $4,800 of such wages received in 1959 is $120. E is entitled to a special refund of $105 ($225 minus $120). The $600 advance of wages received in 1958 from F, and the $13.50 of employee tax with respect thereto, have no bearing in computing E's special refund for 1959, because the wages were not received in 1959. Such amounts could not form the basis for a special refund unless E during 1958 received from F and at least one more employer wages totaling more than $4,200.

(2) Federal employees. For purposes of special refunds of employee tax, each head of a Federal agency or of a wholly-owned instrumentality of the United States who makes a return pursuant to section 3122 (and each agent designated by a head of a Federal agency or instrumentality who makes a return pursuant to such section) is considered a separate employer. For such purposes, the term "wages" includes the amount which each such head (or agent) determines to constitute wages paid an employee, but not in excess of $4,200 paid in any calendar year after 1954 and before 1959, or $4,800 paid in any calendar year after 1958. For example, if wages received by an employee during any calendar year after 1958 are reportable by two or more agents of one or more Federal agencies and the amount of such wages is in excess of $4,800, the employee shall be entitled to a special refund of the amount, if any, by which the employee tax imposed with respect to such wages and deducted therefrom exceeds the employee tax with respect to the first $4,800 of such wages. Moreover, if an employee receives wages during any calendar year from an agency or wholly-owned instrumentality of the United States and from one or more other employers, either private or governmental, the total amount of such wages shall be taken into account for purposes of the special refund provisions.

(3) State employees. For purposes of special refunds of employee tax, the term "wages" includes such remuneration for services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act, relating to voluntary agreements for coverage of employees of State and local governments, as would be wages if such services constituted employment (see § 31.3121(a)–1, relating to wages); the term "employer" includes a State or any political subdivision thereof, or any instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing; and the term "tax" or "tax imposed by section 3101" includes an amount equivalent to the employee tax which would be imposed by section 3101 if such services constituted employment. The provisions of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph are applicable whether or not any amount deducted from an employee's remuneration as a result of an agreement made pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act has been paid pursuant to such agreement. Thus, the special refund provisions are applicable to amounts equivalent to employee tax deducted from employees' remuneration by States, political subdivisions, or instrumentalities by reason of agreements made under section 218 of the Social Security Act. Moreover, if during any calendar year an employee receives remuneration for services covered by such an agreement and during the same calendar year receives wages from one or more other employers, either private or governmental, the total amount of such remuneration and wages shall be taken into account for purposes of the special refund provisions.

(4) Employees of certain foreign corporations. For purposes of special refunds of employee tax, the term "wages" includes such remuneration for services covered by an agreement made pursuant to section 3121(l), relating to agreements for coverage of employees of certain foreign corporations, as would be wages if such services constituted employment (see § 31.3121(a)–1, relating to wages); the term "employer" includes any domestic corporation which has entered into an agreement pursuant to section 3121(l); and the term "tax" or "tax imposed by section 3101" includes, in the case of services covered by an agreement entered into pursuant to section 3121(l), an amount equivalent to the employee tax which would be imposed by section 3101 if such services constituted employment. The provisions of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph are applicable whether or not any amount deducted from the employee's remuneration by reason of such agreement has been paid to the district director. Thus, the special refund provisions are applicable to amounts equivalent to employee tax deducted from employees' remuneration by reason of agreements made under section 3121(l). A domestic corporation which enters into an agreement pursuant to section 3121(l) shall, for purposes of this paragraph, be considered an employer in its capacity as a party to such agreement separate and distinct from its identity as an employer employing individuals on its own account (see section 3121(l)(9)). If during any calendar year an employee receives remuneration for services covered by such an agreement and during the same calendar year receives wages for services in employment, the total amount of such remuneration and wages shall be taken into account for purposes of the special refund provisions. For provisions relating to agreements entered into under section 3121(l), see the regulations in Part 36 of this chapter (Regulations on Contract Coverage of Employees of Foreign Subsidiaries).

(b) Claims for special refund—(1) In general. An employee who is entitled to a special refund under section 6413(c) may claim such refund under the provisions of this section only if the employee is not entitled to claim the amount thereof as a credit against income tax as provided in § 1.31–2 of this chapter (Income Tax Regulations). Each claim under this section shall be made with respect to wages received within one calendar year (regardless of the year or years after 1936 during which the services were performed for which such wages are received), and shall be filed after the close of such year.

(2) Form of claim. Each claim for special refund under this section shall be made on Form 843, in accordance with the regulations in this subpart and the instructions relating to such form. The claim shall be filed with the district director for the internal revenue district in which the employee resides or, if the employee does not reside in any internal revenue district, with the District Director at Baltimore, Maryland. However, in the case of an employee who does not reside in any internal revenue district and who is outside the United States, the claim shall be filed with the Director of International Operations, United States Internal Revenue Service, Washington 25, D.C., unless the employee resides in Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, in which case the claim shall be filed with the office of the Revenue Service Representative, United States Internal Revenue Service, Santurce, Puerto Rico. The claim shall include the employee's account number and the following information with respect to each employer from whom he received wages during the calendar year: (i) The name and address of such employer, (ii) the amount of wages received during the calendar year to which the claim relates, and (iii) the amount of employee tax collected by the employer from the employee with respect to such wages. Other information may be required but should be submitted only upon request.

(3) Period of limitation. For the period of limitation upon special refund of employee tax imposed by section 3101, see § 301.6511(a)–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration).

§ 31.6413(d) Statutory provisions; special rules applicable to certain employment taxes; refund or credit of Federal unemployment tax.

(d) Refund or credit of Federal unemployment tax. Any credit allowable under section 3302, to the extent not previously allowed, shall be considered an overpayment, but no interest shall be allowed or paid with respect to such overpayment.

§ 31.6414 Statutory provisions; income tax withheld.

SEC. 6414. Income tax withheld. In the case of an overpayment of tax imposed by chapter 24, * * * refund or credit shall be made to the employer * * * only to the extent that the amount of such overpayment was not deducted and withheld by the employer * * *.

§ 31.6414–1 Credit or refund of income tax withheld from wages.

(a) In general. Any employer who pays to the district director more than the correct amount of—

(1) Tax under section 3402 or a corresponding provision of prior law, or

(2) Interest, addition to the tax, additional amount, or penalty with respect to such tax, may file a claim for refund of the overpayment or may claim credit for such overpayment, in the manner and subject to the conditions stated in this section and § 301.6402–2 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). If credit is claimed pursuant to this section, the amount thereof shall be claimed by entering such amount as a deduction on a return of tax under section 3402 filed by the employer. If credit is taken pursuant to this section, a claim on Form 843 is not required, but the return on which the credit is claimed shall have attached as a part thereof a statement, which shall constitute the claim for credit, setting forth in detail the grounds and facts relied upon in support of the credit, and showing such other information as is required by the regulations in this subpart and by the instructions relating to the return. No refund or credit to the employer shall be allowed under this section for the amount of any overpayment of tax which the employer deducted or withheld from an employee.

(b) Period of limitation. For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, see § 301.6511(a)–1 of this chapter (Regulations on Procedure and Administration). For the period of limitation upon credit or refund of any tax imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, see the regulations applicable with respect to such tax.

§ 31.6674 Statutory provisions; fraudulent statement or failure to furnish statement to employee.

SEC. 6674. Fraudulent statement or failure to furnish statement to employee. In addition to the criminal penalty provided by section 7204, any person required under the provisions of section 6051 to furnish a statement to an employee who willfully furnishes a false or fraudulent statement, or who willfully fails to furnish a statement in the manner, at the time, and showing the information required under section 6051, or regulations prescribed thereunder, shall for each such failure be subject to a penalty under this subchapter of $50, which shall be assessed and collected in the same manner as the tax on employers imposed by section 3111.

§ 31.6674–1 Penalties for fraudulent statement or failure to furnish statement.

Any person required to furnish a statement to an employee under the provisions of section 6051 is subject to a civil penalty for willful failure to furnish such statement in the manner, at the time, and showing the information required under such section or § 31.6051–1, or for willfully furnishing a false or fraudulent statement to an employee. The penalty for each such violation is $50, which shall be assessed and collected in the same manner as the tax imposed on employers under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act. See section 7204 for criminal penalty.

§ 31.7805 Statutory provisions; rules and regulations.

SEC. 7805. Rules and regulations—(a) Authorization. Except where such authority is expressly given by this title to any person other than an officer or employee of the Treasury Department, the Secretary or his delegate shall prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of this title, including all rules and regulations as may be necessary by reason of any alteration of law in relation to internal revenue.

(b) Retroactivity of regulations or rulings. The Secretary or his delegate may prescribe the extent, if any, to which any ruling or regulation, relating to the internal revenue laws, shall be applied without retroactive effect.

(c) Preparation and distribution of regulations, forms, stamps, and other matters. The Secretary or his delegate shall prepare and distribute all the instructions, regulations, directions, forms, blanks, stamps, and other matters pertaining to the assessment and collection of internal revenue.

§ 31.7805–1 Promulgation of regulations.

In pursuance of section 7805 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, the foregoing regulations are hereby prescribed. (See § 31.0–3 of Subpart A of the regulations in this part relating to the scope of the regulations.)

Effective date. The foregoing amendment shall become effective upon issuance.

The amendment adds Butte County in South Dakota to the free areas and deletes such County from the quarantined areas, as sheep scabies are not known to exist in such County. Hereafter, the restrictions pertaining to the interstate movement of sheep from, into, and through quarantined areas as contained in 9 CFR Part 74, as amended, will not apply to this County. However, the restrictions in said Part 74 pertaining to the interstate movement of sheep into free areas will apply thereto.

The amendment relieves certain restrictions presently imposed and must be made effective immediately to be of maximum benefit to persons subject to the restrictions which are relieved. Accordingly, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to the amendment are impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and the amendment may be made effective less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

On November 9, 1960, notice of proposed rule making with respect to regulations issued under sections 4702 and 4731 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, relating to exempt narcotic preparations and to definitions was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 10702). After consideration of all such relevant matters as were presented by interested persons regarding the rules proposed, the regulations as so published are hereby adopted, subject to the following change: § 151.427 is amended by changing the term "25 ounces", appearing in the first sentence, to read "one kilogram".

In addition, paragraph 9 of this Treasury Decision adds a new section, § 151.428 Exempt narcotic pharmaceutical preparations, for the purpose of listing the pharmaceutical preparations found by the Commissioner of Narcotics to be exempt from some of the requirements of the Federal narcotic laws and regulations, and designated as Class "X" products and Class "M" products.

Because the addition of § 151.428 is merely for the listing of exempt narcotic preparations as so determined by the Commissioner of Narcotics, it is hereby found that it is unnecessary to issue this Treasury Decision with notice and public procedure thereon under section 4(a) of the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946 or subject to the effective date limitation of section 4(c) of that Act.

Effective date. This Treasury Decision shall become effective January 1, 1961.

[SEAL] H. J. ANSLINGER,
Commissioner of Narcotics.

Approved: December 15, 1960.

A. GILMORE FLUES,
Acting Secretary of the Treasury.

1. A sentence is added to paragraph (a) of § 151.11 and paragraph (b) of § 151.11 is amended in its entirety as set forth below:

§ 151.11 Definitions.

As used in this part:

(a) * * * However, the term "narcotic", "narcotics", or "narcotic drugs" shall not include decocainized coca leaves or extracts of coca leaves, if such extracts do not contain cocaine or ecgonine.

(b) The term "exempt preparations" means the pharmaceutical preparations found by the Commissioner of Narcotics to possess qualifications for exception as set forth in § 151.422.

2. Section 151.421 Extent of exemption is revised to read as follows:

§ 151.421 Preparations of no addictive or minor addictive quality.

(a) Section 4702(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, has been amended by section 4(c) of the Narcotics Manufacturing Act of 1960, to permit the Commissioner of Narcotics to exempt, subject to such conditions as he may impose, pharmaceutical preparations of no addictive quality or of minor addictive quality from the requirements contained in Part I of Subchapter A of Chapter 39, Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended (other than the requirements contained in sections 4721, 4722, 4724(a) and 4732 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, which sections are concerned generally with the imposition of tax, registration and maintenance of records and statements and filing of returns). The Commissioner of Narcotics may also exempt such pharmaceutical preparations from the requirements imposed by section 6 of the Act entitled "An Act to prohibit the importation and use of opium for other than medicinal purposes", approved February 9, 1909, as amended by section 15 of the Narcotics Manufacturing Act of 1960 (21 U.S.C. 182, as amended) which section is concerned with the prohibitions and exceptions to exportation of narcotic drugs.

(b) An exemption of a pharmaceutical preparation will be granted where such exemption would be consistent with any obligation undertaken by the United States pursuant to the Convention for Limiting the Manufacture and Regulating the Distribution of Narcotic Drugs, concluded at Geneva, July 13, 1931, as amended by the Protocols of 1946 and 1948. These agreements are designed to limit the manufacture of narcotic drugs to the world's legitimate requirements for medical and scientific purposes and to regulate their distribution for such purposes. No exemption of a pharmaceutical preparation will be granted unless the Commissioner of Narcotics, after giving due notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER and opportunity for a hearing, determines that such an exemption would be consistent with the public health, safety and welfare.

3. Section 151.422 Standards of exemption is revised to read as follows:

§ 151.422 Special exemptions.

(a) Generally. Any pharmaceutical preparation containing a narcotic drug (as defined in section 4731 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended), combined with other active or inactive ingredients, shall be treated as a drug with an addiction-forming or addiction-sustaining liability, unless the Commissioner of Narcotics finds that the pharmaceutical preparation either does not possess an addiction-forming or an addiction-sustaining liability, or does not possess a liability sufficient to warrant imposition of all of the requirements of Part I of Subchapter A of Chapter 39 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, and also finds that the preparation does not permit the recovery of an addiction-forming or an addiction-sustaining narcotic drug with such relative technical simplicity and degree of yield as to create a risk of improper use. Prior to making such finding, the Commissioner either upon his own motion or upon the application of an interested party, shall give consideration to the report and recommendations of the advisory committee, referred to in section 4(c)(4) of the Narcotics Manufacturing Act of 1960, and § 151.423.

(b) Preparations classified as Class "X" products. Any pharmaceutical preparation determined by the Commissioner, after consideration of the report and recommendations of an advisory committee (as set forth in § 151.423):

(1) To possess such slight addiction-forming or addiction-sustaining liability as to create little risk of improper use, but possessing a greater risk of improper use than those preparations classified as Class "M" products, and will be known as a Class "X" product, the label on the containers of which shall have superimposed thereon the symbol "X".

(2) Not to permit the recovery of a narcotic drug having such liability with such relative technical simplicity and degree of yield as to create a risk of improper use,

(c) Preparations classified as Class "M" products. Any pharmaceutical preparation determined by the Commissioner, after consideration of the report and recommendation of an advisory committee (as set forth in § 151.423):

(1) To possess no addiction-forming or addiction-sustaining liability, or to possess such slight addiction-forming or addiction-sustaining liability as to create less risk of improper use than those preparations classified as Class "X" products, and will be known as a Class "M" product, the label on the containers of which shall have superimposed thereon the symbol "M".

(2) Not to permit the recovery of a narcotic drug having such liability with such relative technical simplicity and degree of yield as to create a risk of improper use,

4. Section 151.423 Restrictions on dispositions is revised to read as follows:

§ 151.423 Granting of special exemptions.

(a) Whenever the Commissioner of Narcotics shall, on his own motion, determine that there may exist reasonable evidence that a pharmaceutical preparation possesses qualifications for exemption, as set forth in § 151.422, or whenever an interested party makes an application for a finding that a pharmaceutical preparation be exempt, the Commissioner shall thereupon appoint an advisory committee of experts, which, as soon as practicable thereafter, after independent study of the material submitted to it by the Commissioner and other data available to it, shall certify a report and recommendation to the Commissioner with respect to the pharmaceutical preparation involved. This advisory committee shall include:

(1) One or more members selected by the Commissioner;

(2) One member selected by the Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service;

(3) One member selected by the Commissioner of the United States Food and Drug Administration; and

(4) One member selected by the interested party making the application, if any.

(b) Any person who applies for an exemption pursuant to § 151.422 shall, as a condition to any consideration of his application by the Commissioner, submit to the Commissioner all the technical and scientific data in his possession, which data tend to prove that such pharmaceutical preparation meets the conditions prescribed as necessary for the granting of exemptions under § 151.422.

(c) When the Commissioner grants an exemption under § 151.422 with respect to a pharmaceutical preparation, it shall be incumbent upon the manufacturer of such exempt preparation that as a condition to the retention of exempt status, such manufacturer be obligated to notify the Commissioner, forthwith, of any discovery by the manufacturer of any technique which will yield with relative technical simplicity recovery of a drug with addiction liability.

5. Section 151.424 Dispositions to dealers is revised to read as follows:

§ 151.424 Conditions of exemption for Class "X" products.

(a) To be sold as a medicine only. A pharmaceutical preparation determined by the Commissioner of Narcotics to conform to the standards set forth in § 151.422 as a Class "X" product shall be exempt from stamp tax (§ 151.121) and the requirements pertaining to taxable narcotics only to the extent that it is manufactured, sold, distributed, given away, dispensed or possessed as a medicine and not for the purpose of evading the provisions of Subparts A and C of Part I of Subchapter A of Chapter 39 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended.

(b) Records required. (1) Every manufacturer, producer, compounder or vendor (including dispensing physicians) of such Class "X" preparations shall record all sales, exchanges, gifts or other dispositions, the entries to be made at the time of delivery. The requirement that such records be maintained as herein provided is absolute, independent and not merely a condition precedent to securing exemption granted under section 4702(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended (§ 151.423), to manufacturers, producers, compounders or vendors (including dispensing physicians), of exempt preparations. Such records shall be preserved for a period of not less than two years and shall be kept in such a way as to be readily accessible to inspection by any duly authorized officer or employee of the Treasury Department and the State, territorial, district, municipal or insular officers named in section 4773 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended.

(2) Separate records shall be kept of disposition to registrants and disposition to consumers. The record of disposition to registrants shall show the name, address and registry number of the registrant to whom disposed, the name and quantity of the preparation and the date upon which delivery to the registrant, his agent or carrier is made. The record of disposition to consumers shall show the name of the recipient, his address, the name and quantity of the preparation, and the date of delivery.

(3) Any person required to keep records pursuant to this paragraph and failing to do so is guilty of a violation of law and liable to the penalties provided for violation of the provision of law relating to narcotic drugs.

(4) The following form shall be used for keeping the records required by this paragraph, but printed forms will not be furnished by the Government.

FORM OF RECORD OF DISPOSITION TO REGISTRANTS

Date	Registration number of recipient	Name of recipient	Address	Name of preparation	Quantity

FORM OF RECORD OF DISPOSITION TO CONSUMERS

Date	Name of recipient	Address	Name of preparation	Quantity

(5) In the case of manufacturers of or dealers in preparations classified as Class "X" products who are also registered as manufacturers of or dealers in taxable drugs in Class I or II, the requirement of this section as to records of dispositions to registrants shall be deemed to be complied with, if all such dispositions are evidenced by vouchers or invoices containing all the required information and such vouchers or invoices are maintained for a period of not less than two years and made readily available for inspection upon request.

(6) As to records required in the case of registrants supplying preparations classified as Class "X" products to consumers pursuant to prescriptions issued by registered physicians, the requirement of this paragraph as to records of disposition to consumers shall be deemed to be complied with if each such prescription shows the name and address of the recipient, the name and quantity of the preparation, and the date of filling, and the prescriptions are kept on the narcotic prescription file.

(c) Registration required. Every person possessing or dispensing a pharmaceutical preparation conforming to the standards set forth in § 151.422 as a Class "X" product shall register as required in section 4722 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended. If he is not otherwise required to pay a tax under section 4721 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, he shall pay, as provided in Subpart C of Part I of Subchapter A of Chapter 39 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended (26 U.S.C. 4721 et seq.), a special tax of $1.00 for each year, or fractional part thereof, in which he is engaged in such occupation, to the District Director of the Internal Revenue Service of the district in which he carries on such occupation.

6. Section 151.425 Dispositions to customers is revised to read as follows:

§ 151.425 Conditions for exemption for Class "M" products.

(a) To be sold as a medicine only. A pharmaceutical preparation determined by the Commissioner of Narcotics to conform to the standards set forth in § 151.422 as a Class "M" product shall be exempt from stamp tax (§ 151.121) and the requirements pertaining to taxable narcotics only to the extent that it is manufactured, sold, distributed, given away, dispensed or possessed as a medicine and not for the purpose of evading the provisions of Subparts A and C of Part I of Subchapter A of Chapter 39 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended.

(b) Records not required. Records of disposition of Class "M" products shall not be required. Manufacturers of Class "M" products shall maintain such records and render such returns as provided in § 151.427.

(c) Registration required. Every person possessing or dispensing a pharmaceutical preparation conforming to the standards set forth in § 151.422 as a Class "M" product shall register as required in section 4722 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended. If he is not otherwise required to pay a tax under section 4721 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, he shall pay, as provided in Subpart C of Part I of Subchapter A of Chapter 39 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended (26 U.S.C. 4721 et seq.), a special tax of $1.00 for each year, or fractional part thereof, in which he is engaged in such occupation, to the District Director of the Internal Revenue Service of the district in which he carries on such occupation.

7. Section 151.426 Records required is revised to read as follows:

§ 151.426 Withdrawal of exemption.

General. If the Commissioner of Narcotics shall, after giving due notice and an opportunity for a hearing, determine that a pharmaceutical preparation, originally excepted from the application of this Act, does in fact possess a degree of addiction liability or permits recovery of a narcotic drug having a degree of addiction liability that results in abusive use of this preparation, the Commissioner may withdraw his original determination and revoke any previously given exception in whole or in part. The Commissioner shall cause to be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER any such determination and the pharmaceutical preparation shall thereupon cease to be an exempt preparation.

8. Section 151.427 Manufacturers' returns required is revised to read as follows:

§ 151.427 Manufacturers' returns required.

General. Each person registered in Class V as a manufacturer of preparations classified as Class "X" or Class "M" products, who uses more than one kilogram of narcotics of all kinds in such manufacture in one year, unless also registered as a manufacturer of taxable narcotic drugs shall render quarterly a return on Form 802 (manufacturers registered in Class I shall continue to use Form 810c). The return shall contain a statement of all the purchases of each kind of taxable narcotics during the period beginning with the first day of the year and continuing through the last day of the quarter for which the return is made. The return shall also show a complete accounting for the quarter for (a) taxable narcotics purchased, used in production, and on hand, and (b) preparations classified as Class "X" or Class "M" products produced, disposed of, and on hand. Such return shall be filed with the District Director of the Internal Revenue Service for the district in which the business is located on or before the fifteenth day of April, July, October, and January, for the three-month period ending on the last day of March, June, September, and December, respectively. The District Director shall forward the return to the Commissioner of Narcotics in the same manner as other narcotic returns.

9. A new § 151.428 Exempt narcotic pharmaceutical preparations listing such preparations found by the Commissioner of Narcotics (25 F.R. 12756), is added to read as follows:

§ 151.428 Exempt narcotic pharmaceutical preparations.

(a) Pharmaceutical preparations designated as Class "X" products. (1) Pharmaceutical preparations containing not more than 129.6 mgs. (2 grs.) opium per 29.5729 cc (1 fl. oz.) or per 28.3 Gms. (1 av. oz.);

(e) Description of areas open to fishing: Fishing is permitted in accordance with the above on the posted areas which are described as follows:

(1) From January 1 through March 14, 1961—in Lake Chautauqua an area approximately one-eighth (⅛) of a mile wide adjacent to the east shore between refuge headquarters and the north dike.

(4) From October 1 to December 31, 1961—in those waters of Lake Chautauqua within a one-eighth (⅛) mile radius of the established boatyards. Collectively, these areas comprise 3,700 acres and 82 percent of the total refuge. In the event that all or portions of these waters become concentration areas for waterfowl, fishing may be temporarily suspended and closed areas will be clearly posted.

Proposed Rule Making

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

Internal Revenue Service

[26 CFR (1954) Part 1]

INCOME TAX; TAXABLE YEARS BEGINNING AFTER DECEMBER 31, 1953

Notice of Proposed Rule Making

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act, approved June 11, 1946, that the regulations set forth in tentative form below are proposed to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate. Prior to the final adoption of such regulations, consideration will be given to any comments or suggestions pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing, in duplicate, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Attention: T:P, Washington 25, D.C., within the period of 30 days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Any person submitting written comments or suggestions who desires an opportunity to comment orally at a public hearing on these proposed regulations should submit his request, in writing, to the Commissioner within the 30-day period. In such a case, a public hearing will be held and notice of the time, place, and date will be published in a subsequent issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER. The proposed regulations are to be issued under the authority contained in section 7805 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (68A Stat. 917; 26 U.S.C. 7805).

[SEAL] DANA LATHAM,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The regulations under section 180 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, relating to expenditures by farmers for fertilizer, lime, etc., set forth in paragraph 1 are hereby prescribed, effective for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1959.

The Income Tax Regulations (26 CFR Part 1) are amended as set forth in paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6 to conform to the rules relating to expenditures by farmers for fertilizer, lime, etc., prescribed under section 180.

PARAGRAPH 1. The following regulations are hereby prescribed under section 180 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954:

§ 1.180 Statutory provisions; expenditures by farmers for fertilizer, etc.

SEC. 180 Expenditures by farmers for fertilizer, etc.—(a) In general. A taxpayer engaged in the business of farming may elect to treat as expenses which are not chargeable to capital account expenditures (otherwise chargeable to capital account) which are paid or incurred by him during the taxable year for the purchase or acquisition of fertilizer, lime, ground limestone, marl, or other materials to enrich, neutralize, or condition land used in farming, or for the application of such materials to such land. The expenditures so treated shall be allowed as a deduction.

(b) Land used in farming. For purposes of subsection (a), the term "land used in farming" means land used (before or simultaneously with the expenditures described in subsection (a)) by the taxpayer or his tenant for the production of crops, fruits, or other agricultural products or for the sustenance of livestock.

(c) Election. The election under subsection (a) for any taxable year shall be made within the time prescribed by law (including extensions thereof) for filing the return for such taxable year. Such election shall be made in such manner as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe. Such election may not be revoked except with the consent of the Secretary or his delegate.

[Sec. 180 as added by sec. 6, Act of Sept. 14, 1960 (Pub. Law 86-779, 74 Stat. 1001)]

§ 1.180-1 Expenditures by farmers for fertilizer, etc.

(a) In general. A taxpayer engaged in the business of farming may elect, for any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1959, to treat as deductible expenses those expenditures otherwise chargeable to capital account which are paid or incurred by him during the taxable year for the purchase or acquisition of fertilizer, lime, ground limestone, marl, or other materials to enrich, neutralize, or condition land used in farming, and those expenditures otherwise chargeable to capital account paid or incurred for the application of such items and materials to such land. No election is required to be made for those expenditures which are not capital in nature. Section 180, § 1.180-2, and this section are not applicable to those expenses which are deductible under section 162 and the regulations thereunder or which are subject to the method described in section 175 and the regulations thereunder.

(b) Land used in farming. For purposes of section 180(a) and of paragraph (a) of this section, the term "land used in farming" means land used (before or simultaneously with the expenditures described in such section and such paragraph) by the taxpayer or his tenant for the production of crops, fruits, or other agricultural products or for the sustenance of livestock. See section 180(b). Expenditures for the initial preparation of land never previously used for farming purposes by the taxpayer or his tenant (although chargeable to capital account) are not subject to the election. The principles stated in §§ 1.175-3 and 1.175-4 are equally applicable under this section in determining whether the taxpayer is engaged in the business of farming and whether the land is used in farming.

§ 1.180-2 Time and manner of making election and revocation.

(a) Election. The claiming of a deduction on the taxpayer's return for an amount to which section 180 applies for amounts (otherwise chargeable to capital account) expended for fertilizer, lime, etc., shall constitute an election under section 180 and paragraph (a) of § 1.180-1. Such election shall be effective only for the taxable year for which the deduction is claimed.

(b) Revocation. Once the election is made for any taxable year such election may not be revoked without the consent of the district director for the district in which the taxpayer's return is required to be filed. Such requests for consent shall be in writing and signed by the taxpayer or his authorized representative and shall set forth—

(1) The name and address of the taxpayer;

(2) The taxable year to which the revocation of the election is to apply;

(3) The amount of expenditures paid or incurred during the taxable year, or portions thereof (where applicable), previously taken as a deduction on the return in respect of which the revocation of the election is to be applicable; and

(4) The reasons for the request to revoke the election.

PAR. 2. Section 1.162-12 is amended to read as follows:

§ 1.162-12 Expenses of farmers.

A farmer who operates a farm for profit is entitled to deduct from gross income as necessary expenses all amounts actually expended in the carrying on of the business of farming. The cost of ordinary tools of short life or small cost, such as hand tools, including shovels, rakes, etc., may be deducted. The purchase of feed and other costs connected with raising livestock may be treated as expense deductions insofar as such costs represent actual outlay, but not including the value of farm produce grown upon the farm or the labor of the taxpayer. Where a farmer is engaged in producing crops which take more than a year from the time of planting to the process of gathering and disposal, expenses deducted may, with the consent of the Commissioner (see section 446 and the regulations thereunder), be determined upon the crop method, and such deductions must be taken in the taxable year in which the gross income from the crop has been realized. If a farmer does not compute income upon the crop method, the cost of seeds and young plants which are purchased for further development and cultivation prior to sale in later years may be deducted as an expense for the year of purchase, provided the farmer follows a consistent practice of deducting such costs as an expense from year to year. The preceding sentence does not apply to the cost of seeds and young plants connected with the planting of timber. See section 611 and the regulations thereunder. The cost of farm machinery, equipment, and farm buildings represents a capital investment and is not an allowable deduction as an item of expense. Amounts expended in the development of farms, orchards, and ranches prior to the time when the productive state is reached may be regarded as investments of capital. For the treatment of soil and water conservation expenditures as expenses which are not chargeable to capital account, see section 175 and the regulations thereunder. For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1959, in the case of expenditures paid or incurred by farmers for fertilizer, lime, etc., see section 180 and the regulations thereunder. Amounts expended in purchasing work, breeding, or dairy animals are regarded as investments of capital, and shall be depreciated unless such animals are included in an inventory in accordance with § 1.61-4. The purchase price of an automobile, even when wholly used in carrying on farming operations, is not deductible, but is regarded as an investment of capital. The cost of gasoline, repairs, and upkeep of an automobile if used wholly in the business of farming is deductible as an expense; if used partly for business purposes and partly for the pleasure or convenience of the taxpayer or his family, such cost may be apportioned according to the extent of the use for purposes of business and pleasure or convenience, and only the proportion of such cost justly attributable to business purposes is deductible as a necessary expense. If a farm is operated for recreation or pleasure and not on a commercial basis, and if the expenses incurred in connection with the farm are in excess of the receipts therefrom, the entire receipts from the sale of farm products may be ignored in rendering a return of income, and the expenses incurred, being regarded as personal expenses, will not constitute allowable deductions. (See § 1.61-4, and paragraph (b) of § 1.167(a)-6, and sections 165 and 270 and the regulations thereunder.)

PAR. 3. Paragraphs (b) (1) and (2) of § 1.175-2 are amended to read as follows:

§ 1.175-2 Definition of soil and water conservation expenditures.

(b) Expenditures not subject to section 175 treatment. (1) The method described in section 175 applies only to expenditures for nondepreciable items. Accordingly, a taxpayer may not deduct expenditures for the purchase, construction, installation, or improvement of structures, appliances, or facilities subject to the allowance for depreciation. Thus, the method does not apply to depreciable nonearthen items such as those made of masonry or concrete (see section 167). For example, expenditures in respect of depreciable property include those for materials, supplies, wages, fuel, hauling, and dirt moving for making structures such as tanks, reservoirs, pipes, conduits, canals, dams, wells, or pumps composed of masonry, concrete, tile, metal, or wood. However, the method applies to expenditures for earthen items which are not subject to a depreciation allowance. For example, expenditures for earthen terraces and dams which are nondepreciable are deductible under section 175. For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1959, in the case of expenditures paid or incurred by farmers for fertilizer, lime, etc., for purposes other than soil or water conservation, see section 180 and the regulations thereunder.

(2) The method does not apply to expenses deductible apart from section 175. Adoption of the method is not necessary in order to deduct such expenses in full without limitation. Thus, the method does not apply to interest (deductible under section 163), nor to taxes (deductible under section 164). It does not apply to expenses for the repair of completed soil or water conservation structures, such as costs of annual removal of sediment from a drainage ditch. It does not apply to expenditures paid or incurred primarily to produce an agricultural crop even though they incidentally conserve soil. Thus, the cost of fertilizing (the effectiveness of which does not last beyond one year) used to produce hay is deductible without adoption of the method prescribed in section 175. For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1959, in the case of expenditures paid or incurred by farmers for fertilizer, lime, etc., for purposes other than soil or water conservation, see section 180 and the regulations thereunder. However, the method would apply to expenses incurred to produce vegetation primarily to conserve soil or water or to prevent erosion. Thus, for example, the method would apply to such expenditures as the cost of dirt moving, lime, fertilizer, seed and planting stock used in gulley stabilization, or in stabilizing severely eroded areas, in order to obtain a soil binding stand of vegetation on raw or infertile land.

PAR. 4. In § 1.263(a), section 263(a)(1) is amended by revising subparagraphs (B) and (C), adding subparagraph (D), and adding a historical note to the section. As amended § 1.263(a) reads as follows:

§ 1.263(a) Statutory provisions; capital expenditures; general rule.

SEC. 263 Capital expenditures—(a) General rule. No deduction shall be allowed for—

(1) Any amount paid out for new buildings or for permanent improvements or betterments made to increase the value of any property or estate. This paragraph shall not apply to—

(A) Expenditures for the development of mines or deposits deductible under section 616,

(B) Research and experimental expenditures deductible under section 174,

(C) Soil and water conservation expenditures deductible under section 175, or

(D) Expenditures by farmers for fertilizer, etc., deductible under section 180.

* * * * * * *

[Sec. 263 as amended by sec. 6, Act of Sept. 14, 1960 (Pub. Law 86-779, 74 Stat. 1001)]

PAR. 5. Paragraph (c) of § 1.263(a)-1 is amended by revising subparagraphs (2) and (3) and by adding a subparagraph (4). These added and revised provisions read as follows:

§ 1.263(a)-1 Capital expenditures; in general.

* * * * * * *

(c) The provisions of paragraph (a)(1) of this section shall not apply to expenditures deductible under—

* * * * * * *

(2) Section 174 and §§ 1.174-1 through 1.174-4, relating to research and experimentation,

(3) Section 175 and §§ 1.175-1 through 1.175-6, relating to soil and water conservation, and

(4) Section 180 and §§ 1.180-1 and 1.180-2, relating to expenditures by farmers for fertilizer, lime, etc.

PAR. 6. Paragraph (b) of section 1.263(a)-3 is amended by redesignating subparagraphs (5) through (8) as (6) through (9) and by adding a subparagraph (5). These added and redesignated provisions read as follows:

§ 1.263(a)-3 Election to deduct or capitalize certain expenditures.

* * * * * * *

(b) The sections referred to in paragraph (a) of this section include:

* * * * * * *

(5) Section 180 (expenditures by farmers for fertilizer, lime, etc.).

(6) Section 248 (organizational expenditures of a corporation).

(7) Section 266 (carrying charges).

(8) Section 615 (exploration expenditures).

(9) Section 616 (development expenditures).

DETERMINATION OF ACREAGE AND PERFORMANCE

Notice of Proposed Rule Making

Pursuant to the authority contained in sections 374 and 375 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, section 401 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1949, section 403 of the Sugar Act of 1948, and section 124 of the Soil Bank Act, an amendment to the regulations governing the determination of acreage and compliance with the provisions of programs carried out under the above-mentioned acts is proposed as follows:

Section 718.13(a) (24 F.R. 4223, 25 F.R. 7237, and 25 F.R. 12166) would be amended to read as follows:

§ 718.13 Determination and adjustment of excess acreage.

(a)(1) General. If the farm operator or other producer on the farm elects to dispose of excess acreage or otherwise adjusts a previously determined acreage in accordance with applicable regulations, the farm shall be revisited for the purpose of determining the adjusted acreage under the conditions prescribed in this section. Unless the requirements for the measurement of the adjusted acreage are met by the farm operator or other producer on the farm, the acreage as officially determined prior to such adjustment shall be considered as the acreage of the commodity on the farm in determining whether the applicable farm allotment has been exceeded. When the producer must pay the cost of determining the adjusted acreage, the amount required shall be as determined by the county committee with the approval of the State committee.

(2) Peanuts. When the total acreage planted to peanuts as determined for the farm is in excess of the effective farm allotment and the producer elects to adjust the acreage or when a revisit is required to measure an acreage which was estimated on the initial visit, the farm shall be revisited to determine the adjusted acreage if the farm operator or other producer on the farm files a timely request for such service and pays the cost of determining the adjusted acreage: Provided, however, That a farm visit to determine the final peanut acreage is not required when the initial acreage report shows that the total acreage planted to peanuts on the farm will be used for hogging purposes.

(3) Wheat. When the total acreage of wheat determined for the farm is in excess of the allotment and the producer elects to adjust the acreage by disposition or when a revisit is required to measure an acreage which was estimated on the initial visit or to reclassify an acreage previously determined, the farm shall be revisited if the farm operator or other producer on the farm files a request for the service by the date specified on the notice of excess acreage and pays the cost of the farm visit: Provided, however, That a revisit will be made at the expense of the ASC county office if the farm is determined to be in excess solely because of an acreage of volunteer wheat: And provided further, That a visit to the farm to determine the final wheat acreage is not required when:

(i) The total acreage of wheat on the farm was reported for use as a wheat cover crop, or

(ii) The acreage of wheat exceeds the allotment but is not in excess of 15 acres and the producer does not request a determination of an adjusted acreage.

(4) Allotment crops other than wheat and peanuts. If the measured acreage of any allotment crop other than wheat or peanuts is in excess of the allotment established for the farm and the producer elects to adjust the acreage by disposition, the farm will be revisited to determine the adjusted acreage if the farm operator or other producer on the farm files a timely request for such service and pays the cost of determining the adjusted acreage.

(5) Other soil bank base crop acreages. If the producer elects to adjust the acreage of other soil bank base crops by disposition or reclassification, the farm shall be revisited to determine the adjusted acreage if the farm operator or other producer on the farm files a timely request for the service and pays the cost of determining the adjusted acreage. In any case where a cover crop has been approved for a designated reserve area, the disposition of the cover crop shall be determined at the expense of the ASC county office.

It is proposed that the provisions of this amendment become effective beginning with the determination of acreage and performance of 1961 crops other than wheat and beginning with the determination of acreage and performance for the 1962 crop of wheat.

Prior to the issuance of this amendment, consideration will be given to data, views, and recommendations pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing to the Director, Performance Division, Commodity Stabilization Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D.C. All written submissions must be postmarked no later than 30 days after the date this notice is published in the FEDERAL REGISTER in order to be eligible for consideration.

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 15th day of December 1960.

PROPOSED FACILITY LICENSE

1. This license applies to the pool-type nuclear reactor (hereinafter referred to as "the reactor") which is owned by The Ohio State University and located on The Ohio State University's campus in Columbus, Ohio, and described in The Ohio State University's application for license dated October 30, 1959, and amendments thereto dated December 9, 1959, February 29, 1960, July 29, 1960, September 27, 1960, and November 8, 1960 (hereinafter collectively referred to as "the application"), and authorized for construction by Construction Permit No. CPRR–49 issued to The Ohio State University.

2. Pursuant to the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended (hereinafter referred to as "the Act") and having considered the record in this matter, the Atomic Energy Commission (hereinafter referred to as "the Commission") finds that:

A. The reactor has been constructed in conformity with Construction Permit No. CPRR–49 and will operate in conformity with the application and in conformity with the Act and the rules and regulations of the Commission;

B. There is reasonable assurance that the reactor can be operated at the designated location without endangering the health and safety of the public;

C. The Ohio State University is technically and financially qualified to operate the reactor, to assume financial responsibility for payment of Commission charges for special nuclear material and to undertake and carry out the proposed activities in accordance with the Commission's regulations;

D. The possession and operation of the reactor and the receipt, possession and use of the special nuclear material in the manner proposed in the application will not be inimical to the common defense and security or to the health and safety of the public; and

E. The Ohio State University is a nonprofit educational institution and will use the reactor for conduct of educational activities. The Ohio State University is therefore exempt from the financial protection requirement of subsection 170a. of the Act.

3. Subject to the conditions and requirements incorporated herein, the Commission hereby licenses The Ohio State University:

A. Pursuant to section 104.c. of the Act and Title 10, CFR, Ch. 1, Part 50, "Licensing of Production and Utilization Facilities", to possess and operate the reactor as a utilization facility at the designated location in Columbus, Ohio, in accordance with the procedures and limitations described in the application and this license;

B. Pursuant to the Act and Title 10, CFR, Ch. 1, Part 70, "Special Nuclear Material", to receive, possess and use in connection with operation of the reactor 80 grams of plutonium contained in plutonium-beryllium neutron sources and up to 7.5 kilograms of contained uranium 235; and

C. Pursuant to the Act and Title 10, CFR, Ch. 1, Part 30, "Licensing of Byproduct Material", to possess but not to separate such byproduct material as may be produced by operation of the reactor.

4. This license shall be deemed to contain and be subject to the conditions specified in § 50.54 of Part 50 and § 70.32 of Part 70, Title 10, Ch. 1, CFR, and to be subject to all applicable provisions of the Act, and to the rules and regulations and orders of the Commission, now or hereafter in effect, and to the additional conditions specified below:

A. The Ohio State University shall not operate the reactor at power levels in excess of 10 kilowatts (thermal) without prior written authorization from the Commission.

B. No experiment which is not of the type described in the "Preliminary Report and Hazards Analysis—Nuclear Training Reactor" dated September, 1959, shall be conducted in the reactor without prior written authorization from the Commission.

C. In addition to those otherwise required under this license and applicable regulations, The Ohio State University shall keep the following records:

1. Reactor operating records, including power levels.

2. Records of in-pile irradiations.

3. Records showing radioactivity released or discharged into the air or water beyond the effective control of The Ohio State University as measured at the point of such release or discharge.

4. Records of emergency reactor scrams, including reasons for emergency shutdowns.

D. The Ohio State University shall immediately report to the Commission in writing any indication or occurrence of a possible unsafe condition relating to the operation of the reactor.

5. Pursuant to § 50.60 of the regulations in Title 10, CFR, Ch. 1, Part 50, the Commission has:

A. Allocated, in Construction Permit No. CPRR–49, to The Ohio State University for use in connection with operation of the reactor, 3400 grams of uranium 235 contained in fully enriched uranium and 80 grams of plutonium contained in encapsulated plutonium-beryllium neutron sources, and

B. Hereby allocates an additional 3900 grams of contained uranium 235 to be used in a fission plate in connection with the operation of the reactor.

6. This license is effective as of the date of issuance and shall expire at midnight February 3, 1965.

Date of Issuance:

For the Atomic Energy Commission.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

[Docket No. G–16235 etc.]

EL PASO NATURAL GAS CO. ET AL.

Order Severing Proceedings and Granting Applications

DECEMBER 14, 1960.

El Paso Natural Gas Company, Docket No. G–16235; Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corporation, Docket Nos. G–16236 and G–16237; Colorado Interstate Gas Company, Docket No. G–16904; Plateau Natural Gas Company, Docket No. G–18280; Pueblo Gas and Fuel Company, Docket No. G–19216; Public Service Company of Colorado, Docket No. G–19225.

Docket Nos. G–18280, G–19216, and G–19225 herein involve applications under section 7(a) of the Natural Gas Act for orders directing Colorado Interstate Gas Company to establish and maintain physical connection of its transportation facilities with facilities which the applicants propose to construct and to deliver and sell to such applicants the following volumes:

Applicants and communities to be served	Peak day requirements—Mcf @ 14.73 psia
	1960	1961	1962
Plateau Natural Gas Co.—Black Forest area	348	527	767
Pueblo Gas and Fuel Co.—North Avondale, Boone, South Avondale	87.8	219.8	369.4
Public Service Co. of Colorado—Valley Country Club area	460	710	950

These applications were previously consolidated with the other proceedings in Docket No. G–16235, et al., listed in the caption hereof. In his initial decision issued in the consolidated proceeding on July 15, 1960, the presiding examiner found that the service proposed in these applications under section 7(a) is necessary and desirable in the public interest. We agree. The evidence adduced by the applicants sufficiently supports the conclusion that there is a public need for, and a public benefit to be derived from, natural gas service in the communities concerned; that the proposed projects can be adequately financed; that they are economically feasible; and that granting these applications will not impair Colorado's ability to render adequate service to its existing customers. The volumes requested are very small in relation to Colorado's total sales. No exceptions were filed with regard to the examiner's findings that these applications should be granted.

We also conclude from the record that these small projects are not related to nor dependent on the outcome of the main proceedings in Docket No. G–16235, et al., and should be severed therefrom and granted on their own merits without further delay. This action will not, however, affect the status of these applicants as interveners in the proceedings in Docket No. G–16235.

The Commission finds:

(1) The applicants in Docket Nos. G–18280, G–19216, and G–19225 are persons engaged or legally authorized to engage in the local distribution of natural gas to the public.

(2) It is necessary and desirable in the public interest that the Commission, by order, direct Colorado Interstate Gas Company to establish physical connection of its transportation facilities with those of each of the applicants in Docket Nos. G–18280, G–19216, and G–19225 and to sell and deliver natural gas to such applicants as requested in their respective applications, subject to the conditions of this order.

(3) The ability of Colorado Interstate Gas Company to render adequate service to its customers will not be impaired and no undue burden will be placed on it by reason of the requirement that it render the service requested by these applicants, nor will it be compelled to enlarge its transportation facilities.

The Commission orders:

(A) The proceedings in Docket Nos. G–18280, G–19216, and G–19225 are severed from the consolidated proceedings in Docket No. G–16235, et al.

(B) Colorado Interstate Gas Company is directed to establish and maintain physical connection of its transportation facilities with the facilities to be constructed by Plateau Natural Gas Company, Pueblo Gas and Fuel Company, and Public Service Company of Colorado, and to deliver and sell to these applicants natural gas as requested in their respective applications, under Colorado's appropriate rate schedules on file with the Commission.

(C) Colorado shall report to the Commission in writing and under oath the date of commencement of service to each of these applicants.

(D) Each of these applicants shall be prepared to receive service from Colorado as directed herein within one year from the date of issuance of this order.

By the Commission.

JOSEPH H. GUTRIDE,
Secretary.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 70-3923]

PEOPLES NATURAL GAS CO. AND CONSOLIDATED NATURAL GAS CO.

Notice of Proposed Issuance and Sale of Shares of Capital Stock by Registered Holding Company to a Non-Affiliate, Acquisition by Subsidiary of the Assets and Assumption of the Liabilities of Such Non-Affiliate, Intra-System Issuance, Sale and Acquisition of Capital Stock

DECEMBER 14, 1960.

Notice is hereby given that Consolidated Natural Gas Company ("Consolidated"), a registered holding company, and one of its gas utility subsidiaries, The Peoples Natural Gas Company ("Peoples"), have filed with this Commission a joint application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("Act"), designating sections 6(a), 6(b), 7, 9(a), 10, and 12(f) of the Act as applicable to the proposed transactions. All interested persons are referred to said joint application-declaration for a statement of the proposed transactions which are summarized below.

Pursuant to an Agreement and Plan of Reorganization dated July 29, 1960 ("Plan") between Consolidated, Peoples and a non-affiliate, The Union Heat and Light Company ("Union"), the latter proposes to sell and Peoples proposes to acquire all of the assets and assume all the liabilities of Union after which Union will liquidate and dissolve.

Union, a Pennsylvania corporation, is a comparatively small gas utility company whose operations and business are conducted entirely in the State of Pennsylvania. It furnishes natural gas service to the public in portions of the counties of Lawrence, Mercer, Venango and Butler, Pennsylvania, the principal communities served being Grove City and Slippery Rock. As of December 31, 1959, Union served natural gas to 7,032 consumers consisting of 6,345 residential, 590 commercial and 97 industrial. Its present gas supply is obtained from two non-affiliated gas utility companies under separate gas purchase contracts that are terminable on January 1, 1965 and on May 25, 1980. Union has 4,441 shares of capital stock, par value of $50 per share, outstanding of which 4,436 shares are held by Oil City National Bank (Oil City, Pennsylvania) and others, as Trustees, and the remaining 5 shares are held directly by one of the beneficiaries of the trust.

Peoples, a Pennsylvania corporation, is a wholly owned gas utility subsidiary of Consolidated. It owns property for the production, gathering, transmission, storage and distribution of natural gas and renders natural gas service to approximately 262,000 consumers in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and in other communities located in 13 counties in Pennsylvania.

The counties in which Union distributes natural gas are within the franchise area which Peoples is authorized to serve. Communities served by Union in the southern part of its service area are within eight miles of communities served by Peoples, and those served by Union in the northern part of its service area are within twelve miles of the pipeline facilities owned and operated by Lake Shore Pipe Line Company, an affiliate of Peoples.

The filing states that as it becomes necessary for Union to supplement or replace its existing gas supply, Peoples will construct transmission lines to interconnect its system with that of Union, thus assuring Union's customers a firm, long-term supply of gas from more varied sources and under more flexible delivery schedules. Such eventual interconnection is expected to result in a reduction of purchased gas costs. In addition, Peoples will be in a better position, than would Union, to raise funds required for future additions and improvements.

Upon consummation of the proposed transfer, Peoples will continue the nature and character of service now being rendered by Union and will adopt Union's rates for such service.

To effectuate the foregoing plan, Consolidated proposes to issue and sell to Union 23,000 shares of Consolidated's capital stock, par value $10 per share. For purposes of the plan these shares were valued at $45 per share or an aggregate value of $1,035,000. The shares of Consolidated stock will be distributed by Union to its stockholders and Union will dissolve. Peoples proposes to acquire all the assets of Union and assume all its liabilities including bank notes which, at September 30, 1960, amounted to $88,050. In this connection Peoples proposes to issue and sell, and Consolidated proposes to acquire, 10,350 shares of Peoples' capital stock, par value $100 per share, or an aggregate par value of $1,035,000.

The estimated fees and expenses to be incurred in connection with the proposed transactions aggregate $18,170 and consist of State and Federal taxes of $4,170, legal and other expenses incident to the transfer of Union's assets and dissolution in the amount of $5,000, finder's fee of $7,500 and miscellaneous expenses of $1,500.

The Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission has authorized the acquisition by Peoples of the gas properties and rights of Union, the exercise by Peoples of the right to furnish natural gas service in the area presently served by Union, the issuance by Peoples of the shares of its capital stock and the dissolution of Union. It is represented that no other State commission and no Federal commission, other than this Commission has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than December 28, 1960, request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law raised by said joint application-declaration which he desires to controvert; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D.C. At any time after said date the joint application-declaration, as filed or as amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided in Rule 23 of the general rules and regulations promulgated under the Act, or the Commission may grant exemption from its rules as provided in Rules 20(a) and 100 or take such other action as it may deem appropriate.

By the Commission.

Uniform System of Accounts for Class C Natural Gas Companies

Important developments in the natural gas industry since the adoption of the Uniform System of Accounts effective January 1, 1940, and the experience of the Commission over the past 20 years indicated the need for a revision of the System of Accounts. Accordingly, this proceeding was commenced by Notice of Proposed Rulemaking served upon interested parties, including State and Federal regulatory agencies, and by publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER on August 17, 1960 (25 F.R. 7918). Copies of the proposed revised System of Accounts were served and published as a part of that general notice, as heretofore noted.

The revisions of the Commission's System of Accounts, as then proposed are prescribed hereinafter as a part of the Commission's Uniform System of Accounts to become effective January 1, 1961.

Heretofore, the Commission has not had a separately issued Uniform System of Accounts for Class C Natural Gas Companies, as such. The accounting requirements presently effective for small utilities (Class C and Class D), consist of an abridgement of the accounts for large natural gas companies by means of account charts appearing as Appendix II of the pamphlet version of the Uniform System of Accounts. In these account charts, the condensed accounts applicable to the small utilities are indicated by bracketing related account titles applicable to Class A and Class B utilities. The result is that small utilities have had to work with an inordinate amount of textual materials designed for larger utilities. An objective of the System of Accounts, prescribed hereinafter is to relieve small utilities from that burden. It is believed that the revised System of Accounts provides these smaller utilities with a simplified System of Accounts appropriate for the magnitude of their operations. The revised System of Accounts prescribed herein reflects the basic principles found in this Commission's recently issued revised Uniform System of Accounts Prescribed for Class A and Class B Natural Gas Companies Subject to the Provisions of the Natural Gas Act, Docket No. R-174. The revised System of Accounts introduces the following important improvements in this Com-

Title 18—CONSERVATION OF POWER

Chapter I—Federal Power Commission

SUBCHAPTER F—ACCOUNTS, NATURAL GAS ACT

[Order No. 227; Docket No. R-156]

PART 204—UNIFORM SYSTEM OF ACCOUNTS FOR CLASS C NATURAL GAS COMPANIES

This Commission has under consideration in this proceeding the revision of Part 204—Application of Uniform System of Accounts to Class C and Class D Natural Gas Companies of Subchapter F—Accounts, Natural Gas Act, of Chapter I—Federal Power Commission, Title 18—Conservation of Power, of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR), to prescribe a revised Uniform System of Accounts Prescribed for Natural Gas Companies Subject to the Provisions of the Natural Gas Act (Class C). That revised System of Accounts, as set forth in the attachment to the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking in this docket (25 F.R. 7919–7953) is prescribed hereinafter to become effective January 1, 1961.

Part 204, §§ 204.1 through 204.8 of said Title and Code correspond to, and appear at pages 179–200 of the Commission's pamphlet publication of its Uniform System of Accounts Prescribed for Natural Gas Companies Subject to the Provisions of the Natural Gas Act, effective January 1, 1940, revised to January 1, 1954,[1] as amended by Order No. 203, issued May 29, 1958 (23 F.R. 4164, June 12, 1958). That System of Accounts, as revised and prescribed hereinafter, follows the numbering system (accounts, instructions, definitions, etc.) used in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking referred to above.

[1] The Uniform System of Accounts effective January 1, 1940 was prescribed by Commission Order No. 69 dated November 3, 1939 (4 F.R. 4764, December 5, 1939); and was contained in the codification and reissuance of the Commission's general rules promulgated by Commission Order No. 141, December 11, 1947, effective January 1, 1948 (13 F.R. 8461).

mission's small utility accounting requirements:

a. New size classifications for gas utilities;

b. Simple plant and expense classifications for manufactured gas;

c. Certain necessary new accounts;

d. New arrangement of balance sheet and certain other accounts to make them more informative;

e. A reduced number of expense account classifications, mainly but not entirely, by the discontinuance of segregations of numerous functional accounts as to labor and other expenses;

f. Expanded items lists of account texts and clearer description of such items according to their functional nature, to facilitate use and consistency of respective account classifications; and

g. Restatements of the accounting aspects of certain accounting interpretations issued in the past.

In recommending the form of revised System of Accounts accompanying the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking in this proceeding, the staff of this Commission correlated its activities with the activities of the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners (NARUC) which has recently prepared a form of NARUC Uniform System of Accounts for Class C gas utilities. This was done to promote continued consistency and uniformity of approach to the common problems with which the two accounting systems are concerned; and to assure a minimum amount of deviation where the two accounting systems do differ. The staff's activities in this regard were undertaken mainly with the Committee on Statistics and Accounts of the NARUC.

The aforesaid Notice of Proposed Rulemaking provided for the submission of data, views, comments, or protests in writing not later than September 19, 1960. To date no such data, views, comments, or protests have been received.

The Commission recognizes that some burden and expense will have to be borne by the accounting and reporting parties affected in connection with the transition from the present to the revised System of Accounts. However, the Commission is of the opinion that the physical burden and monetary cost of the change over is of minor importance when viewed in relation to the immediate and future benefits to be derived from the revised System of Accounts, as prescribed herein.

For the convenience of all parties concerned, Appendix A set forth below correlates the account titles of the Commission's Uniform System of Accounts applicable to Class C Natural Gas Companies, effective January 1, 1940, with the revised System of Accounts prescribed herein effective January 1, 1961. Being a schematic presentation only, and of a very general nature, nothing contained therein shall be construed as in any way modifying the general or specific account titles, texts, and instructions of either of the Systems of Accounts.

Also, it should be noted that for the period of time required for the preparation and publication of the revised System of Accounts prescribed herein in pamphlet form, the revised System of Accounts (18 CFR Part 204) will be available in the printed form set forth below as Appendix B.

The Commission finds:

(1) In view of the foregoing, and upon consideration of all relevant matters presented, it is necessary and appropriate for the purposes of the Natural Gas Act, that the proposed revised System of Accounts as set forth in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (25 F.R. 7919–7953), be adopted and promulgated as this Commission's revised Uniform System of Accounts Prescribed for Natural Gas Companies Subject to the Provisions of the Natural Gas Act (Class C), effective January 1, 1961, all in the manner as hereinafter provided.

(2) Good cause exists for the adoption of the revised System of Accounts set forth herein to be effective as of January 1, 1961.

The Commission, acting pursuant to the Natural Gas Act, as amended, particularly sections 8(a), 10, and 16 (15 U.S.C. 717g, 717i, and 717o) orders:

(A) Effective January 1, 1961, Part 204, Subchapter F—Accounts, Natural Gas Act, of Chapter I—Federal Power Commission, Title 18—Conservation of Power, of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended to read as set forth in Appendix B below.

(B) Effective January 1, 1961, all Class C Natural Gas Companies under the Natural Gas Act shall keep their accounts in the manner set forth in the revised System of Accounts appearing in Appendix B below.

(C) The Secretary of the Commission shall cause prompt publication of this order.

Issued: December 21, 1960.

By the Commission.

APPENDIX B—UNIFORM SYSTEM OF ACCOUNTS PRESCRIBED FOR NATURAL GAS COMPANIES SUBJECT TO THE PROVISIONS OF THE NATURAL GAS ACT (CLASS C)

Definitions

When used in this system of accounts:

1. "Accounts" means the accounts prescribed in this system of accounts.

2. "Actually issued," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means those which have been sold to bona fide purchasers for a valuable consideration, those issued as dividends on stock and those which have been issued in accordance with contractual requirements direct to trustees of sinking funds.

3. "Actually outstanding," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means those which have been actually issued and are neither retired nor held by or for the utility; provided, however, that securities held by trustees shall be considered as actually outstanding.

4. "Amortization" means the gradual extinguishment of an amount in an account by distributing such amount over a fixed period, over the life of the asset or liability to which it applies, or over the period during which it is anticipated the benefit will be realized.

5. A. "Associated companies" means companies or persons that, directly or indirectly, through one or more intermediaries, control, or are controlled by, or are under common control with, the accounting company.

B. "Control" (including the terms "controlling," "controlled by," and "under common control with") means the possession, directly or indirectly, of the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of a company, whether such power is exercised through one or more intermediary companies, or alone, or in conjunction with, or pursuant to an agreement, and whether such power is established through a majority or minority ownership or voting of securities, common directors, officers, or stockholders, voting trusts, holding trust, associated companies, contract or any other direct or indirect means.

6. "Book cost" means the amount at which property is recorded in these accounts without deduction of related provisions for accrued depreciation, depletion, amortization, or for other purposes.

7. "Commission" means the Federal Power Commission.

8. "Cost" means the amount of money actually paid for property or services. When the consideration given is other than cash in a purchase and sale transaction, as distinguished from a transaction involving the issuance of common stock in a merger or a pooling of interest, the value of such consideration shall be determined on a cash basis.

9. "Cost of removal" means the cost of demolishing, dismantling, tearing down or otherwise removing gas plant, including the cost of transportation and handling incidental thereto.

10. "Debt expense" means all expenses in connection with the issuance and initial sale of evidences of debt, such as fees for drafting mortgages and trust deeds; fees and taxes for issuing or recording evidences of debt; cost of engraving and printing bonds and certificates of indebtedness; fees paid trustees; specific costs of obtaining governmental authority; fees for legal services; fees and commissions paid underwriters, brokers, and salesmen for marketing such evidences of debt; fees and expenses of listing on exchanges; and other like costs.

11a. "Depletion," as applied to natural gas producing land and land rights, means the loss in service value incurred in connection with the exhaustion of the natural resource in the course of service.

11b. "Depreciation," as applied to depreciable gas plant, means the loss in service value not restored by current maintenance, incurred in connection with the consumption or prospective retirement of gas plant in the course of service from causes which are known to be in current operation and against which the utility is not protected by insurance. Among the causes to be given consideration are wear and tear, decay, action of the elements, inadequacy, obsolescence, changes in the art, changes in demand and requirements of public authorities, and, in the case of natural gas companies, the exhaustion of natural resources.

12. "Discount" as applied to the securities issued or assumed by the utility, means the excess of the par (stated value of no-par stocks) or face value of the securities plus interest or dividends accrued at the date of the sale over the cash value of the consideration received from their sale.

13. "Investment advances" means advances, represented by notes or by book accounts only, with respect to which it is mutually agreed or intended between the creditor and debtor that they shall be settled by the issuance of securities or shall not be subject to current settlement.

14. "Minor items of property" means the associated parts or items of which retirement units are composed.

15. "Natural gas" means either natural gas unmixed, or any mixture of natural and artificial gas.

16. "Natural gas company" means a person engaged in the transportation of natural gas in interstate commerce, or the sale in interstate commerce of such gas for resale.

17. "Net salvage value" means the salvage value of property retired less the cost of removal.

18. "Nominally issued," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means those which have been signed, certified, or otherwise executed, and placed with the proper officer for sale and delivery, or pledged, or otherwise placed in some special fund of the utility, but which have not been sold, or issued direct to trustees of sinking funds in accordance with contractual requirements.

19. "Nominally outstanding," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means those which, after being actually issued, have been reacquired by or for the utility under circumstances which require them to be considered as held alive and not retired: Provided, however, That securities held by trustees shall be considered as actually outstanding.

20. "Original cost," as applied to gas plant, means the cost of such property to the person first devoting it to public service.

21. "Person" means an individual, a corporation, a partnership, an association, a joint stock company, a business trust, or any organized group of persons, whether incorporated or not, or any receiver or trustee.

22. "Premium," as applied to securities issued or assumed by the utility, means the excess of the cash value of the consideration received from their sale over the sum of their par (stated value of no-par stocks) or face value and interest or dividends accrued at the date of sale.

23. "Property retired," as applied to gas plant, means property which has been removed, sold, abandoned, destroyed, or which for any cause has been withdrawn from service.

24. "Replacing" or "replacement," when not otherwise indicated in the context, means the construction or installation of gas plant in place of property retired, together with the removal of the property retired.

25. "Retirement units" means those items of gas plant which, when retired, with or without replacement, are accounted for by crediting the book cost thereof to the gas plant account in which included.

26. "Salvage value" means the amount received for property retired, less any expenses incurred in connection with the sale or in preparing the property for sale; or, if retained, the amount at which the material recoverable is chargeable to materials and supplies, or other appropriate account.

27. "Service life" means the time between the date gas plant is includible in gas plant in service, or gas plant leased to others, and the date of its retirement. If depreciation is accounted for on a production basis rather than on a time basis, then service life should be measured in terms of the appropriate unit of production.

28. "Service value" means the difference between original cost and net salvage value of gas plant.

29. "Utility," as used herein and when not otherwise indicated in the context, means any natural gas company to which this system of accounts is applicable.

General Instructions

1. Classification of Utilities.

A. For the purpose of applying systems of accounts prescribed by the Commission, natural gas companies are divided into four classes, as follows:

Class A. Natural gas companies having annual gas operating revenues of $2,500,000 or more.

Class B. Natural gas companies having annual gas operating revenues of $1,000,000 or more but less than $2,500,000.

Class C. Natural gas companies having annual gas operating revenues of $150,000 or more but less than $1,000,000.

Class D. Natural gas companies having annual gas operating revenues of $25,000 or more but less than $150,000.

B. This system of accounts applies to Class C utilities. Those applicable to Classes A and B and to Class D utilities are issued separately.

C. The class to which any utility belongs shall originally be determined by the average of its annual gas operating revenues for the last three consecutive years. Subsequent changes in classification shall be made when the annual gas operating revenues for each of the three immediately preceding years shall exceed the upper limit, or be less than the lower limit, of the annual gas operating revenues of the classification previously applicable to the utility.

D. Any utility may, at its option, adopt the system of accounts prescribed by the Commission for any larger class of utilities.

2. Records.

A. Each utility shall keep its books of account, and all other books, records, and memoranda which support the entries in such books of account so as to be able to furnish readily full information as to any item included in any account. Each entry shall be supported by such detailed information as will permit ready identification, analysis, and verification of all facts relevant thereto.

B. The books and records referred to herein include not only accounting records in a limited technical sense, but all other records, such as minute books, stock books, reports, correspondence, memoranda, etc., which may be useful in developing the history of or facts regarding any transaction.

C. No utility shall destroy any such books or records unless the destruction thereof is permitted by rules and regulations of the Commission.

D. In addition to prescribed accounts, clearing accounts, temporary or experimental accounts, and subdivisions of any account, may be kept, provided the integrity of the prescribed accounts is not impaired.

E. All amounts included in the accounts prescribed herein for gas plant and operating expenses shall be just and reasonable and any payments or accruals for by the utility in excess of just and reasonable charges shall be included in account 426, Other Income Deductions.

F. The arrangement or sequence of the accounts prescribed herein shall not be controlling as to the arrangement or sequence in report forms which may be prescribed by the Commission.

3. Numbering System.

A. The account numbering plan used herein consists of a system of three-digit whole numbers as follows:

100–199	Assets and other debits.
200–299	Liabilities and other credits.
300–399	Plant accounts.
400–439	Income accounts.
480–499	Revenue accounts.
700–799	Production, transmission and distribution expenses.
900–949	Customer accounts, sales and general administrative expenses.

B. In certain instances, numbers have been skipped in order to allow for possible later expansion or to permit better coordination with the numbering system for other utility departments.

C. The numbers prefixed to account titles are to be considered as part of the titles. Each utility, however, may adopt for its own purposes a different system of account numbers (See also general instruction 2D) provided that the numbers herein prescribed shall appear in the descriptive headings of the ledger accounts and in the various sources of original entry; however, if a utility uses a different group of account numbers and it is not practicable to show the prescribed account numbers in the various sources of original entry, such reference to the prescribed account numbers may be omitted from the various sources of original entry. Moreover, each utility using different account numbers for its own purposes shall keep readily available a list of such account numbers which it uses and a reconciliation of such account numbers with the account numbers provided herein. It is intended that the utility's records shall be so kept as to permit ready analysis by prescribed accounts (by direct reference to sources of original entry to the extent practicable) and to permit preparation of financial and operating statements directly from such records at the end of each accounting period according to the prescribed accounts.

4. Accounting Period.

Each utility in Class C shall keep its books on a monthly basis so that for each accounting period all transactions applicable thereto, as nearly as may be ascertained, shall be entered in the books of the utility. Each utility shall close its books at the end of each calendar year unless otherwise authorized by the Commission.

5. Submittal of Questions.

To maintain uniformity of accounting, utilities shall submit questions of doubtful interpretation to the Commission for consideration and decision.

6. Item Lists.

Lists of "items" appearing in the texts of the accounts or elsewhere herein are for the purpose of more clearly indicating the application of the prescribed accounting. The lists are intended to be representative, but not exhaustive. The appearance of an item in a list warrants the inclusion of the item in the account mentioned only when the text of the account also indicates inclusion inasmuch as the same item frequently appears in more than one list. The proper entry in each instance must be determined by the texts of the accounts.

7. Accounting To Be on Accrual Basis.

A. The utility is required to keep its accounts on the accrual basis. This requires the inclusion in its accounts of all known transactions of appreciable amount which affect the accounts. If bills covering such transactions have not been received or rendered, the amounts shall be estimated and appropriate adjustments made when the bills are received.

B. When payments are made in advance for items such as insurance, rents, taxes, or interest, the amount applicable to future periods shall be charged to account 165, Prepayments, and spread over the periods to which applicable by credits to account 165, and charges to the accounts appropriate for the expenditure.

8. Distribution of Pay and Expenses of Employees.

The charges to gas plant, operating expense and other accounts for services and expenses of employees engaged in activities chargeable to various accounts, such as construction, maintenance, and operations, shall be based upon the actual time engaged in the respective classes of work, or in case that method is impracticable, upon the basis of a study of the time actually engaged during a representative period.

9. Payroll Distribution.

Underlying accounting data shall be maintained so that the distribution of the cost of labor charged direct to the various accounts will be readily available. Such underlying data shall permit a reasonably accurate distribution to be made of the cost of labor charged initially to clearing accounts so that the total labor cost may be classified among construction, cost of removal, gas operating functions (production, storage, transmission, distribution, etc.) and nonutility operations.

10. Operating Reserves.

Accretions to operating reserve accounts made by charges to operating expenses shall not exceed a reasonable provision for the expense. Material balances in such reserve accounts shall not be diverted from the purpose for which provided unless the permission of the Commission is first obtained.

11. Accounting for Other Departments.

If the utility also operates other utility departments, such as electric, water, etc., it shall keep such accounts for the other departments as may be prescribed by proper authority and in the absence of prescribed accounts, it shall keep such accounts as are proper or necesary to reflect the results of operating each such department. It is not intended that proprietary and similar accounts which apply to the utility as a whole shall be departmentalized.

12. Gas Well Records.

Each utility with natural gas operations shall maintain operating or accounting records for each well showing (a) acreage on which drilled, (b) dates of drilling period, (c) cost of drilling, (d) depth of well, (e) particulars and depth of each stratum drilled through, (f) geological formation from which gas is obtained, (g) initial rock pressure and open flow capacity, (h) sizes of casing used and lengths of each size, (i) total cost of well as recorded in gas plant accounts, (j) date well abandoned, for wells once productive, (k) date transferred to underground storage plant, for wells converted to storage use, and (l) date drilling discontinued, for wells determined to be nonproductive. The foregoing data, as appropriate, shall also be maintained for each subsequent change in the depth of each well.

Gas Plant Instructions

1. Gas Plant To Be Recorded at Cost.

A. All amounts included in the accounts for gas plant acquired as an operating unit or system, except as otherwise provided in the texts of the intangible plant accounts, shall be stated at the cost incurred by the person who first devoted the property to utility service. All other gas plant shall be included in the accounts at the cost incurred by the utility. Where the term "cost" is used in the detailed plant accounts, it shall have the meaning stated in this paragraph.

B. When the consideration given for property is other than cash, the value of such consideration shall be determined on a cash basis. (See, however, definition 8.) In the entry recording such transaction, the actual consideration shall be described with sufficient particularity to identify it. The utility shall be prepared to furnish the Commission the particulars of its determination of the cash value of the consideration if other than cash.

C. When property is purchased under a plan involving deferred payments, no charge shall be made to the gas plant accounts for interest, insurance, or other expenditures occasioned solely by such form of payment.

D. Gas plant contributed to the utility or constructed by it from contributions to it of cash or its equivalent shall be charged to the gas plant accounts at cost of construction, estimated if not known. There shall be credited to the accounts for accumulated depreciation, depletion and amortization the estimated amount of depreciation and amortization applicable to the property at the time of its contribution to the utility. The difference between the amounts included in the gas plant accounts and the accumulated depreciation, depletion and amortization shall be credited to account 271, Contributions in Aid of Construction.

2. Components of Construction Cost.

The cost of construction of property chargeable to the gas plant accounts shall include, where applicable, the cost of labor, materials and supplies, transportation, work done by others for the utility, injuries and damages incurred in construction work, privileges and permits, special machine service, interest during construction and such portion of general engineering, administrative salaries and expenses, insurance, taxes and other analogous items as may be properly includible in construction costs.

3. Overhead Construction Costs.

A. All overhead construction costs, such as engineering, supervision, general office salaries and expenses, construction engineering and supervision by others than the accounting utility, law expenses, insurance, injuries and damages, relief and pensions, taxes and interest, shall be charged to particular jobs or units on the basis of the amounts of such overheads reasonably applicable thereto, to the end that each job or unit shall bear its equitable proportion of such costs and that the entire cost of the unit, both direct and overhead, shall be deducted from the plant accounts at the time the property is retired.

B. As far as practicable, the determination of payroll charges includible in construction overheads shall be based on timecard distributions thereof. Where this procedure is impractical, special studies shall be made periodically of the time of supervisory employees devoted to construction activities to the end that only such overhead costs as have a definite relation to construction shall be capitalized. The addition to direct construction costs of arbitrary percentages or amounts to cover assumed overhead costs is not permitted.

4. Gas Plant Purchased or Sold.

A. When gas plant constituting an operating unit or system is acquired by purchase, merger, consolidation, liquidation, or otherwise, after the effective date of this system of accounts, the costs of acquisition, including expenses incidental thereto properly includible in utility plant, shall be charged to account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold.

B. The accounting for the acquisition shall then be completed as follows:

(1) The original cost of plant, estimated if not known, shall be credited to account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold, and concurrently charged to the appropriate utility plant in service accounts and to account 104, Gas Plant Leased to Others, account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, and account 107, Construction Work in Progress—Gas, as appropriate.

(2) The depreciation, depletion and amortization applicable to the original cost of the properties purchased, shall be charged to account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold, and concurrently credited to the account for accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion and amortization.

(3) The cost to the utility of any property includible in account 121, Nonutility Property, shall be transferred thereto.

(4) The amount of contributions in aid of construction applicable to the property acquired shall be charged to account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold, and concurrently credited to account 271, Contributions in Aid of Construction, unless otherwise authorized by the Commission.

(5) The amount remaining in account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold, shall then be closed to account 114, Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments.

C. If property acquired in the purchase of an operating unit or system is in such physical condition when acquired that it is necessary substantially to rehabilitate it in order to bring the property up to the standards of the utility, the cost of such work, except replacements, shall be accounted for as a part of the purchase price of the property.

D. When any property acquired as an operating unit or system includes duplicate or other plant which will be retired by the accounting utility in the reconstruction of the acquired property or its consolidation with previously owned property, the proposed accounting for such property shall be presented to the Commission.

E. In connection with the acquisition of gas plant constituting an operating unit or system, the utility shall procure, if possible, all existing records relating to the property acquired, or certified copies thereof, and shall preserve such records in conformity with regulations or practices governing the preservation of records of its own construction.

F. When gas plant constituting an operating unit or system is sold, conveyed, or transferred to another by sale, merger, consolidation, or otherwise, the book cost of the property sold or transferred to another shall be credited to the appropriate gas plant accounts, including amounts carried in account 114, Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments, and the amounts (estimated if not known) carried with respect thereto in the accounts for accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion, and amortization and in account 252, Customer Advances for Construction, and account 271, Contributions in Aid of Construction, shall be charged to such accounts and the contra entries made to account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold. Unless otherwise ordered by the Commission, the difference, if any, between (a) the net amount of debits and credits and (b) the consideration received for the property (less commissions and other expenses of making the sale) shall be included in account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus. (See account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold.)

NOTE: In cases where existing utilities merge or consolidate because of financial or operating reasons or statutory requirements rather than as a means of transferring title of purchased properties to a new owner, the accounts of the constituent utilities, with the approval of the Commission, may be combined. In the event original cost has not been determined, the resulting utility shall proceed to determine such cost as outlined herein.

5. Expenditures on Leased Property.

A. The cost of substantial initial improvements (including repairs, rearrangements, additions and betterments) made in the course of preparing for utility service property leased for a period of more than one year, and the cost of subsequent substantial additions, replacements, or betterments to such property, shall be charged to the gas plant account appropriate for the class of property leased. If the service life of the improvements is terminable by action of the lease, the cost, less net salvage, of the improvements shall be spread over the life of the lease by charges to account 404, Amortization of Limited-Term Gas Plant. However, if the service life is not terminated by action of the lease but by depreciation proper, the cost of the improvements, less net salvage, shall be accounted for as depreciable plant.

B. If improvements made to property leased for a period of more than one year are of relatively minor cost, or if the lease is for a period of not more than one year, the cost of the improvements shall be charged to the account in which the rent is included, either directly or by amortization thereof.

6. Land and Land Rights.

A. The accounts for land and land rights shall include the cost of land owned in fee by the utility and rights, interests, and privileges held by the utility in land owned by others, such as leaseholds, easements, rights of way, natural gas rights, and other like interests in land.

B. Where special assessments for public improvements provide for deferred payments, the full amount of the assessments shall be charged to the appropriate land account and the unpaid balance shall be carried in an appropriate liability account. Interest on unpaid balances shall be charged to the appropriate interest account. If any part of the cost of public improvements is included in the general tax levy, the amount thereof shall be charged to the appropriate tax account.

C. The net profit from the sale of timber, cord wood, or other property acquired with rights of way or other lands shall be credited to the appropriate land and land rights or clearing land account. Where land is held for a considerable period of time and timber on the land at the time of purchase increases in value, the net profit (after giving effect to the cost of the timber) from the sales of timber or its products shall be credited to account 421, Miscellaneous Nonoperating Income.

D. Separate entries shall be made for the acquisition, transfer or retirement of each parcel of land, and each land right (except rights of way for distribution lines), or water right, having a life of more than one year. A record shall be maintained showing the nature of ownership, full legal description, area, map reference, purpose for which used, city, county, and tax district in which situated, from whom purchased or to whom sold, payment given or received, other costs, contract date and number, date of recording of deed, and book and page of record. Entries transferring or retiring land or land rights shall refer to the original entry recording its acquisition.

E. Any difference between the amount received from the sale of land or land rights, less agents' commissions and other costs incident to the sale, and the book cost of such land or rights, shall be included in account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, as appropriate, unless a reserve therefor has been authorized and provided. Appropriate adjustments of the accounts shall be made with respect to any structures or improvements located on land sold.

F. The cost of buildings and other improvements (other than public improvements) shall not be included in the land accounts. If at the time of acquisition of an interest in land such interest extends to buildings or other improvements (other than public improvements), which are then devoted to utility operations, the land and improvements shall be separately appraised and the cost allocated to land and buildings or improvements on the basis of the appraisals. If the improvements are removed or wrecked without being used in operations, the cost of removing or wrecking shall be charged and the salvage credited to the account in which the cost of the land is recorded.

G. When the purchase of land for gas operations requires the purchase of more land than needed for such purposes, the charge to the specific land account shall be based upon the cost of the land purchased, less the fair market value of that portion of the land which is not to be used in utility operations. The portion of the cost measured by the fair market value of the land not to be used shall be included in account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, or account 121, Nonutility Property, as appropriate. Regarding land and land rights held for the production of natural gas, account 101, Gas Plant in Service shall include (1) the cost of lands owned in fee upon which producing natural gas wells are located or land owned in fee which are being drained through the operation by the utility of wells on the other land, and (2) the first cost of lands held under lease upon which the utility pays royalties for the natural gas obtained therefrom. The cost of all other land and land rights held for the production of natural gas under a definite plan for such use shall be included in account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use.

NOTE: In addition to the accounting records prescribed herein, supplemental records of land and land rights held for future use shall be kept in such manner as to permit the segregation within a reasonable time of the land and land rights constituting (1) productive but nonproducing fields, (2) unproven or undeveloped fields, and (3) storage fields, and to show the following data with respect to each natural gas lease, regardless of the accounting treatment accorded the lease costs: (a) name of lessor, (b) location of leasehold and number of other identification assigned thereto, (c) date and period of lease agreement, (d) first cost of lease including details of the elements of such cost, (e) annual rental provisions, (f) date and cost of drilling, (g) date gas determined to exist, (h) date of completion of first well drilled by the utility in each pool of gas, (i) royalty provisions, (j) amortization and depletion provisions, and (k) date of abandonment of lease.

H. Provision shall be made for amortizing amounts carried in the accounts for limited-term interests in land, so as to apportion equitably the cost of each interest over the life thereof. For the purposes of amortization of natural gas rights, separate intersts in land which comprise an interest in a production area may be grouped to form a depletion unit. (See account 403, Depreciation and Depletion Expense, and account 110, Accumulated Provision for Depreciation, Depletion and Amortization of Gas Plant, for the accounting for depletion of producing natural gas lands and land rights. See also account 722, Abandoned Leases, for the accounting for abandonments of natural gas leases which have never been productive.)

I. The items of cost to be included in the accounts for land and land rights are as follows:

1. Bulkheads, buried, not requiring maintenance or replacement.
2. Cost, first, of acquisition including mortgages and other liens assumed (but not subsequent interest thereon).
3. Clearing (first cost) the land of brush, trees, and debris.
4. Condemnation proceedings, including court and counsel costs.
5. Consents and abutting damages, payment for.
6. Conveyancers' and notaries' fees.
7. Fees, commissions, and salaries to brokers, agents and others in connection with the acquisition of the land or land rights.
8. Grading the land, except when directly occasioned by the building of a structure.
9. Leases, cost of voiding upon purchase to secure possession of land.
10. Removing, relocating, or reconstructing property of others such as buildings, highways, railroads, bridges, cemeteries, churches, telephone and power lines, etc., in order to acquire quiet possession.
11. Retaining walls unless identified with structures.
12. Special assessments levied by public authorities for public improvements on the basis of benefits for new roads, new bridges, new sewers, new curbing, new pavements, and other public improvements, but not taxes levied to provide for the maintenance of such improvements.
13. Surveys in connection with the acquisition, but not amounts paid for topographical surveys and maps where such costs are attributable to structures or plant equipment erected or to be erected or installed on such land.
14. Taxes assumed, accrued to date of transfer of title.
15. Title, examining, clearing, insuring and registering in connection with the acquisition and defending against claims relating to the period prior to the acquisition.
16. Appraisals prior to closing title.
17. Cost of dealing with distributees or legatees residing outside of the State or county, such as recording power of attorney, recording will or exemplification of will, recording satisfaction of State tax.
18. Filing satisfaction of mortgage.
19. Documentary stamps.
20. Photographs of property at acquisition.
21. Fees and expenses incurred in the acquisition of water rights and grants.
22. Cost of fill to extend bulkhead line over land under water, where riparian rights are held, which is not occasioned by the erection of a structure.
23. Sidewalks and curbs constructed by the utility on public property.
24. Labor and expenses in connection with securing rights of way, where performed by company employees and company agents.

7. Structures and Improvements.

A. The accounts for structures and improvements shall include the cost of all buildings and facilities to house, support, or safeguard property or persons, including all fixtures permanently attached to and made a part of buildings and which cannot be removed therefrom without cutting into the walls, ceilings, or floors, or without in some way impairing the buildings, and improvements of a permanent character on or to land.

B. The cost of specially provided foundations not intended to outlast the machinery or apparatus for which provided, and the cost of angle irons, castings, etc., installed at the base of any item of equipment, shall be charged to the same account as the cost of the machinery, apparatus, or equipment.

C. Minor buildings and structures shall be considered a part of the facility in connection with which constructed or operated and the cost thereof accounted for accordingly when the nature of the structure and facility indicates the correctness of such accounting.

D. Where furnaces and boilers are used primarily for furnishing steam for some particular department and only incidentally for furnishing steam for heating a building and operating the equipment therein, the entire cost of such furnaces and boilers shall be charged to the appropriate plant account, and no part to the building account.

E. The cost of disposing of materials excavated in connection with construction of structures shall be considered as a part of the cost of such work, except as follows: (a) When such material is used for filling, the cost of loading, hauling, and dumping shall be equitably apportioned between the work in connection with which the removal occurs and the work in connection with which the material is used; (b) When such material is sold, the net amount realized from such sales shall be credited to the work in connection with which the removal occurs. If the amount realized from the sale of excavated materials exceeds the removal costs and the costs in connection with the sale, the excess shall be credited to the land account in which the site is carried.

F. Lighting or other fixtures temporarily attached to buildings for purposes of display or demonstration shall not be included in the cost of the building but in the appropriate equipment account.

G. The items of cost to be included in the accounts for structures and improvements are as follows:

1. Architects' plans and specifications including supervision.
2. Athletic field structures and improvements.
3. Boilers, furnaces, piping, wiring, fixtures, and machinery for heating, lighting, signaling, ventilating, and air conditioning systems, plumbing, vacuum cleaning systems, incinerator and smoke pipe, flues, etc.
4. Bulkheads, including dredging, riprap fill, piling, decking, concrete, fenders, etc., when exposed and subject to maintenance and replacement.

8. Damages to abutting property during construction.
9. Drainage and sewerage systems.
10. Elevators, cranes, hoists, etc., and the machinery for operating them.
11. Excavation, including shoring, bracing, bridging, refill, and disposal of excess excavated material, cofferdams around foundation, pumping water from cofferdam during construction, test borings.
12. Fences and fence curbs (not including protective fences isolating items of equipment, which shall be charged to the appropriate equipment account).
13. Fire protection systems when forming a part of a structure.
14. Foundations and piers for machinery, constructed as a permanent part of a building or other item listed herein.
15. Grading and clearing when directly occasioned by the building of a structure.
16. Intrasite communication system, poles, pole fixtures, wires and cables.
17. Landscaping, lawns, shrubbery, etc.

36. Wharves.

NOTE: Structures and Improvements accounts shall be credited with the cost of coal bunkers, stacks, foundations, subways, tunnels, etc., the use of which has terminated with the removal of the equipment with which they are associated even though they have not been physically removed.

8. Equipment.

A. The cost of equipment chargeable to the gas plant accounts, unless otherwise indicated in the text of an equipment account, includes the net purchase price thereof, sales taxes, investigation and inspection expenses necessary to such purchase, expenses of transportation when borne by the utility, labor employed, materials and supplies consumed, and expenses incurred by the utility in unloading and placing the equipment in readiness to operate.

B. Exclude from equipment accounts hand and other portable tools, which are likely to be lost or stolen or which have relatively small value (for example, $50 or less) or short life, unless the correctness of the accounting therefor as gas plant is verified by current inventories. Special tools acquired and included in the purchase price of equipment shall be included in the appropriate plant account. Portable drills and similar tool equipment when used in connection with the operation and maintenance of a particular plant or department, such as production, transmission, distribution, etc., or in "stores," shall be charged to the plant account appropriate for their use.

C. The equipment accounts shall include angle irons and similar items which are installed at the base of an item of equipment, but piers and foundations which are designed to be as permanent as the buildings which house the equipment, or which are constructed as a part of the building and which cannot be removed without cutting into the walls, ceilings or floors or without in some way impairing the building, shall be included in the building accounts.

D. The equipment accounts shall include the necessary costs of testing or running a plant or part thereof during an experimental or test period prior to becoming available for service. The utility shall furnish the Commission with full particulars of and justification for any test or experimental run extending beyond a period of thirty days.

E. The cost of efficiency or other tests made subsequent to the date equipment becomes available for service shall be charged to the appropriate expense accounts, except that tests to determine whether equipment meets the specifications and requirements as to efficiency, performance, etc., guaranteed by manufacturers, made after operations have commenced and within the period specified in the agreement or contract of purchase, may be charged to the appropriate gas plant account.

9. Additions and Requirements of Gas Plant.

A. For the purpose of avoiding undue refinement in accounting for additions to and retirements and replacements of gas plant, all property shall be considered as consisting of (1) retirement units and (2) minor items of property. Each utility shall use such list of retirement units as is in use by it at the effective date hereof or as may be prescribed by the Commission, with the option, however, of using smaller units, provided the utility's practice in this respect is consistent.

B. The addition and retirement of retirement units shall be accounted for as follows:

(1) When a retirement unit is added to gas plant, the cost thereof shall be added to the appropriate gas plant account, except that when units are acquired in the acquisition of any gas plant constituting an operating system, they shall be accounted for as provided in gas plant instruction 4.

(2) When a retirement unit is retired from gas plant, with or without replacement, the book cost thereof shall be credited to the gas plant account in which it is included, determined in the manner set forth in paragraph D, below. If the retirement unit is of a depreciable class, the book cost of the unit retired and credited to gas plant shall be charged to the accumulated provision for depreciation applicable to such property. The cost of removal and the salvage shall be charged or credited, as appropriate, to such depreciation account.

C. The addition and retirement of minor items of property shall be accounted for as follows:

(1) When a minor item of property which did not previously exist is added to plant, the cost thereof shall be accounted for in the same manner as for the addition of a retirement unit, as set forth in paragraph B(1), above, if a substantial addition results, otherwise the charge shall be to the appropriate maintenance expense account.

(2) When a minor item of property is retired and not replaced, the book cost thereof shall be credited to the gas plant account in which it is included; and, in the event the minor item is a part of depreciable plant, the account for accumulated provision for depreciation shall be charged with the book cost and cost of removal and credited with the salvage. If, however, the book cost of the minor item retired and not replaced has been or will be accounted for by its inclusion in the retirement unit of which it is a part when such unit is retired, no separate credit to the property account is required when such minor item is retired.

(3) When a minor item of depreciable property is replaced independently of the retirement unit of which it is a part, the cost of replacement shall be charged to the maintenance account appropriate for the item, except that if the replacement effects a substantial betterment (the primary aim of which is to make the property affected more useful, more efficient, of greater durability, or of greater capacity), the excess cost of the replacement over the estimated cost at current prices of replacing without betterment shall be charged to the appropriate gas plant account.

D. The book cost of gas plant retired shall be the amount at which such property is included in the utility plant accounts, including all components of construction costs. The book cost shall be determined from the utility's records and if this cannot be done, it shall be estimated. When it is impracticable to determine the book cost of each unit, due to the relatively large number or small cost thereof, an appropriate average book cost of the units, with due allowance for any differences in size and character, shall be used as the book cost of the units required.

E. The book cost of land retired shall be credited to the appropriate land account. If the land is sold, the difference between the book cost (less any accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion or amoritization therefor which has been authorized and provided) and the sale price of the land (less commissions and other expenses of making the sale) shall be included in account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, as appropriate. If the land is not used in utility service but is retained by the utility, the book cost shall be charged to account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, or account 121, Nonutility Property, as appropriate.

F. The book cost less net salvage of gas plant retired shall be charged in its entirety to account 110, Accumulated Provision for Depreciation, Depletion and Amortization of Gas Plant. Any amounts which, by approval or order of the Commission, are charged to account 182, Extraordinary Property Losses, shall be credited to account 110, Accumulated Provision for Depreciation, Depletion and Amortization of Gas Plant.

10. Transfers of Property.

When property is transferred from one gas plant account to another, from one utility department to another, such as from gas to electric, from one operating division or area to another, to or from Gas Plant in Service, Gas Plant Leased to Others, Gas Plant Held for Future Use, and Nonutility Property, the transfer shall be recorded by transferring the original cost thereof from one account, department, or location to the other. Any related amounts carried in the accounts for accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion or amortization shall be transferred in accordance with the segregation of such accounts.

11. Common Utility Plant.

A. If the utility is engaged in more than one utility service such as electric, gas, and water, and any of its utility plant is used in common for several utility services or for other purposes to such an extent and in such a manner that it is impracticable to segregate it by utility services currently in the accounts, such property, with the approval of the Commission, may be designated and classified as "common utility plant."

B. The book amount of utility plant designated as common plant shall be included in account 118, Other Utility Plant, and if applicable in part to gas department, shall be segregated and accounted for in subaccounts as gas plant is accounted for in accounts 101 to 107, inclusive, and gas plant adjustments in account 116; any amounts classifiable as common plant acquisition adjustments or common plant adjustments shall be subject to disposition as provided in paragraph C and B of accounts 114 and 116, respectively, for amounts classified in those accounts. The original cost of common utility plant in service shall be classified according to detailed utility plant accounts appropriate for the property.

C. The utility shall be prepared to show at any time and to report to the Commission annually, or more frequently, if required, and by utility plant accounts (301 to 399) the following: (1) the book cost of common utility plant, (2) the allocation of such cost to the respective departments using the common utility plant, and (3) the basis of the allocation.

D. The accumulated provision for depreciation and amortization of the utility shall be segregated so as to show the amount applicable to the property classified as common utility plant.

E. The expenses of operation, maintenance, rents, depreciation, and amortization of common utility plant shall be recorded in the accounts prescribed herein, but designated as common expenses, and the allocation of such expenses to the departments using the common utility plant shall be supported in such manner as to reflect readily the basis of allocation used.

12. Transmission and Distribution Plant.

For the purposes of this system of accounts:

A. "Transmission System" means the land, structures, mains, valves, meters, boosters, regulators, tanks, compressors and their driving units and appurtenances, and other equipment used primarily for transmitting gas from a production plant, delivery point of purchased gas, gathering system, storage area, or other wholesale source of gas, to one or more distribution areas. The transmission system begins at the outlet side of the valve at the connection to the last equipment in a manufactured gas plant, the connection to gathering lines or delivery point of purchased gas, and includes the equipment at such connection that is used to bring the gas to transmission pressure, and ends at the inlet side of the equipment which meters or regulates the entry of gas into the distribution system or into a storage area. It does not include storage land, structures or equipment. Pipe line companies, however, shall include city gate and main line industrial measuring and regulating stations in the transmission function, except that where pipe line companies measure deliveries of gas to their own distribution systems they shall have the option, if consistently observed, of including such stations either in the transmission or distribution function for the purposes of this system of accounts.

B. "Distribution System" means the mains which are provided primarily for distributing gas within a distribution area, together with land, structures, valves, regulators, services and measuring devices, including the mains for transportation of gas from production plants or points of receipt located within such distribution area to other points therein. The distribution system begins at the inlet side of the equipment which meters or regulates the entry of gas into the distribution system and ends with and includes property on the customer's premises. It does not include storage land, structures, or equipment.

C. "Distribution Area" as used herein means a metropolitan area or other urban area comprising one or more adjacent or nearby cities, villages or unincorporated areas, including developed areas contiguous to main highways.

Operating Expense Instructions

1. Maintenance.

A. The cost of maintenance chargeable to the various operating expense and clearing accounts includes labor, materials, overheads and other expenses incurred in maintenance work. A list of work operations applicable generally to utility plant is included hereunder. Other work operations applicable to specific classes of plant are listed in functional maintenance expense accounts.

B. Materials recovered in connection with the maintenance of property shall be credited to the same account to which the maintenance cost was charged.

C. If the book cost of any property is carried in account 102, Gas Plant Purchased or Sold, the cost of maintaining such property shall be charged to the accounts for maintenance of property of the same class and use, the book cost of which is carried in other gas plant in service accounts. Maintenance of property leased from others shall be treated as provided in operating expense instruction 2.

ITEMS

1. Direct field supervision of maintenance.
2. Inspecting, testing, and reporting on condition of plant specifically to determine the need for repairs, replacements, rearrangements and changes and inspecting and testing the adequacy of repairs which have been made.
3. Work performed specifically for the purpose of preventing failure, restoring serviceability or maintaining life of plant.
4. Rearranging and changing the location of plant not retired.
5. Repairing for reuse materials recovered from plant.

2. Rents.

A. The rent expense accounts provided under the several functional groups of expense accounts shall include all rents, including taxes paid by the lessee on leased property, for property used in utility operations, except (1) minor amounts paid for occasional or infrequent use of any property or equipment and all amounts paid for use of equipment that, if owned, would be includible in plant accounts 391 to 398, inclusive, which shall be treated as an expense item and included in the appropriate functional account and (2) rents which are chargeable to clearing accounts, and distributed therefrom to the appropriate account. If rents cover property used for more than one function, such as production and transmission, or by more than one department, the rents shall be apportioned to the appropriate rent expense or clearing accounts of each department on an actual, or, if necessary, an estimated basis.

B. When a portion of property or equipment rented from others for use in connection with utility operations is subleased, the revenue derived from such subleasing shall be credited to the rent revenue account in operating revenues; provided, however, that in case the rent was charged to a clearing account, amounts received from subleasing the property shall be credited to such clearing account.

C. The cost, when incurred by the lessee, of operating and maintaining leased property, shall be charged to the accounts appropriate for the expense if the property were owned.

D. The cost incurred by the lessee of additions and replacements to gas plant leased from others shall be accounted for as provided in gas plant instruction 5.

The detail or primary accounts in support of this account employed prior to such date shall be continued pending reclassification into the gas plant accounts herein prescribed (301–399), but shall not be used for additions, betterments, or new construction.

B. No charges other than as provided in paragraph A, above, shall be made to this account, but retirements of such unclassified gas plant shall be credited hereto and to the supporting (old) fixed capital accounts until the reclassification shall have been accomplished.

104 Gas plant leased to others.

A. This account shall include the original cost of gas plant owned by the utility, but leased to others as operating units or systems, where the lessee has exclusive possession.

B. The property included in this account shall be classified according to the detailed accounts (301–399) prescribed for gas plant in service, and this account shall be maintained in such detail as though the property were used by the owner in its utility operations.

105 Gas plant held for future use.

A. This account shall include the original cost of property owned and held for future use in gas service under a definite plan for such use. There shall be included herein property acquired but never used by the utility in gas service, but held for such service in the future under a definite plan, and property previously used by the utility in utility service, but retired from such service and held pending its reuse in the future, under a definite plan, in gas service. This includes land and land rights held to insure a future supply of natural gas.

B. The property included in this account shall be classified according to the detailed accounts (301–399) prescribed for gas plant in service and the account shall be maintained in such detail as though the property were in service.

Note A: Materials and supplies, meters and transformers held in reserve, or normal spare capacity of plant in service shall not be included in this account.

Note B: Include in this account natural gas wells shut in after construction which have not been connected with the line; also, natural gas wells which have been connected with the line but which are shut in for any reason excepting seasonal excess capacity or governmental proration requirements or for repairs.

107 Construction work in progress—Gas.

This account shall include the total of the balances of work orders for utility plant in process of construction but not ready for service at the date of the balance sheet.

110 Accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion and amortization of gas plant.

(1) Amounts charged to account 403, Depreciation and Depletion Expense, to account 404, Amortization of Limited-Term Gas Plant, to account 405, Amortization of Other Gas Plant, to account 413, Expenses of Gas Plant Leased to Others, to account 416, Costs and Expenses of Merchandising, Jobbing and Contract Work, or to clearing accounts for currently accruing depreciation, depletion, and amortization.

(2) Amounts charged to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, for past accrued depreciation, depletion or amortization.

(3) Amounts of depreciation, depletion or amortization applicable to gas properties acquired as operating units or systems. (See gas plant instruction 4.)

(4) Amounts chargeable to account 182, Extraordinary Property Losses, when authorized by the Commission.

(5) Amounts of depreciation applicable to gas plant donated to the utility.

B. At the time of retirement of gas plant, this account shall be charged with the book cost of the property retired and the cost of removal, and shall be credited with the salvage value and any other amounts recovered, such as insurance. When retirements, cost of removal and salvage are entered originally in retirement work orders, the net total of such work orders may be included in a separate subaccount hereunder. Upon completion of the work order, the proper distribution to subdivisions of this account shall be made as provided in the following paragraph.

C. For general ledger and balance sheet purposes, this account shall be regarded and treated as a single composite provision for depreciation. The account shall be subdivided to show the amount, applicable to Gas Plant in Service, Gas Plant Leased to Others, and Gas Plant Held for Future Use. These subsidiary records shall show the current credits and debits to this account in sufficient detail to show separately for each subdivision, (1) the amount of accrual for depreciation or amortization, (2) the book cost of property retired, (3) cost of removal, (4) salvage and (5) other items, including recoveries from insurance. The utility also shall maintain subsidiary records in accordance with these provisions for accumulated depletion and amortization provisions for natural gas lands and land rights in service.

D. When transfers of plant made from one gas plant account to another, or from or to nonutility property, the accounting shall be as provided in gas plant instruction 10.

E. The utility is restricted in its use of the accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion and amortization to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer any portion of this account to surplus or make any other use thereof without authorization by the Commission.

114 Gas plant acquisition adjustments.

A. This account shall include the difference between (a) the cost to the accounting utility of gas plant acquired as an operating unit or system by purchase, merger, consolidation, liquidation, or otherwise, and (b) the original cost, estimated if not known, of such property, less the amount or amounts credited by the accounting utility at the time of acquisition to accumulated provision for depreciation, depletion and amortization and contributions in aid of construction with respect to such property.

B. With respect to acquisitions after the effective date of this system of accounts, this account shall be subdivided so as to show the amounts included herein for each property acquisition and to gas plant in service, gas plant held for future use and gas plant leased to others. (See gas plant instruction 4.)

C. The amounts recorded in this account with respect to each property acquisition shall be amortized, or otherwise disposed of, as the Commission may approve or direct.

116 Other gas plant adjustments.

A. This account shall include the difference between the original cost, estimated if not known, and the book cost of gas plant to the extent that such difference is not properly includible in account 114, Gas Plant Acquisition Adjustments.

B. Amounts included in this account shall be classified in such manner as to show the origin of each amount and shall be disposed of as the Commission may approve or direct.

Note: The provisions of this account shall not be construed as approving or authorizing the recording of appreciation of gas plant.

118 Other utility plant.

This account shall include the balance in accounts for utility plant, other than gas plant, such as electric, railway, etc.

119 Accumulated provision for depreciation and amortization of other utility plant.

This account shall include the accumulated provision for depreciation and amortization applicable to utility property other than gas plant.

2. Other Property and Investments

121 Nonutility property.

A. This account shall include the book cost of land, structures, equipment or other tangible or intangible property owned by the utility, but not used in utility service and not properly includible in account 105, Gas Plant Held for Future Use.

B. This account shall be subdivided so as to show the amount of property used in operations which are nonutility in character but nevertheless constitute a distinct operating activity of the company (such as operation of an ice department where such activity is not classed as a utility) and the amount of miscellaneous property not used in operations. The records in support of each subaccount shall be maintained so as to show an appropriate classification of the property.

122 Accumulated provision for depreciation and amortization of nonutility property.

This account shall include the accumulated provision for depreciation and amortization applicable to nonutility property.

124 Other investments.

A. This account shall include the book cost of investments in securities issued or assumed by other companies, investment advances to such companies, and any investments not accounted for elsewhere. B. The cost of capital stock of the utility reacquired by it under a definite plan for resale pursuant to authorization by the Board of Directors may, if permitted by statutes, be included in a separate subdivision of this account. (See also account 207, Other Paid-in Capital, and account 217, Reacquired Capital Stock.)

C. The records shall be maintained in such manner as to show the amount of each investment and the investment advances to each person.

Note B: Securities held as temporary cash investments shall not be included in this account.

Note C: The utility may write down the cost of any security in recognition of a decline in the value thereof. Securities shall be written off or written down to a nominal value if there be no reasonable prospect of substantial value. Fluctuations in market value shall not be recorded but a permanent impairment in the value of securities shall be recognized in the accounts. When securities are written off or written down, the amount of the adjustment shall be charged to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, or to an appropriate account for provisions for loss in value established as a separate subdivision of this account.

125 Special funds.

This account shall include the amount of cash and book cost of investments which have been segregated in special funds for bond retirements, property additions and replacements, insurance, employees' pensions, savings, relief, hospital, and other purposes not provided for elsewhere. A separate account, with appropriate title, shall be kept for each fund.

NOTE: Amounts deposited with a trustee under the terms of an irrevocable trust agreement for pensions or other employees' benefits shall not be included in this account.

3. CURRENT AND ACCRUED ASSETS

Current and accrued assets are cash, those assets which are readily convertible into cash or are held for current use in operations or construction, current claims against others, payment of which is reasonably assured, and amounts accruing to the utility which are subject to current settlement, except such items for which accounts other than those designated as current and accrued assets are made therefor. There shall not be included in the group of accounts designated as current and accrued assets any item, the amount or collectibility of which is not reasonably assured, unless an adequate provision for possible loss has been provided. Items of current character but of doubtful value may be written down and for record purposes carried in these accounts at nominal value.

131 Cash and working funds.

This account shall include the amount of cash on hand and in banks and cash advanced to officers, agents, employees, and others as petty cash or working funds. Special cash deposits for payment of interest, dividends or other special purposes shall be included in this account in separate subdivisions which shall specify the purpose for which each such special deposit is made.

NOTE: Special deposits for more than one year, which are not offset by current liabilities, shall not be charged to this account but to account 125, Special Funds.

132 Temporary cash investments.

A. This account shall include the book cost of investments, such as demand and time loans, bankers' acceptances, United States Treasury certificates, marketable securities, and other similar investments, acquired for the purpose of temporarily investing cash.

A. These accounts shall include notes and drafts upon which associated companies are liable, and which mature and are expected to be paid in full not later than one year from date of issue, together with any interest thereon, and debit balances subject to current settlement in open accounts with associated companies. 150 Materials and supplies.

A. This account shall include the cost of fuel on hand and unapplied materials and supplies (except meters and house regulators). It shall include also the book cost of materials recovered in connection with construction, maintenance or the retirement of property, such materials being credited to construction, maintenance, or accumulated depreciation provision, respectively, and included herein as follows:

(1) Reusable materials consisting of large individual items shall be included in this account at original cost, estimated if not known. The cost of repairing such items shall be charged to the maintenance account appropriate for the previous use.

(2) Reusable materials consisting of relatively small items, the identity of which (from the date of original installation to the final abandonment or sale thereof) cannot be ascertained without undue refinement in accounting, shall be included in this account at current prices new for such items. The cost of repairing such items shall be charged to the appropriate expense account as indicated by previous use.

(3) Scrap and nonusable materials included in this account shall be carried at the estimated net amount realized therefrom. The difference between the amounts realized for scrap and nonusable materials sold and the net amount at which the materials were carried in this account, as far as practicable shall be adjusted to the accounts credited when the materials were charged to this account.

B. Materials and supplies issued shall be credited hereto and charged to the appropriate construction, operating expense, or other account on the basis of a unit price determined by the use of cumulative average, first-in-first-out, or such other method of inventory accounting as conforms with accepted accounting standards consistently applied.

C. Inventories of materials, supplies, fuel, etc., shall be taken at least annually and the necessary adjustments shall be made to bring this account into agreement with the actual inventories. In effecting the adjustments, large differences which can be assigned to important classes of materials shall be equitably adjusted among the accounts to which such classes of materials have been charged since the previous inventory. Other differences shall be equitably apportioned among the accounts to which materials have been charged.

ITEMS

1. Invoice price of materials less cash or other discounts.
2. Freight, switching or other transportation charges when practicable to include as part of the cost of particular materials to which they relate.
3. Customs duties and excise taxes.

5. Insurance and other directly assignable charges.

NOTE A: Where expenses applicable to materials purchased cannot be directly assigned to particular purchases, they may be charged to a stores expense clearing account and distributed therefrom to the appropriate account.

NOTE B: When materials and supplies are purchased for immediate use, they need not be carried through this account but may be charged directly to the appropriate gas plant or expense account.

164 Gas stored underground.

A. This account shall include the cost of gas purchased or produced by the utility which is stored in depleted or partially depleted gas or oil fields, or other underground reservoirs, and held for use in meeting service requirements of the utility's customers.

B. Gas stored during the year shall be priced at cost according to generally accepted methods of cost determination consistently applied from year to year. Transmission expenses for facilities of the utility used in moving the gas to the storage area and expenses of storage facilities shall not be included in the inventory of gas except as may be authorized or directed by the Commission.

C. Withdrawals of gas may be priced according to the first-in-first-out, last-in-first-out, or weighted average cost method, in connection with which a "base stock" may be employed provided the method adopted by the utility is used consistently from year to year and the inventory records are maintained in accordance therewith. Approval of the Commission must be obtained for any other pricing method, or change in the pricing method adopted by the utility.

D. Amounts debited to this account for gas placed in storage shall be credited to account 734, Gas Delivered to Underground Storage—Credit. Amounts credited to this account for gas withdrawn from storage shall be debited to account 733, Gas Withdrawn from Underground Storage—Debit.

E. Adjustments for inventory losses due to cumulative inaccuracies of gas measurements, or from other causes, shall be charged to account 741, Gas Losses. In the operation of storage projects the utility shall maintain such procedures of verification as will disclose and result in prompt accounting recognition of significant losses.

NOTE A: The utility at balance sheet dates shall reduce this account by such significant amount as does not represent a current asset according to conventional rules of current asset classification. Such reduction shall be offset by a special account, Gas Stored Underground—Noncurrent, to be reported in the balance sheet among other accounts under the caption for utility plant.

NOTE B: If with respect to any storage reservoir, the utility determines that a portion of the stored gas included in this account will not eventually be fully recovered, it may submit for consideration of the Commission, a plan to create a reserve to provide for such anticipated gas losses.

165 Prepayments.

A. This account shall include the amount of rents, taxes, insurance, interest and like disbursements made in advance of the period to which they apply. As the periods covered by such prepayments expire, credit this account and charge the proper operating expense or other account with the amount applicable to the period.

B. This account shall be kept or supported in such manner as to disclose the amount of each class of prepayments.

A. This account shall include the total of the unamortized balance of discount and expense for all classes of long-term debt.

B. The discount and expense shall be amortized over the life of the respective issues under a plan which will distribute the amounts equitably over the life of the securities. The amortization shall be charged to account 428, Amortization of Debt Discount and Expense. The utility may, however, accelerate the writing off of discount and expense where the amounts are insignificant.

182 Extraordinary property losses.

A. When authorized or directed by the Commission, this account shall include extraordinary losses on property abandoned or otherwise retired from service which are not provided for by the accumulated provision for depreciation or amortization and which could not reasonably have been foreseen and provided for, and extraordinary losses, such as unforeseen damages to property, which could not reasonably have been anticipated and which are not covered by insurance or other provisions.

B. The entire cost, less net salvage, of depreciable property retired shall be charged to accumulated provision for depreciation. If all, or a portion of the loss is to be included in this account, the accumulated provision for depreciation shall then be credited and this account charged with the amount properly chargeable hereto.

C. Application to the Commission for permission to use this account shall be accompanied by a statement giving a complete explanation with respect to the items which it is proposed to include herein, the period over which, and the accounts to which it is proposed to write off the charges, and other pertinent information.

183 Other deferred debits.

A. This account shall include the following classes of items:

(1) Expenditures for preliminary surveys, plans, investigations, etc., made for the purpose of determining the feasibility of projects under contemplation. If construction results, this account shall be credited with the amount applicable thereto and the appropriate plant accounts shall be charged with an amount which does not exceed the expenditures which may reasonably be determined to contribute directly and immediately and without duplication to plant. If the work is abandoned, the charge shall be to account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, or to the appropriate operating expense accounts.

(2) Expenditures for preliminary surveys, plans, investigations, etc., made for the purpose of determining the feasibility of acquiring land and land rights to provide a future supply of natural gas. If such land or land rights are acquired, this account shall be credited and the appropriate gas plant account (see gas plant instruction 6G) charged with the amount of expenditures related to such acquisition. Such preliminary survey and investigation charges transferred to gas plant shall not exceed the expenditures which may reasonably be determined to contribute directly and immediately and without duplication to gas plant. If the project is abandoned, the expenditures related thereto shall be charged to account 723, Other Exploration.

(3) Undistributed balances in clearing accounts at the date of the balance sheet. Balances in clearing accounts shall be substantially cleared not later than the end of the calendar year unless items held therein relate to a future period.

(4) Balances representing expenditures for work in progress other than on utility plant. This includes jobbing and contract work in progress.

(5) Other debit balances, the proper final disposition of which is uncertain, and unusual or extraordinary expenses, not included in other accounts, which are in process of being written off.

B. The records supporting the entries to this account shall be so kept that the utility can furnish full information as to each deferred debit included herein. The records supporting entries for preliminary natural gas surveys and investigations shall be so kept that the utility can furnish, for each investigation, complete information as to identification and location of the territory investigated, the number or other identification assigned to the land tract or leasehold acquired, and the nature and respective amounts of the charges.

Any amount representing a prepayment of taxes applicable to the period subsequent to the date of the balance sheet, shall be shown under account 165, Prepayments.

B. If accruals for taxes are found to be insufficient or excessive, correction therefor shall be made through current tax accruals. However, if such corrections are so large as to seriously distort current expenses, they shall be included in account 434, Miscellaneous Credits to Surplus, or account 435, Miscellaneous Debits to Surplus, as appropriate.

Details of these charges shall be maintained according to the year the casualty occurred which gave rise to the loss.

B. Amounts paid by the utility for the purposes for which this reserve is established shall be charged hereto.

C. A separate account shall be kept for each kind of reserve included herein.

NOTE: If employee pension or benefit plan funds are not included among the assets of the utility but are held by outside trustees, payments into such funds, or accruals therefor, shall not be included in this account.

NOTE: There shall not be included in this account advances for construction which are ultimately to be repaid wholly or in part. (See account 252, Customer Advances for Construction.)

11. ACCUMULATED DEFERRED INCOME TAXES

NOTE A: The text of accounts below are designed primarily to cover deferrals of Federal income taxes arising under provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 but the accounts are also applicable to deferrals of State taxes on income.

NOTE B: Natural Gas Companies which, in addition to a gas utility department, have another utility department, electric, water, etc., and which have deferred taxes on income with respect thereto shall classify such deferrals in the accounts provided below under subdivisions for each utility department.

281 Accumulated deferred income taxes—Accelerated amortization.

A. This account shall be credited and account 410, Provision for Deferred Income Taxes, shall be debited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are lower because of the use of accelerated (5-year) amortization of certified defense facilities in computing such taxes, as permitted by Section 168 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (Section 124A of previous Internal Revenue Code), as compared to the depreciation (deduction) otherwise appropriate and allowable for tax purposes according to the straight line or other nonaccelerated depreciation method and appropriate estimated useful life for such property.

B. This account shall be debited and account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, shall be credited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are greater because of the use in prior year of accelerated (5-year) amoritization of certified defense facilities instead of nonaccelerated depreciation otherwise appropriate for income tax purposes, and deferral of taxes in such prior years as described in paragraph A, above. Such debit to this account and credit to account 411 shall, in general, represent the effect on taxes payable for the current year of the unavailability of a depreciation deduction for tax purposes, or a reduced amount, with respect to any depreciable property for which accelerated amortization was used in prior years, as compared to the depreciation deduction otherwise available and appropriate for such property, considering its estimated useful life; according to the depreciation method ordinarily used by the utility for similar property in computing depreciation for tax purposes by a nonaccelerated or nonliberalized depreciation method.

C. Records with respect to entries to this account, as described above, and the account balance, shall be so maintained as to show the factors of calculation and the separate amounts applicable to the facilities of each certification or authorization of accelerated amortization for tax purposes.

D. The use of this account and the accounting described above are not mandatory for any utility which, in accordance with a consistent policy, elects not to follow deferred tax accounting even though accelerated amortization is used in computing taxes on income. If, however, deferred tax accounting is initiated with respect to any certified defense facility, the accounting shall not be suspended or discontinued on the property covered by that certificate, without approval of the Commission.

E. The utility is restricted in its use of this account to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer the balance in this account or any portion thereof to surplus or make any use thereof except as provided in the text of this account without prior approval of the Commission. Any remaining balance of accumulated deferred taxes with respect to any certified defense facility for which deferred tax accounting has been followed shall, upon expiration of the estimated useful life of the facility on which deferred tax calculations were based, or upon retirement from service of such facility or predominant part thereof, be credited to account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, or otherwise be applied as the Commission may authorize or direct.

282 Accumulated deferred income taxes—Liberalized depreciation.

A. This account shall be credited and account 410, Provision for Deferred Income Taxes shall be debited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are lower because of the use of liberalized depreciation in computing such taxes, as permitted by Section 167 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as compared to the depreciation deduction otherwise appropriate and allowable for tax purposes for similar property of the same estimated useful life according to the straight line or other nonliberalized method of depreciation.

B. This account shall be debited and account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, shall be credited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are greater because of the use in prior years of liberalized depreciation for income tax purposes, and deferral of taxes in such prior years as described in paragraph A above. Such debit to this account and credit to account 411, shall, in general, represent the effect on taxes payable for the current year of the smaller amount of depreciation permitted for tax purposes for the current year with respect to any depreciable property for which liberalized depreciation was used in prior years, as compared to the depreciation deduction otherwise appropriate and available for similar property of the same estimated useful life according to the straight line or other nonliberalized depreciation method ordinarily used by the utility in computing depreciation for tax purposes.

C. Records with respect to entries to this account, as described above, and account balance, shall be so maintained as to show the factors of calculation and the separate amounts applicable to the plant additions of each vintage year for each class, group, or unit as to which different liberalized depreciation methods and estimated useful lives have been used. The underlying calculations to segregate and associate deferred tax amounts with the respective vintage years may be based on reasonable methods of approximation, if necessary, consistently applied.

D. The use of this account and the accounting described above are not mandatory for any utility, which in accordance with a consistent policy, elects not to follow deferred tax accounting even though liberalized depreciation is used in computing taxes on income. If, however, deferred tax accounting is initiated with respect to any property, such accounting shall not be discontinued on that property without approval of the Commission.

E. The utility is restricted in its use of this account to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer the balance in the account or any portion thereof to surplus or make any use thereof except as provided in the text of this account without prior approval of the Commission. Any remaining deferred tax reserve balance with respect to any year's plant additions or subdivisions thereof for which liberalized depreciation accounting has been followed or, upon retirement from service of such property or predominant portion thereof, or upon expiration of the estimated useful life on which the depreciation calculations for tax purposes are based, shall be credited to account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, or otherwise applied as the Commission may authorize or direct.

283 Accumulated deferred income taxes—Other.

A. This account, when its use has been authorized by the Commission for specific types of tax deferrals, shall be credited and account 410, Provision for Deferred Taxes on Income, shall be debited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are lower because of the current use of deductions other than accelerated amortization or liberalized depreciation in the computation of income taxes, which deductions for general accounting purposes will not be fully reflected in the utility's determination of annual net income until subsequent years.

B. This account when its use has been authorized by the Commission, shall be debited and account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, shall be credited with an amount equal to that by which taxes on income payable for the year are greater because of deferral of taxes on income in previous years, as provided by paragraph A, above, because of difference in timing for tax purposes of particular income deductions from that recognized by the utility for general accounting purposes, other than with respect to accelerated amortization or liberalized depreciation. Such debit to this account and credit to account 411 shall, in general, represent the effect on taxes payable in the current year of the smaller deduction permitted for tax purposes as compared to the amount recognized in the utility's general accounts with respect to the item or class of items for which deferred tax accounting by the utility was authorized by the Commission.

C. Records with respect to entries to this account, as described above, and the account balance, shall be so maintained as to show the factors of calculation with respect to each annual amount of the item or class of items, other than accelerated amortization or liberalized depreciation, for which tax deferral accounting by the utility is authorized by the Commission.

D. The utility is restricted in its use of this account to the purposes set forth above. It shall not transfer the balance in the accounts or any portion thereof to surplus or make any use thereof except as provided in the text of this account, without prior approval of the Commission. Any remaining deferred tax account balance with respect to an amount for any prior year's tax deferral, the amortization of which or other recognition in the utility's income accounts has been completed, or other disposition made, shall be credited to account 411, Income Taxes Deferred in Prior Years—Credit, or otherwise disposed of as the Commission may authorize or direct.

NOTE: In determining appropriate use of this account as a basis of request to the Commission for authorization of its use, consideration shall be given to the relative importance of the amount involved, and to other items in the utility's accounts where "prepaid tax accounting" may be appropriate, such as situations (a) where the time of taking a deduction in computing taxes on income is such that the tax deduction must be delayed or applied to a series of future years as opposed to earlier recognition of such item in determination of income in the general accounts of the utility, or (b) where inclusion of an income item is required for tax purposes but is to be recognized in whole or in part in the utility's income accounts of a subsequent year or years.

SUBCHAPTER B—SUGAR REQUIREMENTS AND QUOTAS

[Sugar Reg. 811]

PART 811—CONTINENTAL SUGAR REQUIREMENTS AND AREA QUOTAS

Three-Month Period Ending March 31, 1961

Basis and purpose. The purpose of Sugar Regulation 811 is to determine, pursuant to section 201 of the Sugar Act of 1948, as amended, and as further amended by Public Law 86–592, approved July 6, 1960 (hereafter called the "act"), the amount of sugar needed to meet the requirements of consumers in the continental United States for the calendar year 1961 and to establish sugar quotas for the three-month period ending March 31, 1961, for the supplying areas except Cuba in terms of short tons of sugar, raw value. By Proclamation No. 3383, the President of the United States, acting pursuant to the provisions of section 408(b) of the act, determined that the sugar quota for Cuba should be zero. This regulation establishes quotas for the three-month period ending March 31, 1961, for domestic areas and for foreign countries other than Cuba pursuant to the provisions of section 202 of the act and also establishes for domestic areas and foreign countries other than Cuba the amounts of certain quotas that may be filled by direct-consumption sugar pursuant to section 207 of the act. Further, this regulation establishes liquid sugar quotas pursuant to section 208.

Section 201 of the act directs the Secretary to determine for each calendar year the amount of sugar needed to meet the requirements of consumers in the continental United States and to revise such determination during the calendar year whenever he deems it necessary. The section sets forth criteria to guide the Secretary in his determinations and states that such determination shall be made so as to protect the welfare of consumers and of those engaged in the domestic sugar industry by providing such supply of sugar as will be consumed at prices which will not be excessive to consumers and which will fairly and equitably maintain and protect the welfare of the domestic sugar industry.

Accordingly, it is essential to obtain a steady flow of sugar supplies to achieve the statutory objectives. Cuba has been our principal source of sugar supplies. No importations from this source have been authorized under Presidential Proclamation 3383 during the three-month period ending March 31, 1961. Supplies not obtained from Cuba must be obtained from many other areas. Under these circumstances there will be a shift and diversification of sources of supply. Furthermore, the determination of the amount of sugar needed to meet the requirements of consumers in the continental United States for the 1961 calendar year must be made with due recognition that, under the present provisions of the act, quotas may be established only for the three-month period ending March 31, 1961, and that such quotas form the basis for supplying the sugar needed to meet the objectives of the act during such period. Taking into consideration the statutory criteria, a sugar requirements determination of 10,000,000 tons is necessary to provide, during the three-month period ending March 31, 1961, such supply of sugar as will be consumed at prices which will not be excessive to consumers and which will fairly and equitably maintain and protect the welfare of the domestic sugar industry.

The determination made herein has been based insofar as is required in section 201 of the act, on official statistics of the Department of Agriculture and statistics published by other agencies of the Federal Government.

Sugar quotas, the amounts thereof that may be filled by direct-consumption sugar, and liquid sugar quotas for the three-month period ending March 31, 1961, are established by applying the procedures prescribed and the levels specified in sections 202, 207 and 208 of the act and dividing the result obtained in each instance by four.

Section 411 of the act provides for the issuance of regulations to carry out Article 7 of the International Sugar Agreement. Article 7 requires limiting the total importations from nonparticipating countries as a group to the total quantity imported from such countries in any one of the years 1951, 1952 or 1953. All of the countries for which quotas are established hereunder are now members of the International Sugar Agreement. The maximum quantity of sugar imported in any one of the years 1951, 1952, or 1953 from countries currently not participating in the International Sugar Agreement was 21 short tons, raw value, in 1952. Accordingly, the quantity of sugar which may be authorized for importation pursuant to sections 211 and 212 of the act from nonparticipating countries has been limited to 21 short tons, raw value.

Pursuant to the act, during December 1960 the Secretary of Agriculture is required to determine sugar requirements for the calendar year 1961 and establish quotas for the three-month period ending March 31, 1961. Since the sugar quotas for some areas are relatively small, it is possible for some areas to exceed their quotas within a few days after the beginning of the quota year. Therefore, it is imperative that these regulations become effective January 1, 1961.

Also, to assure an orderly and adequate flow of sugar throughout the three-month period ending March 31, 1961, including the early days of January 1961, the persons who purchase and import sugar for continental United States consumption must make arrangements sufficiently in advance of the beginning of the year, not only to permit the physical movement of the sugar from the various countries and areas of origin to the United States, which requires from 1 to 7 weeks, but also to permit contracting for purchase of the sugar, contracting for ocean freight loading time and other related arrangements.

It is necessary that the persons who import sugar know the exact amounts of the quotas for the three-month period ending March 31, 1961, in order to make such arrangements in conformity therewith.

It is therefore essential that the exact amounts of the quotas to be effective January 1, 1961, be established immediately so that persons who sell, purchase and import sugar will have adequate foreknowledge to permit these necessary arrangements for purchase and shipment of sugar and provide for an orderly flow of sugar in the early days of the year and throughout the three-month period. Accordingly, it is hereby found and determined that compliance with the notice, procedure and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act is impracticable and contrary to the public interest and this regulation shall become effective on January 1, 1961.

Chapter III—Federal Aviation Agency

SUBCHAPTER C—AIRCRAFT REGULATIONS

[Reg. Docket No. 604; Amdt. 236]

PART 507—AIRWORTHINESS DIRECTIVES

Lockheed 188 Aircraft

Amendment 227, 25 F.R. 11063, effective November 22, 1960, required repetitive inspection every 450 hours' time in service of the elevator counterweight installation on Lockheed 188 aircraft as a result of severe vibration incidents in flight. Investigations have now revealed that the elevator viscous damper diaphragm was ruptured. When this part was replaced, the vibration was eliminated. Accordingly, Amendment 227 is being superseded to require in addition to the current 450-hour elevator counterweight repetitive inspection, inspection at specified intervals of the elevator booster control valve viscous damper diaphragm, and instructions for rework which eliminates the necessity for the special inspections.

In the interest of safety notice and public procedure hereon are impracticable and good cause exists for making this amendment effective upon date of publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

In consideration of the foregoing, and pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (25 F.R. 6489), § 507.10(a) of Part 507 (14 CFR Part 507), is hereby amended by adding the following new airworthiness directive:

LOCKHEED. Applies to all 188 Series aircraft. Compliance required as indicated.

(a) Within the next 150 hours' time in service commencing on November 22, 1960, unless already accomplished within the last 300 hours' time in service, inspect the elevator counterweight installation, Lockheed Drawing No. 829912, at airplane center line for evidence of free play as follows: with elevator blocked at extreme down position apply up and down force to balance weight Lockheed P/N 827020-1, and measure total movement of balance weight due to cumulative free play in joints of balance arm linkage. If movement of balance weight due to cumulative free play in system exceeds one-eighth inch inspect each joint in balance arm linkage and reduce the free play by bolt and/or part replacement at one or more of these joints so as to reduce total free play movement of the balance weight to one-sixteenth inch or less prior to further flight. This inspection must be repeated every 450 hours' time in service. When provisions of paragraph (c)(1) are accomplished, this special inspection may be discontinued.

(b) Within the next 300 hours' time in service, unless already accomplished within the last 700 hours' time in service, and following any occurrence of in-flight elevator or control column oscillations, inspect the elevator booster control valve viscous damper diaphragm, Lockheed P/N 813612-1 for evidence of rupture. See Lockheed Electra (Model 188) Overhaul Manual Section 27-1-10 Page 1 for information on evidence of rupture. If such evidence is found the airplane shall not be returned to service until the diaphragm is replaced with a new part, or compliance with paragraph (c)(2) below has been accomplished. This inspection must be repeated at periods not to exceed 1,000 hours' time in service until the provisions of paragraph (c)(2) below have been accomplished.

(c) The following must be accomplished within the next 1,000 hours' time in service.

(1) Install a spring-loaded cartridge, Lockheed P/N 840404-1, in the elevator counterweight linkage in the manner described by Lockheed Service Bulletin 88/SB-524.

(2) Replace the elevator boost control valve viscous damper, Lockheed P/N 813608-3, with an orifice type damper, Lockheed P/N 492508-3, in accordance with Lockheed Service Bulletin No. 88/SB-524.

(3) Rework the elevator booster assembly in accordance with Lockheed Service Bulletin No. 88/SB-524 to incorporate an orifice valve assembly, Lockheed P/N 804551-1, and modify the booster piston rod end installation to incorporate two retaining washers, Lockheed P/N 839756-1, in accordance with Lockheed Service Bulletin No. 88/SB-498.

(FAA approved Lockheed Service Bulletins 88/SB-498 and 88/SB-524, Lockheed Electra operating information letter No. 13 dated November 1, 1960, Lockheed Alert Bulletin No. 524 dated December 1, 1960, cover portions of this subject.)

This supersedes Amendment 227, 25 F.R. 11063.

This amendment shall become effective December 22, 1960.

(Sec. 313(a), 601, 603; 72 Stat. 752, 775, 776; 49 U.S.C. 1354(a), 1421, 1423)

Issued in Washington, D.C., on December 15, 1960.

OSCAR BAKKE,
Director, Bureau of Flight Standards.

SUBCHAPTER E—AIR NAVIGATION REGULATIONS

[Airspace Docket No. 60-WA-211]

PART 602—ESTABLISHMENT OF CODED JET ROUTES AND NAVIGATIONAL AIDS IN THE CONTINENTAL CONTROL AREA

Modification of Coded Jet Route

On September 14, 1960, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 8831) stating that the Federal Aviation Agency proposed a modification to § 602.505 of the regulations of the Administrator so as to realign VOR/VORTAC jet route No. 5 from Los Angeles, Calif., to Seattle, Wash.

As stated in the notice, J-5-V would be designated from the Los Angeles VOR via the intersection of the Palmdale, Calif., VOR 291° and the Bakersfield, Calif., VORTAC 149° True radials; the Bakersfield VORTAC; Reno, Nev., VOR; Lakeview, Ore., VORTAC; The Dalles, Ore., VORTAC; intersection of The Dalles VORTAC 352° and the Seattle VORTAC 124° True radials; to the Seattle VORTAC.

The Air Transport Association of America endorsed the proposal. The Department of the Air Force stated that they had no objections to the Proposal if radar advisory service will be provided. This service will be provided on J-5-V.

The Department of the Navy stated that they are negotiating with the State of Oregon for property in the vicinity of Wagontire, Ore. (Lat. 42°48'30" N., Long. 120°06'00" W.) to be used for high and low altitude bombing operations. They further state that if this property is acquired a request will be submitted for a restricted area. If, in the future, the Department of the Navy submits a formal proposal for designation of a restricted area in the Wagontire area, consideration will then be given to any conflict that may exist between the proposed restricted area and any established jet routes.

No other comments were received regarding the proposed amendment.

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of the rule herein adopted, and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented.

The substance of the proposed amendment having been published, therefore, pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (25 F.R. 12582) and for the reasons stated herein and in the notice, § 602.505 (14 CFR 602.505) is amended to read:

PART 608—RESTRICTED AREAS

Revocation

The purpose of this amendment to Part 608 of the regulations of the Administrator is to revoke the Port Angeles, Wash., Restricted Area (R-407) (Bellingham Chart).

The Port Angeles Restricted Area is the portion of the Albert Head, British Columbia, Canada, Danger Area which falls within the territorial limits of the United States. The Canadian Government has advised the Federal Aviation Agency that this danger area has been reduced in size and is now contained within the territorial limits of Canada. Therefore, R-407 is being revoked herein, as this assignment of airspace is unjustified and revocation thereof is in the public interest.

Since this amendment reduces a burden on the public, compliance with the notice, public procedure, and effective date requirements of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act is unnecessary.

In consideration of the foregoing, and pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (25 F.R. 12582), the following action is taken:

In § 608.55 Washington, the Port Angeles, Wash., Restricted Area (R-407) (Bellingham Chart) (23 F.R. 8589) is revoked.

This amendment shall become effective upon the date of publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Issued in Washington, D.C., on December 15, 1960.

Director, Bureau of Air Traffic Management.

(1) Financial responsibility. The Bureau assumes no responsibility for loss or damage to radioactive preparations while in its possession. The risk should be covered by insurance.

(2) Period of measurement. Approximately 10 days are required for measurement of these radioactive preparations.

(3) Preparation of specimens. Radioactive preparations submitted for test must be carefully sealed so that there can be no escape of any radioactive material including any gaseous decay products. The preparations, shielding and packaging must be free of contamination. Contaminated or leaking preparations cannot be measured and may cause considerable loss of time and damage to laboratory facilities. Preparations must have been sealed for a sufficient time to be substantially in radioactive equilibrium with their decay products when these contribute to the gamma emission. (At least 30 days for radium)

(4) Packaging for shipment. Regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding the shipment of radioactive substances by rail must be complied with. These regulations are enforceable by law and prospective shippers of these substances need to be familiar with them. Copies of the regulations can be obtained from the Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington 25, D.C.

§ 204.503 Gamma-ray sources.

(a) Radioactive preparations submitted to the Bureau for test are subject to the following conditions:

(5) Type of measurements. (i) Radium is calibrated in terms of milligrams of radium content measured relative to the National Radium Standard. Cobalt-60 is calibrated in terms of dose rate, milliroentgens per hour at one meter, based upon comparison with derived standards of Cobalt. Application may be made for other measurements of gamma emitters.

(ii) Postal regulations prohibit mailing radioactive materials which require a cautions label under ICC regulations. This effectively prohibits placing radioactive preparations in the mail.

Item	Description	Fee
204.503a	Gamma-ray measurement of radioactive preparations. Measurement to ±0.7 percent for radium; and to ±3 percent for cobalt-60: 0.5 to 15 mg radium or encapsulated cobalt-60 having gamma rays 0.5 to 15 mrhm (milliroentgens per hour at one meter)	$15.00
204.503b	15+ to 100 mg radium or encapsulated cobalt-60 having gamma rays 15+ to 100 mrhm (milliroentgens per hour at one meter)	23.00
204.503c	100+ to 250 mg radium or encapsulated cobalt-60 having gamma rays 100+ to 200 mrhm (milliroentgens per hour at one meter)	33.00
204.503d	For measurements in groups not exceeding 10 preparations, double the fee for preparations of same content as the total content of the group.
204.503e	For handling and examination of a shipment containing contaminated or leaking preparations the fee will be the same as for measurements of a preparation having a content equal to the total nominal radioactive content of the shipment.
204.503z	For special tests not covered by the above schedule, fees will be charged dependent upon the nature of the test. As only a limited number of special tests can be carried out, prior arrangements must be made including submission of full details concerning the required test.

SUBCHAPTER B—FOOD AND FOOD PRODUCTS

PART 121—FOOD ADDITIVES

Subpart D—Food Additives Permitted in Food for Human Consumption

CASTOR OIL IN PROTECTIVE COATINGS OF FOOD ADDITIVES

The Commissioner of Food and Drugs, having evaluated the data submitted in a petition by Mead Johnson and Company, Evansville 21, Indiana, and other relevant material (including the fact that the proposed use is self-limiting) has concluded that the following regulation should issue in conformity with section 409 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, with respect to the food additive castor oil as an ingredient of protective coatings for tablets used as food. Therefore, pursuant to the provisions of the act (sec. 409(c)(1), 72 Stat. 1786; 21 U.S.C. 348(c)(1)), and under the authority delegated to the Commissioner by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare (25 F.R. 8625), subpart D (21 CFR Part 121) of the food additive regulations is amended by adding thereto the following new section:

§ 121.1028 Castor oil.

The food additive castor oil may be safely used, in accordance with good manufacturing practice, as a component of protective coatings for vitamin and mineral tablets used for food, provided the additive meets the specifications prescribed in United States Pharmacopeia XVI.

Any person who will be adversely affected by the foregoing order may at any time prior to the thirtieth day from the date of its publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER file with the Hearing Clerk, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Room 5440, 330 Independence Avenue SW., Washington 25, D.C., written objections thereto. Objections shall show wherein the person filing will be adversely affected by the order and specify with particularity the provisions of the order deemed objectionable and the grounds for the objections. If a hearing is requested, the objections must state the issues for the hearing. A hearing will be granted if the objections are supported by grounds legally sufficient to justify the relief sought. Objections may be accompanied by a memorandum or brief in support thereof. All documents shall be filed in quintuplicate.

Effective date. This order shall be effective on the date of its publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Sec. 409(c)(1), 72 Stat. 1786; 21 U.S.C. 348(c)(1)).

As so amended, Subchapter G reads as follows:

SUBCHAPTER G—NON MAIL SERVICES

PART 61—MONEY ORDERS

Sec.

61.1 Issuance of domestic money orders.
61.2 Issuance of international money orders.
61.3 Cashing money orders.
61.4 Receipt and protection of blank money orders.
61.5 Inquiries.
61.6 Nonpostal money orders.

AUTHORITY: §§ 61.1 to 61.6 issued under R.S. 161, as amended, secs. 501, 506, 5101-5105, Pub. Law 86-682 (74 Stat. 580, 581, 680, 681); 5 U.S.C. 22, 39 U.S.C. 501, 506, 5101-5105.

§ 61.1 Issuance of domestic money orders.

(a) Where sold. Patrons may buy domestic money orders at all post offices, branches, and stations in the United States and its possessions, except for certain offices in Alaska. Money order facilities are also provided for members of the Armed Forces of the United States. Special procedures for rural patrons are explained in § 61.1(e).

(b) Amounts, fees, payments—(1) Money order amounts. Patrons should ask the clerk to issue a money order for the desired amount. The maximum amount for a single money order is $100. There is no limitation on the number of orders that may be purchased at one time, except when the Department may impose temporary restrictions.

(2) Money order fees.

Amount of money order	Amount of fee
	Domestic	International
$0.01 to $5	$0.15	$0.30
$5.01 to $10	.20	.40
$10.01 to $100	.30	.60

(3) Paying for money orders. Money orders must be paid for in American money. Postmasters may accept, at their own risk, from a person whose endorsement is acceptable, a Federal Government check in payment for a money order.

(c) Putting amount, dating stamp, and initials on money order—(1) Amount. The employee who issues the money order shall enter the amount, as follows:

(i) Manual method. Use post office ball point pen and write the whole dollar amount in words on the "pay" line and the dollar and cents amount in figures in the "amount" block and draw two lines through unused "dollar" blocks. Enter control stamp for the same or next higher amount after the words "not valid for more than". The following illustration also shows the proper manner of issuing order for payment in Canada.

(ii) Machine method. Use machine to enter amount in figures, preceded by the $ sign and asterisk, if less than $100, to the right of word "pay". Affix control stamp for the same or next higher amount after the words "not valid for more than". The following illustration also shows the proper method for issuing order for payment in Canada.

(2) Dating stamp and initials. The employee who issues the money order shall put the post office dating stamp and his initials, in ink, in the spaces provided on form.

(d) Completion of money order by purchaser. After receiving cash for the order and fee, the postal clerk shall remove the post office record stub, partially detach purchaser's receipt stub, give the order and receipt to patron, and remind him of necessity to complete information on the order. The purchaser must fill in the following information on the money order:

(1) Name of payee and name and address of purchaser. The patron must fill in his name and address as purchaser and the name of the person to whom it is to be paid. He should do this promptly to protect his rights in the event the order is lost. Money orders may be payable:

(i) To purchaser, if desired.

(ii) To only one firm or person, by complete name. Don't put the name "Smith" for an individual. But "Smiths" may be used if it is the name of a company or firm.

(iii) To payees (the persons to whom payable) by their official titles. For example: Cashier, First National Bank; Superintendent of Insurance, New York State; Director of Internal Revenue, Baltimore.

(iv) To persons who have adopted a name in a religious order, such as Sister Theresa, or Brother Joseph.

(2) Identifying data. The purchaser should add his insurance policy number or other identification data to insure proper credit. Designate government agencies directly, as: Director of Internal Revenue; Superintendent of Documents; Veterans Administration.

(e) Issuance to Rural Patrons—(1) Application Form. Rural patrons must obtain an application from the carrier. The purchaser will be given a numbered receipt when he returns the completed application form with the money. If the carrier cannot give the correct change in payment, he will meet the purchaser on his next trip. Money must never be deposited in a rural box. When carriers do find money in a box with a completed application, Form 6001, "Application for domestic money order", they will take it to their post office for issue of the money order. Carriers will deliver the money orders with receipts attached, to patrons on their next regular trip. The postmaster shall keep applications in a separate file, in money order number sequence.

(2) Requesting the mailing of order to payee. If the purchaser wants the money order mailed to the payee the carrier will do so if he is furnished a stamped addressed envelope. No extra charge is made for this service.

(3) Form 6387 for rural carriers. Postmasters will furnish rural carriers Form 6387, "Receipt of Carrier to Purchaser and Certificate of Postmaster for Issue of Money Order", for the purpose of transacting money order business. These transactions shall be conducted in accordance with instructions on the back of the book cover of Form 6387.

(f) Spoiled or lost money orders—(1) Spoiled when being issued—(i) Issuance of new order. The purchaser must make sure that the money order received agrees with the amount requested. When a money order is returned after it has been issued and made a matter of record, a new one will be issued. If the post office was at fault, no fee will be charged for the new one. Should the purchaser spoil an order in completing it, no charge will be made for a new one if the purchaser returns it to the post office on the same day it was issued.

(ii) Disposition of spoiled order. Postal employees shall treat money order forms that are defective by misprint or mutilation or spoiled when being issued as follows:

(a) Stamp or write boldly "Not Issued" across the amount block on the order. Detach and destroy purchaser's receipt. First- and second-class offices must submit these money orders with Form 6125, "Statement of Accountability Money Order Business"; Form 6125-A, "Money Order Group Report"; or Form 6126, "Statement of Accountability Money Order Business". Third- and fourth-class offices must enter "Not Issued" opposite the serial number on Form 1846, "Quarterly List of Money Orders Issued", or Form 1846-A, "List of Money Orders Issued", and submit the spoiled orders with the form.

(b) Stamp or write "Not Issued" across the amount block of the post office record (money order stub).

(2) Lost or damaged orders—(i) Application for duplicate order. (a) A money order that is lost will be replaced without charge by the Post Office Department provided it had been completed by the purchaser to show his name and address and the name of the intended payee. The owner—purchaser, payee, or endorsee—should make application through his local postmaster, using Form 6401, "Inquiry as to Payment of Money Order."

(b) Patrons must wait 60 days after date of issue of original money order before filing Form 6401, "Inquiry as to Payment of Money Order", except for mutilated orders or for orders void by too many endorsements.

(c) The post office shall put the following endorsement on the purchasers receipt before returning the receipt to him:

Form 6401 (date).

(ii) Issuance of duplicate order. (a) A duplicate money order will be issued in accordance with the wishes of the purchaser-applicant without the consent of the payee or endorsee.

(b) The post office shall send the mutilated or void order to the Money Order Center where duplicates are issued. A duplicate money order will be issued if the original order is not in the paid files at the Money Order Center; it will show the serial number of the original order and the amount as entered on Form 6401. When a record of the amount of the original order is not available at the Money Order Center, the center will issue the duplicate based on information shown on Form 6401 and will send the order to the post office of issue of the original order for verification. In such cases, Form 787, "Duplicate Money Order Transmittal Letter," accompanies the duplicate money order; it describes the verification required and the disposition of the order. The employee performing the verification will initial the duplicate if both the serial number and the amount are in agreement with the post office record (stub).

(iii) Orders recovered after duplicate issued. When a duplicate order has been issued, the postal employee shall write "Canceled-Duplicate Issued" on the original order and send it to the Money Order Center. If the postal employee does not know whether a duplicate was actually issued, he shall send the recovered order with Form 6401, "Inquiry as to Payment of Money Order."

(iv) Payment of duplicate orders. A duplicate money order is payable only to the payee named thereon or to his endorsee.

§ 61.2 Issuance of international money orders.

(a) Where sold. International money orders may be purchased at almost all first-class post offices. Some second-, third-, and fourth-class post offices have been designated to provide this service. International money orders will be issued to addressees in those countries that have agreed with the United States to conduct such business.

(b) Application. (1) For the following countries, the domestic money order form is used and there is no application form:

Antigua.	Dominica.
Bahamas.	Grenada.
Barbados.	Jamaica.
Bermuda.	Montserrat.
British Honduras.	Nevis.
British Virgin Islands.	Saint Kitts.
Canada.	Saint Lucia.
Canal Zone.	Saint Vincent.
Cuba.	Tobago.
	Trinidad.

(2) For all countries and localities listed in paragraphs (f) and (g) of this section, the international money order form is used and application must be made on Form 6701. In some cases, the order is written in foreign currency. In most cases, the amount is written in United States dollars and converted into foreign currency in the country where payable.

(3) Purchasers must use Form 6083, "Supplemental International Money Order Advice", written in the foreign language, when they send money orders payable in Greece, Lebanon, Syria, Yugoslavia, and Japan.

(4) When the international money order form is used, purchasers will be given a receipt. The postmaster will arrange for sending the order abroad, as prescribed in paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of this section.

(5) Purchasers must state the following details in their application regarding the payee: Full name, exact address, name of city, town, or village; name of the canton, department, or district as the case may be. If the payee is a woman, state whether single, married, or a widow.

(c) Preparation of orders—(1) When domestic form is used. Postal employees shall handle in the same manner as for domestic orders. For Canada, the amount on the order must be expressed in both U.S. and Canadian money. Consult the current conversion table. Put the amount received in U.S. money in the "figure" block and write "U.S." before it. Write the Canadian amount under the figure blocks and put "Canadian" before it.

(2) When international form is used. Postal employees shall complete the transaction the same way as for a domestic money order, with these exceptions:

(i) Print all particulars of the application on the order, including office of payment, if known.

(ii) Enter amount in U.S. money. If patron requests foreign equivalent of an order payable in one of the following countries, consult Form 6749a, "Conversion Tables for Use in International Money Order Business", and enter that amount also: British Guiana, Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Ireland, New Zealand, Union of South Africa, Belgium, Denmark, France, Luxemburg, Netherlands, Norway, Surinam, Sweden, Switzerland and Tunis.

(iii) Give receipt to patron, and send order to the proper U.S. exchange office. When necessary, also attach any required foreign language advices, Form 6083, "Supplemental International Money Order Advice". (See paragraph (b)(3) of this section.

(d) Refunds. The amounts of orders sent on the international form may not be repaid here until authorized by the foreign postal department. Form 6759, "Application for Authority for Repayment of International Money Orders", shall be sent to the proper U.S. exchange office when purchaser requests repayment on U.S. issued orders.

(e) Lost redeemed orders. The postmaster shall report the facts concerning lost redeemed orders (an order certified to the United States by a foreign country and redeemed in the United States) to the proper U.S. exchange office.

(f) Countries where service is available on direct exchange basis. Direct exchange of international money orders is conducted between the United States exchange office and the foreign exchange office of the places named in the following table:

§ 61.3 Cashing money orders.

(a) Period of validity. No money order shall be paid after 20 years from the last day of the month of original issue. Card money orders issued within this period may be paid. However, claim for a paper money order should be made on Form 6401, "Inquiry as to Payment of Money Order," accompanied by the order, if available.

(b) Where to cash. (1) A card money order may be cashed at any post office or bank. The local postmaster may be consulted to obtain payment of an old style paper money order.

(2) Rural carriers will cash money orders for rural patrons. Money orders must be endorsed in his presence. No fee or compensation is required for this service.

(3) Money orders issued at military post offices are payable only at military post offices and United States military banking facilities, or at post offices or banks located in the United States, its possessions or Territories, and countries with which the United States transacts domestic-international money order business. If the remitter or payee of a money order issued at a military post office transfers ownership by endorsement to another, the endorsee must cash the money order at either a military post office, a United States military banking facility, or a post office located in the United States, its possessions, or Territories.

(c) Signature requirements—(1) Acceptance of signature. The paying post office may accept any signature of the payee, purchaser, or endorsee that is not different from the name given on the order.

(2) Signature by mark. Patrons who cannot write must use a mark. Marks (usually X) must be witnessed by someone who is not a post office employee.

(3) Signature by firms, organizations, and their representatives. All money orders payable to a business firm, an organization, society, institution, or government agency must be signed in the name of the organization by a representative authorized to do so. It may be necessary for such authority to be presented and filed. The representative must also sign with his own name and organizational title. If drawn in favor of an official by name and presented by a successor, the latter must sign as follows: "William Jones, treasurer, successor to George Thompson".

(4) Use of titles. Use of such titles as "Dr., Rev., Prof., Madam, Mrs., M.D., or D.D.S.", are not required in signing a money order for payment, whether or not such title is used on the face of the money order.

(5) Stamped signatures. A stamped signature is acceptable as an endorsement on a money order when drawn in favor of a firm, corporation, association, society, or individual, provided the money order is presented to a bank for payment. A post office will accept stamped signatures, provided an agreement is filed in advance regarding the responsibility for the correctness of such payments.

(d) Payment of orders to other than payee—(1) Transfer of money order—(i) By purchaser or payee. The payee or purchaser of a money order may endorse it to any other person or firm.

(ii) On power of attorney. A person with power of attorney may cash money orders in behalf of the payee who gave him that authority. The power of attorney must be filed at the office of payment.

(iii) On separate written order. A payee may file a separate written order with the post office authorizing payment to another person. The person must be designated by name as the one to receive payment.

(2) Upon assignment. When a payee, such as an individual or firm, makes an assignment, and intends that money orders be paid to the assigned person, he must file a power of attorney or a written order in the post office. The person designated to receive payment must receipt the money order and indicate below his signature the capacity in which he acts.

(3) On death of payee. A money order belonging to a deceased owner may be paid to the executor or administrator of the estate appointed by the court. A certified copy of the appointment as executor or administrator must be filed with the local postmaster. Payments will be made in accordance with the laws of the State of which the deceased was a resident.

(4) To a concern no longer in business. Money orders will be paid to the legal representative of a firm, association, or company that has ceased to exist.

(5) To a committee or a guardian. Money orders will not be issued or paid to a ward when declared incompetent by a court. They will be paid only to the committee, guardian, or other duly authorized person.

(6) To minors. A money order payable to a minor may be paid to the father or mother as natural guardian unless prohibited by court order.

(e) When orders will not be paid—(1) When there is a second endorsement. A money order with more than one endorsement is invalid. Consult the local post office for proper procedure to obtain a duplicate.

(2) When there is a question on a C.O.D. parcel. No payment will be made when a money order has been issued in return for a COD parcel, and is presented by the addressee (purchaser) and the money order has not been endorsed by the payee (shipper) or the payee has not expressly authorized payment to the purchaser by written approval.

(f) Examination of the order. The postal employee shall examine the order to see that:

(1) It is not a form reported stolen. If it is, he shall try to delay the person; immediately notify local police, nearest postal inspector, or postal inspector in charge; and hold order for instructions.

(2) It is properly stamped and drawn by the issuing office. Machine-issued orders are payable in the amount imprinted by the machine and for no more than the amount stamped between the words "Not valid for more than" and the word "pay."

(3) It does not bear any alterations or erasures.

(4) It is presented by the payee, endorsee, or purchaser. (A duplicate money order is payable only if presented by the payee or by his endorsee.) Money orders may be accepted from responsible individuals or business firms bearing rubber-stamp endorsements provided a specimen of the form of endorsement to be so used is filed with the postmaster over the signature of the individual, or an authorized officer of the company, accepting responsibility for the payment of orders so endorsed.

If in doubt as to particulars on a domestic order, Form 6006, "Application for Separate Advice of Money Order," shall be sent to the issuing postmaster for verification.

(g) Identification of payee. Payees must be able to prove their identity if they want their money orders cashed. Social security cards are not acceptable. Drivers permits, military identification cards, or other credentials showing signature of bearer and having serial numbers or other indicia which can be traced to the holder are helpful in identification. The owner must sign the money order in the presence of the postal employee. The postal employee shall compare signature with identification, if possible; shall enter the license or serial number or other details of the identification required; and shall initial the back of the order. This will aid in apprehending persons attempting forgery or other wrong payment. If the postal employee has exercised proper care under the circumstances, the Department will recommend that he be relieved of financial responsibility in cases of wrong payment. This procedure must be followed carefully in the case of endorsed money orders, as they might bear a forged endorsement and be in the hands of the wrong person.

(h) Disposition of paid orders. The postal employee shall put the office dating stamp and his initials on the back of the money orders paid and handle them as postal funds. When a patron regularly presents a large number of money orders for payment, write to Bureau of Finance, Division of Postal Funds, for special instructions on handling.

(i) Wrong Payment—(1) Through error only. If a money order intended for one person or firm is paid to another through error and without fraudulent intent and both parties live in the same city, the postal employee may recover the amount from the one wrongly paid and deliver it to the other. If impractical to settle in this manner, he shall report the case to the Money Order Center for adjustment.

(2) Through alleged fraud. When improper payment is alleged, the postal employee shall send Form 6065 "Request for Photo Copies of Money Order," to the Money Order Center. If the claimant denies proper payment after examination of the photostat, he must complete Form 6337, "Affidavit Relative to Alleged Wrong Payment of a Money Order." The postal employee shall send the completed Form 6337 with the photostat of the paid order to the postal inspector in charge.

§ 61.4 Receipt and protection of blank money orders.

(a) Receipt. Issuing employees must check the serial numbers of forms when received. When a form is missing, record the serial number on a memorandum slip and place it in sequence in the post office stub file and report the facts to the Money Order Center.

(b) Protection. Money order forms must be under protection of a lock when not in use. They must be given the best protection possible at night and when the office is closed. Where practicable, office dating stamps and money order control stamps should be placed in a locked receptacle when the office is closed. At sale window, keep blank money orders and rubber stamps out of reach of possible sneak thieves. Report any stolen money-order forms immediately by telegraph or telephone to the postal inspector in charge and give the serial numbers of the stolen forms.

§ 61.5 Inquiries.

(a) Who may receive information. Information about money order transactions may be given to purchaser, payee, or endorsee, or their agent, or to a representative of the Department. Compliance with requests from others must be authorized by the Department. (See §§ 4.3 and 4.4 of this chapter.)

(b) Inquiries regarding payment. Postal employees shall handle as follows:

(1) Orders issued on domestic form. Send Form 6401 to the Money Order Center. Do not accept until 60 days after the issue date of the money order.

(2) Orders issued on international form. Send Form 6684, "Inquiry Concerning International Money Order Issued in the United States," to the proper U.S. exchange office for order issued in the United States. When reply is received from the exchange office, enter the required information on Form 6860 "Reply to Inquiry Concerning Payment of International Money Order," and forward it to the patron.

(3) Orders issued by other countries. Send all correspondence regarding duplicates, wrong payments, under- and over-payments, and requests for photostats of money orders issued in countries with which business is conducted on the domestic-international basis to the International Accounts Section, Division of Accounting, Washington 25, D.C.

§ 61.6 Nonpostal money orders.

(a) Postmasters and employees shall not sell nonpostal money orders, checks, or similar instruments for the transmission of money.

(b) Contract and rural stations shall not sell nonpostal money orders, checks, or similar instruments for the transmission of money, unless specially authorized by the Assistant Postmaster General, Bureau of Finance.

Q	$18.75	$25
L	37.50	50
C	75.00	100
E	150.00	200
D	375.00	500
M	750.00	1,000

(b) Application for bonds. "Application for U.S. Savings Bonds", Form 920, is supplied by the postmaster. The purchaser must state on the form, by denomination, the number of bonds applied for, the total amount of the purchase, and the name and address to be inscribed on the face of the bond. Form 920 may also be used in applying for bonds by mail to a Federal Reserve bank or to the Treasury Department.

(c) Acceptance of funds. Funds shall be accepted the same as for money orders. (See § 61.1(b)(3) of this chapter.) If the postal employee does not want to accept a check, he shall advise the patron that a check will be accepted by the Treasury Department or a Federal Reserve bank in the purchase of bonds by mail. If a check is accepted and it fails to clear, the purchaser must either make the check good or return the bond. If neither the money nor the bond can be recovered, the post office shall notify the regional controller. No money may be accepted for bonds unless they are available for immediate delivery. Funds received shall be treated as postal funds.

(d) Issuance of bonds—(1) Accepting applications. The postal employee shall check Form 920, "Application for United States Savings Bonds", to see that inscription requested is in a form authorized by the latest edition of Treasury Department Circular 530 (circular may be obtained from the regional controller); write serial number of issued bond on Form 920; initial; and file alphabetically.

(2) Filling out bonds. The postal employee shall:

(i) Issue bonds in the names of individuals only, as follows:

(a) One person: John A. Jones.

(b) Two persons—coownership form: "John A. Jones or Mrs. Ellen S. Jones".

(c) Two persons—beneficiary form: "John A. Jones, payable on death to Miss Mary L. Jones". Payable on death may be abbreviated as p.o.d.

(ii) Use a typewriter if available and fill out the bond and stub in one operation.

(iii) Enter the full names on the bond and stub. Men's names may be preceded by any applicable title. Women's names must be preceded by Mrs. or Miss. A married woman's own given name must be used, not that of her husband.

(iv) Enter the full address of the owner on the bond. The address of the coowner or beneficiary is not necessary.

(v) Enter the month and year in the upper right corner of both the bond and the stub. Stamp the date of issue with the post office dating stamp in the circles provided on the bond and its stub.

(vi) Be sure that all entries are legible and exactly the same on the bond and its stub.

(vii) Detach stub from bond. Deliver bond to purchaser and retain stub for submission by postmaster with his accounting period bond report.

(3) Errors on bonds. (i) If an error is discovered on a bond after it is issued, it should be returned to the postmaster for correction. If returned during the accounting period of issue, and if the error was made by the postmaster, he shall spoil the bond and stub, write the name of the office on them, and issue a new bond in its stead. He shall correct his records if necessary.

(ii) If an error is discovered after the accounting period of issue, or if the error was not the fault of the postmaster, the postmaster shall prepare a receipt for the bond in triplicate; give a copy to the owner; keep a copy; and send the original with the bond to the regional controller for reissue. The reissued bond will be mailed direct to the owner.

(4) Errors on stubs. If an error is on the stub only and the bond is correct, or if an inscription needs explaining (as when a feminine owner's given name is one generally accepted as masculine), an explanation shall be made on the stub. The postmaster or a designated supervisory official must initial the notation. If the address or date is omitted from a stub, the postmaster must find out from the purchaser whether the bond is complete and, if the bond is complete, insert the missing data on the stub. If the bond is not complete, the address or date must be filled in on the bond and stub. The addition shall not be initialed.

(e) Undeliverable bonds. Bonds issued and mailed by other agents, which are undeliverable by mail, shall be handled in the following manner:

(1) Bond shall be forwarded to the addressee if change of address is on file. If no change of address is on file or if addressee is deceased, bonds shall be returned to issuing agent without further action.

(2) Bonds that cannot be delivered or returned to issuing agent and unclaimed bonds found loose in the mail shall be held for 60 days. After 60 days, they shall be sent to the Treasury Department, Division of Loans and Currency, 536 South Clark Street, Chicago 5, Ill.

(f) Examination of stock of bonds—Clerks who issue bonds shall check each bond and stub to see that the denomination and serial number agree. If the stubs are attached to the wrong bonds, they must be reassembled so that the two parts of each assembly agree. The postmaster shall hold bonds that cannot be reassembled, report the discrepancy to the regional controller, and await instructions.

(g) Certification for payment—(1) What to certify. Postmasters shall not cash savings bonds but will certify them for payment if sufficient identification is furnished and if the bonds are to be forwarded by the owner to a Federal Reserve bank or to the Treasurer of the United States for payment. The certification may be made on the bond itself or on a detached request for payment, Treasury Department Form TD 1522. Bonds that are to be presented to banks or trust companies for payment shall not be certified.

(2) How to certify. The certifying officer must require positive identification that the person presenting the bond is the person whose name is inscribed on the bond and must be sure there is no alteration or erasure on the bond. If the registered owner signs by mark, his mark must be witnessed by at least one disinterested person besides the certifying officer. All certificates must be in the name and title of the postmaster, followed by the certifying officer's signature and official title. The specially designated clerk or carrier must sign as "designated clerk" or "designated carrier".

(3) Who may certify. The following persons may certify to requests for payment on bonds: postmaster; assistant postmaster; any postal inspector; supervisor; or clerk temporarily in charge of the office, branch, or station; or any clerk or carrier specially designated by the postmaster.

(i) Payroll savings plan—(1) Object. The plan permits employees of the Postal Service to authorize withholding of salary deductions for the purchase of savings bonds. The availability of the payroll savings plan shall be made known to all employees.

(2) Authorization. Treasury Department Form 2254, "Authorization for Purchase of United States Savings Bonds", shall be used by employees who wish to authorize deductions from pay each pay period. The form shall be completed in detail by the employee and forwarded by the Postmaster or other official to the regional controller. The minimum deduction is $3.75 each payday. If 5 or more deductions are necessary and the bond is of the $50 or higher denomination, the issue date will be shown as the month in which one-half of the purchase price was accumulated.

(4) Changes in authorization. Form 1476, "Notice of Change—Authorization for Purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds", shall be used by an employee to authorize any change desired in deductions or bonds. The completed form shall be forwarded by the postmaster or other official to the regional controller.

§ 63.1 Purpose.

The Postal Savings System was established to provide facilities for the deposit of savings at interest with the security of the United States Government for repayment. The Postmaster General selects and designates post offices that are to be postal savings depositories.

§ 63.2 Opening accounts.

(a) Who may open—(1) Individuals. Any person 10 years of age or over may open a postal savings account in his or her own name. Accounts are opened in the names of individuals only. No person is permitted by law to have more than one postal savings account at the same time in his own right. A married woman may open an account in her own name, and free from any control or interference by her husband. Joint accounts may not be opened nor may a beneficiary be named.

(2) Officials in charge of bankrupt funds. Officers and agents in charge of bankrupt funds may deposit them without limit in postal savings depositories in cases where local banks are unable or unwilling to give the required security.

(b) How to open an account—(1) In person or by representative. (i) To open an account, the applicant should apply in person at a depository post office. If, because of infirmity or for other reason, an applicant is unable to appear in person, he may apply through a representative.

(ii) The depositor shall fill out Form PS 600, "Record of Postal Savings Account," using his complete name, as "John B. Jones" or "Mrs. Mary A. Jones," or the depositor's representative shall take Form PS 600 to the depositor to fill out and return. The postal clerk shall check Form PS 600 for completeness and legibility, and have it signed in his presence if depositor applies in person. If patron's copy is not satisfactory, the clerk must prepare a Form PS 600 in proper form. Accounts shall be numbered consecutively. The depositor or the representative shall be given Form PS 301, "Certificate Envelope," and at large offices, Form PS 301–A, "Depositor's Numerical Reference Card."

(2) By mail. (i) In a community where there is no postal savings depository, an application to open an account may be submitted by mail to a depository post office. The money to be deposited must accompany the application, preferably by money orders, but if in cash by registered mail. The depository postmaster will issue certificates in the amount requested and mail them to the applicant.

(ii) The applicant shall complete Form PS 300–B, "Application to Open an Account by Mail." If applicant appears at a nondepository office, the postmaster shall get Form PS 300–B from the most convenient depository office. The postmaster shall certify to the identity of the applicant on the form and tell the applicant to send the completed form and the deposit, in multiples of $5, by money order or check to the depository office. Depository office shall open the account, write the name of the originating office in place of signature on Form PS 600, attach Form PS 300–B to Form PS 600, and issue and mail the certificates to the depositor. If Form PS 300–B is incorrectly filled out, the depository office will send it and the certificates to originating postmaster for correction by the depositor. The originating postmaster shall return Form PS 300–B to the depository office when corrected and then deliver the certificates to the depositor.

(3) By agent for bankrupt organization. Accounts may be opened in the name of a bankrupt corporation, association, or individual and certificates may be issued if the agent or officer gives the post office a statement that local banks will not give the required security for bankruptcy funds.

(c) Identification data and signature. Information for identifying the holder when the certificates are presented for payment must be furnished. Fingerprints may be required. When the applicant usually signs his given name or names by initials, his full name must be written on the form and the application signed twice, first using the full name and then the initials or initial in the manner in which the account is to be maintained and certificates issued.

(d) Record of accounts—(1) Form. When an account is opened, a card record is established, a number assigned the account, and the record maintained as the official record of the account at the office where opened.

(2) Name. The applicant's name is entered on the account card in the manner in which the account is to be maintained and certificates issued.

(3) Change in name. A woman who marries after opening an account, or a depositor whose name is changed by court order, should so inform the postmaster and present all outstanding postal savings certificates to him. The depositor will be required to sign the new name on the record of the account, and the postmaster will annotate the certificates to show the new name. Until the depositor presents his or her certificates for proper notation, the postmaster, if aware of the change of name by marriage or by court order, will receive no further deposits for the account nor make any partial or interest payments but will make full payment to close the account if satisfied as to the depositor's identity.

(4) Entries. The amount of each deposit, the amount of each withdrawal and the balance on deposit are entered on the record.

§ 63.3 Ownership and privacy of accounts.

(a) Claims. When there is any dispute as to ownership, or a claim by other than the depositor is made for payment of a postal savings account, the postmaster will withhold payment of withdrawals from the account involved pending instructions from the Post Office Department in Washington.

(b) Ownership. The determination of any court of competent jurisdiction, unless appealed, is accepted as conclusive of title to postal savings account, and payment in accordance with such determination operates as a full and complete discharge of the United States from any further claim. An authenticated copy of the court determination must be submitted to the post office.

(c) Privacy of accounts. Postmasters and postal employees shall not disclose the name of any postal savings depositor nor give any information concerning a particular account to any person other than the depositor himself without specific authority, except that the balance on deposit may be given in the following circumstances:

(1) When a depositor is deceased or has been adjudged mentally incompetent, the information may be furnished to the duly appointed legal representative or next of kin.

(2) On the request of any State or county supervisor of old-age or unemployment assistance established pursuant to the Social Security Act of August 14, 1935, as amended, if the supervisor states he believes the applicant may have a postal savings account.

(3) When an applicant for relief has given written permission to representatives of relief agencies not connected with the Social Security Act of August 14, 1935, as amended, if the relief supervisor states he believes the applicant may have a postal savings account.

(4) On request of an Internal Revenue agent investigating a tax deficiency, if the agent has reason to believe the person may have a postal savings account.

§ 63.4 Deposits.

(a) Amount—(1) Individual deposits. Deposits must be made in multiples of $5.

(2) Maximum balance. The maximum balance permitted, exclusive of accrued interest, is $2,500, except for deposits of bankruptcy funds, where there is no limit.

(b) Interest—(1) Rate. Interest is payable at 2 percent per year.

(2) Start. Deposits begin to earn interest on the first day of the month following the date of deposit.

(3) Compound interest. Interest is compounded annually on whole dollar amounts on certificates issued on or after September 1, 1954.

(4) Simple interest. Certificates surrendered between annual periods, or for periods of less than 1 year, earn simple interest computed quarterly. Deposits made before September 1, 1954, earn simple interest until the certificates are surrendered or exchanged.

(5) Collection. The interest that accrues during any quarter is payable on or after the first day of the next quarter and may be collected by surrendering the certificate at the office of issue. However, the interest date for the certificate evidencing the redeposit will be the first day of the following month.

(6) Taxation. Interest credited to postal savings accounts on moneys deposited on and after March 1, 1941, is not exempt from Federal income taxes, but interest credited to postal savings accounts on moneys deposited prior to March 1, 1941, is wholly exempt from Federal income tax.

(c) Acceptance of funds. Funds shall be accepted the same as for money orders. (See § 61.1(b)(3) of this chapter.) A temporary stop payment notice shall be put on depositor's account card if a check is accepted. The depositor must return the certificates if the check fails to clear. Uncanceled savings stamps or old series postal savings stamps may be accepted. Funds shall be treated as postal funds.

(d) Issuance of certificates—(1) As evidence of deposits. Nontransferable and nonnegotiable certificates of deposit, in fixed denominations of $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, and $2,500, are issued as evidence of deposits. Certificates as delivered to depositors when issued, and postmasters are not authorized to accept them after issue for safekeeping. The postal clerk shall:

(i) Verify account of individual kept on Form PS 600. Then enter depositor's name and account number on the certificate, and stamp the certificates with special postal savings stamp.

(ii) Issue certificates in consecutive numbers.

(iii) Record account number and date of issue on certificate book cover, and initial.

(2) Errors on certificates. If an error is found in a certificate after delivery to the depositor, the certificate should be returned to the issuing postmaster. The postmaster shall proceed as follows to correct errors on certificates:

(i) Discovered during accounting period of issue. Stamp certificates spoiled and write spoiled on cover page of certificate book opposite its serial number. Write the serial number of spoiled certificates on the daily Form 713 or Form 708, "Postal Savings Certificate Transactions Daily Summary" and on accounting period Form 704, or 714, "Postal Savings Certificate Transactions." Correct records if necessary. Send spoiled certificates with Forms 704 or 714 to the regional controller at the end of each accounting period.

(ii) Discovered after accounting period of issue. Make a receipt in duplicate, Form PS 305, "Depositor's Receipt for Certificates Surrendered Without Payment." (The supply of this form must be kept by the postmaster or a designated employee and delivered to the window in quantities estimated as a week's supply. Before being turned over to the window, the forms must be numbered in duplicate.) Give the original to the depositor, and file the copy with the depositor's card. Send the certificate and explanation of error to the regional controller. The regional controller will issue a new certificate with original serial number or correct the certificate and return it. Exchange the new or corrected certificate for the receipt held by the depositor. Correct the entries on the depositor's account, Form PS 600, if necessary. Match the receipt Form PS 305 returned by the depositor with the copy held with the depositor's card. Staple the two copies together, and hold both Forms PS 305 until audit by the station examiner of postal inspector.

§ 63.5 Making withdrawals.

(a) On demand at office of issue. All or any part of funds deposited at the office of issue may be withdrawn on demand. Immediate payment will be made, unless the amount is large and the postmaster has to obtain the necessary funds. If a withdrawal is made within 1 month from the date of issue as shown on the certificate, a service charge of 20 cents will be made for each certificate regardless of denomination.

(b) In person. The certificates will be paid at the office of issue if the postmaster is satisfied as to the identity of the holder. The postmaster must—

(1) Identify the depositor with the information shown on his account Form PS 600. Compare fingerprints if equipment is available.

(2) Compute interest and enter the amount due on certificate. (Use monthly interest tables, Schedule 100–B for 1939 or earlier series, and Schedule 100–C for 1954 series.)

(3) Have the depositor sign the certificates in the postmaster's presence.

(4) If the certificate is less than 1 month old, collect a 20-cent service charge and stick a 20-cent postage stamp near the right border, just above the word "thereon".

(5) Pay from postal funds, or use Treasury (symbol 0001) check where authorized.

(6) If any payment is questioned, give the depositor a receipt on Form PS 305 for the certificates, and send the account, certificates, and a statement to the regional controller.

(c) Through a representative—(1) Designated on Form 304. When personal appearance is not possible, the holder of the account may designate a representative to make a withdrawal. When it has been shown to the postmaster's satisfaction that the holder cannot appear in person, the postmaster will give the representative Form 304, "Authorization to Pay Postal Savings Through a Depositor's Representative", for the depositor to fill out and sign. When the executed order and endorsed certificates are presented to the postmaster, he shall compare signature and other identification data on Form 304 with that on the Form PS 600; satisfy himself as to the identity of the applicant and of the representative and that the depositor wishes to withdraw funds; and complete transaction as stated in paragraph (b) of this section.

(2) Powers of attorney. Powers of attorney will be accepted only when executed by members of the Armed Forces of the United States serving abroad and must be accompanied with a statement from the attorney-in-fact that the depositor is still living and is stationed outside the United States. The papers will be submitted by the postmaster to the Department for approval and no payment will be made until he has received approval.

(d) By mail. Withdrawals may be made by mail, using Form 315, "Depositor's Application to Withdraw Postal Savings by Mail", which will be furnished by the postmaster. A postmaster must witness the signing of the Form 315. The depositor must mail Form 315 and the signed certificates to the office where his account is held (depository office). If the postmaster at the depository office is satisfied as to the applicant's identity, he will follow directions and instructions on Form 315, pay by check or money order, and send payment by registered mail, if requested, to the depositor—deducting any money order or registry fees. The depository office will file Form 315 with the depositor's account card, Form PS 600.

(e) Withdrawal of bankruptcy funds. Certificates must be endorsed by the depositing officer or agent (or his successor, whose appointment must be evidenced by a court order), and in addition may be countersigned by another individual in his representative court capacity if it is the requirement of the referee having jurisdiction over the funds in question.

(f) By nonresident aliens—(1) Definition. A nonresident alien is a depositor who sends an application for withdrawal from a location outside of the continental United States, or its possessions or military establishments. Withdrawal may be made by mail or through a representative. See paragraphs (c) and (d) of this section.

(2) Interest on deposits. The interest on deposits made after March 1, 1941, is subject to withholding tax if the postmaster does not have information that the depositor is a citizen of the United States.

(3) Method of payment. Instructions on Form 304 or 315 shall be followed. A Treasury check, drawn to the order of the Board of Trustees, Postal Savings System, for the full amount of principal and interest due, shall be sent to the Bureau of Finance (Postal Savings), together with a completed Form PS 320, "Letter Transmitting Postal Savings Payments by Mail," name and address of depositor and of representative, if any, and any new certificates. If no checking credit has been granted, the regional distributing postmaster should be asked to draw a check in favor of the Board of Trustees, Postal Savings System, and to send it to the Bureau of Finance (Postal Funds Division). The Bureau of Finance will deduct the tax and mail the payment to the depositor or representative.

(g) By levy for deficiency in federal income tax—(1) A postmaster served with notice of levy by Internal Revenue agent shall—

(1) Put stop payment on account and notify depositor in writing of the levy served and request surrender of all or sufficient number of certificates to satisfy tax deficiency. Have depositor endorse certificates. Pay Internal Revenue Service and obtain receipt. File receipt with Form PS 600. Pay depositor any amount due on certificates above the amount of the levy.

(2) If certificates are not surrendered as requested within 10 days from date notice was mailed, prepare Form PS 607, "Depositor's Application for New Postal Savings Certificates," for duplicates for all or sufficient number of certificates to effect payment of levy. Attach notice of levy to Form PS 607 and send to regional controller. Regional controller will reissue certificates and retain notice of levy firmly attached to Form PS 607 as authority for reissue.

(3) When duplicates are received from regional controller, pay by check drawn in favor of the Internal Revenue Service. Obtain a receipt in duplicate for total amount paid. Enter on the margin of each unindorsed certificate "Paid Internal Revenue. See receipt enclosed." Enclosed receipt will serve in lieu of endorsement on certificates. Issue and mail to the depositor a check for any funds due him on a certificate where part of the amount represented by the certificate was used in payment of the amount set forth in the levy. Enter on the margin of that certificate $_____ paid depositor by check No. _____. This will serve in lieu of a receipt.

(4) Treat paid certificates in usual manner. Annotate Form PS 600 to show that certificates were reissued and the purpose and that originals are void.

(h) Deceased depositors—(1) Accounts of $20 or less. A postmaster may, without specific authority, pay an account of $20 or less to the following upon presentation of proper evidence and written request by the applicant.

(i) Administrator or executor.

(ii) An entitled distributee or legatee on behalf of other distributees or legatees under a decree of distribution.

(iii) Surviving spouse, child, or parent, in the order named, or in the absence of any one of these, a brother or sister, if no administration on the depositor's estate has been asked for or granted.

(iv) The undertaker or other preferred creditor in the absence of administration or next of kin.

(2) Accounts over $20—(i) To whom payable—(a) Accounts that do not require administration. If a depositor dies intestate and the amount on deposit is $500 or less, or if the laws of the State in which the money is deposited provide either specifically or by court decision for the payment of a larger amount without administration, the next of kin, undertaker, person who paid the funeral expenses, or other preferred creditor may apply for payment.

(b) Accounts that require administration. When the amount on deposit is such that more than $500 will be available for distribution to heirs after allowing for payment of preferred claims, the amount due a deceased depositor in the final settlement of his account will be payable only to the legal representative appointed under the laws of the State in which the money is deposited, unless administration is not required by the State laws. Proper authority of the legal representative must be presented to the postmaster where the account is held.

(ii) Authority for payment. Certain large offices have been given specific authority by letter to pay accounts applied for by locally appointed administrators or executors. In all other cases at these offices and at all other offices, postmasters must report a depositor's death to the regional controller, using Form 1809, "Report of the Death or Incompetence of a Depositor", and await instructions before paying. All applications or legal papers that will be of assistance in settling the claim must be attached to the Form 1809. The following papers are necessary:

(a) When administration is required.

(1) A legal representative must submit a court order certifying his appointment within the past year.

(2) A person designated by the court to receive the account must submit Form 1680, "Application for Payment of the Postal Savings Deposits Standing to the Credit of a Deceased Depositor", with proper court order.

(b) When administration is not required.

(1) Claim by a beneficiary under a will must (if the distributable balance is less than $500 and the State does not require the will to be probated) be submitted on Form 1680 with receipts mentioned in Form 1680, a certified copy of the will, and a Form 134, "Release", by each of the beneficiaries and/or entitled next of kin.

(2) Claim by one of the next of kin entitled by law to share in the estate, or by the person who paid the funeral expenses, must be submitted on Form 1680 if depositor dies without a will and not more than $500 will be available for distribution after allowing for payment of preferred claims. (Some States permit payment of a larger amount without administration.)

(3) Claim by undertaker or other preferred creditor must be submitted on Form 1672, "Application of Undertaker for Payment of Funeral Expenses From Funds to the Credit of a Deceased Depositor", with itemized statement of services rendered and a certification of claim by a responsible heir on Form PS 115–A, "Certification of Bill from Undertaker". The undertaker's receipted bill must be submitted if claimant is other than undertaker.

(4) Claim by foreign consular officer must be submitted on Form PS 112, "Application of Consular Officer for Payment of the Balance Remaining to the Credit of a Deceased Depositor", if the depositor is a United States resident, dies without a will, and is survived by alien heirs residing in a foreign country who are entitled to all or part of the amount of deposit.

(3) Payment. The signature of the payee(s) must be obtained on each certificate and on a receipt for interest due, in the following form: "John Doe by Richard Roe" (executor, widower, guardian, or other proper title). The account must be paid in full. The office copy of Form 1809 must be completed to show the date of payment, and must be placed with the paid certificate. (Clips or staples must not be used.) The amount of payment for accounts of $20 or less shall be endorsed on the written request of the applicant, and the request shall be placed with the paid certificate. (Clips or staples must not be used.) The regional controller shall be advised if payment cannot be made.

(i) Legally incompetent depositors. (1) The amount on deposit for mentally disabled or other legally incompetent depositors, other than minors, will be payable to the guardian, committee, conservator, or other legally appointed representative on presentation of proper evidence of appointment. A court order directing guardian to collect account of a minor is required before payment may be made to the guardian. When the depositor has been judicially declared incompetent and no guardian or other legal representative has been appointed and the gross value of the incompetent's estate is sufficiently small, application for withdrawal may be made by a State official or a member of the family if permissible under the laws of the State where the account is held.

(2) Postmasters at all offices shall handle claims for payment of accounts of legally incompetent depositors as provided in paragraph (h)(2)(ii) and (h)(3) of this section.

§ 63.6 Inactive accounts.

The main post office stations, and branches shall review Forms PS 600 once each year for inactive accounts and proceed as follows:

(a) Pull out accounts that have been inactive for 10 years. Turn them over to a supervisory official or designated employee to be kept separate from active accounts. The official or designated employee must keep a control record of all accounts turned over to him. When a transaction occurs in an inactive account, return the account to the active files.

(b) Report accounts inactive or unclaimed for 20 years to the regional controller, and await instructions. Count the 20 years from date of last transaction or date of depositor's reply to an inquiry on Form PS 159 (now obsolete) whichever is later.

§ 63.7 Distribution of blank certificates.

(a) To window clerks. Ordinarily not more than one book of blank certificates of each denomination should be furnished at one time for use at a window. On delivery of certificates to him, a window clerk must count the individual certificates and examine them for sequence of serial numbers, and agreement with the inclusive numbers on the cover.

(b) To stations and branches. Stations and branches should not have more than a month's supply of certificates on hand. They must order certificates from the main office on Form PS 325, "Request for Postal Savings Certificates".

§ 63.8 Depositor's lost, stolen, or destroyed certificates.

(a) Report to postmaster. A depositor should advise the postmaster at the office where his account is held when any of his certificates are lost, stolen, destroyed, or improperly withheld. The postmaster will furnish the depositor with a Form PS 607, "Depositor's Application for New Postal Savings Certificates". If approved, new certificates showing the same information as the originals, but marked "Reissued", will be issued. If a certificate is found after it has been reissued, it must be given to the depository postmaster.

(b) Application for replacement. Form PS 607, "Depositor's Application for New Postal Savings Certificates", shall be prepared if depositor knows certificate cannot be recovered, following instructions on the form. If depositor is uncertain as to what happened to his certificates, he should be asked to search again and return in 10 days to fill out Form PS 607. (Exception may be made when delay will cause depositor hardship.) The serial numbers of the certificates should be verified against those on Form PS 600. Depositors must not be asked to apply for reissue of certificates to determine if the account record is correct. Any difference between item 39 of the postal savings records and the total of the Forms PS 600 should be shown on Form PS 607.

(c) Replacement. The regional controller may prepare replacement certificates and forward them to the postmaster. The postmaster shall verify all entries on the new certificates, deliver to depositor, and return to regional controller any with discrepancies. He shall record reissue by writing "R" in red next to the serial number of the original entry on Form PS 600. (Use "Remarks" column on old-style Form PS 600.) Where there is sufficient staff, the postmaster must not delegate custody of reissued certificates to a clerk who issues postal savings certificates or is responsible for maintenance of postal savings accounts and records.

(d) Disposition of recovered and undeliverable certificates. The postmaster shall mark recovered original certificate "Canceled", enter the date; send it to the regional controller with explanation; and return undeliverable replacement certificates to the regional controller for safekeeping.

§ 63.9 Office records and records of depositor's accounts.

(a) Recording deposits. The postmaster shall record deposits and post new balance on Form PS 600. The serial numbers of certificates issued shall be recorded on Form 713, "Postal Savings Certificate Transactions Daily Report", where this form is used.

(b) Recording withdrawals. Withdrawals shall be posted on Form PS 600, showing date of transaction "paid" in "Certificate Numbers" column, total amount of principal in "Transaction Amount" column, and the balance in "New Balance" column. The transaction must be dated opposite original issue of certificate in "Date Paid" column. The paying clerk must initial in "By" column. Certificates must be stamped "paid" with special paid date stamp and initialed. A report shall be made on Form 713 or Form 708 and the paid certificates shall be sent to postmaster daily. The postmaster must send the paid certificates with Form 704 or Form 714 to the regional controller office each accounting period.

(c) Verifying records of accounts. The postmaster shall verify records of accounts as follows:

(1) Daily verification. Do not file Forms PS 600 which have been withdrawn in the day's business until the issues, payments, and extensions have been verified by adding separately the issues and payments recorded for the day and the balance to the credit of depositors before and after entry of the day's business. Check the total of the issues and total of payments against the issues and payments as recorded in Form 708 or Form 713.

(2) Six-months' verification. Verify the balance in item 39 of Form 704 or 714 with the total of the balances on the depositors' Forms PS 600 every 6 months. If the totals do not agree, check addition or subtraction on depositor's cards. If no error is found, check the entries on the cards with the records of certificates issued and paid. Place a dummy account card, Form PS 600, in the front of the file, on which enter the amount of the difference (circling the amount if the total of the balances of the Forms PS 600 is in excess of the amount in item 39 of the Form 704 or 714.) Report to the regional controller for additional instructions only when an unusual situation arises.

(d) Filing and closing accounts. The postmaster shall file and close accounts as follows:

(1) Filing. File the Forms PS 600 numerically by account numbers. Maintain an alphabetical cross-index card file (if many accounts) showing the depositor's name and account number.

(2) Closing. Mark the depositor's Form PS 600 "Account Closed" when all certificates issued to a depositor have been paid. Place in a separate file with other closed accounts in numerical order. Do not use the number of a closed account in opening a new account.

(e) Correcting errors on records. The postmaster shall correct errors as follows:

(1) Draw a line through an erroneous entry and initial. (Do not make the original entry illegible.) Make the correct entry on the line below or by interlining immediately above the erroneous entry.

(2) Advise the regional controller office if an error is discovered after the accounting period report has been submitted which in any way affects the accuracy of the report.

(f) Reporting loss of records. The postmaster shall report promptly to the regional controller any loss or major damage of postal savings records by fire, burglary, or any other cause.

NOTE. The corresponding Postal Manual part is 173.

Title 29—LABOR

Subtitle A—Office of the Secretary of Labor

PART 2—GENERAL REGULATIONS

Federal Tort Claims Act; Property Loss or Damage, and Personal Injury or Death

On September 20, 1960, an amendment of 29 CFR 2.8 was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (25 F.R. 9003) in order to reflect recent statutory changes raising the jurisdictional amount of claims that may be settled administratively under the Federal Tort Claims Act. Through inadvertance, the amendment was not broadened at that time to reflect the current statute of limitations of two years under the Federal Tort Claims Act (28 U.S.C. 2401(b)). Section 2.8 of Title 29, Code of Federal Regulations is hereby amended to show that two-year period.

As so amended, 29 CFR 2.8 reads as follows:

§ 2.8 Claims under the Federal Tort Claims Act for loss of or damage to property or for personal injury or death.

Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 2672, any claim under the Federal Tort Claims Act for loss of or damage to property or on account of personal injury or death, in an amount of $2,500 or less, caused by the negligent or wrongful act or omission of any employee of the Department of Labor while acting within the scope of his office or employment under circumstances where the United States, if a private person, would be liable to the claimant for such damage, loss, injury, or death in accordance with the law of the place where the act or omission occurred may be presented in writing to the Solicitor of Labor, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D.C., or to any regional or branch office of the Solicitor, by the claimant in his own right or through an attorney at any time within 2 years after such claim has accrued. If the claim is presented through an attorney, such presentation should be accompanied by duly authenticated powers of attorney. Each claim presented should include a sworn detailed statement of the facts and such affidavits, vouchers, bills, and other documents as the claimant deems appropriate for the proper determination of his claim. If, after investigation, the Solicitor determines on the basis of all the evidence that compensation is due the claimant under the Federal Tort Claims Act, the amount so found, together with such reasonable attorney's fees as may be allowed, will be paid by the Secretary of Labor.

This amendment shall become effective immediately upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Public procedure and delay in effective date are found to be unnecessary, because the amendment reflects only existing law.

Signed at Washington, D.C., this 16th day of December 1960.

JAMES L. O'CONNELL,
Acting Secretary of Labor.

[Docket No. 13756; FCC 60–1516]

PART 3—RADIO BROADCAST SERVICES

Class IV Broadcast Stations Power Increase to More Than 250 Watts

1. The Commission has under consideration its notice of proposed rule making (FCC 60–968), adopted July 27, 1960, and released in this proceeding on August 2, 1960. The Commission proposed therein to amend § 3.28(c) of the rules which presently provides that a Class II, III or IV standard broadcast station may be assigned to a channel, even though it receives interference, if (1) no objectionable interference is caused to existing stations, or, if so, the need for the new service outweighs the need for the service lost; (2) primary service will be provided to the community in which the station is located; and (3) the interference received does not affect more than 10 percent of the population in the proposed station's normally protected primary service area. The amendment proposed would exempt existing Class IV stations applying for daytime power increases in excess of 250 watts from the 10 percent limitation on interference specified in subparagraph (3) of § 3.28(c). It was not proposed to extend the exemption to any proposals for new Class IV stations.

2. Over 100 comments were received on this proposal, and all, except three, urged its adoption. The supporting comments were from the Community Broadcasters Association, Inc., whose membership consists of Class IV standard broadcast stations (currently numbering 90), and from approximately 180 licensees of Class IV standard broadcast stations. Silliman, Moffet and Rohrer, a consulting engineering firm at Washington, D.C., also filed individual comments supporting the proposed amendment. The opposing comments were filed by J. G. Rountree a consulting engineer at Austin, Texas, Ward Broadcasting Co., an applicant for a Class IV 250 watt standard broadcast station at Sonora, Texas (File No. BP–13026), and William G. Ball of Mansfield, Ohio. Joint reply comments were filed by Southeastern Ohio Broadcasting System, Inc., licensee of Class IV standard broadcast Station WHIZ at Zanesville, Ohio, and by The Zanesville Publishing Company, licensee of Class IV standard broadcast Station WTAP at Parkersburg, West Virginia. Their reply comments, while favoring the proposed amendment to § 3.28(c)(3) of the rules, also request rule making looking toward another change in Class IV allocation policy. The proposal is discussed in paragraph 12 herein.

3. The Commission raised the daytime power ceiling for Class IV standard broadcast stations, with certain restrictions, in May of 1958 in Docket No. 12064 from the then 250 watts maximum to 1 kilowatt (17 RR 1541). The objective was to improve opportunities for such stations to provide an effective local daytime service in the face of hindrances occasioned by the increasingly higher degrees of local man-made noise levels from population and industrial growth, the expansion in the size of communities, and increased competition resulting from the growth of the standard broadcast service and the advent of television. We concluded at that time that this new 1 kilowatt daytime power ceiling, administered on a selective case-by-case basis, and utilizing directional antennas, if necessary, to protect the normally protected contours of other stations, represented the maximum, although not the absolute, solution practicable in light of all domestic and foreign considerations to the problems of the Class IV local radio service. It was our opinion that relaxation of the power ceiling on local channel stations to this extent would bring more effective and new daytime radio service to sizeable segments of the public and benefit Class IV stations to the maximum practicable degree. On April 13, 1959, we took further action in Docket No. 12064 to permit processing and final action on applications of Class IV AM stations for power increases in excess of 250 watts daytime in all areas except within 62 miles of the common U.S./Mexican border or within an area south of 28 degrees north latitude and between 80 and 82 degrees west longitude in the State of Florida.

4. In administering this new policy with respect to Class IV stations, we have become convinced that an additional change in allocation policy with respect to them is desirable to enable and encourage a greater number of Class IV stations to increase daytime power to 1 kilowatt and thereby make possible a fuller realization of the benefits to the nationwide Class IV local radio service and the public from the raise in the daytime power ceiling. That change, under consideration in this proceeding, would amend § 3.28(c)(3) to obviate the necessity of considering whether the amount of interference received by existing Class IV stations proposing daytime power in excess of 250 watts would violate the 10 percent population criterion of the rule.

5. As of August 22, 1960, only 76 of the 987 existing Class IV stations had obtained authorization to operate with daytime power of 1 kilowatt, and 4 had obtained authorizations to operate with daytime power of 500 watts. A total of 439 applications were pending for daytime power increases in excess of 250 watts by existing Class IV stations and 4 for like daytime power by applicants for new Class IV stations. Most of the pending applications are now in hearing or will require designation for hearing in groups ranging from a few to many applications because of interlocking co-channel and adjacent channel interference problems. The great majority of these applications present conflicts with § 3.28(c)(3) of the rules because of interference in excess of the 10 percent contemplated by the rule within their proposed normally protected contours, due primarily to the impact of other Class IV applications for power increases. For example, in one large multi-party Class IV proceeding noted in the comments, there were originally 60 applications consolidated for hearing, and all but three of the 60 involved § 3.28(c)(3) question.

6. Section 3.28(c) of the Commission's rules now provides a condition under which the Commission may grant an application notwithstanding interference to the proposed operation in excess of that otherwise permitted.[1] Under this condition the Commission may grant if the otherwise prohibited interference does not exceed 10 percent of the population included within the normally protected contour. We believe that this condition should be extended with respect to the daytime operation of Class IV stations with power in excess of 250 watts so as to not preclude operation with power over 250 watts even though substantially more than 10 percent of the population within the normally protected contour may be subject to interference.

7. It is clear, in any group of 250 watt Class IV stations, that a uniform mutual power increase of any nature will not create interference to any station in any area served with the lower power but may and probably will result in mutual interference within the new service areas. Generally the population within the interference area of the new service area will exceed the 10 percent figure now permitted under § 3.28(c). The net result of the uniform mutual increase in power will be, however, to increase the population within the service area of each station, and to increase the signal intensity over the area previously served with the lower power without resulting in interference to any area previously served with the lower power.

8. These considerations, stressed in the supporting comments convince us that it is sound allocation policy and in the public interest to extend the conditions under which interference to a proposed Class IV operation involving power in excess of 250 watts may be permitted. An additional consideration, also consonant with the public interest, and urged by those supporting the proposal, is that removing this factor in the consideration of applications of existing Class IV stations for power increases above 250 watts will eliminate one of the obstacles to expeditious action on such applications both at the processing and hearing stage and result in significant savings in time and expense to both the Commission and applicants.

9. The opposing comments of J. G. Rountree and Ward Broadcasting Company regard it unfair to applicants for new Class IV stations to hold them to the requirements of the 10 percent rule if existing Class IV stations seeking daytime power in excess of 250 watts, with which they may have interference conflicts, would not be bound. A number of the comments supporting the proposal urge, however, that there is no unfairness since the 10 percent population criterion for interference received controlled the assignment of all existing stations when originally authorized at a 250 watt maximum daytime power. On consideration, we deem it desirable that all Class IV proposals be considered by the same criterion for interference received, whether they are for new stations or for changes in existing stations. The amendment adopted herein provides that compliance with § 3.28(c) by new Class IV stations proposing power in excess of 250 watts shall concern only that area which exists within the equivalent 250 watt, 0.5 mv/m contour of the proposed station.

10. In opposing the subject proposal, Mr. Ball of Mansfield, Ohio, assumes that it would enable Class IV stations to increase daytime power up to 1 kw regardless of the interference caused by the increase. This is not the case, since the change in § 3.28(c)(3) under consideration and which we are adopting applies only to interference received by Class IV stations.

11. Mr. Rountree also contends that if the 10 percent rule is a good allocation tool, a large category of standard broadcast stations should not be exempted therefrom. On the other hand, he urges that if it is not a good rule, and he claims that it is not, the rule should be deleted in its entirety and each case considered on its individual merits. Even though the 10 percent rule may have operated to preclude new stations in outlying areas in some instances, as Mr. Rountree claims, we are of the view that it has been for many years and still is a desirable allocation tool to delineate an effective utilization of an available frequency and to give both the Commission and interested parties a reasonable standard to rely upon. There are factors, however, which apply peculiarly to Class IV stations seeking power in excess of 250 watts which, in our opinion, justify excepting them as a group from the 10 percent population criterion. Unlike other classes of standard broadcast stations, Class IV stations are almost universally non-directional, nearly all operate with the same power and are applying for equal power increases. Under such conditions, neighboring Class IV stations on local channels may generally increase power beyond 250 watts without interference resulting within their existing primary service areas, and obtain the substantial benefits of increased signal strength within existing areas, and a net expansion of primary service, even though population in the new service areas may be subject to interference in excess of that which may be permitted under § 3.28(c)(3). Conditions conducive to a comparable general result do not exist on other than the local channels, and we adhere to the view that it is necessary to retain the 10 percent population criterion for delineating the requisite minimum of interference-free service to be provided within the normally protected contours of stations of other classes to insure efficient use of broadcast frequencies.

12. The reply comments of Southeastern Ohio Broadcasting System, Inc., and The Zanesville Publishing Company urge rule making on another proposal affecting Class IV stations and assignments. The proposal looks toward an amendment to the rules which would require that the normally protected daytime service area contour (0.5 mv/m) of Class IV stations be determined on the basis of 250 watts with regard to other Class IV stations regardless of whether greater power is utilized. Also, these parties propose that the interfering daytime signal of Class IV stations be calculated with respect to each other on the basis of 250 watts regardless of whether greater power is utilized. We are not prepared at this point to act upon additional revisions of the rules governing Class IV stations but are continuing to study other possible improvements.[2] Consideration will be given to the foregoing proposal in the course of that study.

13. Authority for the adoption of the amendment herein is contained in sections 4(i) and 303 (f), (h), and (r) and 307(b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

14. In view of the foregoing: It is ordered, That, effective January 23, 1961, § 3.28(c) of the Commission's rules and regulations is amended as set forth below.

Subparagraph (3) of § 3.28(c) is amended; as amended, paragraph (c) reads as follows:

§ 3.28 Assignment of stations to channels.

* * * * *

(c) Upon showing that a need exists, a Class II, III, or IV station may be assigned to a channel available for such class, even though interference will be received within its normally protected contour; Provided: (1) no objectionable interference will be caused by the proposed station to existing stations or that if interference will be caused, the need for the proposed service outweighs the need for the service which will be lost by reason of such interference; and (2) primary service will be provided to the community in which the proposed station is to be located; and (3) the interference received does not affect more than 10 percent of the population in the proposed station's normally protected primary service area; however, in the event that the nighttime interference received by a proposed Class II or III station would exceed this amount, then an assignment may be made if the proposed station would provide either a standard broadcast nighttime facility to a community not having such a facility or if 25 percent or more of the nighttime primary service area of the proposed station is without primary nighttime service. Further, proviso (3) of this paragraph shall not apply to existing Class IV stations on local channels applying for an increase in power above 250 watts, nor to new Class IV stations proposing power in excess of 250 watts with respect to population in the primary service area outside the equivalent 250 watt, 0.5 mv/m contour.

PART 8—STATIONS ON SHIPBOARD IN THE MARITIME SERVICES

1. On May 19, 1960, the Commission released a notice of proposed rule making concerning the use of the calling frequency 2182 kc; duration of communications on frequencies 2003, 2638, 2738, and 2830 kc; and simplification of log keeping records for certain specified stations. The National Party Boat Owners Alliance, Inc., and Captain D. Stewart MacGregor had filed petitions requesting certain changes in the Commission's Rules pertaining to operating procedures of ship radio stations licensed in the 2–3 Mc band. The original date for filing comments herein, June 27, 1960, was extended to September 27, 1960, pursuant to a request of The American Waterways Operators, Inc. (hereinafter referred to as AWO). Subsequent to the closing date of September 27, 1960, the Commission accepted the comments of October 7, 1960, of AWO and ordered that comments in reply to those submitted by AWO could be filed on or before November 3, 1960. The time for filing comments has expired. The notice of rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on May 24, 1960 (25 F.R. 4560).

2. Comments in this proceeding were filed by The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company (hereinafter referred to as PT & T), Lake Carriers' Association, Mr. Fred R. Place, Southern California Marine Radio Council, and AWO. The Southern California Marine Radio Council and Mr. Place supported the Commission's proposal. The Lake Carriers' Association gave general approval to the Commission's proposal and submitted supporting statements in connection with the proposal to permit calls on the working frequencies under the conditions laid down by the Commission and the proposal to simplify the log keeping requirements.

3. The basic position of AWO is that the Commission should amend its Rules substantially as proposed, and requests that the rules be made applicable to vessels operating under both the Western River rules and the Inland rules of the United States Coast Guard. With respect to the latter request, it is observed that the proposed rules apply to ship stations generally and it is believed that the vessels operating under the Western and Inland rules would, as a matter of course, be encompassed within them. Although the AWO states the Rules should be amended substantially as proposed, AWO suggests the use of 2182 kc be limited to distress, safety, and urgent calls only and that the use of the frequency for calling and answering be abolished. The use of 2182 kc for distress and calling, and the reasons for such usage, were discussed in the Commission's proposal. The Commission believes that these reasons are still valid and accordingly the AWO suggestion will not be adopted. AWO gave its full support to the proposal to reduce the time limits on communications, to increase the interval before communication could again be attempted, and to the Commission's proposal to simplify the log keeping requirements. AWO suggested that the Commission's staff meet with its Electronic Committee prior to finalizing the notice. However, such a meeting does not appear to be necessary or appropriate.

4. In its comments, PT & T stated that they felt that the proposed rule changes would be advantageous to operators of ship stations using their services. PT & T, however, recommended that ship stations in the Puget Sound and contiguous waters in the Strait of Juan de Fuca, Strait of Georgia and Haro Strait be exempted from the log-keeping requirement if there are no international agreements to the contrary. The Commission believes that further consideration should be given to the entire matter of log-keeping requirements. Further, it is deemed desirable to retain the present provisions of § 8.368(a)(6) until after action has been taken by the Commission to implement the radio regulations adopted at Geneva (1959). Accordingly, that portion of the National Party Boat Owners Alliance, Inc., petition relating to log-keeping requirements, the PT & T comments on that question, and that portion of the Commission's proposal in this docket are held in abeyance. Section 8.366(b)(2) and (f)(1) is herein finalized as proposed, except for editorial changes.

5. In view of the foregoing, the Commission believes that the public interest will be served by adopting § 8.366 (b)(2) and (f)(1) substantially as proposed.

6. It is ordered, This 14th day of December 1960, That pursuant to the authority contained in section 303(f)(g) and (r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, Part 8 of the Commission's rules is amended as set forth below, effective January 23, 1961.

7. It is further ordered, That the petition for rule amendments of Captain D. Stewart MacGregor, 47 Robbins Avenue, Babylon, New York, is granted insofar as it is consistent with the rules herein adopted and is denied in all other respects.

8. It is further ordered, That the petition for rule amendments (RM-97) of the National Party Boat Owners Alliance, Inc., 129 Ocean Avenue, Bayshore, Long Island, New York is granted insofar as it is consistent with the rules herein adopted; is held pending with respect to the request concerning log-keeping requirements; and is denied in all other respects.

[SEAL] BEN F. WAPLE,
Acting Secretary.

Part 8 is amended as follows:

In § 8.366, the caption of paragraph (b), and the texts of sub-paragraphs (b)(2) and (f)(1) are amended to read as follows:

(2) Except when other operating procedure is used to expedite safety communication, ship stations, before transmitting on the intership working frequencies 2638, 2738, or 2830 kc, shall first establish communication with other ship stations by call and reply on the frequency 2182 kc: Provided, That calls may be initiated on an intership working frequency when it is known that the called vessel maintains a simultaneous listening watch on such working frequency and on 2182 kc.

(f) Shared use of 2003, 2638, 2738, and 2830 kc.

(1) Any one exchange of communications between any two ship stations on the intership working frequencies 2003, 2638, 2738 or 2830 kc or between a ship station and a limited coast station on 2738 or 2830 kc, shall not exceed 3 minutes in duration after the two stations have established contact by calling and answering. Subsequent to such exchange of communications, 2003, 2638, 2738, or 2830 kc shall not be used again for communication between the same two stations until 10 minutes have elapsed: Provided, That this requirement shall in no way limit or delay the transmission of distress or emergency communications or communications relating to the safe navigation of a vessel.

Basis and purpose. Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of the Interior by sec. 5, 19 Stat. 200, sec. 1, 31 Stat. 1066, as amended (25 U.S.C. 261, 262), it is proposed to amend 25 CFR 252.27a as set forth below. The purpose of this amendment is to eliminate the need for a tribe annually to request a waiver by the Secretary of the Interior of the § 252.27a in order for a carnival company retained by the tribe under contract to provide facilities for tribal amusement and recreational programs.

It is the policy of the Department of the Interior whenever practicable, to afford the public an opportunity to participate in the rule making process. Accordingly, interested persons may submit written comments, suggestions, or objections with respect to the proposed amendments to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Washington 25, D.C., within thirty days of the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Section 252.27a is amended to read as follows:

§ 252.27a Amusement companies.

(a) All carnival companies, circuses, theatrical companies, all persons, firms or companies conducting or operating portable dance pavilions, mechanical devices such as ferris wheels, carousels, or other devices for carrying passengers, and all persons operating games of skill, shall be considered traders and shall be required to obtain a license and to pay such fee as may be prescribed by the superintendent in charge of the jurisdiction, based on the number and class of devices or units to be operated (not less than $5.00 nor more than $25.00 per unit); and shall post a surety bond in an amount not exceeding $10,000 and a personal injury and property damage liability bond of not less than $500.00 nor more than $20,000 as may be required by the superintendent.

(b) The provisions of this section do not apply where a contract between the tribe and the amusement company provides for the payment of a fee to the tribe and for the protection of the public against personal injury and property damage in the amounts specified in paragraph (a) of this section.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Agricultural Marketing Service

[7 CFR Part 994]

[Docket No. AO-300-A1]

MILK IN COLORADO SPRINGS-PUEBLO MARKETING AREA

Decision on Proposed Amendments to Tentative Marketing Agreement and to Order

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Colorado Springs, Colorado, on June 21-22, 1960, pursuant to notice thereof issued on May 31, 1960 (25 F.R. 4919).

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, on October 27, 1960 (25 F.R. 10459; Doc. 60-10217) filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision containing notice of the opportunity to file written exceptions thereto.

The material issues on the record of the hearing relate to:

1. The Class I price;
2. The Class II price;
3. Pool plant requirements and clarification of plant definitions;
4. Classification of milk transferred or diverted to nonpool plants;
5. Limitations on diversions;
6. Location adjustments to producers;
7. Administrative charges to partially regulated handlers; and
8. Allocation of packaged sour cream received from plants where it has been classified and priced as Class I under another Federal order.

Separate consideration was given earlier to the Class I price issue in order to provide a Class I price provision in the order beyond its expiration date of July 1960. A recommended decision on the matter was issued July 7, 1960 (25 F.R. 6483), a final decision on July 18, 1960 (25 F.R. 6926), and an order amending the order on July 29, 1960 (25 F.R. 7203).

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based on evidence presented at the hearing and the record thereof:

1. The provisions for pricing Class II milk should not be changed.

Class II milk under the Colorado Springs-Pueblo order includes all skim milk and butterfat used in the production of nonfluid dairy products, skim dumped, livestock feed and allowable plant losses. Since the inception of the order, Class II milk has been priced at the higher of the average paying prices of selected Wisconsin and Michigan condenseries or a butter-powder formula price. For the months of March through July, 20 cents is deducted from this price.

While proposals to review the Class II pricing provisions were made in the notice of hearing by Colorado producers' cooperatives and five handlers, the only testimony in favor of a change was offered by a Utah producers' cooperative, Cache Valley Dairy Association, which proposed elimination of the 20-cent reduction in the March-July period.

Except for the production of ice cream and cottage cheese by certain distributors in the market, the nearest manufacturing facilities available to producers for receiving milk that cannot be used by the distributing plants for fluid sales are located in Larkspur, Fort Collins, Johnstown, and Brush, Colorado, which are 30, 126, 108, and 158 miles, respectively, from the El Paso County Courthouse in Colorado Springs. The producer associations representing Colorado producers allege that handlers in the market are reluctant to accept any milk from producers in excess of their plant requirements. As a result, these associations have been required to handle the disposition of substantial amounts of milk during the flush season by transporting such milk to the distant manufacturing plants. Costs of transporting such reserve milk supplies to the manufacturing plants are borne by the associations at rates varying from 30 to 75 cents per hundredweight, depending upon distance and volume handled. The 20-cent reduction in the Class II price during the flush months of March through July recognizes the fact that during this period substantial quantities of milk must be moved to the distant nonpool plants for manufacture.

While it is probably true that milk for manufacturing use delivered to the Cache Valley Dairy Association plant in Smithfield, Utah, has a value equal to the basic formula price in all months of the year, it is practicable to deliver only a small portion of the present production for the Colorado Springs-Pueblo market to this plant. There is no evidence to indicate that the level of the Class II price in the market has encouraged handlers to expand their manufacturing facilities or to seek additional supplies of milk for manufacturing use. In view of the limited experience under the order to date, no change should be made in the Class II price structure at this time.

2. The pool plant definition should be revised.

The present order defines a distributing pool plant as one in which fluid milk products are pasteurized or packaged and from which 20 percent or more of the total Class I sales are made on routes in the marketing area. A supply pool plant is defined as a plant from which during the month not less than 40 percent of its dairy farm supply of Grade A milk is moved to distributing pool plants. Any supply plant which qualifies as a pool plant in each of the months of September through February of any year is a pool plant for the following months of March through August unless written request for nonpool status is furnished in advance to the market administrator.

One producer association proposed that shipping requirements for supply pool plants be 50 percent of receipts during August through January and be 30 percent during other months. Several associations supported a requirement that distributing pool plants have 50 percent or more Class I utilization of approved receipts.

The purpose of pool plant requirements is to distinguish which plants are associated with the market to the extent that they should participate in the marketwide pool.

Under the present distributing pool plant requirements, the Class I sales of a plant might constitute only a small proportion of the milk received from producers, with the major portion designed for manufacturing use. However, all of the milk could be pooled. Plants could also be qualified as supply pool plants by making deliveries to such plants whether or not the milk was needed or used for Class I purposes. To distinguish those plants primarily engaged in processing and distribution of fluid milk from plants that must qualify for pool status on the basis of bulk shipments to the market, it should be required that 50 percent or more of the receipts of Grade A milk be disposed of as Class I milk if such plant is to qualify as a distributing pool plant. The present requirement that 20 percent of such Class I disposition be on routes in the marketing area should also apply.

No change should be made in the percentage of its receipts of Grade A milk that a supply plant must ship to a distributing pool plant to qualify for pool plant status. The 40 percent shipping requirement presently provided in the order has apparently operated satisfactorily. The only plant that has qualified as a supply plant has been that of the Pueblo Dairymen's Cooperative, Inc., which has a long and close association with the market. There is no evidence that any other supply plant has made substantial shipments to pool distributing plants without achieving pool plant status.

No seasonal variation should be made in the shipping requirement for supply plants. While distributing plants need a smaller proportion of the receipts of supply plants in the spring when production is relatively high than they do in the fall when milk production is relatively low, such seasonal variations are accommodated adequately in the present provision that permits the automatic pooling of milk of any supply plant during the months of March through August if such plant qualified as a pool plant during the previous months of September through February.

A distributing pool plant should be defined as a plant (1) in which fluid milk products are pasteurized or packaged, (2) from which an amount equal to 50 percent or more of receipts of Grade A milk from dairy farmers and from other pool plants is disposed of as Class I milk, and (3) from which 20 percent or more of the total Class I sales are on routes in the marketing area. A supply pool plant should be any plant from which during the month not less than 40 percent of its dairy farm supply of Grade A milk is moved to a distributing pool plant(s). Any supply plant which has qualified as a pool plant in each of the months of September through February in any year should be a pool plant for each of the following months of March through August unless written request for nonpool plant status for any such month(s) is furnished in advance to the market administrator. Any supply plant withdrawn from pool plant status may only be reinstated for any month in which it fulfills the requirements of shipping not less than 40 percent of its receipts of Grade A milk from producers to a distributing pool plant(s).

Proposals to define "distribution point" and "plant" should not be adopted. The most significant effect of such proposals would have been to insure that reloading operations, wherein milk is transferred from one road vehicle to another, could under no circumstances be considered a part of the operation of a plant located at the point at which such reloading takes place. Where milk is picked up at the farm in small pick-up tanks and transferred to a transport tanker at a plant location, all factors concerning such movements must be considered in determining whether it should be treated as a delivery direct from the farm or through the intermediate plant at which the transfer was made. The proposed definition would not provide an adequate basis for this determination.

3. The area within which milk may be disposed of to nonpool plants as Class II milk should include Cache and Weber Counties, Utah. The condition under which Class II utilization in nonpool plants may be established should be modified.

The present order provides that if a fluid milk product in bulk form is transferred or diverted to a nonpool plant located more than 200 miles from the El Paso County Courthouse in Colorado Springs, it is automatically classified as Class I milk. Within the 200-mile limit such transfers may be Class II milk if it can be shown that an equivalent volume has been manufactured into Class II products.

Milk of 30–40 dairy farmers whose farms are located in northern Utah has been priced under the Colorado Springs-Pueblo order since January 1960 as milk of producers delivering to a pool plant in Denver which was supplying the Fort Carson military installation. There are milk manufacturing facilities in Cache and Weber Counties, Utah, to which milk of these producers could be diverted for Class II use when not needed for Class I use. Under present provisions of the order, such diversion can only be as Class I milk. Provisions should be made for diversion as Class II milk, under the conditions and limitations hereafter discussed, to plants in these counties.

Nonpool plants in Cache and Weber Counties, Utah, to which diversion may be made, have receipts of Grade A milk, manufacturing grade milk and farm separated cream. Under the classification provisions as presently applicable to transfers or diversions within the 200-mile limit and which would apply in Cache and Weber Counties with their inclusion in the surplus disposal area, use of an equivalent volume of milk as Class II milk at a nonpool plant would result in the pool milk transferred or diverted being priced as Class II milk. The provision should be modified so that the pool milk will share in any Class I utilization in excess of receipts of Grade A milk from farmers regularly supplying the plant. If transfers have been made from more than one pool plant or from plants regulated by other orders, the available Class I utilization should be prorated.

4. The producer definition should be revised and provision made for limiting diversion of producer milk to nonpool plants.

Under the present definition in the order, a producer means any person, other than a producer-handler, who produces milk in compliance with fluid milk product requirements of a duly constituted health authority having jurisdiction within the marketing area, and whose milk is received at a pool plant or is diverted to a nonpool plant for the account of a handler. Milk so diverted is deemed to have been received by the diverting handler at the plant from which it was diverted.

Several proposals were discussed at the hearing which would either require specific association with the market to achieve producer status or limit the conditions under which a dairy farmer could retain status as a producer when his milk was diverted to a nonpool plant.

The Cache Valley Dairy Association, representing northern Utah producers, proposed that no dairy farmer who qualifies as a producer under another order should be a producer under the Colorado Springs-Pueblo order in the same month. Two Colorado associations supported a proposal that producer status be restricted to those dairy farmers whose milk production was received at a pool plant for 16 days or more in the month. By brief they also asked that producer status be denied a dairy farmer if any of his milk was received at a nonpool plant except by diversion. A diversion limit of 12 days' production in the months of August through March was advocated by the Cache Valley association. The Colorado associations proposed a 15-day limitation in all months.

Erratic changes in producer numbers since the effective date of the order indicate a need for more definite requirements of association with the market for producer status. Associations representing producers in the Great Basin and Western Colorado markets also represent producers supplying the Colorado Springs-Pueblo market. In the recommended decision it was provided that a dairy farmer who qualifies as a producer under another order during the month should not be a producer under Order

No. 94. In view of the exceptions received from Colorado cooperatives, this provision has been modified to accord producer milk status to receipts at pool plants direct from the farms of such producers except when the milk delivered to Colorado Springs-Pueblo plants retains producer milk status (as by diversion) under the other order.

With respect to limitation of diversion, the needs of the market can best be served if during each month of the year a producer's milk may not be diverted to a nonpool plant for more days of production than it is received at a pool plant. To deny producer status to any dairy farmer whose milk was received at a nonpool plant except by diversion as suggested by brief might unduly limit access to the market.

The health authorities in compliance with whose requirements a dairy farmer must produce Grade A milk to be considered a producer should not be restricted to those having jurisdiction in the marketing area. The requirement that a producer must deliver milk to a pool plant each month under the diversion limitations herein provided, together with the performance requirements for pool plant status, make this requirement superfluous. While present provisions have been administered to recognize reciprocal inspection arrangements, the order language should be clarified to avoid possible conflict in interpretation.

Changes in the producer definition are included to carry out the conditions set forth in another part of this decision with respect to application of location adjustments to diverted milk.

5. Location adjustments should apply with respect to producer milk diverted to nonpool plants. Location adjustments should not apply at plants less than 200 miles from Colorado Springs.

The provision that milk may be classified as Class II milk when diverted to points in Cache and Weber Counties, Utah, more than 500 miles from the marketing area, raises an issue as to the application of location adjustments to the producer price at which producers should share in the pool when milk ordinarily delivered to a plant in or near the marketing area is diverted to nonpool plants near such producers' farms. Present provisions of the order treat milk diverted to nonpool plants as if received at the location of the pool plant from which diverted. Thus, without some change, Utah producers would receive the marketing area price for milk diverted to Utah plants without incurring the costs of transporting the milk to the vicinity of the marketing area.

The Cache Valley Dairy Association proposed that a special producer location adjustment of approximately 30 cents per hundredweight apply in such cases, but proposed no revision in other rates of location adjustment to handlers or to producers. The rates provided in the order (13.5 cents for the first 80–90 miles, plus 1.5 cents for each additional 10 miles) represent a rate of approximately 90 cents per hundredweight at points in Cache and Weber Counties.

In support of this proposal it was claimed that the Cache Valley association had devised a particularly economical method of transporting milk for their members. It was not shown, however, that rates representative of the claimed cost were used in returning to producers the Colorado Springs-Pueblo blend prices. Instead such producers have had their returns blended on an f.o.b. Utah basis with other association members supplying the Great Basin market or unregulated markets.

The location of producers' farms in relation to nonpool manufacturing plants is such that there is no saving in transportation costs when producers presently supplying the market from farms in Colorado and western Kansas have their milk diverted to nonpool plants. There is rather an increase in cost which has been borne by the associations representing these producers. All manufacturing plants to which diversion of such producers' milk has been made are within 200 miles of Colorado Springs. There is, on the other hand, a substantial saving in mileage when milk of the Utah producers is diverted to plants in the area added to the surplus manufacturing area.

Utah producers and Colorado producers were in agreement that producers should, under present circumstances, receive the uniform order price without location deduction when their milk is diverted to nonpool plants within 200 miles of Colorado Springs and that a location adjustment should apply when milk is diverted to more distant plants. The rate of such adjustment was the sole issue between them, Colorado producers advocating that such adjustment be at the regular rates now specified in the order and Utah producers advocating the special rate discussed heretofore.

Rates of location adjustment and the area and milk to which they apply should be uniform, when applied either to receipts at pool plants or diversions to nonpool plants. Present rates of location adjustment represent normal hauling rates and should not be changed on the basis of the limited exception shown on this record. Milk diverted to nonpool plants should be priced at the location of the nonpool plant to which diverted. The area within which no location adjustments apply should, however, be enlarged to include points up to 200 miles from Colorado Springs, with present rates applicable at more distant plants. There are presently no supply or distribution plants associated with the market that are located more than 80 but less than 200 miles from Colorado Springs. As stated earlier in this decision, a number of nonpool manufacturing plants to which milk is diverted are located in the 80–200 mile zone. This change will permit producers who incur additional hauling costs when their milk is diverted to these plants to continue to receive the f.o.b. market price without affecting the costs of any handler.

Use of a 200-mile radius rather than one of 80 miles makes it unnecessary to continue to have mileages measured from the nearer of Colorado Springs, Pueblo or Walsenburg. It is provided that location adjustments be determined by distance from Colorado Springs, the principal population center of the market.

6. No change should be made in the obligation incurred by a nonpool handler to either the pool or to the administrative fund when such handler disposes of fluid milk products on routes in the marketing area.

The handler operating a nonpool plant has the option of paying a compensatory payment together with an administrative assessment on that milk disposed of in the marketing area, or paying any differences between the amount paid dairy farmers by such handler and the net class use value of their milk at order prices, together with administrative assessment on all such handler's milk whether or not disposed of in the market.

A handler operating a nonpool plant under the Colorado Springs-Pueblo order proposed several changes to this provision in the hearing notice, but at the hearing supported only a lower rate of administrative assessment for nonpool handlers electing the payment comparison option for accounting to the pool.

The aggregate volume of Class I in-area sales by three nonpool plants distributing Class I milk in the Colorado Springs-Pueblo marketing area is approximately 10 percent of the total Class I sales made in the area by all handlers. Payments by these three plants for the administrative costs of the order amount to approximately 53 percent of the total. The proponent handler contended that such payments to the administrative fund are disproportionate to the volume of Class I milk distributed in the area by the nonpool plants and that fully regulated plants, more directly affected by the order, should pay a larger portion of the cost of market administration than those plants that are only partially regulated.

The proportion of in-area sales made by a handler to that of all other handlers in the market does not provide a sufficient basis for altering the rate of assessment. Regardless of the proportionate amount of Class I milk disposed of by a handler in the marketing area, the market administrator must verify receipts and utilization of all milk in a nonpool handler's plant to establish the amount of obligation under the payment comparison option provided and, therefore, all such milk should be subject to the expense of administration. Such verification includes the checking of weights and butterfat tests of receipts from dairy farmers and of products sold as well as an audit of books and records. Fully regulated plants may also have a substantial proportion of out-of-area sales and yet be assessed administrative expenses on their entire receipts.

A handler may elect the option of making payment to the pool at the difference between the Class I and Class II price with respect to only fluid milk product sales made in the marketing area. This option requires that the handler of the nonpool plant pay administrative expenses only on the volume of in-area Class I milk sales, since the need for verification will then be confined to that volume.

There is no basis for making any change in the rate of administrative assessments as presently provided in the order.

7. Sour cream manufactured from milk subject to the pricing and pooling provisions of Order No. 41 for the Chicago marketing area should be allocated directly to Class I at pool plants under the Colorado Springs-Pueblo order when such cream is received, handled and distributed in the same consumer or institutional size packages in which it was received.

A proposal to this effect was included in the hearing notice. The proposal was supported in a modified version by a Colorado Springs-Pueblo handler who planned to receive packaged sour cream from the National Cheese Company of Chicago, Illinois (a handler under the Chicago order) for distribution in the Colorado Springs-Pueblo marketing area commencing July 1960. Three producer associations of the Colorado Springs-Pueblo market opposed the modified proposal. Sour cream sales in the market at the time of the hearing, which were regularly supplied from milk of local producers, represented less than one percent of total Class I market usage.

Present provisions of this order give priority for all Class I utilization to producer milk. Receipts of sour cream priced and pooled under Order No. 41 would be allocated to Class II to the extent possible under the Colorado Springs-Pueblo order. While all cream products under the Chicago order are classified as Class II under the accounting and pricing system of the Chicago order, this class is the equivalent of the Class I classification and pricing under the accounting system of the Colorado Springs-Pueblo order.

Inasmuch as the Class I price in the Colorado Springs-Pueblo marketing area will be generally aligned with prices under other Federal orders, there is little chance that handlers in the Chicago market can achieve a substantial competitive advantage with respect to sales of packaged sour cream in this area over handlers under this order. The seasonal and daily reserves necessary to supply the exact quantities of packaged sour cream will be generally carried by the Chicago producers. Yet, under the current provisions of the Colorado Springs-Pueblo order, the seasonal and daily excess of producer milk in the market would be assigned to Class I to the extent of any receipts of packaged sour cream from the Chicago market.

Receipts of sour cream priced as Class II under Order No. 41 and disposed of in the same consumer or institutional size packages as received should be allocated to the Class I utilization of the receiving handler. Such allocation should be provided only when sour cream is not processed or packaged in the plant during the month. While the Colorado Springs-Pueblo handler proposed a provision applicable to all packaged fluid milk products and receipts from all orders, all testimony was directed to the allocation of packaged sour cream priced under Order No. 41. No basis exists to provide for movement of other products or from other orders.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. Briefs and proposed findings and conclusions were filed on behalf of certain interested parties in the market. These briefs, proposed findings and conclusions and the evidence in the record were considered in making the findings and conclusions set forth above. To the extent that the suggested findings and conclusions filed by interested parties are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions set forth herein, the requests to make such findings or reach such conclusions are denied for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

General findings. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the Act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The tentative marketing agreement and the order, as hereby proposed to be amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings on exceptions. In arriving at the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision, each of the exceptions received was carefully and fully considered in conjunction with the record evidence pertaining thereto. To the extent that the findings and conclusions, and the regulatory provisions of this decision are at variance with any of the exceptions, such exceptions are hereby overruled for the reasons previously stated in this decision.

Marketing agreement and order. Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled respectively, "Marketing Agreement Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Colorado Springs-Pueblo Marketing Area", and "Order Amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Colorado Springs-Pueblo Marketing Area", which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the order as hereby proposed to be amended by the attached order which will be published with this decision.

Determination of representative period. The month of October 1960 is hereby determined to be the representative period for the purpose of ascertaining whether the issuance of the attached order amending the order regulating the handling of milk in the Colorado Springs-Pueblo marketing area, is approved or favored by producers, as defined under the terms of the order as hereby proposed to be amended, and who, during such representative period, were engaged in the production of milk for sale within the aforesaid marketing area.

Issued at Washington, D.C., this 16th day of December 1960.

CLARENCE L. MILLER,
Assistant Secretary.

Order[1] amending the order regulating the handling of milk in the Colorado Springs-Pueblo marketing area

§ 994.0 Findings and determinations.

The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order regulating the handling of milk in the Colorado Springs-Pueblo marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order as hereby amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act;

(2) The parity prices of milk, as determined pursuant to Section 2 of the Act, are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the said marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the order as hereby amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(3) The said order as hereby amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as, and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial or commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Order relative to handling. It is therefore ordered, that on and after the effective date hereof, the handling of milk in the Colorado Springs-Pueblo marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of the aforesaid order, as hereby amended, and the aforesaid order is hereby amended as follows:

1. Delete § 994.7 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 994.7 Pool plant.

A "pool plant" shall be any plant meeting the conditions of paragraph (a) or (b) of this section except the plant of a handler exempted in § 994.60 or § 994.61:

(a) Any plant, hereinafter referred to as a "distributing pool plant", (1) in which fluid milk products are pasteurized or packaged, (2) from which an amount equal to 50 percent or more of receipts of Grade A milk from dairy farmers and from other pool plants is disposed of as Class I milk, and (3) from which 20 percent or more of the total Class I sales are on routes in the marketing area; and

(b) Any plant, hereinafter referred to as a "supply pool plant", from which during the month not less than 40 percent of its dairy farm supply of Grade A milk is moved to a distributing pool plant(s). Any supply plant which has qualified as a pool plant in each of the months of September through February shall be a pool plant for each of the following months of March through August unless written request for nonpool status for any such month(s) is furnished in advance to the market administrator. A plant withdrawn from supply pool plant status may not be reinstated for any subsequent month of March through August unless it fulfills the shipping requirements of this paragraph for such month.

§ 994.9 [Amendment]

2. In § 994.9 delete the following sentence: "Such milk shall be considered as having been received by such cooperative association at the plant from which it was diverted."

3. Delete § 994.10 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 994.10 Producer.

"Producer" means any person, other than a producer-handler (or a dairy farmer with respect to milk delivered to a pool plant which qualifies as producer milk under another Federal milk order) who produces milk eligible for distribution as Grade A milk in compliance with the fluid milk product requirements of a duly constituted health authority, whose milk is:

(a) Received at a pool plant; or

(b) Diverted from a pool plant to a nonpool plant for the account of the handler operating the pool plant or of a cooperative association, subject to the following limitations and conditions:

(1) The days of production of such person for which milk is diverted during the month may not exceed the days of production for which milk is received at a pool plant, otherwise such person will not be considered a producer with respect to any milk diverted;

(2) For purposes of the requirements of § 994.7, milk diverted for the account of the operator of a pool plant shall be included in the receipts of the pool plant from which diverted; and

(3) For purposes of location adjustments pursuant to § 994.81, milk diverted to a nonpool plant shall be considered to have been received at the location of the nonpool plant to which diverted.

§ 994.44 [Amendment]

4. Delete § 994.44(c) and substitute therefor the following:

(c) Class I milk, if transferred or diverted as a fluid milk product in bulk to a nonpool plant located more than 200 miles, by the shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator, from the El Paso County Courthouse, but not located in Cache or Weber Counties, Utah.

5. Delete § 994.44(e) and substitute therefor the following:

(e) Class I milk, if transferred or diverted as a fluid milk product in bulk to a nonpool plant located not more than 200 miles, by the shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator, from the El Paso County Courthouse, or located in Cache or Weber Counties, Utah, unless the following conditions are met:

(1) The transferring handler claims Class II utilization in his report submitted pursuant to § 994.30;

(2) The operator of the nonpool plant maintains books and records showing receipts and utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at such plant which are made available if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification;

(3) Class I utilization in the nonpool plant does not exceed the receipts of skim milk and butterfat in Grade A milk from dairy farmers. If Class I utilization exceeds such receipts, the skim milk and butterfat so transferred or diverted shall be Class I to the extent of a pro rata share of total receipts at the nonpool plant from all pool plants and from plants fully subject to other orders that are claimed as Class II utilization or as a class other than Class I under another order; and

(4) If any skim milk or butterfat is transferred to a second nonpool plant under this paragraph, the same conditions of audit, classification and allocation shall apply.

§ 994.46 [Amendment]

6. Delete § 994.46(a)(3) and substitute therefor the following:

(3) Subtract the pounds of skim milk in fluid milk products received from plants regulated under another order issued pursuant to the Act, as specified:

(i) If sour cream was not processed or packaged in the pool plant during the month, subtract from the pounds of skim milk in Class I milk the pounds of skim milk in sour cream packaged in consumer or institutional size packages, classified and priced as Class II milk pursuant to Order No. 41, regulating the handling of milk in Chicago, Illinois, marketing area (Part 941 of this chapter), disposed of in the same packages as received; and

(ii) Subtract from the pounds of skim milk remaining in each class, in series beginning with Class II, the remaining pounds of skim milk in other source milk received from a plant at which the handling of milk is fully subject to the pricing and payment provisions of another marketing agreement or order issued pursuant to the Act.

7. Delete § 994.52 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 994.52 Location differentials to handlers.

For milk which is received from producers at a plant located more than 200 miles by the shortest highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, from the El Paso County Courthouse in Colorado Springs, and which is classified as Class I milk the prices computed pursuant to § 994.51(a) shall be reduced by 31.5 cents if such plant is located more than 200 miles but not more than 210 miles from such Courthouse and by an additional 1.5 cents for each 10 miles or fraction thereof that such distance exceeds 210 miles: Provided, That for the purpose of calculating such differential transfers between pool plants shall be assigned to Class I milk in a volume not in excess of that by which Class I disposition at the transferee plant exceeds the receipts from producers at such plant, such assignment to transferor plants to be made first to plants at which no differential credit is applicable and then in the sequence beginning with the plant at which the lowest location differential credit would apply.

8. Delete § 994.81 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 994.81 Location differential to producers.

For milk which is received at a plant located more than 200 miles but not more than 210 miles by shortest highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, from the El Paso County Courthouse in Colorado Springs, there should be deducted 31.5 cents per hundredweight and an additional 1.5 cents shall be deducted for each 10 miles or fraction thereof that such distance exceeds 210 miles.

FEDERAL AVIATION AGENCY

[14 CFR Parts 600, 601]

[Airspace Docket No. 60-NY-141]

FEDERAL AIRWAYS AND CONTROL AREAS

Alteration

Pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (14 CFR 409.13), notice is hereby given that the Federal Aviation Agency is considering an amendment to §§ 600.6031 and 601.-6031 of the regulations of the Administrator, the substance of which is stated below.

VOR Federal airway No. 31 extends in part from Selinsgrove, Pa., via Williamsport, Pa., to Elmira, N.Y. The Federal Aviation Agency has under consideration alteration of this segment of Victor 31 by designating a west alternate and associated control areas from the Selinsgrove VORTAC via the intersection of the Selinsgrove VORTAC 342° and the Elmira VOR 187° True radials, to the Elmira VOR. The designation of this west alternate would provide a by-pass route west of the Williamsport terminal area for aircraft operating between Elmira and Harrisburg, Pa. Also, it would provide an additional north and south bound route for simultaneous use by aircraft departing the Williamsport-Lycoming County, Pa., Airport, while arrival aircraft are conducting prescribed instrument approach procedures utilizing the Williamsport L/MF radio range and VOR.

Interested persons may submit such written data, views or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted in triplicate to the Chief, Air Traffic Management Division, Federal Aviation Agency, Federal Building, New York International Airport, Jamaica 30, N.Y. All communications received within forty-five days after publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER will be considered before action is taken on the proposed amendment. No public hearing is contemplated at this time, but arrangements for informal conferences with Federal Aviation Agency officials may be made by contacting the Regional Air Traffic Management Division Chief, or the Chief, Airspace Utilization Division, Federal Aviation Agency, Washington 25, D.C. Any data, views or arguments presented during such conferences must also be submitted in writing in accordance with this notice in order to become part of the record for consideration. The proposal contained in this notice may be changed in the light of comments received.

The official Docket will be available for examination by interested persons at the Docket Section, Federal Aviation Agency, Room B-316, 1711 New York Avenue NW., Washington 25, D.C. An informal Docket will also be available for examination at the office of the Regional Air Traffic Management Division Chief.

This amendment is proposed under section 307(a) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 749; 49 U.S.C. 1348).

Issued in Washington, D.C., on December 16, 1960.

Chief, Airspace Utilization Division.

[Airspace Docket No. 60-FW-99]

FEDERAL AIRWAYS, CONTROL AREAS AND REPORTING POINTS

Revocation of Segments of Federal Airway, Associated Control Areas, Reporting Points, Alteration of Control Area Extension

Pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Administrator (14 CFR 409.13), notice is hereby given that the Federal Aviation Agency is considering an amendment to §§ 600.107, 601.107, 601.4107 and 601.1072 of the regulations of the Administrator, the substance of which is stated below.

Amber Federal airway No. 7 presently extends in part from Miami, Fla., to Daytona Beach, Fla., and from Florence, S.C., to Richmond, Va. The Federal Aviation Agency is considering revoking these segments of Amber 7. It is the policy of this Agency to revoke L/MF airways wherever adequate VOR airways are available, and it appears that the route from Miami to Daytona Beach is adequately served by VOR Federal airway No. 3, and the route from Florence to Richmond is adequately served by a combination of VOR Federal airways No. 3, 155 and 157. Therefore, it appears that the retention of these airway segments is unjustified as an assignment of airspace. Accordingly, the Federal Aviation Agency proposes to revoke the segments of Amber 7 from Miami to Daytona Beach and from Florence to Richmond. Adoption of this proposal would not necessarily result in discontinuance of the low frequency navigational aids associated with these segments of Amber 7. Any proposals to discontinue one or more of these aids would be processed in accordance with current Agency procedures.

Concurrently with this action, § 601.-107 relating to associated control areas and § 601.4107 relating to reporting points would be amended to conform with the modified airway. In addition, the reference to Amber 7 as the east boundary and Red Federal airway No. 16 as the south boundary in the description of the Sumter, S.C., control area extension (§ 601.1072) would be deleted. VOR Federal airway No. 3 would be substituted for the east boundary and VOR Federal airway No. 56 would be substituted for the south boundary. This action would not alter the presently designated size of this control area extension.

Interested persons may submit such written data, views or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted in triplicate to the Chief, Air Traffic Management Field Division, Federal Aviation Agency, P.O. Box 1689, Fort Worth 1, Tex. All communications received within forty-five days after publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER will be considered before action is taken on the proposed amendment. No public hearing is contemplated at this time, but arrangements for informal conferences with Federal Aviation Agency officials may be made by contacting the Regional Air Traffic Management Field Division Chief, or the Chief, Airspace Utilization Division, Federal Aviation Agency, Washington 25, D.C. Any data, views or arguments presented during such conferences must also be submitted in writing in accordance with this notice in order to become part of the record for consideration. The proposal contained in this notice may be changed in the light of comments received.

The official Docket will be available for examination by interested persons at the Docket Section, Federal Aviation Agency, Room B-316, 1711 New York Avenue NW., Washington 25, D.C. An informal Docket will also be available for examination at the office of the Regional Air Traffic Management Field Division Chief.

This amendment is proposed under section 307(a) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 749; 49 U.S.C. 1348).

Issued in Washington, D.C., on December 15, 1960.

Chief, Airspace Utilization Division.

FREQUENCIES

Separation, Availability, and Allocation; Order Extending Time for Filing Comments

In the matter of Amendments of Parts 10, 11, 16, and 19 of the Commission's rules to reduce the separation between the assignable frequencies in the 450-470 Mc band; amendment of Parts 2, 9, 10, 11, 16, 19 and 21 of the Commission's rules to reallocate frequencies in the 460-470 Mc band and to make additional frequencies available for assignment in the 450-470 Mc band; amendment of Parts 10, 11, and 16 of the Commission's rules to prohibit the use of frequencies in the 450-470 Mc band by fixed stations other than control stations used for the secondary control of mobile relay stations.

The Commission has before it a petition filed by the Electronic Industries Association on December 9, 1960, requesting a 90 day extension, from February 3, 1961 to May 3, 1961, of the date for filing comments in the above entitled proceeding;

It appearing that in support of its request, the petitioner states that it desires to conduct extensive field surveys through its member companies to obtain necessary empirical data on which recommendations could be made to the Commission, and that these field surveys would require more time than the Commission has allowed for the submission of statements, particularly in view of the problem of delay that might result from inclement weather at many of the test sites during the winter months; and

It further appearing that in light of the considerations advanced by the petitioner, an extension of the comment period would be in the public interest;

It is ordered, This 16th day of December 1960, pursuant to sections 0.258(c), 0.291(b)(4), 0.322(b)(2) of the Commission's Statement of Delegations of Authority, that the above-described request of the Electronic Industries Association is granted, and that the time for filing original comments by all parties is extended from February 3, 1961 to May 3, 1961, and the time for filing reply comments to May 15, 1961.

TRADE PRACTICE RULES FOR PLEASURE BOAT INDUSTRY

Notice of Hearing and of Opportunity To Present Views, Suggestions or Objections

Opportunity is hereby extended by the Federal Trade Commission to any and all persons, firms, corporations, organizations, or other parties affected by or having an interest in the proposed trade practice rules for the Pleasure Boat Industry, to present to the Commission their views concerning said rules including such pertinent information, suggestions or objections as they may desire to submit, and to be heard in the premises. For this purpose they may obtain copies of the proposed rules upon request to the Commission. Such views, information, suggestions, or objections may be submitted by letter, memorandum, brief, or other communication, to be filed with the Commission not later than January 17, 1961. Opportunity to be heard orally will be afforded at the hearing beginning at 9:30 a.m., e.s.t., on Tuesday, January 17, 1961, in the South America Meeting Room, First Mezzanine, New York Coliseum, 20 West 60th Street, New York, N.Y., to any such persons, firms, corporations, organizations, or other parties who desire to appear and be heard. After due consideration of all matters presented in writing or orally the Commission will proceed to final action on the proposed rules.

The industry for which trade practice rules are sought to be established through this proceeding consists of persons, firms, corporations, and organizations engaged in the manufacture, sale or distribution of pleasure boats. Products of the industry consist of pleasure boats of all types (row boats, motor boats, sail boats, etc.), the length of which does not exceed 65 feet, and equipment therefor, such as, engines, propellers, rigging and tanks, which are installed on such boats when the boats are sold or offered for sale. Such equipment, when not installed on pleasure boats is not to be considered a product of the industry for which the following rules are proposed.

These proceedings were instituted pursuant to industry application and have for their purpose the establishment of a comprehensive set of trade practice rules directed to the maintenance of fair competitive conditions in the industry and to the elimination and prevention of such acts and practices as are deemed violative of statutes administered by the Federal Trade Commission. A general trade practice conference for the industry was held in Chicago, Illinois, at which a draft of suggested rules prepared by a member of the staff of the Commission's Division of Trade Practice Conferences with the cooperation of representatives of the industry, was considered and discussed. The announced hearing constitutes a further step in the proceedings.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[17 CFR Parts 240, 249, 250, 270]

CERTAIN RULES AND FORMS WITH RESPECT TO REPORTING SECURITY HOLDINGS AND TRANSACTIONS

Notice of Proposed Rule Making

DECEMBER 12, 1960.

This release announces the proposed revision of certain rules and forms with respect to reporting security holdings and transactions, as follows:

1. Amendments to §§ 240.16a-1, 240.-16a-3, 240.16a-6 and 240.16a-7 under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

2. Adoption of a new rule § 250.72 under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.

3. Rescission of §§ 270.30f-2 and 270.-30f-3 and amending § 270.30f-1 under the Investment Company Act of 1940.

4. The revision and consolidation of seven forms namely, §§ 249.104, 249.105, 249.106 under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934; §§ 259.217a and 259.217b under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, and §§ 274.202 and 274.203 under the Investment Company Act of 1940, to be consolidated into two forms §§ 249.103 and 249.104.[1]

Section 16(a) of the Securities Exchange Act requires every person who is a direct or indirect beneficial owner of more than 10 percent of any class of equity securities (other than exempted securities) which is registered on a national securities exchange, or who is a director or officer of the issuer of such securities, to file with the Commission and the exchange a statement disclosing his ownership of the issuer's equity securities. This information must be kept current by filing subsequent statements for any month in which a change in his ownership occurs. Similar statements are required by section 17(a) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of officers and directors of public utility holding companies and by section 30(f) of the Investment Company Act of officers, directors, principal security holders, members of advisory boards and investment advisers or affiliated persons of investment advisers, of registered closed-end investment companies.

At the present time, separate forms are prescribed for statements under each of the statutes referred to: Forms 4, 5 and 6 under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934; Forms U-17-1 and U-17-2 under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935; and Forms N-30F-1 and N-30F-2 under the Investment Company Act of 1940. The Commission has under consideration the revision and consolidation of these seven forms into two forms, Forms 3 and 4, which would be used, respectively, for the filing of initial statements of beneficial ownership of securities and statements of changes in such beneficial ownership under all three of these statutes. Drafts of proposed Forms 3 and 4 are attached hereto.

In connection with the revision of the forms referred to above, the Commission also has under consideration the following changes, largely technical in nature, in the related rules under the three statutes. The Commission is deferring until a later date consideration of certain additional changes in the rules under section 16(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

I. Sections 240.16a-1, 240.16a-3, 240.-16a-6, 240.16a-7 (Rules 16a-1, 16a-3, 16a-6 and 16a-7) under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 would be amended to read as follows:

§ 240.16a-1 Filing of statements.

(a) Initial statements of beneficial ownership of equity securities required by section 16(a) of the Act shall be filed on Form 3. Statements of changes in such beneficial ownership required by that section shall be filed on Form 4. All such statements shall be prepared and filed in accordance with the requirements of the applicable form.

(b) The rules under section 16(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 shall apply to statements filed pursuant to paragraph (a) to the extent that such rules are pertinent.

III. Sections 270.30f–1, 270.30f–3 (Rules 30f–2 and 30f–3) under the Investment Company Act of 1940 would be rescinded and Rule 30f–1 would be amended to read as follows:

§ 270.30f–1 Filing of statements pursuant to section 30(f).

(a) Initial statements of beneficial ownership of outstanding securities required by section 30(f) of the Act shall be filed on Form 3. All such statements shall be prepared and filed in accordance with the requirements of the applicable form.

(b) The rules under section 16(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 shall apply to statements filed pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section to the extent that such rules are pertinent.

TARIFF COMMISSION

[3-10]

BICYCLES AND SPRING CLOTHESPINS

Notice of Investigation and Date of Hearings

The Interdepartmental Committee on Trade Agreements has issued public notice[1] of the intention of this Government to invoke Article XXVIII of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade with a view to the withdrawal or modification of the tariff concessions granted by the United States in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade on Bicycles and Spring Clothespins. On December 21, 1960, the Commission received a request from the President to make a "peril point" investigation and report with respect to these products under section 3 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951, as amended. The products concerned are described as follows:

Tariff Act of 1930, paragraph and Description of Products
371 Bicycles with or without tires, having wheels in diameter (measured to the outer circumference of the tire):
Over 25 inches:
If weighing less than 36 pounds complete without accessories and not designed for use with tires having a cross-sectional diameter exceeding 1⅝ inches.
Other.
Over 19 but not over 25 inches.
Not over 19 inches.
412 Spring clothespins.

Investigation instituted. Pursuant to said section 3 of the Trade Agreements Extension Act of 1951, the United States Tariff Commission has instituted an investigation with respect to the above-described products.

Purpose of investigation. The purpose of the investigation is to obtain the facts necessary to enable the Tariff Commission to formulate findings (known as "peril point" findings) for inclusion in a report to the President with respect to the above-described articles as to (1) the limit to which the modification of duties and other import restrictions, imposition of additional import restrictions, or specific continuance of existing customs or excise treatment may be extended in order to carry out the purpose of section 350 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended (Trade Agreements Act), without causing or threatening serious injury to the domestic industry producing like or directly competitive articles, and (2) if increases in duties or additional import restrictions are required to avoid serious injury to the domestic industry producing like or directly competitive articles, the minimum increases in duties or additional import restrictions required.

Public hearing. A public hearing in connection with this investigation will be held on Saturday, January 7, 1961, in the Hearing Room, Tariff Commission Building, 8th and E Streets NW., Washington, D.C. Testimony will be taken on bicycles at the morning session, beginning at 10:00 a.m.; testimony on spring clothespins will be taken at the afternoon session, beginning at 2:00 p.m. Interested parties desiring to appear and present oral testimony should notify the Secretary of the Commission in writing by January 4, 1961.

Written statements in lieu of appearance at hearing. Interested parties may present their information and views through the submission of written statements in lieu of appearances at the public hearing. Such statements must be under oath and will be given the same consideration as oral testimony presented at the hearing, and, except for information submitted and accepted in confidence, will be made available for inspection by interested parties. Twenty copies of written statements shall be submitted, only one of which need be sworn to. Such statements should be submitted as early as possible, but not later than Saturday, January 7, 1961.

No separate hearings before the Committee for Reciprocity Information. The Committee for Reciprocity Information has announced that no separate hearings with regard to the proposed action will be held by that Committee, but information and views may be submitted in writing to that Committee not later than January 6, 1961. Oral testimony and written statements of interested parties received by the Tariff Commission in connection with this investigation will be made available by the Tariff Commission to the Committee for Reciprocity Information.

Issued: December 22, 1960.

DONN N. BENT,
Secretary.

EMPIRE COMMUNICATIONS CO. AND TELEPHONE ANSWERING SERVICE

Order Continuing Hearing

In re applications of Leslie F. The Hearing Examiner having under consideration the desirability of establishing a new date for hearing;

It appearing that the date for commencement of hearing was originally set for December 13 by the Statement and Order Governing Hearing dated November 14, 1960, and that this original date was subsequently continued to December 20, 1960; and

It further appearing that Vincent W. Elliott, one of the parties, did not appear at the prehearing conference nor exchange exhibits in accordance with the Statement and Order Governing Hearing but has written to the Secretary of the Commission under date of December 6, 1960, indicating that he had not seen the Statement and Order Governing Hearing; and

It further appearing that these circumstances are likely to create ambiguities in the minds of the parties as to whether witnesses should appear on December 20 so that a change in this date is desirable in the interest of orderly procedure;

TRIANGLE PUBLICATIONS, INC. (WNHC) ET AL.

Order Re Procedural Dates

In re applications of Triangle Publications, Inc. (WNHC), Radio and Television Division, New Haven, Connecticut, Docket No. 13711, File No. BP-12107; et al., Docket Nos. 13713, 13715-13716, 13718-13719, 13722, 13724-13727, 13730, 13732, 13734; for construction permits.

The Hearing Examiner having under consideration (1) a "Joint Petition for Severance of Applications to New Group and Request for Extension of Hearing Date," filed in the above-entitled proceeding on December 1, 1960 by Independent Broadcasting Company, Inc. (WHAT), WRAW, Inc. (WRAW), WBRE Radio, Inc. (WBRE), and Mid-Atlantic Broadcasting Company (WMID); (2) a similar "Petition for Severance of Application and For Postponement of Hearing Date" filed by Community Broadcasting Corporation (WALL) on December 6, 1960; and (3) the proceedings during a prehearing conference in the above-entitled case held December 14, 1960;

It appearing that during the December 14 prehearing conference the Examiner ruled, all parties having agreed, that the applicants in this proceeding should be divided into two groups (A and B) as prescribed hereinafter, for hearing purposes;[1] that Group A is to comprise all applicants which now have pending for full Commission action petitions for reconsideration and grant without hearing and Group B all the remaining applicants which have no such pleadings pending; that the hearing on the Group A applications should be continued without date pending determination by the Commission of the outstanding petitions (in order to conserve hearing time and unnecessary double work by Commission personnel); that the Examiner's ruling on this matter during the prehearing conference should be included in a formal order for administrative convenience; that the parties filing the petitions referenced in items (1) and (2) above have made it clear on the record during the prehearing conference that the relief granted by this ruling constituted the entire relief they were requesting in their pleadings (the text of the petitions having been ambiguously phrased so as to convey the impression that these parties were also asking the full Commission to sever their applications from the present proceeding); consequently, that the Examiner's ruling renders moot items (1) and (2) above;

It appearing further, that a motion made on the record during the prehearing conference that the hearing on non-engineering matters with respect to the three Princeton, New Jersey, applicants be rescheduled to commence January 4, 1961 rather than January 3 was granted by the Examiner and that this ruling, too, ought to be formalized by order;

It is ordered, This 14th day of December 1960, that the applications be and hereby are divided into the following two groups for hearing purposes:

GROUP A

E. Anthony & Sons, Inc. (WNBH) (BP-12425)
Greylock Broadcasting Co. (WBRK) (BP-13056)
Community Broadcasting Corporation (WALL) (BP-12532)

WRAW, Inc. (WRAW) (BP-12251)
Independence Broadcasting Company, Inc. (WHAT) (BP-12177)
Mid-Atlantic Broadcasting Company (WMID) (BP-12922)

GROUP B

Rodio Radio (BP-13426)
Greater Princeton Broadcasting Company (BP-12412)
The New Jersey Broadcasting Company (BP-12829)
Nassau Broadcasting Company (BP-13064)

It is ordered further, That the hearing on the Group A applications is hereby continued indefinitely and that the hearing as to engineering and section 307(b) matters on the Group B applicants will commence, as previously scheduled, at 10:00 a.m., Monday, December 19, 1960, at the Commission's Offices, Washington, D.C.;

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 70-3924]

MISSISSIPPI POWER CO.

Notice of Proposed Acquisition of Common Stock of Business Development Corporation

DECEMBER 14, 1960.

Notice is hereby given that Mississippi Power Company ("Mississippi Power"), a public-utility subsidiary of The Southern Company, a registered holding company, has filed an application with this Commission pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("Act"), designating section 9(c)(3) thereof as applicable to the proposed transaction. All interested persons are referred to said application for a statement of the proposed transaction which is summarized below.

Mississippi Power proposes to subscribe for and acquire not in excess of 5,500 shares of the $10 par value Common Stock of Mississippi Business and Industrial Development Corporation ("Development Corporation") at the subscription price of $10 per share, or for a total consideration of not to exceed $55,000.

The application states that Development Corporation was incorporated in the State of Mississippi on May 6, 1960, under the provisions of "The Mississippi Business Development Corporation Act." This corporation is currently in the process of organization and of raising its capital and other working funds. The purposes of Development Corporation are set forth specifically in the State act. They may be briefly summarized as follows: to promote and assist, through loans, investments, or other business transactions, the location of new business and industry and the expansion or rehabilitation of existing industry in the State of Mississippi. Development Corporation has the authority to issue 1,000,000 shares of $10 par value Common Stock. The Common Stock has the right to one vote per share in the election of a Board of Directors. Initially, Development Corporation will issue approximately one million dollars ($1,000,000) of $10 par value Common Stock. Of this amount, approximately five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000) will be subscribed by utility companies, including telephone, gas, electric, and transportation companies. The other half million dollars in capital stock will be sold to business and industry and the general public. It is anticipated that electric and gas companies will purchase stock in the approximate amount of $0.50 per customer served.

The application also states that Mississippi Power will not exercise control over Development Corporation or its activities. The 5,500 shares of Common Stock proposed to be acquired by Mississippi Power will represent approximately ½ of 1 percent of the total authorized amount of such stock, although it will represent 5.5 percent of the amount of Common Stock proposed to be initially outstanding. At no time will Mississippi Power's investment exceed 5.5 percent of the outstanding amount of such stock. Development Corporation presently has 12 directors, which is the maximum permitted by its charter. The President of Mississippi Power has been elected a director of Development Corporation.

Development Corporation is empowered to borrow money from participating financial institutions ("Members") on a pro rata basis as needs for additional resources occur. When the corporation borrows money from Members, a Board of Members will assume an equal and joint power with the directors in the affairs of the corporation. As long as any of such indebtedness is outstanding, the direction of the corporation shall, under the charter, be vested in an Executive Committee elected jointly by the Board of Directors and the Board of Members. (In the absence of such borrowings, the Board of Directors will have exclusive direction of the affairs of the corporation.) It is anticipated that Development Corporation will normally be directed by the seven member Executive Committee, composed of three members elected by the Board of Directors, three members elected by the Board of Members, and one member elected by the other six.

To facilitate investment in Development Corporation, section 7(1) of the State law under which it was organized exempts such subscription from the approval of any regulatory authority of the State of Mississippi; however, it is understood that the State Public Service Commission proposes to issue an order stating that any amounts so invested in Development Corporation will be made a part of the rate base of regulated companies which participate in the enterprise.

The application states that Mississippi Power is engaged, within the southeastern portion of the State of Mississippi, in the generation and purchase of electric energy and its distribution and sale at retail in 137 communities in 23 of the State's 82 counties, as well as in rural areas. As of the end of 1959, it served approximately 110,000 retail customers. The company believes that both it and its customers will benefit from its subscription to and acquisition of Common Stock of Development Corporation, as proposed, and that such transaction will be in the public interest.

The fees, commissions, and expenses to be paid or incurred, directly or indirectly, in connection with the proposed transaction, all of which are to be paid by Mississippi Power, are estimated by it not to exceed $1,000, of which it is estimated that the fee of counsel, Messrs. Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts, will not exceed $500. The application states that no State or Federal commission, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed transaction.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than December 28, 1960, request in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law raised by the filing which he desires to controvert, or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D.C. At any time after said date, the application, as filed or as it may be amended, may be granted as provided in Rule 23 of the general rules and regulations promulgated under the Act, or the Commission may grant exemption from such rules as provided in Rules 20(a) and 100 thereof or take such other action as it may deem appropriate.

By the Commission.

joint power with the directors in the affairs of the corporation. As long as any of such indebtedness is outstanding, the direction of the corporation shall, under the charter, be vested in an Executive Committee elected jointly by the Board of Directors and the Board of Members. (In the absence of such borrowings, the Board of Directors will have exclusive direction of the affairs of the corporation.) It is anticipated that Development Corporation will normally be directed by the seven member Executive Committee, composed of three members elected by the Board of Directors, three members elected by the Board of Members, and one member elected by the other six.

To facilitate investment in Development Corporation, section 7(1) of the State law under which it was organized exempts such subscription from the approval of any regulatory authority of the State of Mississippi; however, it is understood that the State Public Service Commission proposes to issue an order stating that any amounts so invested in Development Corporation will be made a part of the rate base of regulated companies which participate in the enterprise.

The application states that Mississippi Power is engaged, within the southeastern portion of the State of Mississippi, in the generation and purchase of electric energy and its distribution and sale at retail in 137 communities in 23 of the State's 82 counties, as well as in rural areas. As of the end of 1959, it served approximately 110,000 retail customers. The company believes that both it and its customers will benefit from its subscription to and acquisition of Common Stock of Development Corporation, as proposed, and that such transaction will be in the public interest.

The fees, commissions, and expenses to be paid or incurred, directly or indirectly, in connection with the proposed transaction, all of which are to be paid by Mississippi Power, are estimated by it not to exceed $1,000, of which it is estimated that the fee of counsel, Messrs. Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts, will not exceed $500. The application states that no State or Federal commission, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed transaction.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than December 28, 1960, request in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law raised by the filing which he desires to controvert, or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D.C. At any time after said date, the application, as filed or as it may be amended, may be granted as provided in Rule 23 of the general rules and regulations promulgated under the Act, or the Commission may grant exemption from such rules as provided in Rules 20(a) and 100 thereof or take such other action as it may deem appropriate.

By the Commission.

Pursuant to section 11 of the Small Business Act (85-536), and section 1 of Executive Order 10493, dated October 15, 1953, the Administrator of the Small Business Administration, after consultation with the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission and the Attorney General of the United States has found that the voluntary agreement and proposed joint program of the Unitized Industries, Inc. to operate as a small business defense production pool is in the public interest as contributing to the national defense, and will further the objectives of the Small Business Act.

§ 1.1 Customs collection districts and ports.

(a) A customs collection district is the geographical area under the customs jurisdiction of a collector of customs.

(b) The terms "port" and "port of entry," as used in the regulations in this part, refer to any place designated by Executive order of the President,[1] by order of the Secretary of the Treasury,[2] or by act of Congress, at which a customs officer is assigned with authority to accept entries of merchandise, to collect duties, and to enforce the various provisions of the customs and navigation laws.

(c) There are 46 customs collection districts of the United States.[3] The following is an alphabetical list of customs collection districts with their numbers and with a list of the ports in each district. The first-named port in each district (in capital letters) is the headquarters port, and the asterisk preceding the name of a port indicates that marine documents may be issued at such port.[4] The districts and ports were created by the President's message of March 3, 1913, by which he communicated to Congress his reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the act of August 24, 1912 (Secs. 1, 2, 3, 44 Stat. 1381, as amended, 1382; 5 U. S. C. 281–281b), except that certain changes in such organization have been made by subsequent orders of the President or the Secretary of the Treasury. In the following list the orders issued since March 3, 1913, that affect existing districts or ports are cited in parentheses following the name of the district or port affected.

[1] "The President is authorized from time to time, as the exigencies of the service may require, to rearrange, by consolidation or otherwise, the several customs-collection districts and to discontinue ports of entry by abolishing the same or establishing others in their stead: Provided, That the whole number of customs-collection districts, ports of entry, or either of them, shall at no time be made to exceed those established and authorized as on August 1, 1914, except as the same may thereafter be provided by law • • •." (Sec. 1, 38 Stat. 623, as amended; 19 U. S. C. 2)

By virtue of the authority vested in him by section 1 of the act of August 8, 1950 (64 Stat. 419), the President, by Executive Order 10289, dated September 17, 1951 (3 CFR, 1951 Supp., p. 469), delegated to the Secretary of the Treasury the authority theretofore vested in the President by section 1 of the act of August 1, 1914, as amended (19 U. S. C. 2), (1) to rearrange, by consolidation or otherwise, the several customs-collection districts, (2) to discontinue ports of entry by abolishing the same or establishing others in their stead, and (3) to change from time to time the location of the headquarters in any customs-collection district as the needs of the service may require.

[2] This does not include the customs collection district of the Virgin Islands which, although under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of the Treasury, has its own customs laws. (See sec. 36, 40 Stat. 1816; 48 U. S. C. 1406)

[3] In addition to the customs collection districts listed which are within the customs territory of the United States, there is the customs collection district of the Virgin Islands (No. 51), the headquarters port of which is Charlotte Amalie, St. Thomas, and the subports of which are Cruz Bay, Coral Bay, Christiansted, and Frederiksted.

[4] Marine documents may be issued at Charlotte Amalie, St. Thomas, headquarters port of the customs collection district of the Virgin Islands (No. 51); at Washington, N. C., a customs station in the customs collection district of North Carolina (No. 16); and at Biloxi, Miss., a customs station in the customs collection district of Mobile (No. 10). Marine documents may also be issued at The New York (No. 10). marine documents may continue to be issued at that port.

§ 1.8 Hours of business.

(a) Except as specified in paragraphs (b)–(g) of this section, each customs office shall be open for the transaction of general customs business between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. on all days of the year except Saturdays, Sundays, and national holidays.[1]

(b) Different but equivalent hours shall be observed if a difference is required for the maintenance of adequate service because of local conditions, is approved by the Commissioner of Customs, and a notice of the hours of business is prominently displayed at the principal entrance and in each public room of the customs office.

[1] The national holidays are January 1, February 22, May 30, July 4, the first Monday in September, November 11, the fourth Thursday in November, and December 25. If a holiday falls on Sunday, the following day will be observed. (E.O. No. 10358, June 9, 1952.) Other days may be designated as national holidays by Executive order of the President.

(f) Where there is a regularly recurring need for customs services outside the above prescribed hours, and the volume and duration of the required services are uniformly such as to require, of themselves or in immediately consecutive combination with other essential customs activities of the port, the full time of one or more customs employees, the necessary number of regular tours of duty to furnish such services on all days of the year except Sundays and national holidays may be established with the approval of the Commissioner of Customs.

AUTHORITY: §§ 2.0 to 2.72 issued under R. S. 161, 4153, as amended, secs. 2, 3, 23 Stat. 118, as amended, 119, as amended, sec. 4, 28 Stat. 743, as amended; 5 U. S. C. 22, 46 U. S. C. 2, 3, 77, 79.

§ 2.0 Effective date.

The regulations in this part are not retroactive, i.e., they do not apply to vessels the keels of which were laid prior to the date the rules in this part become effective. The regulations in this part become effective March 1, 1940.

§ 2.1 Authority of Commissioner.

(a) The Commissioner of Customs is charged with the supervision of the laws relating to the admeasurement of vessels, and on all questions of interpretation growing out of the execution of the laws relating to this subject his decision is final.

(b) The Commissioner of Customs shall, in the following sections, be referred to as the Commissioner.

(c) Doubts arising in the minds of the admeasurers concerning decks to the hull, enclosures on or above the upper deck, shelter decks, method of procedure, etc., shall be submitted to the Commissioner for his decision, and shall be accompanied by blueprints or sketches of the spaces in question giving all the facts bearing on same.

§ 2.2 Officials authorized to admeasure vessels.

(a) Before any vessel shall be registered, enrolled, or licensed she shall be measured by an officer of the customs at the port or place where she may be.

(b) A vessel is not to be measured unless she is required by law to be registered, enrolled or licensed, or otherwise specially provided for.

§ 2.3 Purpose for which measurements are taken.

(a) Tonnage measurements are taken for the purpose of ascertaining the internal capacity of measurable spaces.

(b) All measurements are to be taken in feet and fractions of feet, and all fractions of feet shall be expressed in decimals.

§ 2.4 Register ton.

A register ton is a volume of 100 cubic feet.

§ 2.5 Gross register tonnage.

(a) The gross tonnage referred to in the following sections is the gross register tonnage; that is, the gross tonnage exclusive of all permissible exempted spaces.

(b) The gross register tonnage of a vessel shall consist of the sum of the following items:

(c) The cubical capacity below the tonnage deck, excluding exemptible water ballast spaces within the measureable portion of the vessel;

(d) The cubical capacity of each between deck space above the tonnage deck;

(e) The cubical capacity of the permanent closed-in spaces on the upper deck available for cargo or stores, or for the accommodation of passengers and/or crew;

(f) All permanent closed-in spaces situated elsewhere available for cargo or stores, or for the accommodation of the crew, or for the charts, except cabins or staterooms for passengers constructed entirely above the first deck which is not a deck to the hull;

(g) The excess of hatchways.

§ 2.6 Net register tonnage.

(a) The tonnage of a vessel remaining after the authorized deductions have been made from the gross register tonnage shall be deemed the net register tonnage.

(b) In ascertaining the net tonnage no space may be deducted unless it has previously been included in the gross tonnage and certified, showing the purpose for which used.

§ 2.7 The marine document.

The marine document of every vessel shall show the date and place of build; the register length, breadth, depth, and, in vessels of more than two decks, the height of the upper deck to the hull above the tonnage deck; the number of decks and masts; build as to her stem and stern; capacity under the tonnage deck, that of the between decks, and also separately, permanently enclosed spaces on or above the upper deck to the hull available for cargo or stores or for the accommodation of passengers (provisionally) or crew, and the omitted spaces, whether open or closed in, on, above, or below the upper deck; the gross tonnage; items of deduction; and net tonnage.

§ 2.8 Application for measurement.

The builder of a new vessel required to be admeasured, or the person having supervision of changes and/or alterations affecting a vessel's register tonnage, is obliged to make application for admeasurement or tonnage adjustment as the case may be, in writing, to the collector of customs of the district in which the vessel is located. Such application shall be made before cargo or ballast is taken on, and in case of a new vessel, before boilers or engine is installed or compartments partitioned off.

§ 2.9 Drawings.

(a) Plans to be filed. In order to facilitate admeasurement, there shall be furnished by the vessel's builder or owner to the collector of customs for the district in which the vessel will be admeasured, either with the application for admeasurement or a reasonable period before admeasurement is scheduled to commence, blueprints or drawings of the following:

(1) A drawing of the cross section in which is shown the construction of the double bottom, if there be one;

(2) An inboard view of the longitudinal section, showing the double bottom, its use or uses, if existing, otherwise the floors, the compartments for water ballast, other than the double bottom, the decks, the superstructures, hatchways, etc.;

(3) Deck plans showing the arrangement and uses of different compartments and deductible spaces;

(4) Drawings showing the arrangement of the engine, boiler, and fuel compartments; and

(5) A tonnage plan showing half breadths of the sections at the points of division of the tonnage length of the vessel into a certain number of equal parts in accordance with the rules for the measurement of spaces under the tonnage deck. The scale or scales of these drawings are to be indicated thereon.

The collector of customs is to be advised of any subsequent changes in the vessel and furnished copies of the corrected plans, or a statement of such changes.

If there are no blueprints or drawings available and if the collector is satisfied that it is impracticable to require such plans to be prepared and made available, considering the size and nature of the vessel as well as the cost and time involved, the vessel shall be measured without requiring their production.

(b) Sketches. When blueprints or drawings are not produced, necessary rough sketches may be made during the course of admeasurement showing the inboard profile, the midship cross-section, the hull and deck arrangements, and related matters, recording any necessary dimensions and showing details of important features such as the depth of side and bottom frames or floor timbers; the dimensions, location, and use of structures and hull spaces; and the thickness of the inner and outer skin. Such rough sketches shall be retained and filed with the other admeasurement papers. The rough sketches made shall not be redrawn to scale unless the admeasurer is satisfied that such action is necessary to insure that accurate dimensions have been lifted, to avoid the necessity for readmeasurement, or to insure against a claim of error which may reasonably be expected to be made in a particular case by the owner or agent.

§ 2.10 Measurements to be taken at an early stage.

Admeasurement should begin as soon as the vessel is sufficiently advanced in construction to permit its being done, usually when the decks are laid, the hold cleared of encumbrances to admit the required depths and breadths being properly taken; before the engine and boilers are installed and accommodations are partitioned off.

§ 2.11 Uniform system required.

(a) The following directions are given showing the progressive steps to be followed in the process of admeasurement. It is important not only that the rules be followed, but that required measurements be taken and calculations made in a uniform and correct manner that one general system may prevail throughout the service respecting this subject.

(b) Measurements taken aboard are to be recorded in the "Memorandum of Dimensions" known as Form 1413.

§ 2.13 Measuring instruments.

(a) The measurements should be made with a waterproof tape, graduated into feet and tenths of a foot, and as nearly inelastic as possible.

(b) Sliding rods which are of three sizes: One 3 feet long for taking depths from 3 to 5.8 feet; another 6 feet long for taking depths from 6 to 11 feet, or, with the extension piece attached, to 16 feet; and a third one 11 feet long for taking depths from 11 to 21 feet, or, with the extension piece attached, to 26 feet. The movable or index rod in each has an arrow index traversing a decimal scale on the fixed rod. Greater depths may be taken by inserting into the ends of the index rods, an extension piece, provided with sockets for this purpose one or more joints of lift rods described below:

The fixed rod is graduated in feet (in red) and tenths and half-tenths (in black), and when the ends of the rods are well together the arrow on the index rod points to the figure indicating the constant length of the fixed rod, and as the index rod is moved up the arrow indicates the length from the upper end thereof to the lower end of the fixed rod. Bear in mind, however, that when you use any of the attachments referred to above you must add to the reading on the fixed rod the net length of the attachment used; e. g., if the 6-foot rod is extended to its limit, 11 feet, which is reached when the arrow on the index rod is fair with the upper end of the fixed rod, and the extension piece is attached, which is done by slipping the bands on the lower end of it over the upper end of the index rod until the upper edge of the upper band is fair with the upper end of the index rod, and by fastening (on the groove side of the index rod) with set screws in the said bands, the length will not be 11 feet, as shown by the reading, but 16 feet, the reading plus the increment due to the attachment (11 feet+5 feet). This increment may be further increased by inserting into the end of the extension piece one or more joints of lift rods, each of which is about 3.95 feet when adjusted.

At the station of the area to be measured in single-deck vessels the rod is to be placed on the ceiling, or floor beam or timber when no ceiling is present, alongside the keelson or line of the keel, perpendicular or square thereto, and also parallel to the middle longitudinal plane of the ship, and forced up firmly under the deck and fixed in such position by the set screws; from the depths thus found take one-third of the round or one-half of the pitch of beam to get the depth of the area.

The depth of an area taken as above is to be divided into the required number of equal parts. (See § 2.29 (d).) With the rod fixed in position as above, set off on it from its lower end one of these equal parts, or common interval between the breadths, using white or other colored chalk or material that will make a visible mark, which gives the position of the first breadth above the bottom breadth, and from this when the rod is taken down the positions of the remaining breadths are to be set off at the said common interval.

The positions of all the breadths being thus severally marked on the rod, it is then to be set up again and firmly fixed or held in position, and the breadths may be readily and correctly measured by means of the tape held at right angles across the rod at each of the positions marked thereon.

In measuring vessels with more than one deck, where the second deck from the bottom is the tonnage deck, it will be necessary to use two of these rods in combination, one directly over the other, one in the hold under the first deck, as directed for single-deck vessels, and the other in the space between this deck and the tonnage deck. In this combination the tonnage depth is found by adding together the two depths and the thickness of the deck between the rods and deducting from this combined depth one-third of the round or one-half pitch of beam; then proceed as before directed.

(c) A 2-foot rule with a hinge is required for taking the rake of the bow and stern and for other purposes.

(d) A carpenter's square will be found useful for setting the sliding rod perpendicular to the keelson.

(e) For taking the breadths in the hold which are beyond the reach of the measuring officers two lift rods will be needed, each about 8 feet long (made by joining two sections), one having a pulley at the end over which the tape may be drawn when the rods are held in position and the other an attachment for holding the ring at the end of the tape.

(f) For transferring the location of the stations or ordinates of the transverse sections from the deck to the keelson, and sometimes, for finding registered breadth, a plumb line and bob are needed.

(g) For measuring laden vessels for Panama or Suez Canal tonnage certificates, a girting galvanized chain of an approved make is required.

§ 2.14 Stem.

A vessel's stem is to be described according to its contour; i.e., straight, raked, curved or square.

§ 2.15 Stern.

Describe the stern according to its shape at the after end below the upper deck or line of same, as round, elliptical, square or sharp.

§ 2.16 Masts.

In addition to what are commonly known as masts, spars set up at the center line of the bridging at the top of king-posts of certain vessels for signals and wireless antennae, etc., are to be considered as masts. The number of king-posts and derrick posts, etc., independent of the supported masts are to be separately stated after the number of said masts; e. g., "Two masts and eight king-posts," or as the case may be.

§ 2.17 Ceiling, cargo battens, etc.

(a) Ceiling. Ceiling hereafter referred to is considered the permanent planking fitted directly on the inboard side of the frames, or floors, or the top of the double bottom. The maximum allowance for ceiling is 3 inches on the bottom and 3 inches on each side. When ceiling is found to be less than 3 inches thick, allow the actual thickness thereof; that is, take dimensions to the face of the ceiling so found. Depths and breadths shall not be decreased due to grounds supporting ceiling nor shall allowance be made for ceiling on the under side of deck beams.

(b) False ceiling. In small vessels with "false ceiling" in a portion of their cabins, in their holds, or forming a part of their seats or lockers, etc., therein, and which stands off from their frames—that is, not fitted to them as ordinary ceiling—take the breadths through the said "false ceiling" to the inner faces of the vessel's frames, deducting therefrom the thickness of the "false ceiling" on each side. If, however, there is a ceiling fitted on the frames in addition to the "false ceiling," take the breadths to the ceiling on the frames, making no allowance for the "false ceiling."

(c) Cargo battens, insulation. Paragraph (a) of this section applies to cargo battens (spar ceiling) and refrigeration insulation.

§ 2.18 Register length.

(a) The length measured on the tonnage deck, from the fore part of the outer planking (where it is rabbeted) on the side of the stem of wooden vessels, or fore end of lap of outer plating of steel or iron vessels, to the after side of the main sternpost, shall be accounted the vessel's register length. (See Figures 2 and 3 (§ 2.65).)

(b) In the case of screw vessels with no sternpost, take the length to the forward side of the rudder-stock or line of same extended through the deck.

(c) The register length of scows and barges, with a square bow and stern sloping up from the bottom to the deck, and with neither stem nor sternpost, is to be taken on the deck from the extreme point of the hull at the bow to the extreme point of the hull at the stern; that is, the over-all length of the hull, not including guards or rubbing strakes, is to be considered the register length of such vessel.

§ 2.19 Register breadth.

(b) A practical method for finding the register breadth is, to add twice the sum of the depth of the vessel's side frames and thickness of outer skin, plus an allowance for thickness of ceiling, insulation or cargo battens if fitted, to the greatest tonnage breadth.

§ 2.20 Register depth.

(a) The register depth is taken at the middle of the tonnage length from the under side of the tonnage deck, or line of same, down to the top of the floors at the side of the keelson; or to the ordinary floor timbers or plates when fitted; or to the inner bottom plating (tank top) of a cellular double bottom; as the case may be, in a direction perpendicular to the keel.

(b) Should ceiling be fitted on the above mentioned bottom members, the register depth shall be measured to the top of same and to this dimension shall be added the height of grounds, battens or other type of support for the ceiling. (See Figures 4 and 5 (§ 2.65).)

(c) If the vessel is measured in parts, as explained later, the register depth is taken at one-half the tonnage length of the vessel.

§ 2.21 Upper deck to the hull.

The uppermost complete deck, which extends from stem to stern and from side to side at all points of its length and below which there are no openings through the hull as required in shelter deck spaces and also having its hatchways or other openings provided with means for closing them against the action of the sea and weather upon the space below enclosed by the sides of the vessel, making the said space a fit place for the stowage of general cargo, is to be considered the upper deck to the hull.

§ 2.22 Enumerating the decks.

In enumerating the number of decks, only those which are without such openings as exempt the spaces beneath from being included in the tonnage under the upper deck are to be considered. Other decks, if any, containing such openings as exempt the spaces beneath from inclusion in tonnage should be separately described after the number of decks proper; e. g., "Two decks and shelter deck," or as the case may be. Partial decks, forward or aft, such as orlop decks, are not considered as decks.

§ 2.23 Register height.

If the vessel has three or more decks to the hull, then the height from the top of the tonnage deck planking and/or plating to the under side of the planking and/or plating of the uppermost deck shall be deemed the register height of the uppermost deck above the tonnage deck.

§ 2.24 Round of beam.

(a) The round of beam (camber) is the perpendicular distance down from the crown of the under side of the tonnage-deck plank or plating at the center to a line stretched athwart the vessel from end to end of the top of the beam and is to be ascertained at every place where it is to be used in the measurement. (See Figures 6 and 16 (§ 2.65).)

(b) The round of beam of the tonnage-deck, which must be known before taking the tonnage length, as well as before measuring the depths of the tonnage sections, may be taken either at the under side of the deck by stretching a small line tightly from end to end at the top of the beam, which will show the round or camber of the beam at the center; or it may be taken, if more convenient, at the upper side of the deck by stretching a line tightly across, held at equal heights from the deck at each side of the vessel, so as just to touch the crown of the deck at the middle line; then the distance from the deck to the line at the vessel's sides gives the round of beam. (See Figure 6 (§ 2.65).) It is necessary to take the round of beam at each point of division of the length except when the vessel has a flat deck or one practically so. In lieu of the above methods, it may be ascertained on the basis of one-fourth of an inch to the foot of beam at each section in iron or steel vessels of the usual camber of beam. This method is more accurate and easier of application than the others.

(c) When the round of beam is 0.15 foot or less, it may be ignored.

§ 2.25 Pitch of beam.

(a) In vessels whose tonnage deck has a pitch instead of a round from its side at the shell plating to its center, find the height of the pitch of the beam at each tonnage section. It may be done in any practical manner.

(b) The height of the pitch of the beam is the perpendicular distance from the apex at the under side of the tonnage deck plank or plating at the center of the deck down to a straight line from end to end of the top of the beam. (See Figure 7 (§ 2.65).)

§ 2.26 Tonnage deck.

(a) The tonnage deck is the upper deck to the hull in vessels having not more than two decks, and the second deck from the keel in vessels having more than two decks.

(b) If the tonnage deck consists of several partial decks extending with breaks from stem to stern, and if the partial decks are at different heights, the line of the lowest deck will be taken as the tonnage deck, and the headroom above such line under the higher deck or decks will be measured as a break.

(c) Engine and boiler casings, peak tanks and cofferdams are not considered as breaking the continuity of a deck. (See Figures 8 and 9 (§ 2.65).)

§ 2.27 Tonnage length.

The tonnage length is the longitudinal distance on the under side of the tonnage deck, or line of same from a point where the line of the inboard faces of the side frames, or ceiling thereon if any, intersects the side of the stem, to a point aft on the inboard face of the stern timber or cant frame, or ceiling if fitted thereon. (See Figures 10 and 11 (§ 2.65).)

§ 2.28 Depth of a transverse section.

(a) Depth. The depth of a tonnage section is a measurement taken at its proper point of division of the tonnage length, from a point at a distance below the tonnage deck equal to one-third of the round or one-half of the pitch of the beam, down to the upper side of the floor timbers or floor plates; or bottom floors alongside the keelson; or longitudinals; or the tank top of a cellular double bottom, as the case may be.

(b) Ceiling. If ceiling is fitted on the bottom floor members, depths of transverse sections terminate on the upper face of the ceiling of average thickness. (See Figure 4 (§ 2.65).) For tonnage depths where ceiling is fitted on tank top, see Figure 5 (§ 2.65).

(c) Raised platform. In vessels with a raised platform in the bottom and no ceiling fitted on the bottom frame members, the depths are to be taken down through the platform to the upper side of the floor timbers or floor plates as described above, deducting therefrom the thickness of the ceiling of the platform in question.

(d) Depths in way of interruptions to tonnage deck. Should depths of transverse sections fall where the tonnage deck is interrupted, due to a break, hatches, etc., then depths are taken from the line of continuation of the tonnage deck.

(f) Fall of double bottom. In vessels having a double bottom the tank top of which, in way of tonnage sections, has a straight fall from the center line to the wings the tonnage depth of each section will terminate at one-half height of fall. (See Figure 13 (§ 2.65).)

§ 2.29 Tonnage depths.

(a) The tonnage depth. The depth generally referred to as "the tonnage depth" is located at the middle point of division of the tonnage length and is found in a manner similar to the other depths of transverse sections.

(b) Tonnage depth in a vessel measured in parts. Should a vessel be required to be measured in parts, and each part measured as a separate unit; then a tonnage depth shall be found for each part or unit at one-half its tonnage length. (See Figure 14 (§ 2.65).)

(c) Tonnage depth is the first depth measured. The tonnage depth governs the number of parts into which it and all the remaining depths of the part in which said depth is located, is divided.

(d) Divisions of tonnage depth. If the tonnage depth at the middle of the tonnage length of the vessel or part of same does not exceed 16 feet, divide each depth into 4 equal parts; but if the depth at the middle of said length exceeds 16 feet, divide each depth into 6 equal parts.

(e) Intervals. The common intervals between the points of division of depths, also one-third common intervals are to be carried to the nearest hundredth of a foot.

(f) Purpose for dividing tonnage depths. Depths are divided to indicate points at which tonnage breadths are to be measured.

§ 2.30 Tonnage breadths.

(a) Breadths. An inside horizontal breadth is to be measured at each point of division of the depth marked on the sliding rods placed in position as directed in § 2.13(b) and also at the upper and lower points of the depth. Extend each measurement to the inboard face of the ordinary frames, or line of same, or inboard face of ceiling, or battens, or insulation of average thickness if fitted. (See Figure 15 (§ 2.65).) Care must be taken that the sections shall be parallel to each other and at right angles to the axis of the vessel.

(b) Upper breadth. In finding the upper breadth of each transverse section make no allowance for the excess of the deck-beam shelves, etc., over the permissible thickness of ceiling, if any, thereunder.

Referring to Figure 16 (§ 2.65), observe that after the deck is laid the upper breadth (represented by the line U B) passes through the deck on each side. Hence, it is impossible to take it at its true position. In such cases take it on the deck, allowing within the extended line of frames the thickness of the ceiling if any on the frames under deck, as shown by line T B in the figure.

Owing to deck-beam shelves or other obstructions, it can be more conveniently and accurately taken here than under the deck, and, besides it will be only a few inches from its true position. In vessels which have upright sides the said breadth so taken will be correct, but in the case of vessels with inclining sides the necessary allowance must be made for the deviation of the sides from the upright in the few inches above the true position of the said breadth.

(c) Bottom breadths. Bottom breadths are taken only so far as the flat of the floor extends. (See B B, Figures 4 and 5; Figure 15; and B B, Figures 17 and 18 (§ 2.65).)

When bottom frames rise immediately from the keelson, or combined keel and keelson, and bona fide floor timbers or floor plates are not fitted, bottom breadths are equal to the breadth of keelson, or combined keel and keelson as the case may be. (See B B, Figure 19 (§ 2.65).)

The bottom breadths of transverse sections of vessels of longitudinal construction falling in the hold where there is no double bottom and where there is a dead rise of the bottom out to the sides of the vessel may be considered to be equal to that part of the bottom plating not affected by dead rise.

(d) Bottom breadths in case of rise or fall of double bottom. Bottom breadths falling in way of a double bottom the top of which rises or falls from the midship longitudinal plane to the wings are measured from and to the inboard end of the frame brackets (or ceiling thereon if fitted), connecting the double bottom with the frames. (See B B, Figures 12 and 13 (§ 2.65).)

§ 2.31 Measuring the tonnage length.

(a) The cubic capacity of the space below the tonnage deck is determined by use of the tonnage length together with the areas of a prescribed number of transverse sections as hereinafter described.

(b) To determine the extreme points of the tonnage length as indicated by § 2.27 and T L in Figures 10 and 11 (§ 2.65), observe the following:

(1) Vertical bow and stern. In vessels having a vertical bow, also a vertical stern, both above and below the tonnage deck, measure horizontally the depth of frames, also the thickness of ceiling thereon if any, at the extreme forward and after ends immediately under the tonnage deck. Mark these measurements on the upper side of the tonnage deck, from the outer shell and in the direction in which the frames were measured. Then draw through the points thus obtained, lines parallel to the shell. The forward and after points of intersection of these lines indicate the points from and to which the tonnage length is to be measured.

(2) Raked bow or stern. In the case of vessels having a raked bow or stern at the level of the tonnage deck, the extreme points of the tonnage length are, when practicable, to be determined at the under side of the tonnage deck. The distance from these points to a hatch coaming, bulkhead, etc., should be measured and transferred to the upper side of the tonnage deck as indicated in Figure 20 (§ 2.65).

(c) Should it be impracticable to determine the extreme points of the tonnage length at the under side of the tonnage deck, and should the thickness of this deck be considerable, as in the case of a wooden deck, the rake of the bow or stern within the thickness of the deck is to be taken into account. This is done after having first proceeded as indicated in paragraph (b) (1) of this section by measuring the thickness of the tonnage deck and determining by means of a hinged rule, or any other instrument for finding angles under similar circumstances, the angle of the rake which the bow or the stern forms with the tonnage deck. Transfer thereafter this angle on the deck by drawing the lines A B C shown in Figure 21 (§ 2.65), A B represents the upper side of tonnage deck and B C the after side of the stem or the inside of the shell at the stern, as the case may be. The perpendicular B D represents the thickness of the tonnage deck. The points T, L, in Figures 10 and 11 (§ 2.65) marked on the upper side of the tonnage deck are then to be moved forward at the stern or aft at the stem, as the case may be, for a distance equal to D E, representing the rake within the thickness of the deck.

(d) It should be borne in mind that the condition for applying the method of setting out the angles on the upper side of the tonnage deck is that the stem or stern have the same angle of rake above and immediately below the tonnage deck. If the angle of rake at or immediately below the tonnage deck is a different one, then this last angle must be used.

(e) Should a vessel as referred to in paragraph (b) (2) of this section have a square bow or stern, it will be necessary to make a correction for camber where such exists. This is done by increasing the thickness of the deck B D in Figure 21 (§ 2.65) by one-third of the round or one-half of the pitch of beam at the extreme point of the tonnage length.

§ 2.32 Divisions of tonnage length.

(a) The tonnage length is to be divided into an even number of equal parts as required by the following table, according to the class in such table to which the vessel belongs:

Class	Tonnage length	Divisions
1	50 ft. or less	6
2	Above 50 ft., not exceeding 100 ft	8
3	Above 100 ft., not exceeding 150 ft	10
4	Above 150 ft., not exceeding 200 ft	12
5	Above 200 ft., not exceeding 250 ft	14
6	Above 250 ft	16

(b) The points of division of the tonnage length, also each end of the length indicate the common intervals at which a depth is measured.

Intervals and one-third intervals are to be carried to the nearest thousandth of a foot.

§ 2.33 Transfer of location of sections to keelson.

(a) The tonnage length having been ascertained and the number of sections to be measured and the interval between them determined, a line is then to be extended down the main hatchway, at the middle line of the vessel, in a perpendicular direction.

(b) The distance of the midship tonnage section is then to be set off from this line in the same direction on the keelson, which gives the position of the midship section on the keelson, and the positions of the other sections are obtained on the keelson by setting off forward and abaft the midship section the common interval between sections as already determined.

The position of the midship tonnage section may be determined by any other practical means.

§ 2.34 Transverse areas, rule for finding.

(a) Assuming the tonnage length exceeds 250 feet requiring that it be divided into 16 equal parts, and the tonnage depth at the middle of the tonnage length exceeds 16 feet, requiring it to be divided into 6 equal parts:

(1) Measure the depth at each of the 15 points of division of the length as required, also at the extreme forward point (Section 1) and at the extreme after point (Section 17) of the length. (See Figure 22 (§ 2.65).)

(2) The extreme points of the length at the bow and stern, though described as being the positions of the first and last areas, do not in vessels of usual form yield any area for practical purposes. Therefore, in the computation for tonnage, where the first and last sections yield no areas, a cipher must be employed in their places. In vessels of unusual form, as, for instance, in barges or other craft in which the bow and stern are upright, with breadth also at those places, sections at the extreme points of the length will yield areas; in which cases such areas must be measured and used in the computation.

(3) Then measure the inside horizontal breadth at each of the five points of division of the depth, also at the upper and lower points of the depth.

(4) Number the breadths from above, numbering the upper breadth 1 and so on down to the lowest or seventh.

(5) Multiply the second, fourth and sixth by 4, and the odd numbered breadths by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1.

(6) Add these products together.

(7) Multiply the sum thus obtained by one-third of the common interval between the breadths, and the product shall be deemed the transverse area.

(8) This process will be repeated for every section.

(b) Having thus ascertained the transverse area at each point of division of the length of the vessel, also at each end of the length if they yield areas, as required above, proceed to ascertain the register tonnage of the vessel in the following manner:

(1) Number the areas successively 1, 2, 3, etc., No. 1 being at the extreme limit of the length at the bow and the last number at the extreme limit of the length at the stern.

(2) Then multiply the second and every even numbered area by 4 and the third and every odd numbered area by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1.

(3) Add these products together and multiply the sum thus obtained by one-third of the common interval between the areas, and the product will be the contents in cubic feet of the spaces under the tonnage deck.

(4) Divide this product by 100, and the quotient, being the tonnage under the tonnage deck shall be deemed the register tonnage of the vessel, subject to the additions hereinafter mentioned.

(c) In every case when finding the capacity under tonnage deck, or a part thereof; whether the length be divided according to the table into 6 or 16 parts, as in classes 1 and 6, or in 2 or 4 parts as provided for in § 2.35 (a) and the depths into 4 or 6 parts, thus requiring 5 or 7 breadths respectively to be taken; the above formula shall be used; i. e., even numbered breadths shall be multiplied by 4, and odd numbered ones by 2 except the first and last which are multiplied by 1. Similarly when running areas through the multipliers, the even numbered ones shall be multiplied by 4 and odd numbered ones by 2, except the first and last, which are multiplied by 1.

§ 2.35 Breaks in double bottom.

(a) The tonnage length of a vessel having a break exceeding one-half of a foot in height, or a number of such breaks in the line of her double bottom, is to be divided into longitudinal parts establishing transverse vertical planes at such breaks. The length of each such part so found is then to be divided into a number of equal parts according to the class in the above table to which it belongs, just as if it were the length of a separate vessel: Provided, That such parts as are 20 feet or under in length may be divided into 2 equal parts, and those above 20 feet and not exceeding 40 feet in length may be divided into 4 equal parts instead of into 6, as indicated in the table in § 2.32 (a).

(b) When a vessel is required to be measured in parts, and each part measured as a separate vessel, the sum of the tonnages of the several parts is the capacity under the tonnage deck.

§ 2.36 Vessels having side tanks may be measured in parts.

Vessels having side tanks extending above the floor line or double bottom, and through which tanks tonnage breadths normally pass, may be measured in parts. The length of the first part will extend aft to the line of the forward bulkheads of the side tanks. (See Figures 23 and 24 (§ 2.65).) The length of the second part is equal to the length of side tanks, and the depths extend, at proper intervals under the tonnage deck, down to athwartship lines forming continuation of the side tank tops. (See Figure 25 (§ 2.65).) The third length immediately below the second part should equal that of the second. The breadths are taken between the inboard faces of the side tank bulkheads, and depths from athwartship lines forming continuation of the side tank tops. The fourth part will extend from a line athwart the after bulkhead of side tanks to a point aft where tonnage lengths usually terminate. Measure separately a side tank, the tonnage of which is to be doubled, assuming both tanks are identical as they usually are; then the sum of the tonnage of the several parts thus found shall be deemed the capacity under tonnage deck.

§ 2.37 Outside shaft tunnel.

To find the under deck tonnage of a vessel having an outside shaft tunnel, the shape of a section of which is usually the segment of a circle, measure the portion of the tunnel space included by the process of measurement in the under deck tonnage and subtract it therefrom. (See Figure 26 (§ 2.65).)

Divide the length of such tunnel into a convenient number of equal parts, then find an area at the points of division of the length, also at the ends, if the end ones yield an area, by the following formula:

$$\text{AREA} = \frac{2h}{3}(c)$$ c = chord of the segment of a circle.

h = height of segment (from chord to crown of arc).

Having found the required areas, proceed in the manner provided for using the areas as ordinates in determining under deck tonnage, finding the sum of even numbered areas multiplied by 4; the odd numbered areas multiplied by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1. Then multiply the sum so found by one-third common interval between sections. The result divided by 100 gives the tonnage of the tunnel to be subtracted from the under deck tonnage found by ignoring initially the projection of the crown of the tunnel into the hold.

§ 2.38 Square end vessels having head blocks.

(a) In the case of vessels with square ends having head blocks extending from the deck to the bottom longitudinals on the rake of the bottom, the termini of the tonnage length will be at the inboard face of said block, and the area of the first and last section will equal the area of the inboard face of said block. (See Figure 27 (§ 2.65).)

(b) Should the head blocks extend inboard of the inboard face of the end frames (see Figures 28 and 29 (§ 2.65)), or should the head plates be excessive (see Figure 30 (§ 2.65)), consider the termini of the tonnage length to be at points inboard from the ends of the vessel, equal in distance to the thickness of the shell plating, depth of side frame, plus ceiling if fitted. Rubbing strakes to be excluded.

§ 2.39 Between decks.

(a) If the vessel has a third deck, the tonnage of the space between it and the tonnage deck shall be ascertained as follows:

(1) Measure the inside length of the space at the middle of its height, from the ceiling at the side of the stem to the ceiling on the midship stern timber; or, if there is no ceiling take the length from a point forward where a continuation of the lines of inboard faces of the side frames intersect the center line of the vessel aft to the inboard face of the midship stern timber. Divide the length into the same number of equal parts into which the length of the tonnage deck is divided.

(2) Measure also at the middle of its height the inside breadth of the space at each of the points of division of the length, the breadth at the stem, and the breadth at the stern (if round, as in the case of poops of similar form). Number the breadths successively 1, 2, 3, etc., commencing at the stem.

(3) Multiply the second and all other even numbered breadths by 4 and the odd-numbered breadths by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1. Multiply the sum of these products by one-third of the common interval between the points at which the breadths were taken; the result will give, in superficial feet, the horizontal area at the mean height of such space.

(4) Multiply the mean horizontal area by the average height taken between the planks of the two decks and the product will be the cubical contents of the space; which, divided by 100 shall be deemed the tonnage to be included among the items comprising the vessel's gross tonnage.

(b) If the vessel has more than three decks, the tonnage of each of the between decks above the tonnage deck shall be severally ascertained in the manner above described and shall be added as items comprising the vessel's gross tonnage.

§ 2.40 Superstructures.

(a) Permanent erections. Permanent erections; i.e., forecastle, bridge, poop, break, etc., on or above the upper deck, shall be measured tier by tier, and, exclusive of closed-in exemptible spaces, and open spaces, shall be included in the gross tonnage.

(b) Length. Measure at half height the mean length of such a space along its center longitudinal line, from and to the line of the inboard faces of the frames, or stiffeners, or ceiling if fitted. Divide the length into an even number of equal parts the common intervals of which shall be most nearly equal to that of the parts into which the tonnage length was divided. (See Figure 31 (§ 2.65).)

(c) Breadths. Measure at the middle of its height the inside breadths; namely, one at each end and one at each point of division of the length, numbering them successively 1, 2, 3, etc., the number one breadth being at the extreme forward end of the length.

(d) Round-end erections. If the after end of an ordinary poop or a house is in the form of a continuous arc of a curve, its breadth at the extreme after end of its length shall be one-half of the preceding breadth. If the after end of such a poop or house is in the form of an arc of a curve which is broken at its extreme after end by a decided flat, its breadth at the extreme after end of its length shall be two-thirds of the preceding breadth. (See Figures 32 and 33 (§ 2.65).)

(e) Round-end erections. If the forward end of a house is in the form of a continuous arc of a curve, its breadth at the extreme forward end of its length shall be one-half of the succeeding breadth. If the forward end of such a house is in the form of an arc of a curve which is broken at its extreme forward end by a decided flat, its breadth at the extreme forward end of its length shall be two-thirds of the succeeding breadth.

(f) Multipliers. Multiply the even numbered breadths by 4, and the odd numbered ones by 2, except the first and last which are multiplied by 1.

(g) Horizontal area. Multiply the sum of the products by one-third of the common interval between the points at which the breadths were taken; the result will give the horizontal area at the mean height of such space.

(h) Height. Multiply the mean horizontal area by the average height measured between the decks, or the extended line of same. (See B and C in Figure 9 (§ 2.65).) Divide the product by 100 and the quotient shall be deemed the tonnage of such space.

(i) Superstructures having breaks. Superstructures having breaks in their covering deck or side lines shall be measured in parts. (See Figure 34 (§ 2.65).)

(j) Superstructures on small craft. Superstructures on small craft shall be measured similar to the method for finding the gross tonnage of larger structures. When a superstructure is erected over a cut-away portion of the tonnage deck, the height of such superstructure is to be taken from the under side of its covering deck to a line of continuation of the tonnage deck. Should there be no camber to the tonnage deck, allow for same, in the covering deck of the erection if it exceeds 0.15 foot. After subtracting the tonnage of exemptible spaces in the superstructure, the remainder shall be listed under a name describing the erection, among the items comprising the gross tonnage.

(k) Height of a turtleback. The mean height of a superstructure referred to as a "turtleback" may be found by taking a height at each point of division of its length, at the after terminal of its length, and at one-third common interval abaft the forward end of the length. The sum of the heights so taken, divided by the number of heights, will give a sufficiently accurate mean height.

§ 2.41 Hatchways.

The cubical contents of the hatchways shall be obtained by multiplying the length and breadth together and the product by the mean depth taken from the top of the beam to the under side of the hatch cover. From the aggregate tonnage of the hatchways there shall be deducted one-half of 1 percent of the gross tonnage of the vessel exclusive of the tonnage of the hatchways, and the remainder only shall be added to the said gross tonnage as excess hatchways.

The hatchways referred to are the ones out in the open or in open spaces on the upper deck to the hull and on closed-in deck erections. Hatchways on between decks and on the deck of open erections are not to be measured and included in the aggregate of hatchways from which the statutory deduction is to be made. The total hatchways on between decks and on the portion of the decks within closed-in erections on the upper deck to the hull are automatically included in the between-deck spaces and in the said erections by the process of measurement; and, of course, the hatchways on decks of open erections are not to be considered, serving as they do spaces not entering into the tonnage of the vessel.

§ 2.42 Record of exempted spaces.

The tonnage measurement of all spaces on or above the upper deck that the measurer has not included in the gross tonnage of the vessel must be recorded in detail on Form 1410, "Tonnage admeasurement," which, when forwarded to the Bureau for examination and appropriate action must be accompanied by suitable plans or sketches drawn to scale, or a complete explanation for the proper consideration of the exemption of such spaces.

§ 2.43 Enclosed spaces exempted from inclusion in gross tonnage.

The following closed-in spaces situated on or above the upper deck shall not be included in the gross tonnage provided they are reasonable in extent, adapted and used exclusively for the purposes outlined:

(a) Companions. Companions and booby-hatches serving as a protection for companionways (stairways or ladderways) leading to spaces below, whether such spaces are exempted or not. (See a, b, c and d in Figure 35 (§ 2.65).)

(b) Galleys. Spaces fitted with ranges or ovens (bakeries), without regard to the category of the persons they serve.

(c) Light and air. Spaces forming part of the propelling machinery space, or serving for the admission of light and air to such machinery shall be exempt under the heading of light and air. When no part of the propelling machinery extends below the upper deck, the space occupied by same is exemptible in its entirety together with such fuel bunkers as are located on or above the upper deck. Where fuel bunkers or tanks are located wholly or in part below the upper deck the space so occupied below the upper deck is not deductible.

(d) Light and air on small boats. (1) A house of reasonable size, into which the propelling machinery projects above the deck line, or a similar house used exclusively for light and air over such machinery on small boats is exempted, in its entirety, as light and air.

(2) A compartment of reasonable size, bulkheaded off and similarly used, located in a house serving other purposes is likewise so treated.

(3) When propelling machinery and/or light and air space, not bulkheaded off, is in a house serving other purposes, the actual length and breadth of the engine plus 2 feet each side and each end for working space, if such space is available, projecting up into the house becomes the length and breadth of exempted light and air, exclusive of such part as may be decked over and available for other purposes.

(4) If bunks, galley, supplies, etc., are located in the hull abreast the engine and under a house open to same, as described in preceding paragraph, and the 2-foot allowance for working space on each side of the engine base overlaps working space at galley, or as the case may be, allow one-half the actual breadth on each side the engine, which breadths plus the actual engine breadth projecting up into the house becomes the permissible breadth of light and air exemption.

(e) Machinery spaces. (1) Spaces occupied by machinery other than propelling machinery.

(2) The spaces occupied by dredging machinery on the upper deck of dredging vessels which are not self propelled but which are required to be documented are to be exempted. No allowance is to be made for spaces occupied by such machinery below the upper deck.

(f) Skylights. Skylights and domes affording ventilation and light to the erection thereunder, except skylights over propelling machinery. None of the space below the covering deck of such erection shall be exempted from inclusion in tonnage unless an opening is left in the deck of the superstructure immediately under such skylight or dome to give ventilation and light to spaces below such deck line. (See exempted skylight and a, b, c and d in Figure 36 (§ 2.65).) For the treatment of skylights over propelling machinery, see paragraph (c) of this section.

(g) Special exempted water-ballast spaces. (1) Any space other than the double-bottom space adapted only for water ballast, certified by the collector not to be available for the carriage of cargo (other than ballast water for use for underwater drilling, mining, and related purposes, including production), stores, supplies, or fuel, shall be deducted from the gross tonnage as measured to get gross register tonnage.

(2) Adaptation for water ballast consists of having the space or spaces properly constructed and tested as ballast tanks; that the pumps, pipes, etc., for filling and emptying such tanks must be of suitable dimensions, connected to the ballast system, and completely independent of the cargo, fuel oil, feed or domestic water pumping apparatus. Access shall be only through oval or circular manholes, whose greatest diameter must not exceed 2 feet in the watertight deck. Where a hatch exists over a space now to be used for the carriage of water ballast, plating shall be fitted and riveted or welded to form a watertight cover and a manhole as above described may be fitted in this cover plate. Such manholes, except when fitted on the weather deck, may be provided with a coaming not exceeding 6 inches in height. If these spaces are found being used for purposes other than water ballast, they are to be added to the gross tonnage of the vessel, and so included until such changes have been made as will definitely preclude their use for purposes other than for water ballast.

(h) Water closets. Any public room or compartment, if of reasonable size, fitted with hopper or hoppers, is, for admeasurement purposes, a water closet. This definition includes a room or a compartment designated as a toilet, fitted with urinal, or urinals, shower bath or shower baths, in addition to the hopper or hoppers. A crew water closet is considered public if it serves more than one member of the crew.

§ 2.44 Passenger cabins.

(a) Passenger cabins and staterooms immediately on the upper deck to the hull, permanently closed-in and fitted up for permanent use of passengers, are to be included in the gross tonnage. They will be exempted only when they have no berthing accommodations and have only temporary arrangements to protect passengers on short voyages from rain and the shipment of seas, constituting sheltered spaces under cover and open to the weather; that is, not enclosed.

(b) Cabins and staterooms when assigned for use of passengers only, constructed entirely above the first deck which is not a complete deck to the hull (see § 2.21), may be exempted from inclusion in tonnage. In the case of Army transports, colliers, supply ships, hospital ships, etc., the term "passengers" shall include all officers, enlisted men, and other persons who are not assigned to ship's duties and not entered on the ship's articles, and no deductions for spaces occupied by such persons shall be made; nor are cabins and staterooms occupied by them when situated on a deck not a deck to the hull to be included in gross tonnage.

(c) For admeasurement purposes a cabin is defined as an apartment of a vessel, or the portion of the apartment that is assigned for the exclusive use of passengers. A cabin may consist of staterooms, bathrooms, toilets, libraries, writing rooms, lounges, dining rooms, saloons, smoking rooms, play rooms, etc., individually or collectively. The following spaces—smoking room, lounge, foyer, library, and similar public spaces, with or without a stateroom—would, for instance, be considered cabins. In short, any passenger stateroom or public space reserved entirely for the use of passengers is to be considered as coming under the meaning of the word "cabin".

(d) A passenger stateroom is defined as an apartment, or one of the units of an apartment on a vessel, intended primarily to afford sleeping and/or other accommodations for passengers traveling alone or together.

§ 2.45 Open superstructures on or above the upper deck.

(a) Treatment. Nothing shall be added to the gross tonnage for any sheltered space on or above the upper deck which is under cover and open to the weather; that is, not enclosed.

(b) Determination as to inclusion in gross tonnage. In deciding whether or not superstructures are permanent closed-in spaces and should be included in tonnage, the measurer should have regard to the character and structural condition of such erections.

(c) Tonnage openings. A forecastle, bridge, poop, or any other permanent superstructure on or above the upper deck to the hull, with one or more openings in its sides or ends, not fitted with doors or other permanently attached means (except as provided for below) of closing them, shall be exempted from inclusion in gross tonnage if the opening or openings are in conformity with the following provisions:

(1) Two 3 x 4 foot tonnage openings. When there are in one of the end bulkheads, two tonnage openings, each 3 feet wide by 4 feet high in the clear, one on each side of the center line of the end bulkhead.

(2) One 4 x 5 foot tonnage opening. When there is in one of the end bulkheads, as near as is practicable to the center line of the space, one tonnage opening at least 4 feet wide by 5 feet high in the clear, or its equivalent. An equivalent opening is considered to be one of at least 20 square feet in the clear, resulting from a breadth in excess of 4 feet and a height of not less than 3 feet.

(d) Intermediate bulkheads. If the space is subdivided by intermediate bulkheads, such bulkheads shall have an opening or openings of the same dimensions as prescribed above.

(e) Coamings. If coamings are fitted to tonnage openings, their height must not exceed 2 feet at any part.

(f) Permissible temporary closures for exterior bulkhead tonnage openings. Tonnage openings prescribed for the above-mentioned superstructures may be temporarily closed by shifting boards dropped into channel sections at the sides of such openings, or by plates or boards held in place by hook bolts, spaced not less than 1 foot apart, fitting over the stiffener bar at the sides, top, and bottom of such openings, or by a plate or boards held in place by bolts and cross pieces so arranged as not to be held in place by cleats or other attachments to, or bolts through the bulkhead. (See Figures 37 to 43, inclusive (§ 2.65).) Cover plates, etc., must fay against the bulkheads.

(g) Battening, gaskets, etc. In no case is the use of battening, caulking, or gaskets of any material permitted.

(h) Permanent fixtures. Cleats, stud bolts, hinges attached to, or bolts in bulkheads at the edges of tonnage openings are prohibited as they are considered to be part of the means, in conjunction with the plate or boards, of closing the tonnage opening.

(i) Closures for interior bulkhead tonnage openings. The same temporary means of closing, except by plates, the tonnage openings in interior bulkheads are permitted.

(j) Enclosure within an open space. An enclosure within an exempted space must be treated according to its use.

§ 2.46 Open shelter deck space.

(a) No space between the upper and shelter decks of a vessel shall be exempted from inclusion in gross tonnage as open shelter deck space unless there is in that shelter deck a permanent middle-line tonnage opening which, except as provided in this paragraph, is at least 4 feet long in the clear and at least as wide, in the clear, as the after cargo hatch on that deck. If any such opening is less than the minimum size in the clear specified in this paragraph solely because one or more corners of that opening are rounded, that space shall be exempted, upon compliance with all applicable provisions of this section, in any case in which the radius of curvature of each such corner is not greater than 9 inches, or in any case in which a greater radius of curvature is required in writing by the United States Coast Guard or by a recognized classification society. In the latter case, a copy of that written requirement shall be filed in the office of the collector of customs by whom the vessel is admeasured.

(b) Position of middle line tonnage opening. The distance between the after edge of this tonnage opening and the aft side of the sternpost must not be less than one-twentieth the register length of the vessel, or if the tonnage opening is forward, its fore side must not be less than one-fifth the register length of the vessel from the stem.

(c) Coamings. The coamings of the middle line tonnage opening must not exceed 12 inches extreme mean height above the deck, including the beading, etc., at the top for confining the hatch covers. If any such opening is guarded by rails or stanchions they shall be so arranged that they may not be used to secure or assist in securing a cover over that opening.

(d) Cover. (1) When portable wood covers are fitted they may be held in place by lashings fitted to the under side of the covers; lashings may be of hemp, manila or other similar material.

(2) When a metal cover is used, it may be held in place by hook bolts spaced not less than 18 inches apart, passing through the cover plate and hooked over angle stiffeners or flanges fitted on the outside of the coamings; i. e., the bolts must not pass through the stiffeners or flanges on the coaming, nor must there be any other attachments on the coaming for fastening the cover.

(e) Opening not to be enclosed. The middle line tonnage opening in a shelter deck must not be within a superstructure of any type.

(f) Tonnage openings in shelter deck space. When the permanent deck opening is situated aft, there must be at least two openings, each 3 feet wide by 4 feet high in the clear, in each of the transverse bulkheads within the shelter deck space forward of said deck opening; or should the deck opening be forward, the same requirements apply to transverse bulkheads abaft such forward deck opening.

(g) Coamings. Coamings, if fitted, must not exceed 2 feet in height at any part.

(h) Temporary closure. Excluding plates, the same temporary means of closing tonnage openings in the bulkheads of the well under the middle line tonnage opening in the shelter deck and in the intermediate bulkheads, if any, in the shelter deck space are permitted as described in § 2.45 (f).

(i) Well under middle line tonnage opening. The well under the middle line tonnage opening (in the shelter deck) must have a minimum length of 4 feet throughout its entire breadth and height, and shall be kept clear at all times.

(j) Scuppers. A scupper, having a 5-inch minimum inside diameter, fitted with a screw down non-return valve geared to and operated from the shelter deck, must be fitted on each side of the upper deck in way of the permanent middle line tonnage opening in the shelter deck. (See Figure 44 (§ 2.65).)

(k) Means for closing. All openings in the upper deck to the hull must be provided with proper means for closing and battening down.

(l) Closed-in spaces. Any closed-in space within an open shelter deck space shall be treated according to its usage.

§ 2.47 An open structure on small craft.

(a) A house on a small craft is considered open to the weather and exempted from inclusion in tonnage provided the after end of such house is entirely open, from the under side of its roof beam down to a coaming not exceeding 3 inches in height, if there be a coaming, otherwise to the deck or line of same; and open in an athwartship direction from and to the inboard face of the end side stiffeners. (See Figures 45 and 46 (§ 2.65).) Closed-in spaces within an open erection will be treated according to their usage.

(b) Such an opening may be guarded by wire mesh screens and/or temporarily closed by canvas secured at the top and lashed down or buttoned in place at the sides and bottom.

§ 2.48 Open vessels.

(a) In ascertaining the tonnage of open vessels the upper edge of the upper strake shall form the boundary line of measurement, and a tonnage depth shall be taken from a line athwart the upper edge of said strake, at each point of division and each end of the tonnage length.

(b) An open vessel is one of any length without a deck, or with only a partial deck or partial decks, the total length of which is less than one-half her tonnage length.

(c) Further, a vessel having a tonnage length of less than 50 feet and a partial deck of any length or a single full length deck, which, in either case, lies more than one-sixth of the midship depth below the line of the upper edge of the upper strake to the usual point in the hold for taking the register depth, shall, for admeasurement purposes, be deemed an open vessel unless it has a mechanically refrigerated hold or holds.

§ 2.49 Deductions from gross tonnage.

(a) General. To ascertain the net tonnage, the tonnage of the following spaces meeting certain requirements shall be deducted from the gross tonnage.

(b) Requirements. No space shall be deducted unless it has been included previously in the vessel's gross tonnage; is reasonable in extent for the purpose to which it is appropriated; and is certified by marking as prescribed in paragraph (c) of this section showing that it is used exclusively for such purpose.

(c) Marking. The following markings are required by paragraph (b) of this section: For each space appropriated exclusively for the use of the master, including the master's bathroom, bedroom, dressing room, observation room, office, reception room, sitting room and water closet— "Certified for the Accommodation of Master"; for each space appropriated exclusively as a bedroom for the use of crew members, including officers other than the master—"Certified to Accommodate _____ Seamen"; and for other deductible spaces—"Certified _____," inserting the appropriate designation such as—"Boatswain's Stores," "Chart House," "Dynamos," "Galley," "Hospital," "Messroom," "Office of Chief Engineer," "Pump Room," "Radio," "Steering Gear," "W. C." The following abbreviations may be used: "Cert. Accom. Master," "Cert. Accom. _____ Seamen," "Cert. Boatswain's Stores," "Cert. Chart House," "Cert W. C." or "Cert. _____," inserting the space designation. The marking shall at all times be embossed, center-punched, or otherwise permanently cut in metal, and painted over with oil paint in a light color on a dark background, or a dark color on a light background, or carved or branded at least three-eighths of an inch in wood over the doorway, on the inside of the deductible space. Roman letters and Arabic numerals at least one-half of an inch in height shall be used and shall be readily legible at all times. If desired, the marking may be made on a plate of metal (but not of other material) permanently fastened in place by means of welding, riveting, or lock-type screws.

(d) Crew spaces. The tonnages of the spaces or compartments exclusively occupied by and appropriated to the use of the officers and crew of the vessel including:

Bathrooms. A bathroom is a compartment or a room containing (1) a bath tub, or (2) a bath tub and a water closet, or (3) a shower bath or showers without a water closet regardless of its location.
Clothes drying room.
Drinking water filtration or distilling plant below deck.
Hospital.
Crew mess rooms.
Officers' mess rooms.
Office of chief engineer.
Oil skin locker.
Pantry.
Recreation room.
Shower baths.
Sleeping rooms.
Smoking room.
Water closets, private. A private water closet is defined as one intended to serve not more than one member of the crew, whose stateroom or bedroom affords the only means of entrance thereto and is treated as part of the room served by it. Other water closets are considered to be public water closets for admeasurement purposes.
Water closets, public—below the upper deck.
Passageways and companionways serving the above spaces.

But none of these spaces when used by the passengers on a passenger vessel are to be deducted nor is the clerk's, purser's or paymaster's office deductible.

(e) Nondeductible spaces on deductible passageway. Lockers of less than 2 tons each, containing medicine, linen, mops, etc., for the free use of the crew; the ship's office, also spare rooms, not exceeding two in number and used as required by a pilot, customs officer, reserve engineer, a company official or employee shall not invalidate the deduction of a passageway serving as sole access to their location.

(f) Master's cabin. Any space exclusively for the use of the master. This space includes sleeping room, dressing room, bathroom, office, and passageways serving the master's accommodations.

(g) Measuring deductible spaces. Deducted spaces, rectangular in shape, are to be measured by taking the product of the three dimensions, but when bounded by curved surfaces conforming to the sides of the vessel below the tonnage deck exceeding 15 feet in length, they are to be measured according to the formula on the back of Form 1410 for measuring peak tanks. When the space is less than 15 feet in length it may be measured by any practical method.

(h) Platforms. (1) When there is a platform, not more than 1 foot above the top of the bottom frames, to give a flat surface at the bottom of deductible spaces, and the space between the platform and said frames is not used for the stowage of gear, stores, etc., or for any other purpose, take depths of transverse sections to the top of the bottom frames and find areas as in the case of transverse sections for finding the tonnage below the tonnage deck. (See Figure 47 (§ 2.65).) P represents the platform 1 foot above the top of the bottom frames. A, B, and C are the positions of the sections. The forward section A, being sharp, yields no area.

(2) When the platform is more than a foot above the bottom frames, then find the areas only of the portion of the sections above the platform. (See Figure 48 (§ 2.65).)

(3) The depth of deducted spaces extending from the top to bottom of a deck erection may be taken between the same points as the depths used in finding the tonnage of the erection. In other words, if the erection was measured before the deck covering, if any, was laid and the ceiling or paneling, if any, overhead was fitted, and depths were taken from the underside of the covering planks or plating of the deck over as required by the law and regulations to the deck beneath, the deck covering and overhead ceiling are to be disregarded in obtaining depths of the various deducted spaces. In determining the number of men that may be berthed in a space the act of March 4, 1915, (38 Stat. 1165; 46 U. S. C. 660–1) is to govern.

(i) Spaces in the between decks, etc. Deducted spaces in the between decks or erections on or above the upper deck having curved sides are to be measured according to § 2.40.

§ 2.50 Navigation spaces.

(a) Spaces used exclusively for navigation. Spaces used exclusively for maneuvering or navigating the ship shall be deducted from the gross tonnage to the extent of what is considered reasonable. When the steering gear, anchor gear, helm, etc., are situated within a room unnecessarily large for the purpose, or are not partitioned off at all, a 2-foot allowance on every side of the apparatus may be made for working space. The height to be allowed should, as a rule, be the mean height of the between deck space.

(b) Anchor gear. The spaces below, occupied by anchor gear, include the capstan, windlass, and chain locker. When the fore peak is used exclusively as the chain locker, it is to be measured in the manner prescribed for measuring fore peak tanks when used for water ballast.

(c) Boatswain's stores. (1) Subject to the restrictions stated below, any space exclusively appropriated to and used for keeping the boatswain's stores may be deducted.

(2) The allowance for boatswain's stores shall be 1 percent of the gross tonnage in vessels of 100 gross tons and over, but this allowance shall in no case exceed 100 tons. In the case of vessels of less than 100 gross tons this deduction shall not exceed 1 ton.

(d) Chart room. (1) The space for keeping the charts, nautical instruments and for plotting the course. When the space is a combined wheel and chart room, such part as is not exempted as wheelhouse shall be deducted.

(2) In small vessels requiring the use of navigation charts, and where the cabin or saloon is the only space available for filing or use of such charts, one-half of the cabin or saloon, may be allowed for this purpose provided the allowance does not exceed 1½ tons.

(e) Donkey engine and boiler. (1) The space occupied by a donkey engine and boiler, if situated within the boundary of the engine room or the casing above it, and if the donkey engine is used as an auxiliary in connection with the main machinery for propelling the vessel and this space forms part of the actual engine room it shall not be subject to a separate allowance.

(2) When the donkey engine and/or boiler is in a house above the upper deck and not used in connection with the main propelling machinery as described above, the space thus occupied is an exemption and therefore must not be included in the gross tonnage of the vessel.

(3) In all other cases the space occupied by the donkey engine and boiler, if same are connected with the main pumps (except cargo pumps) of the vessel, is to be allowed as a deduction from the gross tonnage, if reasonable in extent. It must be certified in the same manner as other deductible spaces.

(f) Dynamo spaces. The space or spaces when reasonable in extent, occupied by dynamos, switchboards and apparatus necessary for the operation of same, when located below the upper deck shall be deducted regardless of the service for which the dynamo or dynamos are used.

(g) Pump room. A pump room or space below the upper deck containing the pumps of the vessel which are used solely for handling ballast, feed water, water for cleansing purposes, and for freeing the ship of water entering her hold, etc., shall be deducted as pump room. A pump room or space below the upper deck containing pumps primarily used for handling cargo, as in the case of bulk-oil carriers, shall not be deducted. The portion of either of the above pump spaces above the upper deck is exemptible as machinery space.

(h) Radio house. The space set apart for sending and receiving wireless messages.

(i) Storage of sails. In the case of a vessel propelled wholly by sails, any space not exceeding 2½ percent of the gross tonnage of the vessel when such space is used exclusively for storage of sails.

§ 2.51 Engine room.

(a) Engine room must be measured. Notwithstanding the ratable allowance for propelling power for which the act of March 2, 1895 (28 Stat. 741; 46 U.S.C. 77) provides, it is necessary to measure the engine room, regardless of size, in order to ascertain whether the allowance to be deducted for propelling power shall be regulated by a percentage of the gross tonnage or by the actual tonnage of the engine room ascertained by measurement.

(b) Spaces included in engine room must be in gross tonnage. No space shall be included in the tonnage of the engine room unless it has first been included in the vessel's gross tonnage.

(c) Deductions from engine room. Conversely the spaces occupied by cabins, storerooms, etc., and any space not used in connection with propelling the vessel but included in the tonnage of the engine room through process of measurement must be subtracted therefrom.

§ 2.52 Spaces included in engine room.

The space occupied by the engine room is to be understood to include not only that occupied by the engine room itself but also the space occupied by the boiler room, together with the spaces strictly required for the working of the engines and boilers, and consisting of the following items:

(a) Space below the crown. The crown or top of the main space of the actual engine room, from which the depths of the main space are to be taken, will either be at the under side of a deck or, if the side bulkheads are sloping, at the point or height at which the slope terminates. (See Figures 49 and 50 (§ 2.65).)

(b) Space between crown and upper deck. Space between the crown and the upper deck framed in for the machinery or for admission of light and air thereto.

(c) Space above upper deck. Space similarly framed in above the upper deck when permitted under paragraph (i), act of March 2, 1895 (28 Stat. 741; 46 U. S. C. 77).

(d) Shaft tunnels, etc. The shaft tunnel or tunnels and the thrust block recess.

(e) Escape shaft. The trunked ladderway leading from the after end of the shaft tunnel to the deck, provided that it is no larger than is necessary for the purpose of access to and escape from the shaft tunnel. The part of an escape shaft above the upper deck line, also the companion sheltering the escape shaft, is accorded the treatment of light and air space.

(f) Fuel oil transfer pump. (1) When the fuel oil transfer pump is located in a separate space, this space, if reasonable in size, may be considered propelling machinery space provided said pump is not used for bunkering the vessel.

(2) Should such pump perform the dual service of handling both ballast and transferring fuel oil to the settling tanks, one-half the space may be credited to propelling machinery space.

(g) Settling tanks. (1) Fuel oil settling tanks used solely for rendering crude oil fit for consumption in the main boilers are considered as part of the propelling machinery space.

(2) The permissible allowance for settling tanks is based on a 4 days' supply under full steam, which allowance must not exceed 1 percent of the vessel's gross tonnage.

(h) Engineers' stores and workshops. The engineers' stores, and/or workshops are regarded as part of the engine room, up to three-quarters of 1 percent of the gross tonnage, if in the engine room, open to same, or separated therefrom only by a screen bulkhead and located below the upper deck.

§ 2.53 Length of engine room.

(1) As a rule, the length of the engine room extends from the bulkhead forward of the boilers to the one aft of the engines; but if these bulkheads limit a space considered excessive in length for the proper working of the boilers and engines, then that length only which is requisite for containing and operating the boilers and machinery, is to be allowed, with the addition of such length as is necessary for the stoking or working of the fires when the furnaces are in a fore-and-aft direction.

(2) No such additional length is, however, required when the boilers are placed with the furnaces athwartship. The clear central space allowed between the boilers when the stoking is athwartship should be sufficient for this purpose. The point to which the after boundary of the length of the engine room is to be measured should be such as to provide sufficient space for the safe operation of the engine.

(3) The measurer should allow such length between the engines and boilers as may appear to him necessary for the safe working of the machinery.

§ 2.54 Boilers and engine in same compartment.

The boilers and engine are considered to be in the same compartment when there is a transverse bulkhead, screen or otherwise, through which the boilers project into the engine space, and where there is only sufficient space between the boilers and engine for the safe working of the machinery.

§ 2.55 Engine room measured in parts.

If the boilers and engine are entirely in separate rooms, or if there is a break or breaks in the bottom or side lines of the propelling machinery space resulting from a break or breaks in the double bottom or varying height of floors thereunder, or from side bunkers or other spaces not considered propelling machinery spaces, measure each room separately as a whole or in parts, according to the number of breaks in its bottom or side lines, and the sum of the several results shall be deemed to be the tonnage of the said spaces.

§ 2.56 Rule for measuring engine room.

(a) Space in hold amidship. When the propelling machinery (boilers and engine) space is in the hold amidship, and without a break in its bottom or side lines, measure its length between the foremost and aftermost bulkheads or limits of its length, excluding such parts, if any, not actually occupied by or required for the proper working of the machinery. Divide the length by 2 and measure 3 depths of the space, one at each end and one at the middle of the length, taking the depths from the crown, or line of same, to the ceiling on the bottom frames or floor timbers, or to the inner plating (tank top) of the double bottom in the case of a steel vessel. Measure also a breadth at each end and at the middle of the length, the said breadths to be taken at one-half their respective heights. Find the product of the length, mean breadth and mean depth, which product divide by 100 and the result shall be deemed the tonnage of the main space below the crown.

(b) Spaces between the crown and upper deck. Find the cubical contents of the space or spaces, if any, between the crown aforesaid and the upper deck, or line of same, which are framed in for the propelling machinery or admission of light and air thereto, by multiplying together the length, breadth and depth thereof. Divide the product by 100; add the quotient to the tonnage of the space below the crown and the result shall, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained, be deemed the tonnage of the space.

(c) Engine room in after end. When the propelling machinery space is located in the after end of the hold of a vessel and extends from side to side of same and has a continuous bottom line, divide its length into such an even number of parts as will give a common interval most nearly equal to that used in finding the tonnage of the hold in that part of the vessel; then proceed to find its contends by the use of areas of transverse sections taken at each end and at each point of division of its length. In other words, measure it by the same method as was used for finding the tonnage of that part of the hold in which it lies.

(d) Shaft tunnel and thrust recess. (1) In the case of screw propelled vessels in which the top of the shaft tunnel is flat, the tonnage of such tunnel shall be ascertained by dividing the product of its length, breadth and depth by 100.

(2) In like manner find the tonnage of the thrust recess or entrance to the shaft tunnel.

(3) If the space abaft the shaft tunnel extends from side to side of the vessel, find its tonnage by using the formula for measuring peak tanks. (See Figures 47 and 48 (§ 2.65).)

(e) Round top shaft tunnel. When the top of the tunnel is practically semicircular in shape, find the area of a transverse section in two parts; first the lower part from the bottom of the trunk up to where the curve begins by multiplying the breadth by the applicable height, and then the semicircular part by taking half the area of a circle whose diameter equals the breadth of the tunnel. Multiply the sum of the two areas by the length and divide the product by 100. (See Figure 51 (§ 2.65), wherein B and H equal the breadth and height, respectively, of the lower part, and r equals the radius of the semicircular top.)

(f) Shaft space and thrust recess not cased. (1) When the shaft is not enclosed by a tunnel, the following rules should be observed in the case of a vessel with a single screw. The thrust-block space should be of such length and breadth as will permit of the proper care of the thrust-block and the height should not exceed 7 feet. The shaft space allowed should be of the dimensions of the usual tunnel suitable for the vessel and the height of this space should not exceed 6 feet.

(2) When the vessel is a twin screw and the space aft of the engines is open from side to side, the space should not be included in the engine room measurement for a greater height than 6 feet mean, and any space therein appropriated for stores or for any purposes other than the propelling machinery should be subtracted from the space to be included in the engine room.

§ 2.57 Engine room in small boats.

(a) When not bulkheaded off. In the case of a motorboat not having an engine room bulkheaded off from the rest of the hold, allow as engine space the space occupied by the engine and sufficient space on each side and end of it—say, about 2 feet—to permit the operator to handle it safely and efficiently; if sufficient space does not exist for such allowance then allow whatever space there is. Fuel tanks are not to be included in the said engine space.

(b) When bulkheaded off. If the engine room is bulkheaded off from the rest of the hold and is larger than is strictly required for safe and efficient handling of the engine, limit the engine space according to the said requirements and as indicated in paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) Engine on a bed. If the engine sits on a bed located on the vessel's bottom timbers, take depths when measuring the propelling machinery space from the under side of the deck, or line of same down to the top of the bottom frames or floor timbers as the case may be, or to the ceiling thereon when fitted.

(d) Boxed-in engine. (1) When the portion of the engine extending above a cockpit platform is boxed in such boxed-in portion is considered to be all of the space available for the installation and operation of the engine above the line of said platform in that part of the vessel.

(2) In the case of a wholly boxed-in engine in the hold of a motorboat, the tonnage of the boxed-in space, plus the shaft, engine auxiliaries, etc., that may be outside the boxing is considered the propelling machinery space.

(3) The above restrictions may invalidate light and air exemption when the boxing does not extend above the line of the upper deck. However, when such boxing does extend above said deck line, the height of light and air exemption is from the upper deck line to the under side of the top of the boxing.

§ 2.58 Deduction for propelling power.

In the case of a vessel propelled by steam or other power, a deduction shall be made for the propelling machinery space according to the percentage ratio between the actual tonnage of such space and the vessel's gross tonnage, calculated as follows:

For vessels propelled by screw in whole or in part:

13 percent or less: Deduct 32/13 times the tonnage of the actual propelling machinery space; or, in the case of a vessel the construction of which was commenced on or before June 4, 1956, if the owner so elects, deduct 1¾ times the tonnage of the actual propelling machinery space.

Above 13 percent, below 20 percent: Deduct 32 percent of the gross tonnage.

20 percent or more: Deduct 32 percent of the gross tonnage or 1¾ times the tonnage of the actual propelling machinery space, whichever the owner elects.

For vessels propelled by paddle-wheel in whole or in part:

20 percent or less: Deduct 37/20 times the tonnage of the actual propelling machinery space; or, in the case of a vessel the construction of which was commenced on or before June 4, 1956, if the owner so elects, deduct 1⅛ times the tonnage of the actual propelling machinery space.

Above 20 percent, below 30 percent: Deduct 37 percent of the gross tonnage.

30 percent or more: Deduct 37 percent of the gross tonnage or 1⅛ times the tonnage of the actual propelling machinery space, whichever the owner elects.

§ 2.59 Light and air spaces.

(a) Application for allowance. On a request in writing by the owner of a vessel to the collector of customs of the district in which the vessel is located, the tonnage of such portion of the space or spaces above the crown of the engine room and above the line of the upper deck as is framed in for the machinery, or for the admission of light and air, and not required to be included in the gross tonnage, shall for the purpose of ascertaining the tonnage of the space occupied by the propelling machinery, be added to the said machinery space; but it shall then be included in the gross tonnage. Such space or spaces must be reasonable in extent, safe, and seaworthy and cannot be used for any purpose other than the machinery or for the admission of light and air to the propelling machinery space of the vessel.

(b) Reasonable in extent. In construing the words "reasonable in extent" the measurer should note that the length should not exceed the length of the propelling machinery space, and if any portion is plated over, the length of such part must be deducted from the full length and whatever the breadth of the casing may be, the breadth allowed must not exceed one-half the extreme inside midship breadth of the vessel.

(c) Purpose for including light and air spaces. The purpose of adding a part of the framed-in light and air spaces (above the crown of the boiler and engine room and above the upper deck) of a vessel to her machinery space below the upper deck is to entitle the vessel to a greater deduction for propelling power, and consequently obtain a smaller net tonnage than would otherwise result. To get this benefit, it does not always require the addition of the total of such light and air spaces. In such cases only such portion need be added as hereinafter explained.

(d) Rule for computing addible light and air space. Below is given a simple rule for finding the amount of light and air space or spaces required to be added to the gross tonnage and also to the propelling machinery space of a mechanically propelled vessel to entitle her to 32 percent of her gross tonnage for propelling-power deduction when granted by the collector upon request of her owner or owners:

Find 13.1 percent of the gross tonnage inclusive of excess hatchways. Find the difference between this percent and the tonnage of the propelling machinery space below the upper deck to the hull. Increase this difference by 15 percent of itself, which gives approximately the amount of light and air space or spaces to be added to the gross tonnage defined above, and also to the propelling machinery space below said upper deck. The gross register tonnage in such a case is the gross tonnage as defined above, plus light and air addition, less one-half of 1 percent of said light and air addition, which one-half percent is additional allowance for excess hatchways due to addition of light and air to gross tonnage.

EXAMPLE

Gross tonnage, exclusive of light and air and hatchways	5,675.95
Excess of hatchways (based on the above)	67.37
Gross tonnage, inclusive of excess hatchways and exclusive of light and air	5,743.32
13.1 percent of 5,743.32	752.37
Machinery space below the upper deck to the hull	680.55
Difference	71.82
15 percent of difference	10.77
Difference plus 15 percent of itself (amount of light and air to be added to gross tonnage and machinery space)	82.59
Gross tonnage, inclusive of light and air and excess of hatchways	5,825.91
Additional exemption for hatchways; account of light and air addition equals one-half of 1 percent of 82.59 − 82.59/200	.41
Gross registered tonnage	5,825.50
Proof:
13.1 percent of 5,825.50	763.14
680.55 plus 82.59	763.14

§ 2.60 Verification of calculations, diagram of areas, and certification of results.

(a) Calculations to be verified and diagram of areas made. Calculations must be verified at least twice and a diagram of half breadths for areas made. (See Figures 52 and 53 (§ 2.65).)

(b) Certification of results. The deductions having been made from the gross tonnage and the remainder or net tonnage having been properly marked on the main beam, the surveyor or measuring officer will certify the result to the collector on Form 1322.

§ 2.60a Marking net tonnage and official number on vessel.

(a) The official number of a vessel, preceded by the abbreviation "NO.", and the net tonnage, preceded by the word "NET", shall be marked in a conspicuous place on her main beam at the expense of the owner or master, in Arabic numerals of the block type at least three inches in height, when the size of the main beam will permit. If the main beam is of wood, it shall be carved or branded in figures not less than three-eighths of an inch in depth. If the main beam is of iron or other metal, the official number and net tonnage shall be outlined by punch marks and painted over with oil paint in a light color on a dark background or a dark color on a light background.

(b) The beam at the forward end of the largest hatch on the weather deck which is generally located forward of amidships shall be considered the main beam for the purposes of these regulations. In the case of a vessel which does not have a hatch on the weather deck, any structural member which is integral to the hull may be considered the main beam.

(c) The official number awarded to a vessel shall pertain only to that vessel. If a vessel, having once received an official number, is rebuilt or redocumented, the number originally awarded shall be retained.

§ 2.61 Appendix to certificate of registry.

(a) When a vessel of the United States carries passengers to a foreign port or ports the collector of customs will issue to each such vessel admeasured in his district a "Special Appendix to Certificate of Registry of American Passenger Vessels" (Form 1265–A), showing the tonnage of passenger spaces on a deck not a deck to the hull and exempted from inclusion in tonnage by the regulations in this part.

(b) The same requirement applies to vessels operating from his district not previously furnished such an appendix.

(c) At the end of each quarter, the collector must report to this Bureau the official number and name of every vessel in his district to which such appendix has been issued during that period.

§ 2.62 Measurement of Government vessels.

When the tonnage of Government colliers, transports, supply ships, repair ships, etc., is requested this tonnage shall be ascertained in accordance with the rules in this part, but the following requirements will be waived: The marking of the vessel's name and home port, official number (none required), and net tonnage; the requirements as to size and conditions of crew space, and the certifications of deducted spaces on the beam over the doorway. The plate over the door designating its use is sufficient for such certifications.

§ 2.63 Foreign vessels.

A similar mode of measurement having been adopted by Belgium, Denmark, Esthonia, Finland, France, Free City of Danzig, Germany, Great Britain, Iceland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Liberia, the Netherlands, Norway, Panama, Poland, Portugal, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Venezuela, and Yugoslavia, and the like courtesy having been extended to vessels of the United States, it is directed that merchant vessels of these countries, the registers of which indicate their gross and net tonnage under their present laws, shall be taken in the ports of the United States to be of the tonnage so expressed in their documents. Vessels of foreign countries other than the aforesaid are to be measured according to the laws of the United States.

§ 2.64 Adjustment and correction of tonnage.

(a) The tonnage shown in the document of a vessel of the United States shall not be changed except as provided in this section.

(b) If there has been a change of structure or use of space that affects tonnage, application for adjustment of such tonnage shall be made as provided in § 2.8. If the owner claims that the tonnage shown in the vessel's document is erroneous, he shall make application in writing to the collector of customs of the district in which the vessel is located for adjustment of such tonnage. Any application for adjustment of tonnage shall be accompanied by appropriate drawings as required by § 2.9 and by a precise statement of the changes made or assignments of error.

(1) The collector shall not readmeasure unaltered spaces or spaces for which no error is claimed, but shall use the figures shown on the latest record of tonnage admeasurement (Form 1410 or Form 1410–A) unless there is an obvious error thereon. If the vessel was previously admeasured at a port other than the port at which application for adjustment of tonnage is made, the latest record of tonnage admeasurement shall be forwarded to the collector at the latter port upon his request. Such record shall be returned without alteration after a final decision has been reached.

(2) The collector shall make such admeasurement as is necessary to determine the proper tonnage of the vessel. Where the tonnage is found to be different from that shown in the vessel's document, he shall prepare a new record of admeasurement.

(3) If the change of tonnage is due to a change in structure or use of space, the outstanding document shall be surrendered in accordance with the provisions of law and regulations applicable to the surrender of documents. Any document thereafter issued shall show the adjusted tonnage.

(4) If the application for adjustment of tonnage is based on a claim of error, the application and all papers referred to in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Customs. The Commissioner will review the application and advise the collector of his decision.

(c) If an error in the tonnage shown on the document is detected by a collector he shall proceed as though the owner had made application to him for adjustment of tonnage because of the error.

(d) If there is an obvious typographical error in the tonnage shown on the document, the collector shall make the necessary correction.

Body plan. A drawing consisting of a pair of half transverse elevations or end views of a vessel, both having a common vertical middle line, so that the right-hand side represents the vessel as seen from ahead and the left-hand side as seen from astern. On the body plan appear the forms of the various cross sections. The curvature of the rail and deck lines at the sides, and with the water lines, buttock lines, and diagonal lines indicated as straight lines.

Booby hatch. A small companion fitted with a sliding top.

Break in double bottom. The point where the line of the inner bottom is broken by being either raised or lowered from the normal line of same.

Bulkhead. Bulkheads are partitions by which compartments, etc., are formed, or the hold of a vessel is divided.

Bulwark. A term applied to the strake of shell plating or the side planking above the weather deck and usually extends between the forecastle and the bridge or the bridge and the poop.

Ceiling. The covering of wood planking on the inboard face of a vessel's side frames, bottom frames, floor timbers, and sometimes on the under side of deck beams.

Cellular double bottom. A term applied when the double bottom is divided into numerous compartments by the floors and longitudinals.

Coaming. The vertical boundary around a hatch, skylight, etc., the "sill" below a tonnage opening in a bulkhead.

Cockpit. A space at the bottom of which is a platform sunk below the line of the upper deck on small craft.

Companion. A small structure sheltering a deck opening affording entrance to a companionway.

Companionway. A stairway or ladderway leading to a space above or below.

Covering board. A plank or a strake of planking fitted horizontally on top of frame heads at the line of weather deck.

Crown. A term sometimes used to denote the round up or camber of a deck.

Deck hook. A wooden hook or knee on the level of deck beams on which the extreme forward ends of deck planks rest and to which they are fastened. On iron or steel vessels, a plate connecting the extreme ends of deck stringer plates.

Depth of frame. The depth of a bottom frame is its perpendicular height. (See d, Figure 1 (§ 2.65)). The depth of a side frame is the athwart distance between its inboard and outboard face.

Double bottom. Compartments at bottom of ship between inner and outer bottom plating, used for ballast tanks, water, fuel oil, etc.

Fidley hatch. Hatch around smokestack and uptake.

Flange. Portion of a plate or shape at, or nearly at right angles to main portion.

Floor or floor timber. The lowermost piece of timber connecting the main frames, notched to fit over the keel or keelson and extending the full depth of the frames to which it is fastened. In an iron or steel vessel a plate placed vertically in the bottom, extending from bilge to bilge, in way of each frame, to which it (the frame) is connected. In double bottoms of the usual construction it extends from the outer to the inner bottom thereof.

Frame. One of the numerous transverse (longitudinal in Isherwood-type vessels) "ribs" that form the framing of a vessel.

Frame bracket. A plate connecting a side frame to the margin plate.

(Sec. 27A, 72 Stat. 1736; 46 U.S.C. 883–1)

§ 3.2 Vessels entitled to documents.

(a) A vessel of 20 net tons or more may be registered or enrolled and licensed. A vessel of 5 net tons or more but less than 20 net tons may be licensed (except vessels subject to the provisions of paragraph (b) of this section) or registered.

(b) Any vessel of 5 net tons or more which is to be documented for navigating the waters of the northern, northeastern, or northwestern frontiers otherwise than by sea shall be granted a frontier enrollment and license, customs Form 1273, except that a vessel used exclusively as a pleasure vessel on those waters may be granted an enrollment and license as a yacht, customs Form 1290, if entitled to be so documented in accordance with the provisions of § 3.4. (See § 3.40.)

(c) The following classes of vessels are entitled to receive documents under existing laws:

Class 1. Any vessel built in the United States and wholly owned by a citizen.[1] A vessel of this class owned by a corporation which is qualified as a citizen of the United States under the definition contained in § 3.19(a)(4) may be documented for use in the coastwise trade within the limitations specified in the Act of September 2, 1958 (46 U.S.C. 883–1), if it is a non-self-propelled vessel or a self-propelled vessel of less than 500 gross tons (see also § 3.19(e)).

Class 2. Any vessel purchased from the Maritime Administration or War Shipping Administration by a citizen. (See § 3.42.)

Class 3. Any vessel built in the United States in whole or in part for the account of one who is not a citizen and then recorded, which thereafter becomes wholly owned by a citizen and has never before been documented. (See § 3.47.)

Class 4. Any vessel captured by a citizen in a war to which the United States is a party, which has been lawfully condemned as a prize and is wholly owned by a citizen.

Class 5. Any vessel which has been judicially forfeited for a breach of the laws of the United States when wholly owned by a citizen. This includes a foreign-built vessel, but does not include any vessel not otherwise entitled to documents which has been sold under a decree of admiralty for debt or seamen's wages.

Class 6. Any vessel built in the United States and sold by the Government to a citizen. A foreign-built vessel bought or chartered by the Government is entitled to documentation if sold to a citizen and the requirements for class 9 are met.

[1] For the meaning of the word "citizen" in this section, see § 3.19.

Class 7. Any vessel authorized by special act of Congress to be documented.

Class 8. Any vessel wrecked on a coast of the United States or its possessions or in adjacent waters when purchased by a citizen and repaired in a shipyard in the United States or its possessions, provided it be proved to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Customs, through a board of three appraisers appointed by him if necessary, that the repairs put upon such vessel are equal to three times the appraised salved value of the vessel. The expense of such appraisal shall be borne by the owner of the vessel. If any of the material facts sworn to or represented by the owner, or at his instance, to obtain a document for such vessel is not true, the vessel is liable to forfeiture.

Class 9. Any seagoing vessel, whether steam or sail, wherever built, wholly owned by a citizen. A foreign-built vessel of this class shall engage only in trade with foreign countries or the islands of Guam, Tutuila, Wake, Midway, or Kingman Reef. It shall not engage in the coastwise trade, except as specified in sections 18 and 22, Merchant Marine Act, 1920, as amended, nor in the American fisheries. (See § 3.42.)

(d) The appropriate one of the following notations shall be made on the register of any vessel owned by a corporation which is established as a citizen of the United States under the definition contained in § 3.19(a)(3) or § 3.19(b), except when such register is required by any other provision of this part to bear an endorsement prohibiting the vessel from engaging in the coastwise trade:

(1) "Less than 75 percent of the interest in the corporation owning this vessel is owned by citizens of the United States. It shall not engage in the coastwise trade"; or

(2) "75 percent of the interest in the corporation owning this vessel is owned by citizens of the United States. It may engage in the coastwise trade so long as so owned and no longer."

(e) The following notation shall be made on the enrollment and license or license of any non-self-propelled vessel or any self-propelled vessel of less than 500 gross tons owned by a corporation which is established as a citizen of the United States under the definition contained in § 3.19(a)(4):

As amended by the Act of September 2, 1958 (46 U.S.C. 883–1). This vessel may engage in the coastwise trade, within the limitations specified in the Act, so long as so owned and no longer. It shall not engage in the fisheries and is not authorized to be documented for nor to engage in the foreign trade.

(f) No vessel of classes 1 through 8 above which has acquired the lawful right to engage in the coastwise trade, either by virtue of having been built in or documented under the laws of the United States, and which has thereafter been sold or transferred foreign in whole or in part or placed under foreign registry (§ 3.43) or which, if of more than 500 gross tons, has been rebuilt outside the United States, its territories (not including trust territories), or its possessions after July 13, 1956, or which being of more than 500 gross tons, has been so rebuilt under a contract entered into on or before that date if the work of rebuilding was not commenced within 6 months after July 14, 1956 (§ 3.28),[2] shall have the right thereafter to engage in the coastwise trade. No document shall be issued to such a vessel for the coastwise trade and any document which may be issued for any other trade or employment shall bear the following notation:

As amended by section 27 of the Merchant Marine Act of June 5, 1920, as amended. This vessel shall not engage in the coastwise trade. (R.S. 4132, as amended, sec. 22, 41 Stat. 997, R.S. 4136, as amended, 4214, as amended, secs. 2, 9, 39 Stat. 729, as amended, 780, as amended, sec. 27, 41 Stat. 999, as amended, * * * * [Sec. 1.] section 27 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1920, as amended (U. S. C., 1952 edition, title 46, sec. 883), is further amended by inserting the following new proviso at the end of the first proviso thereof: "Provided further, That no vessel of more than five hundred gross tons which has acquired the lawful right to engage in the coastwise trade, either by virtue of having been built in or documented under the laws of the United States, and which has later been rebuilt outside the United States, its Territories (not including trust territories), or its possessions shall have the right thereafter to engage in the coastwise trade." * * *

Sec. 4. This act shall be effective from the date of enactment hereof: Provided, however, That no vessel shall be deemed to have lost its coastwise privileges hereunder if it is rebuilt under a contract entered into before such date of enactment and if the work of rebuilding is commenced not later than six months after such date of enactment. (Secs. 1 and 4 of the act of July 14, 1956 (secs. 1, 4, 70 Stat. 544; T. D. 54178; 46 U. S. C. 883).)

secs. 2, 3, 70 Stat. 544, 72 Stat. 1736; 46 U.S.C. 11, 13, 14, 103, 802, 808, 883, 883a, 883b, 883–1).

§ 3.3 Provisional registers.

(a) Consular officers of the United States and such other persons as may be designated by the President for the purpose[4] are authorized to issue a provisional certificate of registry to any vessel abroad which has been purchased by a citizen, as defined in § 3.19, and which at the time of such purchase is not documented as a vessel of the United States.

(b) Such provisional certificate shall entitle the vessel to the privileges of a vessel of the United States in trade with foreign countries or with the islands of Guam and Tutuila until the expiration of 6 months from the date thereof, or until 10 days after the vessel's arrival in a port of the United States, whichever first happens, and no longer. On arrival at a port of the United States, the vessel shall become subject to the laws relating to officers, inspection, and measurement.

(c) When a bill of sale covering such transfer is presented to an American consular officer:

(1) Satisfactory evidence shall be produced to establish that the transfer of registry has the approval of the foreign government concerned.

(2) The bill of sale shall be filed with him.

(3) The vendee shall submit a certificate as to the bona fides of the transfer of title and the citizenship of the vendee which the consul shall file with the bill of sale.

(4) If the vendor or his duly authorized representative be present, he shall also sign the certificate.

(5) The consular officer will investigate the circumstances surrounding the sale of the vessel and then communicate by dispatch, or by cable at the expense of the applicant, with the Commissioner of Customs through the Department of State, setting forth the results of his investigation; pertinent data regarding the vessel, such as its name, former nationality, rig, and gross and net tonnages; that the bill of sale and certificate of bona fides have been filed with him, giving the names of the vendor and vendee; whether the proposal to have the vessel placed under American registry has the approval of the foreign government concerned, or, if such approval is not required, stating that fact; his opinion as to whether the transfer was made in good faith; and whether it is intended that the vessel will be navigated to the United States on a voyage expected to terminate before the expiration date of the provisional register to be issued.

(6) On receipt of such a communication, if the transfer appears to be in good faith and the documentation of the vessel is not contrary to the policy of this Government, the Commissioner of Customs will award signal letters to the vessel and, through the usual channels, will promptly authorize the State Department to instruct the consular officer to issue a provisional certificate, customs Form 1266–A, to the vessel. The State Department will then cable, at the expense of the parties concerned, instructions and data for the issue of the provisional register.

(d) When bills of sale covering such transfers are presented to persons designated by the President for the purpose of issuing provisional certificates of registry, the procedure outlined in paragraph (c) of this section shall be followed. Communications in such cases shall be made through the appropriate departments.

(e) If bills of sale covering such transfers are presented to a collector of customs, the procedure outlined in paragraph (c) (1), (2), (3), (4), and (5) of this section shall be followed, except that the collector shall communicate directly with the Commissioner of Customs. Thereafter, if the transfer appears to be in good faith and it is not contrary to the policy of this Government, the Commissioner of Customs will award signal letters to the vessel and, through the usual channels, will promptly request the State Department to authorize the appropriate consular officer to issue a provisional certificate to the vessel. The State Department will then cable, at the expense of the parties concerned, instructions and data for the issue of the provisional register. No provisional certificate of registry shall be issued in any case unless authorized by the Commissioner of Customs.

(f) A duplicate provisional certificate, customs Form 1266–A, shall be forwarded as soon as practicable in every case by the issuing officer through the usual channels to the Commissioner of Customs.

(g) No provisional certificate shall be issued to any vessel abroad which at the time of its transfer to a citizen of the United States was documented as a vessel of the United States. Such a vessel is entitled to all the privileges and benefits of a vessel of the United States for the period allowed by R. S. 4166 (46 U. S. C. 35).

(Sec. 1, 38 Stat. 1193, as amended; 46 U.S.C. 12)

§ 3.4 Yachts entitled to documents.

(a) Any vessel, other than one navigating the waters of the northern, northeastern, or northwestern frontiers otherwise than by sea, may be licensed as a yacht if under 20 but not under 5 net tons and used exclusively as a pleasure vessel, and if otherwise entitled to be documented.

(b) Any vessel may be enrolled and licensed as a yacht if used exclusively as a pleasure vessel and otherwise entitled to be documented, provided it is of 5 net tons or over in the case of a vessel navigating the waters of the northern, northeastern, or northwestern frontiers otherwise than by sea, or 20 net tons or over in any other case.

(R. S. 4214, as amended; 46 U. S. C. 103)

(4) Vessels plying upon waters which are wholly within the limits of a State and which have no outlet into a river or lake on which commerce with foreign nations or among the States can be carried on.

(5) Vessels of less than 5 net tons.

(b) All other vessels engaged in trade between ports in the United States or engaged in the fisheries, if not registered, shall be enrolled and licensed, or licensed, or will be liable to a penalty of $30 on every arrival, unless the vessel has not been within a customs district since the expiration of the license.

(c) No vessel exempt from documentation under the provisions of paragraph (a) (1), (2), (3), or (5) of this section and owned by a corporation which is a citizen of the United States as defined in § 3.19(a)(4) shall be operated in trade on the navigable waters of the United States unless there is on file with the collector of customs for the district in which the vessel business of the owner is conducted a valid and current certificate under oath on customs Form 1260 as required by § 3.21(f).

(Sec. 7, 24 Stat. 81, as amended, 21 Stat. 44, R.S. 4385, 18 Stat. 31, 72 Stat. 1736; 46 U.S.C. 319, 332, 335, 336, 883–1)

§ 3.6 Marine documents; kinds of.

(b) A register or enrollment shall be valid until a contingency arises requiring its surrender. (See §§ 3.26, 3.27.) A license shall be valid for one year only, but may be renewed or changed at any time during the year for which it is granted. Care shall be taken that only one license, and for one employment, be granted to a vessel for the same period, except that a license may be granted for the "coasting trade and mackerel fisheries."

(c) No enrollment and license or license shall be considered in force longer than the vessel to which it is granted is

A certificate of the builder shall not be required, nor shall a certificate of admeasurement be required unless some change of tonnage has taken place since the time of the previous documentation. (See §§ 3.26, 3.27 and 3.30.)

§ 3.9 Marine documents to include dimensions and tonnage.

(See § 3.30.)

(R.S. 4132, as amended, sec. 22, 41, Stat. 997, sec. 27A, 72 Stat. 1736; 46 U.S.C. 11, 13, 883–1)

This certificate shall be sufficient to authorize the removal of a new vessel, if in ballast only, from the district where she was built to another district in the same or an adjoining State where the owner or owners actually reside.

(b) When for any cause it is found impracticable to obtain the certificate of the builder, other competent evidence establishing the particulars and facts required to be certified by him may be accepted with the approval of the Commissioner of Customs.

(c) The place of build is where the hull was built. The time of build is the year of completion. Both shall appear in all marine documents.

When the application is filed with the collector at the port designated as the home port of the vessel, the application shall be in triplicate. When the application is filed with the collector at any port other than the home port of the vessel, the application shall be in quadruplicate. The name or names of any former owner or owners shall be stated on the application. If there was no former owner, that fact shall be stated. In the case of corporate ownership, the application shall be signed in the corporate name by the president, secretary, or a specially authorized officer of the corporation, or by an authorized agent. In the case of a partnership, the partnership name shall be signed by one of the partners, or by a duly authorized agent; the name of each of the partners shall be stated but the proportionate interest of each in the partnership business shall not be stated. In the case of individual ownership by two or more persons, the application shall be signed by all the owners, by a duly authorized agent, or by one of the owners as managing owner, provided there is filed with the collector a written authorization for him to act in that capacity signed by the owners of a majority interest in the vessel; in every case, the name of each owner shall be stated. In every case the capacity in which the person signs, whether as owner, managing owner, agent, etc., shall be clearly stated below his signature. If a signature is by mark, it shall be witnessed by two persons, or acknowledged. Any acknowledgment valid under the law of the state where made may be accepted. No customs officer or employee is authorized by section 486, Tariff Act of 1930, to take such acknowledgments.

(b) Each application for an official number shall be accompanied by a designation of home port on customs Form 1319.

(c) When an application for an official number is filed with the collector at the port designated as the home port of the vessel, the original and one copy of customs Form 1320 shall be forwarded to the Bureau. When an application for an official number is filed with the collector at any port other than the home port of the vessel the original and two copies of the application shall be forwarded to the Bureau. When an official number is awarded, the Bureau will return the original to the collector from whom it was received. The collector shall make a notation of the official number awarded on the retained copy of the application and shall deliver the original to the applicant. When the application for official number is filed with the collector at any port other than the home port of the vessel, and an official number is awarded to the vessel, a copy of the notice of award will also be forwarded by the Bureau to the collector at the home port together with a copy of the application.

(d) Any seagoing vessel of 100 tons or over, in addition to an official number, may have signal letters awarded. Application therefor shall be made by the owner or his agent through a collector of

[1] The penalty for neglecting to surrender a document when required by law is the forfeiture of all privileges and benefits of a vessel of the United States. (R. S. 4169; 46 U. S. C. 38)

[2] "The Secretary of the Treasury shall have power, under such regulations as he shall prescribe, to establish and provide a system of numbering vessels so registered, enrolled and licensed; and each vessel so numbered shall have her number deeply carved or otherwise permanently marked on her main beam; and if at any time she shall cease to be so marked, such vessel shall be liable to a fine of $30 on every arrival in a port of the United States if she have not her proper official number legally carved or permanently marked." customs on the application for official number, customs Form 1320, or, if the application is made subsequent to the filing of an application for an official number, by a letter transmitted through the collector of customs. Signal letters will not be forwarded to a seagoing vessel of less than 100 tons except upon special authorization by the Commissioner of Customs.

(e) A new application for the award of signal letters to a vessel of the United States shall not be required by reason of any change in status or ownership of such vessel or by reason of the redocumentation of such vessel after a period during which it has been out of documentation. The award of such letters shall not be canceled except upon special authorization of the Commissioner of Customs.

(f) The Bureau will give consideration to granting a special authorization for the cancellation of the award of signal letters upon application by or on behalf of a person having a permit issued by the Federal Communications Commission for the construction or operation of a broadcast station or the operation of a ship station who desires to use such letters in connection with the operation of such station if the vessel to which such letters are awarded is no longer documented as a vessel of the United States, and if, in the case of an application relating to a ship station, the vessel has not been so documented for a period of not less than 10 years. Such application shall be submitted to the Commissioner of Customs in writing and shall state (1) the name and address of the permittee, (2) the date of the granting of such permit, (3) the type of station to which such permit has been granted, (4) the letters desired, and (5) the name and official number of the vessel to which such letters are awarded, if known to the applicant.

§ 3.14 Evidence as to marking of official number, net tonnage, name, and hailing port.

(a) Except as provided for in § 3.51(k), marine documents shall not be issued until proper evidence is produced that the official number and net tonnage have been properly marked upon the vessel's main beam, that her name has been properly marked upon both sides of her bow, and that her name and hailing port have been properly marked upon her stern, or in the case of a yacht that her name and hailing port have been properly marked on the hull. (See § 2.60a of this chapter.)

(b) The evidence of proper marking required by the preceding paragraph shall be a certificate by a customs officer on customs Form 1322. If the vessel is at a place not readily accessible to a customs officer, the owner or his agent shall certify as to the proper marking; but as soon as she arrives at a place accessible to a customs officer, a certificate on customs Form 1322 shall be required.

(Sec. 4, 28 Stat. 743, as amended; 46 U.S.C. 79)

§ 3.16 Name and hailing port on documented vessel.

(a) The name of every documented vessel (yachts excepted) shall be marked in full upon each bow and upon the stern, and the hailing port shall also be marked in full upon the stern. These names shall be painted, carved, or gilded in Roman letters in a light color on a dark ground or in a dark color on a light ground, and shall be distinctly visible. The letters shall not be less than 4 inches high. Every steam vessel of the United States shall, in addition, have her name conspicuously placed in distinct, plain letters not less than 6 inches high on each outer side of the pilot house, if it has one, and if the vessel has side wheels, also on the outer side of each wheel house.

(b) On a so-called "double-ender" vessel the required names shall be placed on the parts corresponding to the bow and stern. If either the bow or stern, or both, of any such or other vessel does not afford sufficient space for marking the required name or names, or if the name marked in such a place would be obscured or concealed while the vessel is in operation (for example, by a fender), the names shall be placed on an appropriate adjacent part.

(c) The name of a scow, barge, or other vessel "scow-built" or with square bow may be marked on the bow instead of the side when such marking would be speedily obliterated by chafing against other vessels, piles, or rocks.

(d) The hailing port to be marked on the stern may be either the port where the vessel is permanently documented, or the place in the same district where the vessel was built or where one or more of the owners reside.

(e) Every documented yacht shall have its name and hailing port placed on some conspicuous part of its hull.

(R. S. 4178, as amended, sec. 21, 23 Stat. 58, R. S. 4214, as amended, 4495; 46 U. S. C. 46, 47, 103, 493)

§ 3.17 Home port; definition; change of.

(a) A vessel's home port[3] is that port where marine documents may be issued to vessels (see § 1.1 (c) of this chapter) which has been fixed and determined by the owner with the approval of the collector, assistant collector, or deputy collector in charge of marine work at the port designated or at the port where a temporary document is to be issued to the vessel. It is the port at which the vessel's permanent documents are issued.

(b) Before a marine document is issued to a vessel never before documented or to a documented or previously documented vessel when there has been some change in ownership in whole or in part or when a change in home port is desired, the owner of the vessel shall submit his designation of home port for the vessel on customs Form 1319, signed as provided for in § 3.13 (a), to the office of the collector of customs for the port designated or the port where a temporary document is to be issued. When the designation is filed with the collector at the port designated as home port, it shall be filed in duplicate; when filed at a port where a temporary document is to be issued, it shall be filed in triplicate. If the home port so designated is different from the last previous home port of the vessel, the owner shall also request the collector at the previous home port to forward to the collector at the designated port an abstract of title on customs Form 1332, or on customs Forms 1332 and 1332–A (see § 3.33 (l)).

(c) If an owner desires that the home port be elsewhere than the port at or nearest the place in the same customs collection district where the vessel business of the owner is conducted, he shall submit with his designation of home port a detailed statement setting forth the reasons.

(d) Whenever an owner submits a designation of home port to a collector, the collector shall examine the instruments transferring title to the vessel and the abstract of title on customs Form 1332 or customs Forms 1332 and 1332–A, if any, and satisfy himself that the home port has in fact been designated by the owner of the vessel or some person authorized to act for him.

(e) Any designation presented shall be forwarded to the Bureau for recommendation before approval and before the issuance of any document under such designation if:

(1) A port or place is designated which is other than the port at or nearest the place in the same customs collection district where the vessel business of the owner is conducted;

(2) The vessel is of foreign build and has not been previously documented as a vessel of the United States;

(3) The vessel has been transferred to an alien in whole or in part or has been placed under foreign registry after having been built in the United States or after having been documented as a vessel of the United States;

(4) Title has passed by operation of law before the first documentation as a vessel of the United States or since the date of acquisition of title by the last owner of record, whether by court order, by appointment of a trustee in bankruptcy, or otherwise.

(5) The vessel is owned by a corporation which is qualified as a citizen of the United States only under the definition contained in § 3.19(a)(4).

(f) After favorable recommendation by the Bureau if required, the collector, assistant collector, or deputy collector in charge of marine work for the port at which a designation is filed in accordance with paragraph (a) of this section

[3] "For the purposes of the navigation laws of the United States * * *, every vessel of the United States shall have a 'home port' in the United States, including Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico, which port the owner of such vessel, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall specifically fix and determine, and subject to such approval may from time to time change. Such home port shall be shown in the register, enrollment, and license, or license of such vessel, which documents, respectively, are referred to as the vessel's document. The home port shown in the document of any vessel of the United States in force on February 16, 1925, shall be deemed to have been fixed and determined in accordance with the provisions hereof. * * *" (46 U. S. C. 18) may approve that designation provided recordable instruments covering each sale, gift, or conveyance (including a conveyance in trust), if any, since the date of acquisition of title by the last owner of record are presented with the designation. After favorable recommendation by the Bureau if required, the collector or assistant collector for the district in which any such designation is filed may waive the requirements for production of recordable instruments of conveyances and may approve that designation if he is satisfied that it is impracticable to furnish any such instrument and that the owner has legal title to the vessel.

(g) If the designation of home port is approved as provided for in paragraph (f) of this section, the collector shall forward a duplicate copy of the designation to the Bureau. If the designation is so approved at a port other than the home port, the collector shall also forward the triplicate copy of the designation to the collector at the home port.

(h) In every case in which a favorable recommendation by the Bureau is required before an approval may be granted under paragraph (f) of this section, the collector shall forward a copy of the designation to the Bureau, together with any evidence of title submitted, any necessary statement of the facts and circumstances, and a statement as to whether or not the collector is of the opinion that the applicant has legal title to the vessel. In addition, any statement required by paragraph (c) of this section shall be forwarded. The papers so forwarded will be returned by the Bureau, with its recommendation, for processing by the field officer concerned.

(i) No officer or employee designated to grant approvals of designations of home ports shall approve, nor shall any collector forward to the Bureau for review, any such designation unless it appears that the vessel will be documented as a vessel of the United States substantially simultaneously with the approval of the designation by any such officer or employee after any necessary review. When a designation has been approved and the vessel is not so documented, the approval granted shall be cancelled. The collector, in subsequently transmitting a copy of a new designation by the same owner for review or in forwarding a copy of a designation approved by him, shall indicate in his remarks the date of the previous approval and that it was cancelled because of failure to document the vessel.

(a) Prior to the documentation or redocumentation of any vessel, except in case of redocumentation of a vessel at a port other than the home port upon change in trade or loss of marine document or when the renewal spaces are filled, there shall be filed an oath of ownership on customs Form 1258 if the vessel is owned by an individual, partnership, unincorporated company, association, or the United States; or on customs Form 1259 or 1260, whichever is applicable, if the vessel is owned by a corporation.

(b) If any such vessel falls within class 4, 5, 6, or 7 of § 3.2, there shall be inserted immediately after footnote 1 of customs Form 1258 or immediately after footnote 4 of customs Form 1259 the appropriate one of the following clauses:

(c) The master's oath required for the license or enrollment and license of a vessel shall be executed in the space provided therefor on customs Form 1258, 1259, or 1260. If the vessel is to be registered and the master is within the district where the registry is to be made, the master's oath shall be on Form 1258 or 1259. Such form of oath shall not be used for a renewal of license under paragraph (d) of this section.

(d) The master's oath for the renewal of a license shall be executed on customs Form 1260. Except when the vessel is at its home port, such an oath shall be taken for the renewal of the license even though it may be necessary to issue a new document because all renewal spaces are filled on the former document.

(b) A vessel, although owned and documented by a corporation which is a citizen as defined in paragraph (a) (3) of this section, shall not engage in the coastwise trade unless 75 percent of the interest in the corporation is owned by citizens as specified in section 2 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended.[10] any such corporation to a common or contract carrier subject to part 3 of the Interstate Commerce Act, as amended, which otherwise qualifies as a citizen under section 2 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended (46 U.S.C. 802), and which is not connected, directly or indirectly, by way of ownership or control with such corporation.

As used herein (1), the term "parent" means a corporation which controls, directly or indirectly, at least 50 per centum of the voting stock of such corporation, and (2), the term "subsidiary" means a corporation not less than 50 per centum of the voting stock of which is controlled, directly or indirectly, by such corporation or its parent, but no corporation shall be deemed to be a "parent" or "subsidiary" hereunder unless it is incorporated under the laws of the United States, or any State, Territory, District, or possession thereof, and there has been filed with the Secretary of the Treasury a certificate as hereinafter provided.

Vessels built in the United States and owned by a corporation meeting the conditions hereof which are non-self-propelled or which, if self-propelled, are of less than five hundred gross tons shall be entitled to documentation under the laws of the United States, and except as restricted by this section, shall be entitled to engage in the coastwise trade and, together with their owners or masters, shall be entitled to all the other benefits and privileges and shall be subject to the same requirements, penalties, and forfeitures as may be applicable in the case of vessels built in the United States and otherwise documented or exempt from documentation under the laws of the United States.

A corporation seeking hereunder to document a vessel under the laws of the United States or to operate a vessel exempt from documentation under the laws of the United States shall file with the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States a certificate under oath, in such form and at such times as may be prescribed by him, executed by its duly authorized officer or agent, establishing that such corporation complies with the conditions of this section above set forth. A "parent" or "subsidiary" of such corporation shall likewise file with the Secretary of the Treasury a certificate under oath, in such form and at such time as may be prescribed by him, executed by its duly authorised officer or agent, establishing that such "parent" or "subsidiary" complies with the conditions of this section above set forth, before such corporation may transport any merchandise or passengers for such parent or subsidiary. If any vessel shall transport merchandise for hire in violation of this section, such merchandise shall be forfeited to the United States. If any vessel shall transport passengers for hire in violation of this section, such vessel shall be subject to a penalty of $200 for each passenger so transported. Any penalty or forfeiture incurred under this section may be remitted or mitigated by the Secretary of the Treasury under the provisions of section 7 of Title 46, United States Code.

Any corporation which has filed a certificate with the Secretary of the Treasury as provided for herein shall cease to be qualified under this section if there is any change in its status whereby it no longer meets the conditions above set forth, and any documents theretofore issued to it, pursuant to the provisions of this section, shall be forthwith surrendered by it to the Secretary of the Treasury. (46 U.S.C. 883–1)

[10] "(a) Within the meaning of this chapter no corporation, partnership, or association shall be deemed a citizen of the United States unless the controlling interest therein is owned by citizens of the United States, and, in the case of a corporation, unless its president or other chief executive officer and the chairman of its board of directors are citizens of the United States and unless no more of its directors than a minority of the number necessary to constitute a quorum are noncitizens and the corporation itself is organized under the laws of the United States or of a State, Territory, District, or possession thereof, but in the case of a corporation, association, or partnership operating any vessel in the coastwise trade the amount of interest required to be owned by citizens of the United States shall be 75 per centum.

"(b) The controlling interest in a corporation shall not be deemed to be owned by citizens of the United States (a) if the title to a majority of the stock thereof is not vested in such citizens free from any trust or fiduciary obligation in favor of any person not a citizen of the United States; or (b) if the majority of the voting power in such corporation is not vested in citizens of the United States; or (c) if through any contract or understanding it is so arranged that the majority of the voting power may be exercised, directly or indirectly, in behalf of any person who is not a citizen of the United States or (d) if by any other means whatsoever control of the corporation is conferred upon or permitted to be exercised by any person who is not a citizen of the United States.

(c) A vessel, although owned by a corporation which is not a citizen as defined in section 2 of Shipping Act, 1916, as amended, may be documented as a vessel of the United States if the sale or transfer to the corporation was not in violation of section 9 or 37 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended (46 U. S. C. 808, 835), and if the corporation is a citizen as defined in paragraph (a) (3) of this section.

(d) A vessel, although owned by a partnership or association which is a citizen as defined in section 2 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended, shall not be documented as a vessel of the United States unless the owner is also a citizen as defined in paragraph (a) (2) of this section.

(e) A corporation which qualifies as a citizen as defined in paragraph (a) (4) of this section is not thereby precluded from qualifying as a citizen under any other applicable definition and vessels which it owns or operates shall be entitled to be documented as vessels of the United States under any other provision of this part upon compliance with all applicable requirements.

(R.S. 4132, as amended, 4131, as amended, secs. 2, 9, 39 Stat. 729, as amended, 730, as amended, sec. 4, 40 Stat. 901, as amended, 72 Stat. 1736; 46 U.S.C. 11, 221, 802, 808, 835, 883–1)

§ 3.20 Evidence of citizenship of owners and officers.

(a) In addition to any oath, certificate, or declaration of citizenship specified, the collector of customs may require the production of such further evidence as may be necessary to satisfy him that the person is a citizen of the United States. The proper notation of the evidence produced shall be made on the papers retained in the collector's office, such as the number, date, and office of issue of an officer's license, seaman's passport, or citizen's passport, or the same data as to a birth or naturalization certificate, a continuous discharge book, or a certificate of identification, etc. The collector shall reject any evidence believed by him to be unauthentic.

(b) As evidence of his citizenship, a naturalized citizen shall be required in every case to present a certificate of his naturalization. A derivative citizen shall be required to present either a certificate of naturalization of either parent through whom he derived his own citizenship, together with a birth certificate or other evidence satisfactorily establishing that he was under 21 years of age at the time of his parent's naturalization, or a certificate of derivative citizenship. The usually acceptable evidence of citizenship for other persons is described below in the order of desirability.

(1) A birth certificate or certified copy.

(2) A baptismal certificate or parish record made within 1 year after birth.

(3) A certificate of a practicing physician that he attended the birth and that he has a record in his possession showing the date on which it occurred.

(4) A State Department passport.

(5) An active commission in the United States Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, or reserve component thereof.

(6) An active commission in the United States Army or a reserve component thereof issued prior to May 26, 1942.

(7) A license as master, mate, engineer, or pilot issued by the Coast Guard, or a license as master, mate, engineer, or pilot issued by the former Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation when such license shows on the back thereof that satisfactory evidence of citizenship of the holder was produced at the time of the issuance of such license.

(8) A certificate of registry as staff officer.

(9) A continuous discharge book or certificate of identification issued by the upon or permitted to be exercised by any person who is not a citizen of the United States.

"(c) Seventy-five per centum of the interest in a corporation shall not be deemed to be owned by citizens of the United States (a) if the title to 75 per centum of its stock is not vested in such citizens free from any trust or fiduciary obligation in favor of any person not a citizen of the United States; or (b) if 75 per centum of the voting power in such corporation is not vested in citizens of the United States; or (c) if, through any contract or understanding, it is so arranged that more than 25 per centum of the voting power in such corporation may be exercised, directly or indirectly, in behalf of any person who is not a citizen of the United States; or (d) if by any other means whatsoever control of any interest in the corporation in excess of 25 per centum is conferred upon or permitted to be exercised by any person who is not a citizen of the United States." (46 U. S. C. 802)

Coast Guard which shows that the holder is an American citizen, or a continuous discharge book or certificate of identification issued by the former Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation which shows the holder is an American citizen, provided the records of that Bureau (now maintained by the Coast Guard) indicate that the holder of such continuous discharge book or certificate of identification has produced satisfactory evidence of his citizenship.

(10) A delayed certificate of birth. If an applicant claiming to be a citizen of the United States submits a delayed certificate of birth which has been issued in accordance with the procedure outlined in the Manual of Uniform Procedure for the Delayed Registration of Births [12] and recites on its face the evidence upon which it has been granted, it may be accepted as prima facie evidence of citizenship in the absence of any collateral facts indicating fraud in its procurement. In order to receive consideration as a delayed certificate of birth, the certificate shall have been issued strictly in accordance with the provisions of the manual above referred to. Any delayed birth certificate not so issued shall be given consideration but shall not necessarily be considered prima facie evidence of citizenship.

(11) If none of the foregoing requirements can be met by the applicant, he shall make a statement to that effect, and, in an attempt to establish citizenship, he may submit for consideration data of the following character:

(i) Report of the Census Bureau showing the earliest record of age or birth available.[13] Request for such information shall be addressed to the Director of the Census, Washington 25, D. C. In making such request, definite information must be furnished the Census Bureau as to the place of residence when the first census was taken after birth of the applicant, giving the name of the street and number of the house, or the names of the cross streets between which the house was located if residing in a city; or the name of the town, township, precinct, magisterial district, militia district, beat or election district, if residing in the country; also the names of parents, or the names of other persons with whom residing on the date specified.

(ii) Declarations of fact by parents or relatives; declarations by two or more responsible citizens of the United States stating facts of which they have knowledge tending to establish the applicant's citizenship; school records; immigration records; or insurance policies.

(a) If the vessel be owned by one individual, the oath shall be taken by him or by his duly authorized agent.

(b) If the vessel be owned by several individuals or a firm or unincorporated company, the oath shall be taken by the managing owner or a member of the firm who shall specify the names and places of abode of, and except in the case of a partnership the proportions of the vessel owned by, each of the others, and shall certify to their citizenship.

(c) If the vessel be owned by a corporation, the oath shall be taken by its president, its secretary, or by any other officer or agent thereof duly authorized by a writing under the corporate seal to act in its behalf. Such officer or agent shall also furnish a certificate as to the organization of the corporation and the names of its president or other chief executive officer, chairman of its board of directors, and directors, showing the home address and citizenship of each and the number of directors necessary to constitute a quorum, including a quotation of the pertinent portion of the articles of incorporation, bylaws, or other corporate papers relating to the matter of a quorum. If the corporate owner is qualified as a citizen of the United States under the definition contained in § 3.19 (a)(4), the oath shall be on customs Form 1260 and the accompanying certificate shall include information as to the names, home address, and citizenship of all officers and directors.

(d) In all cases where there is more than one owner, the proportions owned by each shall be stated in the oath.

(e) The oath of the owner or of the master required for documentation may be taken before a collector of customs or before any officer authorized by the laws of a state to administer oaths generally. If the oath is not taken before the collector, it may be mailed to him.

(f) A corporation which meets the qualification requirements of § 3.19(a)(4) as a citizen of the United States and which seeks to operate in trade a vessel owned by such corporation and exempt from documentation under § 3.5 shall file in duplicate with the collector of customs for the district in which the vessel business of the owner is conducted a certificate under oath on customs Form 1260 by its president, its secretary, or by any officer or agent thereof duly authorized by a writing under the corporate seal to act in its behalf. Such officer or agent shall also furnish in duplicate a certificate as to the organization of the corporation and the names of all officers and directors of the corporation, showing the home address and citizenship of each.

(g) A corporation which meets the qualification requirements of § 3.19(a)(4) as a citizen of the United States and which seeks to qualify under the Act of September 2, 1958 (46 U.S.C. 883–1), for any purpose other than as outlined in paragraph (f) hereof shall file in duplicate with the Commissioner of Customs a certificate under oath on customs Form 1260, appropriately modified to omit reference to any vessel, by the corporation's president, its secretary, or by any other officer or agent thereof duly authorized in writing under the corporate seal to act in its behalf. Such officer or agent shall also furnish in duplicate a certificate as to the organization of the corporation and the names of all officers and directors of the corporation, showing the home address and citizenship of each, and shall state in duplicate in writing the reasons for desiring to qualify under the Act and the reasons why qualification is not sought under paragraph (c) or (f) of this section.

(h) If any change occurs in any corporation after the filing of a certificate under oath and the other papers required under paragraph (f) or (g) of this section whereby the corporation is no longer entitled to be deemed a citizen of the United States as defined in § 3.19(a)(4), the corporation shall cause a report of such change to be made in writing in duplicate to the office where the previous certificate under oath was filed.

(i) Upon the filing of a certificate under oath and the other papers required under paragraph (f) or (g) of this section, the collector of customs or the Commissioner of Customs shall furnish the corporation, through its officer or agent, a certificate of filing of such oath on customs Form 1262 which shall be valid for a period of 3 years from the date of its issuance unless there first occurs a change in corporate status requiring a report under paragraph (h) of this section. On or before the date of expiration of the validity of such certificate, a new oath on customs Form 1260 and the other papers required by paragraph (f) or (g) of this section shall be filed with the appropriate officer.

(j) The duplicate copy of the oath and other papers required by paragraphs (f) and (h) of this section and a copy of any certificate issued by the collector under paragraph (i) of this section shall be forwarded promptly to the Commissioner of Customs, who will cause notice of the contents thereof to be given to all collectors of customs concerned. The Commissioner will also give similar notice of the contents of any oath filed with him under paragraph (g) of this section.

§ 3.22 Issue and record of marine documents.

(a) An exact copy of each marine document issued by a collector of customs shall be placed in a permanent record kept for that purpose and a proper index made thereof on customs Form 1241 (on customs Form 2112 at the port of New York).

(b) At the time application is made for a new document, any former document of the vessel shall be surrendered to the collector to whom the application is made, unless the former document has been lost, mutilated, destroyed, or unintentionally mislaid. (See § 3.31.)

(c) On proof that any vessel has been sold or transferred by process of law and that her former owner has retained the marine document, the collector at the vessel's home port may grant a new document and shall not refuse to issue such a document merely because the last document is retained by the former owner. In any such case, the new owner shall not be required to produce and surrender the former document, but the issuance of the new document does not remove the liability of the holder of the former document for failure to surrender it.

(d) Upon any change in the address of an owner as shown upon a marine document, a prompt report, giving both the old and the new addresses, shall be made to the collector of customs at the vessel's home port and the marine document shall be presented for amendment of the address to any collector of customs at the first opportunity.

(e) No document shall be issued to any vessel prior to the receipt by the collector of the approval of the designation of the home port by or on behalf of the owner in whose name the document is to be issued.

(f) When a document is issued to a vessel on the Great Lakes, it shall be delivered by the collector in a special envelope, customs Form 1503. When a document is issued to a vessel elsewhere than on the Great Lakes, it shall be delivered in a special envelope, customs Form 1502. In the case of the issuance of any document other than a register or an enrollment and license on customs Form 1276, the date upon which the license for the vessel will expire shall be noted plainly on the face of the envelope.

(R.S. 4141, sec. 1, 43 Stat. 947, R.S. 4155, as amended, 4164, as amended, 4176, 4314, as amended, 4319, as amended, 4329, as amended; 46 U.S.C. 17, 18, 25, 34, 44, 254, 259, 271)

§ 3.23 Permanent documentation of vessel absent from home port.

(a) A permanent document may be issued to any vessel absent from her home port upon application to the collector for the home port through the office of the collector at the port where the vessel shall be. In such case, all requirements which would be applicable if the vessel were at her home port shall be met at the port where she is before the application is forwarded, except that the owner's and master's oaths may be executed at the home port.

(b) The collector through whom application was made shall forward a certificate on customs Form 1301 to the collector at the vessel's home port, who shall issue a permanent document and deliver the document either directly or through the collector through whom the application was received.

(Sec. 486, 46 Stat. 725, as amended, R. S. 4328, as amended; 19 U. S. C. 1486, 46 U. S. C. 270)

§ 3.24 Change of master.[14]

(a) When the master of any documented vessel, except a licensed ferryboat or yacht, is changed, the owner or the new master shall report the change to the collector at the port where the change takes place, or where the vessel first arrives thereafter, and produce to him the documents and file with him a declaration properly executed on customs Form 1311. The collector shall then endorse upon the document the name of the new master.

(b) If the declaration on Form 1311 is mailed to the collector, it shall be accompanied by the vessel's outstanding marine document.

(c) Every application for the endorsement of the names of one or two alternate masters on the license of a vessel in addition to the name of the master already endorsed on the license shall be filed with the collector of customs at the home port of the vessel and shall contain a statement of the condition of employment of the vessel. The endorsement of the names of one or two alternate masters upon the license shall be authorized by the collector or an employee in his office properly designated to grant such authorization whenever that officer or employee, after examining the application, deems the condition of employment of the vessel warrants such action. Under no circumstances shall the endorsement of the names of more than two alternate masters upon the license be authorized. The same declarations shall be required of such alternate masters as are required in the case of other masters.

(d) In the case of a vessel on whose license there are endorsed the names of more than one master, the master actually in charge of the vessel shall assume all the duties and responsibilities imposed by any statute upon masters of vessels and is subject to the liabilities provided by any law against masters of vessels during any period in which he is in charge of the vessel.

(e) If two or more vessels are owned by or under the complete control and management of the same person, association, corporation, etc., and are navigated within the limits of the harbor of any town or city, the name of the owner, if an individual, or of some responsible person acting for the owner, may be endorsed as master on the licenses of all such vessels although the person whose name is so endorsed may not be actually employed on any of the vessels. The same declaration shall be required of such persons as is required in the case of other masters. Any person whose name is so endorsed is subject to the liabilities provided by any law against masters of vessels.

(f) The name of the owner, if an individual, or of some responsible person acting for the owner, may be endorsed as master on the license of any unrigged vessel, except one which is required by law to have on board a certificate of inspection and which is required by that certificate to be manned, although the person whose name is so endorsed may not be actually employed on that vessel. The same declaration shall be required of such persons as is required in the case of other masters. Any person whose name is so endorsed is subject to the liabilities provided by any law against the masters of vessels.

(g) The name of the owner, if an individual, or of some responsible person acting for the owner, may be endorsed as master on the license of any vessel engaged in towing from any port or place embraced within the coastwise laws of the United States to any other such port or place plying in whole or in part on inland rivers, canals, waterways, sounds, gulfs, lakes, and harbors, not carrying passengers nor proceeding directly or indirectly to any foreign port or place or to any port or place in noncontiguous territory of the United States, although the person whose name is so endorsed may not be actually employed on that vessel. The same declaration shall be required of such persons as is required in the case of other masters. Any person whose name is so endorsed is subject to the liabilities provided by any law against the masters of vessels.

[14] "Any person or body corporate having more than one-half ownership of any vessel shall have the same power to remove a master, who is also part owner of such vessel, as such majority owners have to remove a master not an owner. This section shall not apply where there is a valid written agreement subsisting, by virtue of which such master would be entitled to possession." (46 U. S. C. 227)

§ 3.25 Renewal of license.

(a) A permanent or temporary license shall be presented within 3 days (exclusive of any day on which the customhouse is not open for marine business) after its expiration, to the collector of the district where the vessel may then be, or if the vessel is then at sea, within 3 days after her first arrival within any district. A temporary license shall be surrendered within 10 days after the arrival of a vessel at her home port and shall not be renewed at that port.

(b) If a license is presented for renewal at any time within 30 calendar days prior to the date of expiration shown thereon, it may be renewed for a period of 1 year from that date of expiration.

(c) A license may be renewed at any port, whether a port of documentation or not.

(d) When a license is presented for renewal, the master shall make oath in the form prescribed by § 3.18 (d).

(e) When a license for a vessel on the Great Lakes is renewed, it shall be redelivered by the collector in a special envelope, customs Form 1503. When a license is renewed for a vessel elsewhere than on the Great Lakes, it shall be redelivered in a special envelope, customs Form 1502. In either case, the date upon which the license for the vessel will expire shall be noted plainly on the face of the envelope and any previous notation of a date of expiration shall be deleted.

(f) The collector at the home port of a licensed or enrolled and licensed vessel shall transmit a notice of the date upon which the license will expire and the form of oath to be executed by the master on customs Form 1280 to the last-known address of the owner of the vessel not more than 40 days prior to its expiration nor less than 21 days prior thereto. Neither the failure of a collector to transmit such notice and form of oath nor the fact that the master did not receive it shall be deemed to excuse the master from the penalty or penalties provided by law.

§ 3.26 Surrender of permanent documents.

(a) The marine document shall be surrendered when a vessel is sold or transferred in whole or in part; when the owner of the whole or any part of a vessel dies; when a vessel has been lost, abandoned, dismantled, or taken by an enemy, or otherwise prevented from returning to the United States; when a vessel is burned or broken up; when a vessel is altered in form by being lengthened, shortened, or built upon, or is changed from one denomination to another by a change in the method of rigging or fitting; when the tonnage of a vessel is changed for any reason; when a vessel is altered so that it is no longer of the description set forth in its document; when a vessel changes from one employment to another; when a vessel is placed under foreign registry or flag; when a vessel changes her name; when the home port of a vessel is changed; when a president or secretary whose name appears on the document of a vessel owned by a corporation dies, is removed, or resigns; when a trustee is appointed upon bankruptcy of the owner of the whole or any part of a vessel; when a partnership owning an interest in a vessel is terminated or when there is any change in the membership of such partnership without dissolution of the firm; and when there is any change in the status of a corporation which is a citizen of the United States as defined in § 3.19(a) (4) whereby such corporation shall cease to be qualified as a citizen thereunder.

The approval of the Maritime Administration of the surrender of the document of a vessel covered by a preferred mortgage shall be obtained, except as specified in note 19, § 3.30 (a) or in the case of the forfeiture of the vessel or its sale by the order of any court of the United States or any foreign country.

(b) If any documented vessel is lost, destroyed, or abandoned, the owner shall immediately report the fact to the collector of customs at the home port of the vessel.

(c) A document need not be surrendered because the engine of the vessel is changed, if there is no change in the rig, dimensions, or tonnage of the vessel, nor because of a change in the service of the vessel, when there is no change in trade, nor in the number of persons in its crew. In such a case, a notation of the change shall be made on the document by a collector of customs and initialed by him.

(d) A document need not be surrendered because of the appointment of a guardian or committee for the owner of the whole or any part of the vessel, nor because of the appointment of a receiver, either in bankruptcy or in equity, of the assets of the owner of the whole or any part of the vessel.

(e) When a document is surrendered incident to the sale or other transfer of a vessel to an alien, if such transfer has been approved by the Maritime Administration in accordance with the requirements of law, the following certificate shall be issued by the collector of customs concerned upon the presentation of the bill of sale or other evidence covering the transfer:

I, ----------, collector of customs for the port of ----------, State of ----------, United States of America, do hereby certify that ---------- No. ------, issued at ---------- on ---------- to the ----------, official number ------, was this day surrendered at this port upon the transfer of the vessel to a subject of ----------, which transfer was authorized by the Maritime Administration under its Transfer Order No. MA ------, dated -------.

As witness my hand this ------ day of ----------, 19----.

Collector of Customs

§ 3.27 Surrender of temporary documents.

(a) Every document granted by the collector at a port other than the home port shall be temporary.[18]

(b) Every temporary document shall be surrendered to the collector within 10 days after the arrival of the vessel at her home port and whenever the surrender of a permanent document is required.

(c) The term "arrival" in the preceding paragraph means the voluntary arrival of the vessel in the regular course of her employment.

(d) The approval of the Maritime Administration of the surrender of the document of a vessel covered by a preferred mortgage shall be obtained, except as specified in note 19, § 3.30 (a).

(R. S. 4146, as amended, 4160, 4162, 4168, 4170, as amended, 4325, sec. 30, subsec. O, 41 Stat. 1004, sec. 204, 49 Stat. 1987, as amended; 46 U. S. C. 23, 30, 33, 37, 39, 267, 961, 1114)

§ 3.28 Rebuilt and new vessels.

(a) A vessel may be deemed to be a new vessel in a case in which it has been built entirely of new materials or in a case in which it has been built in whole or in part of old materials taken from another vessel provided no considerable part of the old material used has been left undisturbed or intact without being taken up, refitted, and reset. A vessel may be deemed to have been rebuilt if any considerable part of the hull in its intact condition without having been broken up is built upon or substantially altered.

(b) When a new vessel is constructed in whole or in part of material taken from an old vessel; when an existing vessel is rebuilt; when, in the case of a vessel of more than 500 gross tons, the vessel has been so altered in a foreign shipyard as to lose its privileges as a vessel of the United States (§ 3.29 (a)) or has otherwise been so altered in such a yard as to give rise to a reasonable belief that the vessel may have been rebuilt; or when it is desired, in the case of an unrigged wooden vessel, other than a foreign-built vessel (class 9), that a notation be made in the publication, Merchant Vessels of the United States, as to rebuilding, the owner of the vessel shall submit through the collector at the port where the vessel then is or next arrives thereafter to the Commissioner of Customs a certificate of specifications outlining the work performed on the vessel and describing the extent to which old materials used were taken up, refitted, and reset, or, the extent to which parts of the old hull in its intact condition were used or built upon. The certificate shall be accompanied by accurate sketches or blueprints illustrating the extent of the work performed when such sketches or blueprints are available. Such certificates shall also be accompanied by a certificate of the builder, which shall be on customs Form 1261 if the vessel is claimed to be new. In the case of an unrigged wooden vessel, the shipbuilder, in addition to certifying that the vessel is rebuilt and the date of completion and place of such rebuilding, shall certify that the vessel is sound and free from rotten or doted wood in its structural parts; that it is properly fastened and calked; and that it is as good as new in strength and seaworthiness. The Commissioner of Customs shall decide whether or not the vessel is to be considered to be new or rebuilt and, if either, that decision shall be reflected on the vessel's marine document.

(c) A rebuilt vessel shall retain its name and official number and the date and place of rebuild shall be noted on its marine document. Upon a finding under this section that a vessel is new, an application shall be submitted for the award of an official number and all other requirements applicable in the case of any new vessel shall be met before a marine document is issued.

(d) No vessel of more than 500 gross tons which has been rebuilt within the meaning of this section outside the United States, its territories (not including trust territories), or its possessions, after July 13, 1956, or which has been so rebuilt under a contract entered into on or before that date if the work of rebuilding was commenced later than 6 months after July 14, 1956, shall be documented for nor engage in the coastwise trade.

(R.S. 4155, as amended, 4179, 37 Stat. 189; R.S. 4319, as amended, sec. 27, 41 Stat. 999, as amended, secs. 2, 3, 70 Stat. 544; 46 U.S.C. 25, 50, 63, 259, 883, 883a, 883b)

§ 3.29 Change of build or rig.

(a) When a documented vessel is altered in form or tonnage by being lengthened, shortened, or built upon, or changed from one denomination to another by a change in rig or fitting, the vessel shall cease to be deemed a vessel of the United States unless she is documented anew. Every such alteration of a vessel of more than 500 gross tons which is effected in a foreign shipyard shall be reported to the collector of customs at the port where the vessel first arrives in the United States in accordance with the provisions of § 3.28(b) and the master shall submit the statement required by § 4.7 of this chapter.

(b) When there is a change in the means of propulsion of a vessel [18] as from steam engine to gas engine or any other alteration which may change the description, the marine document of the vessel shall be surrendered.

§ 3.30 Exchange of documents.

(a) Any enrolled and licensed or licensed vessel, other than a vessel documented under the Act of September 2, 1958 (46 U.S.C. 883–1), may be registered upon the surrender [19] of her document to a collector of customs. Except as specified in paragraph (b) of this section, any registered vessel may likewise be enrolled and licensed or licensed.

(b) Neither enrollment nor license for the coasting trade or for the coasting trade and mackerel fishery shall be granted to a vessel prohibited by law from engaging in the coastwise trade. (See §§ 3.2, 3.28, 3.42, and 3.43. Neither enrollment nor license for the fisheries or for the coasting trade and mackerel fishery shall be granted to a vessel prohibited by law from engaging in the American fisheries. (See §§ 3.2 and 3.42.) Neither enrollment and license nor license shall be granted to any vessel having on board merchandise brought from a foreign port until such merchandise shall have been wholly unladen and the duties paid or secured.

(c) No registered vessel shall be permitted to exchange her document unless the collector to whom application is made is satisfied by an affidavit of the owner or master that all equipments purchased and repairs made abroad within the year immediately preceding such application have been duly accounted for and the duties accruing thereon have been paid. If the master gives this affidavit, it shall be executed on customs Form 1304.

(d) No vessel shall be permitted to exchange her marine document at a port other than the home port until the master has applied for the new marine document and has filed his affidavit that the ownership remains as stated in the document to be surrendered. Such affidavit shall be executed on customs Form 1304, which may be modified in appropriate cases by deletion of the matter pertaining to foreign equipment or repairs. If the exchange of documents is made at the home port, the oaths required by § 3.18 shall be filed.

§ 3.31 Loss of marine document.

When the marine document of any vessel is lost, mutilated, destroyed, or mislaid, the master certifies such fact on customs Form 1305, and the oaths required by § 3.18 are filed at the port of first arrival if that port is the vessel's home port, or the affidavit required by § 3.30 (d) is filed at any other port of first arrival, the collector shall issue a new document, which shall recite the fact that it replaces the one lost, mutilated, destroyed, or mislaid. A document is held to be lost when it is wrongfully withheld from the possession of the owner.[20]

(Sec. 486, 46 Stat. 725, as amended, R. S. 4160, 4326; 19 U. S. C. 1486, 46 U. S. C. 36, 268)

§ 3.32 Sale or transfer of vessel; change in membership of owning partnership.

(a) Except as stated in § 3.35, when a documented vessel is sold or transferred in whole or in part to a citizen,[21] such vessel shall not be deemed a vessel of the United States until documented anew.

(b) In the case of the sale, gift, or conveyance (including conveyance in trust) of the whole or any part of such vessel, a written instrument in the nature of a bill of sale, which may be on customs Form 1340, 1342, 1344, 1346, or 1356, and which shall recite in full the marine document last granted to the vessel before the execution of the instrument, shall be filed with the collector of customs before a new document is granted.

(c) When the owner of the whole or any part of such a vessel dies and there is an administration of his estate, an authenticated copy of the letters of appointment of the personal representative of the deceased owner shall be filed with the collector of customs before a new document is granted to that personal representative or to any of his successors in interest. In such a case, before a new document for a vessel is granted to one who acquires an interest therein as the beneficiary under a will, to the person succeeding to the interest of the deceased owner in case of intestacy, or to any successor in interest of either of them, an authenticated copy of the decree of distribution shall be filed with the collector of customs. The filing of an authenticated copy of the certificate of death or of the will of the deceased owner shall not be required.

(d) In case of the death intestate of the owner of the whole or any part of such a vessel, if there is no administration of his estate the collector shall forward to the Bureau a statement of all the facts and circumstances and, except as provided for in paragraph (e) of this section, an authenticated copy of the certificate of death of the owner, together with any documentary evidence in support of the claim of title presented to him, before a new document is granted to the next of kin of the deceased owner or to his successors in interest.

(e) If it is impossible to obtain an authenticated copy of the certificate of [18] When a vessel's engine is changed but there is no change in the type of motive power, no redocumentation is required unless the installation of the new engine changes the admeasured tonnage of the vessel.

[19] The requirement of subsection O(a) of the Ship Mortgage Act, 1920 (46 U.S.C. 961 (a)), that the document of a vessel covered by a preferred mortgage may not be surrendered without the approval of the Maritime Administration and the mortgagee, does not apply to (1) a renewal of license, including a case in which the former document is replaced by reason of the fact that all renewal spaces are filled; (2) a change of document incident to a change of trade where the ownership and home port remain the same; (3) a change to a permanent document on arrival of a vessel at its home port under a temporary document; or (4) the replacement or renewal of a lost, mislaid, or mutilated document where the ownership and home port remain the same. A document may be deemed to be mutilated when it has been partially burned, torn, soiled, or otherwise defaced so as to be unsuitable for the purpose for which it was issued.

[20] All questions of what constitutes a wrongful withholding shall be referred to the Commissioner of Customs for determination.

[21] Unless the consent of the Maritime Administration is first obtained, no vessel of the United States may be sold or chartered in whole or in part to any person who is not a citizen or to any corporation, partnership, or association which is not a citizen as defined in section 2 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended. (46 U. S. C. 802) death of the deceased owner of the whole or any part of such a vessel for filing with the collector as required by paragraph (d) of this section, other evidence of death of such deceased owner shall be filed with the collector in lieu thereof.

§ 3.33 Recording of bills of sale and mortgages.

(a) When any bill of sale, mortgage, hypothecation, or conveyance of any interest in any vessel is presented to a collector of customs to be recorded,[23] the vendee, mortgagee, pledgee, or transferee shall file with the collector the oath required by section 40, Shipping Act, 1916 (46 U. S. C. 838). The oath of a corporation shall be signed by its president, secretary, or treasurer, or any other official thereof duly authorized by such corporation to execute any such declaration.

[23] "(a) No sale, conveyance, or mortgage which, at the time such sale, conveyance, or mortgage is made, includes a vessel of the United States, or any portion thereof, as the whole or any part of the property sold, conveyed, or mortgaged shall be valid, in respect to such vessel, against any person other than the grantor or mortgagor, his heir or devisee, and a person having actual notice thereof, until such bill of sale, conveyance, or mortgage is recorded in the office of the collector of customs of the port of documentation of such vessel, as provided in subdivision (b) of this section.

"(b) Such collector of customs shall record bills of sale, conveyances, and mortgages delivered to him, in the order of their reception, in books to be kept for that purpose and indexed to show—

"(1) The name of the vessel;

"(2) The names of the parties to the sale, conveyance, or mortgage;

"(3) The time and date of reception of the instrument;

"(4) The interest in the vessel so sold conveyed, or mortgaged; and

"(5) The amount and date of maturity of the mortgage." (46 U. S. C. 921)

"(a) No bill of sale, conveyance, or mortgage shall be recorded unless it states the interest of the grantor or mortgagor in the vessel, and the interest so sold, conveyed, or mortgaged.

"(b) No bill of sale, conveyance, mortgage, notice of claim of lien, or certificate of discharge thereof, shall be recorded unless previously acknowledged before a notary public or other officer authorized by a law of the United States, or of a State, Territory, District, or possession thereof, to take acknowledgment of deeds.

"(c) In case of a change in the port of documentation of a vessel of the United States, no bill of sale, conveyance, or mortgage shall be recorded at the new port of documentation unless there is furnished to the collector of customs of such port, together with the copy of the bill of sale, conveyance, or mortgage to be recorded, a certified copy of the record of the vessel at the former port of documentation furnished by the collector of such port. The collector of customs at the new port of documentation is authorized and directed to record such certified copy. • • •" (46 U. S. C. 926)

(b) No such instrument shall be accepted for recording prior to the receipt by the collector of the approval of the designation of the home port; nor unless the vessel affected is documented as a vessel of the United States or will be so documented substantially simultaneously with the recording of the instrument. If there has been more than one change in ownership of any interest in a vessel and the vessel has not been documented by the intermediate owners, all unrecorded bills of sale which are executed in the form and manner prescribed by this section may be recorded upon documentation of the vessel. No mortgage shall be accepted for recording unless the vessel which it covers was documented as a vessel of the United States at the time the mortgage was made. Any mortgage presented for recording may be on customs Form 1348.

(c) No such instrument shall be valid against any person other than the vendor, mortgagor, pledgor, grantor, the heirs or devisees of any of the foregoing, or a person having actual notice thereof, unless the instrument has been recorded in the office of the collector of customs at the home port of the vessel. If the instrument covers more than one vessel, it shall be recorded at the home port of each vessel and indexed under the name of each vessel whose home port is the port of recordation. The collector shall record all such instruments and certificates of discharge of mortgages in the order of their receipt in books to be kept for that purpose and hereafter indexed on customs Form 1332, continued if necessary on customs Form 1332–A, to show (1) the name of the vessel, (2) the names of the parties to the instrument, (3) the kind and date of the instrument, (4) the interest transferred, mortgaged or discharged, (5) the date, hour, and minute the instrument was received, (6) the book in which the instrument is recorded, (7) the number assigned to the instrument, (8) in the case of a bill of sale or conveyance, the consideration stated in the instrument, and (9) in the case of a mortgage or certificate of discharge of mortgage, the amount and date of maturity of the mortgage.

(d) Each such instrument shall recite the interest of the grantor or mortgagor in the vessel, the names of the persons to whom the interest has been transferred or mortgaged, and the interest transferred or mortgaged to each. A bill of sale or conveyance shall also recite in full the last marine document of the vessel. A mortgage, whether ordinary or preferred, may, but need not necessarily, recite in full the last marine document of the vessel; if such marine document is not recited, the vessel shall be described by rig, name, official number, and gross tonnage.

(e) The collector shall index on customs Form 1332, continued if necessary on customs Form 1332–A, all decrees of distribution of estates of deceased owners, all orders of referees or courts appointing trustees in bankruptcy, and all orders of courts of record having the effect of transferring any interest in a vessel or discharging a mortgage or lien to show (1) the name of the vessel, (2) the name of the former owner, (3) the name of the new owner, (4) the interest transferred or lien discharged, (5) the name of the court, (6) the title of the case, and (7) the date of the order.

(g) No bill of sale, conveyance, mortgage, release from mortgage, satisfaction or discharge of mortgage, assignment of mortgage, or certificate of discharge of lien shall be recorded unless previously acknowledged. Any acknowledgment valid under the laws of the State where made may be accepted. No customs officer or employee is authorized by section 486, Tariff Act of 1930, to take such acknowledgments.

(h) Each certificate of discharge of mortgage presented for recording shall be on the customs Form 1363 or in a substantially similar form.

(i) Each bill of sale, mortgage, hypothecation, conveyance, release, satisfaction, assignment or notice of claim of lien shall be endorsed by the collector to show the port of recordation, the exact day, hour, and minute it was received for recordation, the book in which it was recorded, and the number assigned to the instrument.

(j) When an instrument other than a preferred mortgage or assignment of a preferred mortgage (see § 3.38) is to be recorded, the original and one copy shall be presented to the collector, who shall retain the copy for his files.

(k) Any abstract of title of a vessel furnished by the collector of customs at the home port of the vessel shall be on customs Form 1332, continued if necessary on customs Form 1332–A, and shall include any entry respecting each instrument required to be indexed under the regulations contained in this part, including a notice of claim of lien (§ 3.38 (h)).

(l) When the home port of a vessel is changed, whether or not any change in title occurs, the collector of customs at the old home port, upon request of the owner of the vessel, shall forward in duplicate to the collector at the new home port an abstract of title of the vessel, which shall bear at the end thereof the following endorsement:

(n) When an abstract of title of a vessel is forwarded to the collector at the new home port of a vessel in accordance with paragraph (l) of this section, the following endorsement shall be made in the index after the last entry for that vessel, and thereafter no instrument for such vessel shall be recorded at the old home port and no entry shall be made in the index with respect to any decree of distribution or order appointing a trustee in bankruptcy:

§ 3.34 Issue of temporary document upon sale.

(a) When a vessel entitled to be documented changes ownership and is in a port other than the home port designated by the new owner, a temporary document may be issued by the collector at the port where she is.

(b) If application is made to the collector at the home port designated by the new owner and all requirements of law are complied with except the issuance of the document, he shall authorize the collector at the port where the vessel then is to issue a temporary document to the vessel.

(c) If application is made to the collector at the port where the vessel then is, the same proceedings shall be had as are required by law at the vessel's home port, except that the bill of sale shall not be recorded at the port where the vessel is. "(3) An affidavit is filed with the record of such mortgage to the effect that the mortgage is made in good faith and without any design to hinder, delay, or defraud any existing or future creditor of the mortgagor or any lienor of the mortgaged vessel;

"(4) The mortgage does not stipulate that the mortgagee waives the preferred status thereof; and

"(5) The mortgagee is a citizen of the United States and for the purposes of this section the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall, in addition to those designated in sections 888 and 802 of this title, be deemed a citizen of the United States.

"(b) Any mortgage which complies in respect to any vessel with the conditions enumerated in this section is hereafter in this chapter called a 'preferred mortgage' as to such vessel.

"(c) There shall be indorsed upon the documents of a vessel covered by a preferred mortgage—

"(1) The names of the mortgagor and mortgagee;

"(2) The time and date the indorsement is made;

"(d) Such indorsement shall be made (1) by the collector of customs of the port of documentation of the mortgaged vessel, or (2) by the collector of customs of any port in which the vessel is found, if such collector is directed to make the indorsement by the collector of customs of the port of documentation; and no clearance shall be issued to the vessel until such indorsement is made. The collector of customs of the port of documentation shall give such direction by wire or letter at the request of the mortgagee and upon the tender of the cost of communication of such direction. Whenever any new document is issued for the vessel, such indorsement shall be transferred to and in-

It may cover more than one vessel, but may not be limited to a part of any vessel.

All copies except one, which shall be inserted by the collector in his record of preferred mortgages, shall be certified by the collector and delivered to the mortgagor [30] after the record has been made. The original shall be returned to the mortgagee and a receipt obtained.

(b) The affidavit of the mortgagor required by subsection D (a) (3), of the Ship Mortgage Act, 1920,[31] if not included in the mortgage, shall be presented with each preferred mortgage submitted for recording and shall be retained by the collector.[32] Any acknowledgment of such affidavit valid under the laws of the State where made may be accepted.

(c) No vessel covered by a preferred mortgage shall be granted clearance at any port until the preferred mortgage endorsement required by subsection D (c) of the Ship Mortgage Act, 1920,[33] has been placed on her marine document.

(d) In addition to the matters required by § 3.33 (c), the collector shall note on the index on customs Form 1332, continued if necessary on customs Form 1332–A, the day, hour, and minute that (1) the proposed mortgage endorsement is placed on the marine document, and (2) such notation was made on the index.

(e) When a marine document bearing a preferred mortgage endorsement is surrendered [34] and a new document is issued before the mortgage is satisfied or the vessel released, the endorsement shall be placed on the new document.

(f) For the purposes of this section and the related statutes, an assignment of a preferred mortgage shall be regarded in all respects as a new preferred mortgage.

(g) A notice of claim of lien upon a vessel shall be recorded only if the vessel is covered by a preferred mortgage and if the notice has been acknowledged.[35] Any acknowledgment valid under the laws of the State where made may be accepted. No customs officer or employee is authorized by section 486, Tariff Act of 1930, or Customs Delegation Order No. 2 (T. D. 53195, 18 F. R. 832), to take such acknowledgments.

(i) When a preferred mortgage has been discharged in whole or in part and a certificate of such discharge has been filed with the collector of customs at the home port of any vessel covered by the discharge, the collector at the home port, or the collector at the port where the vessel is, at the direction of the collector at the home port, shall endorse the fact of such discharge upon the document of the vessel. No clearance shall be granted to such vessel until such endorsement has been made.[36]

The master of the vessel shall, upon the request of any such person, exhibit to him the documents of the vessel and the copy of any preferred mortgage of the vessel placed on board thereof." (46 U. [36] "The mortgagor, upon a discharge in whole or in part of the mortgage indebtedness, shall forthwith file with the collector of customs for the port of documentation of the vessel, a certificate of such discharge. Such collector of customs shall thereupon record the certificate. In case of a vessel covered by a preferred mortgage, the collector of customs at the port of documentation shall (1) indorse upon the documents of the vessel, or direct the collector of customs at any port in which the vessel is found, to so indorse, the fact of such discharge, and (2) shall deny clearance to the vessel until such indorsement is made." See § 4.98 of this chapter for fees to be collected.

[38] "Any vessel of the United States, navigating the waters on the northern, northeastern, and northwestern frontiers, otherwise than by sea shall be enrolled and licensed in such form as other vessels; such enrollment and license shall authorize any such vessel to be employed either in the coasting or foreign trade on such frontiers, and no certificate of registry shall be required for vessels so employed. "(f) If a preferred mortgage includes more than one vessel and provides for the separate discharge of each vessel by the payment of a portion of the mortgage indebtedness, the amount of such portion of such payment shall be indorsed upon the documents of the vessel. In case such mortgage does not provide for the separate discharge of a vessel and the vessel is to be sold upon the order of a district court of the United States in a suit in rem in admiralty, the court shall determine the portion of the mortgage indebtedness increased by 20 per centum (1) which, in the opinion of the court, the approximate value of the vessel bears to the approximate value of all the vessels covered by the mortgage, and (2) upon the payment of which the vessel shall be discharged from the mortgage." Satisfactory evidence shall be produced to establish that the transfer of registry has the approval of the foreign government concerned. If the vessel was built for the applicant and never under foreign registry, the builder's certificate shall be produced but no approval of a foreign government shall be required. If the vessel was not built for the applicant, satisfactory evidence of ownership shall be produced as in the case of a vessel built in the United States. There shall also be produced a certificate of the merchant marine officer in charge that the vessel is safe to carry dry and perishable cargo, and if the vessel is required to possess a certificate of inspection,[39] it shall be produced.

(c) The applicant shall submit a certificate stating that:

(1) The transfer of the vessel conveyed complete and unconditional title and ownership to the purchaser;

(2) There is no agreement or understanding reserving to the vendor, or to any person who is not a citizen, any interest in the vessel or its operation, or any right of control thereof;

(3) The transfer is intended to be permanent and not temporary, no right to repurchase the vessel is reserved to the vendor, and there is no understanding for its retransfer:

(4) The transfer was not made during a voyage of the vessel or while it was in a blockaded port; and

(5) The transfer was not made to avoid the consequences to which a vessel of a belligerent is exposed.

(d) The papers filed in connection with the application for documentation in accordance with the requirements of this section and any other pertinent information shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Customs for consideration before the granting of a document to the vessel. Except as otherwise provided for in this section, the usual requirements for registry shall be complied with.

(e) No foreign-built vessel owned and documented prior to February 1, 1920, by a citizen nor one owned by the United States on June 5, 1920, and sold to and owned by a citizen shall engage in the American fisheries, but it is otherwise unlimited as to documents and trade so long as it continues in such ownership. When a marine document is issued to such a vessel, the following notation shall be made thereon:

As amended by section 5 of the Panama Canal Act and by the act of August 18, 1914, and sections 22, 27, and 38 of the Merchant Marine Act of June 5, 1920, as amended. This vessel shall not engage in the American fisheries.

If the vessel is owned by a corporation which is a citizen of the United States as defined in § 3.19(a)(3) or § 3.19(b), the notation required by § 3.2(d) shall also be made on the document.

(f) A foreign-built vessel which is owned by a citizen, but which was not so owned and documented on February 1, 1920, or which was not owned by the United States on June 5, 1920, is limited to the foreign trade. A foreign-built vessel admitted to American registry and thereafter sold foreign in whole or in part or placed under foreign registry is limited, upon afterward becoming the property of a citizen, to the foreign trade. When a register is issued to a vessel of either such class, the following notation shall be made thereon:

This vessel shall not engage in the coastwise trade or the American fisheries.

(g) A foreign-built vessel which has been purchased from the Maritime Administration of the War Shipping Administration by a citizen shall not engage in the American fisheries, but it is otherwise unlimited as to documents and trade so long as it continues in such ownership. When a marine document is issued to such a vessel, the following notation shall be made thereon:

As amended by section 9 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended. This vessel shall not engage in the American fisheries.

If the vessel is owned by a corporation, the notation required by § 3.2 (d) shall also be made on the document.

§ 3.43 Documentation of American-built foreign-flag vessels.

(a) In the case of an American-built foreign-flag vessel which has never been documented as a vessel of the United States, a builder's certificate shall be produced unless a certificate of record has been issued to the vessel previously. A certificate of admeasurement shall also be produced unless a certificate of record has been issued and the tonnage of the vessel has not since been changed. Application for an official number shall be made in accordance with 3.42(a).

(b) In the case of an American-built foreign-flag vessel which was documented as a vessel of the United States before being placed under foreign flag, the production of a builder's certificate shall not be required, nor shall the production of a certificate of admeasurement unless the tonnage of the vessel has been changed. The official number originally awarded to the vessel shall be retained and the vessel shall be documented in the name under which it was last documented as a vessel of the United States.

(c) The application for documentation shall be accompanied by a photostatic or certified copy of the vessel's foreign register and foreign measurement certificate, if there be one, together with a duly authenticated translation of any such document that may be written in a foreign language. Satisfactory evidence shall be produced to establish that the transfer of registry has the approval of the foreign government concerned. If the vessel was not built for the applicant, satisfactory evidence of ownership shall be presented as in the case of a vessel of the United States.

(d) The applicant shall submit a certificate as required by § 3.42 (c).

(e) The papers filed in connection with the application for documentation in accordance with the requirements of this section and any other pertinent information shall be forwarded to the Commissioner of Customs for consideration before the granting of a document to the vessel. Except as otherwise provided for in this section, the usual requirements for registry shall be complied with.

(f) In appropriate cases, the notation required under § 3.2(f) shall be endorsed on a document issued under this section.

§ 3.46 Recorded vessels.

In the documentation of a recorded vessel (class 3), no builder's certificate shall be required. No admeasurement certificate shall be required unless the vessel has been altered since the certificate of record was issued.

§ 3.47 Record of American-built vessels owned by aliens.

(a) A vessel built in the United States, never before documented, and belonging wholly or in part to an alien may be granted a certificate of record on customs Form 1316. Such a vessel may be documented as a vessel of the United States if transferred to a citizen.

(b) Before a certificate of record is issued, a builder's certificate on customs Form 1261 and a certificate of admeasurement on customs Form 1414 shall be filed with the collector.

(c) Whenever the master or name of a recorded vessel is changed, the collector at the port where the vessel is, or the collector at the port where the vessel next arrives if it is at sea or in a foreign port, shall endorse such change upon the certificate of record on the written application of one or more of the owners.

(R.S. 4132, as amended, 4180, 4181, 4182, as amended, 4183, as amended; 46 U.S.C. 11, 54, 55, 56, 73)

§ 3.50 Inspection of marine documents.

Whenever a vessel of the United States is in commission, its marine document shall be on board, shall be accessible to the master or other person in charge or command, and shall be produced to any customs officer upon demand,[37] except when the document is in the custody of the collector for some required official purpose, or except in the case of a vessel within the purview of § 3.24 (e) and (f).

(R.S. 4335, as amended, 4336, as amended; 46 U.S.C. 276, 277)

§ 3.51 Change of name of documented vessel.

(a) The name of a documented vessel (including any documented yacht) shall not be changed except with the consent and approval of the collector, assistant collector, or deputy collector in charge of marine work for the vessel's home port.[38]

(b) Each application for change of name shall be executed on customs Form 1323 by the owner or owners of the vessel and shall be submitted in duplicate to the deputy collector at the vessel's home port.

(c) In applicable cases there shall be filed with the deputy collector: (1) The consent of the mortgagee or other beneficiary under each lien, mortgage, or other encumbrance of record at the vessel's home port, and (2) a certified copy of any approval of the Maritime Administration required by subsection 0(a), Ship Mortgage Act, 1920.[38a]

(d) If the application is approved, the approving officer shall so indicate by a note in the appropriate space provided on customs Form 1323, deliver the original to the applicant, and retain the duplicate in the records of his office. If the application is disapproved, the applicant shall be notified in writing.

(e) The applicant shall cause notice of the order for the change of name to be published in some daily or weekly newspaper of general circulation at or nearest to the home port of the vessel in at least four consecutive issues. The notice shall be in the following form:

Notice is hereby given that an order dated ---------- has been issued by the undersigned authorizing the name of the
---------- ----------
(Rig) (Name)
official number ------, owned by ----------, of which ---------- is the home port, to be changed to ----------

----

(Port)

(f) No document shall be issued to the vessel in the new name until the applicant has paid the fee prescribed by § 3.52 [38b] and, except as specified in paragraph (g) of this section, until he has complied with paragraph (e) of this section and has furnished to the deputy collector at the vessel's home port (1) a declaration of publication signed by a proper representative of the newspaper in which the order for the change of name was published setting forth the wording of the order, the dates of publication, and the payment of the cost of advertising, or (2) a copy of each of the four consecutive issues of the newspaper in which the order appeared, together with a receipt for the payment of the cost of advertising.

(g) Documentation of the vessel in the new name shall not be withheld until notice of the order for the change has been published as required by paragraph (e) of this section, if the deputy collector at the vessel's home port is satisfied that the contract for publication has been entered into and he has been furnished with a receipt for the payment of the cost thereof, but the applicant shall within a reasonable time after publication furnish to the deputy collector the evidence prescribed in paragraph (f) (1) or (2) of this section.

(h) The cost of advertising and of procuring any evidence required by this section shall be paid by the applicant.

(i) The order for change of name shall be effective only if the vessel is documented in the new name within a period of 6 months from the date of the order.

(j) If there is a change in ownership of a vessel and the new owner applies for a change of name of the vessel, his designation of home port shall be in the name under which the vessel was last documented. A designation of home port shall not be required to be submitted merely by reason of a change of name.

(k) A vessel which is to be redocumented after being out of documentation shall be redocumented only under the name and official number in which it was last documented. However, if an application for a change in name is submitted simultaneously with an application for the redocumentation of such a vessel and the vessel is then marked with a name other than that under which it was last documented, and if the change in name is approved, the approving officer may issue the document in the old name and immediately issue the further document incident to the change in name without requiring that the vessel be marked with the name under which it was previously documented.

(l) Whenever any vessel documented or formerly documented as a vessel of the United States has been sold or transferred in whole or in part, or altered in tonnage, description, or rig, that vessel shall be documented anew only under the name in which it was last documented. However, if an application for change of name is submitted simultaneously, if the vessel is then marked with a name other than that in which it was last documented, and if the change in name is approved, the vessel may be documented anew without requiring the former name to be marked, provided the vessel is forthwith documented in the new name and provided that that name is then correctly marked on the vessel in compliance with the applicable requirements.

(R.S. 4170, as amended, 4179, secs. 1-3, 41 Stat. 436, as amended, 437, as amended; 46 U.S.C. 39, 50-53)

NOTE: Treasury Decision 53530, 19 F. R. 4405, July 17, 1954, provides as follows:

The International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea, which came into force on January 1, 1954, prescribe in Rule 31 that the signal of distress for ships with a radiotelephone is the spoken word "MAYDAY."

Notice is hereby given that, for obvious reasons, the Bureau as a matter of policy will not approve the use of a name, either in connection with an original documentation or an application for change of name of a documented vessel which is actually or phonetically identical with, or so similar as to be confused with, the international radiotelephone distress signal "MAYDAY."

This action coincides with a similar precautionary measure taken by Great Britain.

§ 3.52 Fee for change of vessel's name.

When a change in the name of a vessel is approved, the following fees shall be paid by the owners of vessels to collectors of customs: for a vessel of 99 gross tons or under, $10; for a vessel of 100 gross tons or up to and including 499 gross tons, $25; for a vessel of 500 gross tons or up to and including 999 gross tons, $50; for a vessel of 1,000 gross tons or up to and including 4,999 gross tons, $75; for a vessel of 5,000 gross tons or over, $100.

(Sec. 3, 41 Stat. 437; 46 U.S.C. 53)

§ 3.53 Yacht privileges and obligations.

(a) A vessel documented at a yacht shall be used exclusively for pleasure and shall not transport merchandise nor carry passengers for pay. A vessel which is so documented and which is not engaged in any trade nor in any way violating the customs or navigation laws of the United States may proceed from port to port in the United States or to foreign ports without clearing and is not subject to entry upon its arrival in a port of the United States, provided it has not visited a hovering vessel.

(b) Upon the application of the owner on customs Form 1250, submitted through a collector of customs, a commission may be issued by the Commissioner of Customs to any vessel licensed or enrolled and licensed as a yacht, belonging to a regularly organized and incorporated yacht club, to identify such yacht and its owner during a foreign voyage. This commission is a token of credit to any United States official and to the authorities of any foreign power for the privileges enjoyed under it.

(c) On the return to the United States of any yacht so commissioned, such commission shall be surrendered to the customs officer to whom the required report of arrival is made.

(d) A cruising license [39] may be issued to a yacht of a foreign country only if it has been made to appear to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury that yachts of the United States are allowed to arrive at and depart from ports in such foreign country and to cruise in the waters of such ports without entering or clearing at the customhouse thereof and without the payment of any charges for entering or clearing, dues, duty per ton, tonnage taxes, or charges for cruising licenses. It has been made to appear to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury that yachts of the United States are granted such privileges in the following countries:

Argentina.	Greece.
Bahama Islands.	Honduras.
Canada.	Jamaica.
Cuba.	Liberia.
Great Britain.	Netherlands.

(e) In order to obtain a cruising license for a yacht of any country listed in paragraph (d) of this section there shall be filed with the collector an application therefor executed by the yacht owner which shall set forth his address, and identify the vessel by flag, rig, name, and such other matters as are usually descriptive of a vessel. The application shall also include a description of the waters in which the yacht will cruise, and a statement of the probable time it will remain in such waters. Upon approval of the application, the collector of customs will issue a cruising license in the form prescribed by paragraph (f) of this section permitting the yacht, for a stated period not to exceed 6 months, to arrive at and depart from the United States and to cruise in specified waters of the United States without entering and clearing, without filing manifests and obtaining or delivering permits to proceed, and without the payment of entry and clearance fees, or fees for receiving manifests and granting permits to proceed, duty on tonnage, tonnage tax, or light money. The license shall be granted subject to the condition that the vessel shall not engage in trade or violate the laws of the United States in any respect. The master shall comply with section 433 of the Tariff Act of 1930 upon the vessel's arrival at every port or place within the United States.

(f) Cruising licenses shall be in the following form:

[34] "No document certifying or proving any vessel to be the property of a citizen of the United States shall be issued, except to vessels duly registered or enrolled and licensed as vessels of the United States, or to vessels which shall be wholly owned by citizens of the United States, and furnished with or entitled to customhouse documents." (46 U. S. C. 61)

[37] "Any officer concerned in the collection of the revenue may at all times inspect the register or enrollment or license of any vessel or any document in lieu thereof; and if the master or other person in charge or command of any such vessel shall not exhibit the same, when required by such officer, unless the vessel is one which by regulation of the Secretary of the Treasury is not required to have its register or enrollment or license or document in lieu thereof on board, such master or person in charge or command shall be liable to a penalty of $100, unless the failure to do so is willful, in which case he shall be liable to a penalty of $1,000 and to a fine of not more than $1,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both." (46 U. S. C. 277.)

[38] "The Secretary of the Treasury shall be empowered to change the names of vessels of the United States on application of the owner or owners of such vessels when in his judgment there shall be sufficient cause for so doing." (46 U. S. C. 51. Sec. 102, Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1946, 3 CFR, 1946 Supp., Ch. IV)

"No master, owner, or agent of any vessel of the United States shall in any way change the name of such vessel, or by any device, advertisement, or contrivance deceive or attempt to deceive the public, or any officer or agent of the United States, or of any State, or any corporation or agent thereof, or any person or persons, as to the true name or character of such vessel, on pain of the forfeiture of such vessel." (46 U. S. C. 50)

[38a] The requirement of subsection O (a) of the Ship Mortgage Act, 1920 (46 U. S. C. 961 (a)), that the document of a vessel covered by a preferred mortgage may not be surrendered without the approval of the Maritime Administration and the mortgagee applies to the surrender of the document of such a vessel for the purpose of changing its name.

[38b] The fee is due upon approval of the application whether or not the vessel is documented in the new name.

[39] "Whenever it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the President of the United States that yachts used and employed exclusively as pleasure vessels and belonging to any resident of the United States are allowed to arrive at and depart from any foreign port and to cruise in the waters of such port without entering or clearing at the customhouse thereof and without the payment of any charges for entering or clearing, dues, duty per ton, tonnage taxes or charges for cruising licenses, the Commissioner of Customs may authorize and direct the customs authorities at the various ports of entry of the United States to allow yachts from such foreign port used and employed exclusively as pleasure vessels to arrive at and depart from any port of the United States and to cruise in waters of the United States without the payment of any charges for entering or clearing, dues, duty per ton, or tonnage taxes, but the Commissioner of Customs may, in his discretion, direct that such foreign yachts shall be required to obtain licenses to cruise, in a form prescribed by him, before they shall be allowed under the provisions of this section to cruise in waters of the United States. Such licenses shall be issued without cost to such yachts and shall prescribe such limitations as to length of time, direction, and place of cruising and action, and such other particulars as the Commissioner of Customs may deem proper." (46 U. S. C. 104. Sec. 102, Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1946; 3 CFR, 1946 Supp., Ch. IV)

The Secretary of the Treasury was designated by section 1 of Executive Order 10289 (3 CFR, 1951 Supp., ch. II) to perform the function of the President to make determinations necessary as a prerequisite to the extension of reciprocal privileges under the above-quoted statute.

(Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 434, as amended; 19 U. S. C. 1434)

[20] "The master of any foreign vessel arriving within the limits of any customs collection district shall, within forty-eight hours thereafter, make entry at the customhouse in the same manner as is required for the entry of a vessel of the United States, except that a list of the crew need not be delivered, and that instead of depositing the register or document in lieu thereof such master may produce a certificate by the consul of the nation to which such vessel belongs that said documents have been deposited with him: Provided, That such exception shall not apply to the vessels of foreign nations in whose ports American consular officers are not permitted to have the custody and possession of the register and other papers of vessels entering the ports of such nations." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 435; 19 U. S. C. 1435) cate, it shall be exchanged for the vessel's document upon clearance of the vessel, or upon its departure if clearance is not required.

(c) The master of any foreign vessel shall exhibit his register to the collector on or before the entry of the vessel. After the net tonnage has been noted, the master may deliver it to the consul of the nation to which such vessel belongs, in which event he shall file with the collector the certificate required by section 435 of the tariff act. If not delivered to the consul, the register shall be deposited in the customhouse.[21]

(d) The master of every vessel required to make entry shall present on entry the pratique required by the pertinent regulations of the United States Public Health Service (42 CFR Chapter I) and shall pay all required fees and penalties incurred.

(e) The master, licensed deck officer, or purser may appear in person at the customhouse to enter the vessel or the required oaths, related documents, and other papers properly executed by the master or other proper officer may be delivered at the customhouse by the vessel agent or other personal representative of the master.

(R.S. 4576, as amended, secs. 434, 435, 46 Stat. 711, as amended, sec. 366, 58 Stat. 705; 19 U.S.C. 1434, 1435, 42 U.S.C. 269, 46 U.S.C. 677)

§ 4.10 Request for overtime services.

Request for overtime services in connection with the entry or clearance of a vessel, including the boarding of a vessel for the purpose of preliminary entry,[22] if made at the time the application for a permit to unlade or lade is filed, may be on customs Form 3171 in the space provided therefor, otherwise the request for overtime services shall be on customs Form 3853. Such request for overtime services must specify the nature of the services desired and the exact times when they will be needed, unless arrangements are made locally so that the proper customs officer will be seasonably notified during official hours in advance of the rendering of the services as to the nature of services desired and the exact times that they will be needed. Such request shall not be approved unless the required cash deposit or bond on customs Form 7567 or 7569 shall have been received.

(Secs. 448, 451, 46 Stat. 714, 715, as amended; 19 U.S.C. 1448, 1451)

§ 4.11 Sealing of stores.

Upon the arrival of a vessel from a foreign port, or a vessel engaged in the foreign trade from a domestic port, sea stores and ship's stores not required for immediate use or consumption on board while the vessel is in port and articles acquired abroad by officers and members of the crew, for which no permit to land has been issued, shall be placed under seal, unless the customs officer is of the opinion that the circumstances do not require such action. Customs inspectors in charge of the vessel, from time to time, as in their judgment the necessity of the case requires, may issue stores from under seal for consumption on board the vessel by its passengers and crew. (See § 4.39.)

§ 4.12 Correction of manifest.

(a) If the inward foreign manifest is shown by the inspector's report on customs Form 5931 or otherwise to be incorrect, it shall be corrected promptly. Collectors of customs shall, by such means as they may deem appropriate, notify masters or agents of vessels of shortages or overages in cargoes which require the filing of shortage certificates or post entries.

(b) If any manifested merchandise is not found on board,[23] the manifest shall be corrected by filing with the collector a certificate on customs Form 3249.

(c) If there is on board any merchandise, including bulk merchandise and baggage, which is not included in, or does not agree with, the manifest,[24] the manifest shall be corrected by the execution of a post entry in original only on customs Form 3257, which shall be filed with the collector.

(d) A correction in the manifest shall not be required in the case of bulk merchandise if the collector is satisfied that the difference between the manifested quantity and the quantity unladen, whether the difference constitutes an overage or a shortage, is an ordinary and usual difference properly attributable to absorption of moisture, temperature, faulty weighing at the port of lading, or other similar reason. A correction in the manifest shall not be required because of discrepancies between marks or numbers on packages of merchandise and the marks or numbers for the same packages as shown on the manifest of the importing vessel when the quantities and description of the merchandise in such packages are correctly given.

(e) If the discrepancy is not explained to the satisfaction of the collector, the penalties prescribed by section 584, Tariff Act of 1930, as amended, shall be imposed. For the purpose of assessing such penalties the value of the merchandise is that defined in § 23.12 of this chapter. The fact that the master or owner had no knowledge that the discrepancy existed does not relieve him from the penalty.

(Secs. 440, 584, 46 Stat. 712, as amended, 748, as amended; 19 U.S.C. 1440, 1584)

§ 4.13 Alcoholic liquors on vessels of not over 500 tons.[25]

(a) When a vessel of not over 500 net tons which arrives from any foreign port

[21] "It shall not be lawful for any foreign consul to deliver to the master of any foreign vessel the register, or document in lieu thereof, deposited with him in accordance with the provisions of section 435 of this Act until such master shall produce to him a clearance in due form from the collector of the port where such vessel has been entered. Any consul offending against the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine of not more than $5,000." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 438; 19 U. S. C. 1438)

[22] Except as provided in section 441 of this Act (relating to vessels not required to enter), no merchandise, passengers, or baggage shall be unladen from any vessel or vehicle arriving from a foreign port or place until entry of such vessel or report of the arrival of such vehicle has been made and a permit for the unlading of the same issued by the collector: Provided, That the master may make a preliminary entry of a vessel by making oath or affirmation to the truth of the statements contained in the vessel's manifest and delivering the manifest to the customs officer who boards such vessel, but the making of such preliminary entry shall not excuse the master from making formal entry of his vessel at the customhouse, as provided by this Act. After the entry, preliminary or otherwise, of any vessel or report of the arrival of any vehicle, the collector may issue a permit to the master of the vessel, or to the person in charge of the vehicle, to unlade merchandise or baggage, but except as provided in subdivision (b) of this section merchandise or baggage so unladen shall be retained at the place of unlading until entry therefor is made and a permit for its delivery granted, and the owners of the vessel or vehicle from which any imported merchandise is unladen prior to entry of such merchandise shall be liable for the payment of the duties accruing on any part thereof that may be removed from the place of unlading without a permit therefor having been issued. * * *." (Tariff Act of 1930, section 448(a); 19 U.S.C. 1448(a))

[23] "* * * If any merchandise described in such manifest is not found on board the vessel or vehicle the master or other person in charge or the owner of such vessel or vehicle shall be subject to a penalty of $500: Provided, That if the collector shall be satisfied that the manifest * * * is incorrect by reason of clerical error or other mistake and that no part of the merchandise not found on board was unshipped or discharged except as specified in the report of the master, said penalties shall not be incurred. * * *." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 584, as amended; 19 U. S. C. 1584)

[24] "If there is any merchandise or baggage on board such vessel which is not included in or which does not agree with the manifest, the master of the vessel shall make a post entry thereof, and mail or deliver a copy to such employee as the Secretary of the Treasury shall designate and for failure so to do shall be liable to a penalty of $500." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 440, as amended; 19 U. S. C. 1440)

[25] "In addition to any other requirement of law, every vessel, not exceeding five hundred net tons, from a foreign port or place, or which has visited a hovering vessel, shall carry a certificate for the importation into the United States of any spirits, wines, or other alcoholic liquors on board thereof (sea stores excepted), destined to the United States, said certificate to be issued by a consular officer of the United States or other authorized person pursuant to such regulations as the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Treasury may jointly prescribe. Any spirits, wines, or other alcoholic liquors (sea stores excepted) found, or discovered to have been, upon any such vessel at any place in the United States, or within the customs waters, without said certificate on board, which are not shown to have a bona fide destination without the United States, shall be seized and forfeited and, in the case of any such merchandise so destined to a foreign port or place, a bond shall be required in double the amount of the duties to which such merchandise would be subject if imported into the United States, conditioned upon the delivery of said merchandise at such foreign port or place as may be certified by a consular officer of the United States or otherwise as provided in said regulations: Provided, That if the collector shall be satisfied that the certificate required for the importation of any spirits, wines, or other alcoholic liquors was issued and was lost or

or place or from a visit to a hovering vessel has on board any alcoholic liquors, other than sea stores, destined to the United States, a certificate on foreign service, Form 149 for the importation of such liquors shall be delivered to the boarding officer with the inward foreign manifest.

(b) When any shipment of spirits, wines, or other alcoholic liquors found on board a vessel not exceeding 500 net tons is shown to have a bona fide destination outside the United States, the master shall furnish a landing bond on customs Form 7593 (see T.D. 47886) with an authorized corporate surety unless the shipment is accompanied by a certificate on foreign service Form 149.

(c) The condition of the landing bond shall be satisfied by the delivery to the collector of customs within 6 months from the date of the bond of a landing certificate or certificates of a revenue officer of the country of destination showing that all the alcoholic liquors have been landed at their foreign destination.

(Sec. 7, 49 Stat. 520; 19 U.S.C. 1707)

§ 4.14 Equipment and repairs to American vessels.

(a) The master's declaration on customs Form 3415 required by § 4.7(b)(2), covering equipment, repair parts, or material acquired, or expense for repairs incurred, in a foreign country,[26] within the purview of section 466, Tariff Act of 1930, as amended,[27] shall be filed, whether or not the items, or any of them, may be exempt from entry as stated in paragraph (b)(1) of this section.

(b) Entry on customs Form 7535 shall be made for such equipment or repairs and estimated duties deposited or a bond on customs Form 7567 or 7569 given therefor before the vessel shall be allowed clearance, except that—

(1) No entry or bond shall be required with respect to items which the collector is satisfied are clearly within the purview of R.S. 3115 (3), as amended, and

(2) Vessels owned by the United States, although subject to the provisions of section 466, Tariff Act of 1930, as amended, shall be allowed to proceed without such deposit of duties or filing of a bond, if operated by the Maritime Administration or other agency of the United States or if operated under an agreement providing that such an agency shall pay duties accruing under such section 466. Vessels owned by the United States and operated by private parties who are liable by agreement for duties accruing under section 466 shall be treated in all respects the same as privately owned vessels.

(c) The master shall file with the entry receipts showing the costs of items enumerated in the said section 466. If, however, it is impracticable to produce such receipts at the time of entry, liquidation of the entry shall be suspended pending the furnishing of a complete account of the items liable to duty. In such cases the collector shall cause an examination of such equipment or repairs to be made by a representative of the appraiser's office, if possible, in order to verify the cost declared on entry. If the cost of the equipment or repairs, as shown by the complete account when filed, differs from that declared on entry, the collector may permit the entry to be amended accordingly.

(d) When the entry has been completed by the filing of proper evidence of cost and no application for relief as provided for in paragraph (e) of this section, has been filed within the time authorized or, if filed, has been finally acted upon, or the collector is informed that no such application will be filed, the entry shall be liquidated.

(e) An application for relief may be filed with the collector of customs alleging (1) that an item covered by the entry is not within the class of items liable to duty under section 3114, Revised Statutes, as amended, (2) that such item is within the provisions of section 3115, Revised Statues, as amended, or (3) both of the foregoing. To insure consideration in liquidation of the entry, the application shall be filed within 90 days from the date of the entry and, unless the collector is definitely advised that no application will be filed, the liquidation shall be suspended for that period of time to afford an opportunity for such filing. In meritorious cases the collector may authorize a further suspension of 90 days upon written request therefor. Inasmuch as an unprotested liquidation, insofar as it relates to the classification of items for the purposes of section 3114, Revised Statutes, is final at the expiration of 60 days, a subsequent application in regard to such classification cannot be considered in the absence of a timely protest.

(f) When relief is claimed under subdivision (1) of section 3115, Revised Statutes, as amended, there shall be submitted to the collector of customs a certificate of the master together with itemized bills covering the cost of the repairs made or equipment purchased, abstracts of the vessel's log, and a certificate of the proper officer when the repairs were made in order to obtain a certificate of seaworthiness, all of which shall be in duplicate if the vessel is owned or operated by the Maritime Administration, or a similar agency of the United States. This certificate of the master shall set out fully the following information:

(1) The nature of the casualty or stress of weather encountered;

(2) When and where the casualty or stress of weather occurred;

(3) The damage done by the casualty or stress of weather;

(4) The port where the repairs were made or the equipment secured; and

(5) A statement of the master of the vessel as to whether or not the repairs or equipments were required to secure the safety and seaworthiness of the vessel to enable her to reach her port of destination.

(g) When relief is claimed under subdivision (2) or (3) of section 3115, Revised Statutes, as amended, a certificate of the master shall be submitted to the mislaid without fraud, or was defaced by accident, or is incorrect by reason of clerical error or other mistake, said penalties shall not be incurred nor shall such bond be required. * * *." (19 U.S.C. 1707)

[26] The Canal Zone and the Virgin Islands are not "foreign countries" within the meaning of sec. 466, Tariff Act of 1930, and equipment, repair parts, or materials there purchased or repairs there made on a vessel of the United States are not dutiable.

[27] "The equipments, or any part thereof including boats, purchased for, or the repair parts or materials to be used, or the expenses of repairs made in a foreign country upon a vessel documented under the laws of the United States to engage in the foreign or coastline trade, or a vessel intended to be employed in such trade, shall on the first arrival of such vessel in any port of the United States, be liable to entry and the payment of an ad valorem duty of 50 per centum on the cost thereof in such foreign country; and if the owner or master of such vessel shall willfully and knowingly neglect or fail to report, make entry, and pay duties as herein required, such vessel, with her tackle, apparel, and furniture, shall be seized and forfeited. For the purposes of this section, compensation paid to members of the regular crew of such vessel in connection with the installation of any such equipments or any part thereof, or the making of repairs, in a foreign country, shall not be included in the cost of such equipment or part thereof, or of such repairs.

"Sec. 3115. If the owner or master of such vessel furnishes good and sufficient evidence—

"(1) That such vessel, while in the regular course of her voyage, was compelled, by stress of weather or other casualty to put into such foreign port and purchase such equipments or make such repairs, to secure the safety and seaworthiness of the vessel to enable her to reach her port of destination; or

"(2) That such equipments or parts thereof or repair parts or materials, were manufactured or produced in the United States, and the labor necessary to install such equipments or to make such repairs was performed by residents of the United States, or by members of the regular crew of such vessel; or

"(3) That such equipments, or parts thereof, or materials, or labor, were used as dunnage for cargo, or for the packing or shoring thereof, or in the erection of temporary bulkheads or other similar devices for the control of bulk cargo, or in the preparation (without permanent repair or alteration) of tanks for the carriage of liquid cargo;

then the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to remit or refund such duties, and such vessel shall not be liable to forfeiture, and no license or enrollment and license, or renewal of either, shall hereafter be issued to any such vessel until the collector to whom application is made for the same shall be satisfied, from the oath of the owner or master, that all such equipments or parts thereof or materials and repairs made within the year immediately preceding such application have been duly accounted for under the provisions of this and the preceding sections, and the duties accruing thereon duly paid; and if such owner or master shall refuse to take such oath, or take it falsely, the vessel shall be seized and forfeited." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 466, as amended, 19 U. S. C. 257, 288)

Collector of Customs, accompanied by the evidence in support of the claim.

(h) The evidence referred to in paragraphs (f) and (g) of this section, or offered in support of an application filed under paragraph (e) (1) of this section, shall be furnished to the collector of customs within 90 days after an application is filed. If such evidence is not received within the 90-day period the entry shall be liquidated without regard to the application unless the collector of customs shall have approved an extension of such period.

(i) The master shall certify as true copies or originals, as the case may be, one copy of each repair bill, abstract of the vessel's log, report of survey, and other documents submitted in support of the application for relief. If a document is written in a foreign language, it shall be accompanied by a translation certified to be accurate.

(j) The authority under section 3115 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to remit or refund duties is delegated to the several collectors of customs and their successors in office. When the evidence referred to in paragraphs (f), (g), or (h) of this section has been received and examined by the collector of customs he shall notify the owner or operator of the vessel, or other party in interest, of his decision, but if any doubt exists the case shall first be referred to the Bureau for advice. Thirty days after the date of such notice the collector shall proceed to liquidate the entry unless within that period the owner or operator of the vessel, or other party in interest, shall file a petition as provided for in paragraph (k) of this section.

(k) The owner or operator of the vessel involved, or other party in interest, may file with the collector of customs a petition addressed to the Commissioner of Customs for a review of the collector's decision on an application claiming relief under section 3115, Revised Statutes, as amended, (paragraph (e) (2) or (3) of this section). Such petition shall be filed in duplicate within 30 days from the date of the notice of the collector's decision, shall completely identify the case, and shall set forth in detail the exceptions to the collector's decision. When such a petition has been filed, the collector shall immediately transmit both copies thereof and the entire file to the Bureau, together with any comments he may desire to submit. When the Bureau's decision has been received the entry shall be liquidated in accordance therewith.

(R.S. 3114, as amended, 3115, as amended, sec. 498, 46 Stat. 726, as amended; 19 U.S.C. 257, 258, 1498)

§ 4.15 Fishing vessels touching and trading at foreign places.

(a) Before any vessel enrolled and licensed or licensed to engage in the fisheries shall touch and trade at a foreign port or place, the master shall obtain from a collector of customs a permit on customs Form 1379 to touch and trade.[34]

(b) Upon the arrival of a vessel enrolled and licensed or licensed for the fisheries which has put into a foreign port or place, the master shall report its arrival, make entry, and conform in all respects to the regulations applicable in the case of a vessel arriving from a foreign port.

(c) If a vessel which has been granted a permit to touch and trade arrives at a port in the United States, whether or not the vessel has touched at a foreign port or place, such permit shall forthwith be surrendered to the collector of customs.

(d) No permit to touch and trade shall be issued to a vessel enrolled and licensed or licensed for the coasting trade and mackerel fishery which is departing on a foreign voyage to engage exclusively in a trade other than the fisheries. For such a voyage the vessel shall be registered and the master shall obtain clearance for the foreign port or place.

§ 4.16 Entry and clearance on board vessels.

(a) A master, owner, or agent of a vessel described in the act of June 16, 1937,[35] who desires that arrival may be reported, entry made, and clearance obtained on board the vessel shall file with the collector an application on customs Form 3853 and a bond on customs Form 7567 in such penal sum as the collector deems sufficient but not less than $1,000, or the usual term bond on customs Form 7569.

(b) If the application is approved, the collector of customs or such deputy collector of customs as may be designated by him shall receive the report of arrival and the entry of the vessel and grant it clearance on board the vessel.

(c) For the purposes of the said act the term "at night" shall include the hours from 5 p. m. of one day to 8 a. m. of the following day, and the term "holiday" shall include only national holidays.

(50 Stat. 303; 19 U.S.C. 1435b)

§ 4.17 Vessels from discriminating countries.

The prohibition against imports in, and the penalty of forfeiture of, certain vessels from countries which discriminate against American vessels provided for in subsections 2 and 3 of paragraph J, section IV, Tariff Act of 1913, as amended by the act of March 4, 1915 (19 U.S.C. 130, 131), shall be enforced only in pursuance of specific instructions issued and published from time to time by the Secretary of the Treasury or such other officer as the Secretary may designate. (See also §§ 4.20(c) and 16.19 of this chapter.)

Tonnage Tax and Light Money

§ 4.20 Tonnage taxes.

(a) Except as specified in § 4.21, a regular tonnage tax or duty[36] of 2 cents per net ton, not to exceed in the aggregate 10 cents per net ton in any 1 year, shall be imposed at each entry on all vessels which shall be entered in any port of the United States from any foreign port or place in North America, Central America, the West Indies, the Bahama Islands, the Bermuda Islands, Newfoundland, or the coast of South America bordering on the Caribbean Sea (considered to include the mouth of the Orinoco River), and regular tonnage tax of 6 cents per net ton, not to exceed 30 cents per net ton per annum, shall be imposed at each entry on all vessels which shall be entered in any port of the United States from any other foreign port. In determining the port of origin of a voyage to the United States and the rate of tonnage tax, the following shall be used as a guide:

(1) When the vessel has proceeded in ballast from a port to which the 6-cent rate is applicable to a port to which the 2-cent rate applies and there has laden cargo or taken passengers, tonnage tax upon entry in the United States shall be assessed at the 2-cent rate.

(2) The same rate shall be applied in a case in which the vessel has transported cargo or passengers from a 6-cent port to a 2-cent port when all such cargo or passengers have been unladen or discharged at the 2-cent port, without regard to whether the vessel thereafter has proceeded to the United States in ballast or with cargo or passengers laden or taken on board at the 2-cent port.

(3) The 6-cent rate shall be applied when the vessel proceeds from a 2-cent port to a 6-cent port en route to the United States under circumstances similar to subparagraph (1) or (2) of this paragraph.

(4) If the vessel arrives in the United States with cargo or passengers taken at two or more ports to which different rates are applicable, tonnage tax shall be collected at the higher rate.

(b) The tonnage year shall be computed from the date of the first entry of the vessel concerned, without regard to the rate of the payment made at that entry, and shall expire on the day preceding the corresponding date of the following year.[37]

(c) A vessel shall also be subject on every entry from a foreign port or place, whether or not regular tonnage tax is payable on the particular entry, to the payment of a special tonnage tax[38] and to the payment of light money[39] at the rates and under the circumstances specified in the following table:

Classes of vessels	Rate per net ton: Regular tax	Special tax	Light money
Vessels of the United States:
1. Under provisional register, without regard to citizenship of officers	$0.02 or $0.06
2. All others:
(i) If all the officers are citizens	.02 or .06
(ii) If any officer is not a citizen	.02 or .06	[1] $0.50	[1] $0.50
Undocumented vessels which are owned by citizens [2]	.02 or .06	.50	[2] .50
Vessels of Philippine registry, owned by citizens of the Philippine Islands
Foreign vessels:
1. Of nations whose vessels are exempted from special tax or light money	.02 or .06
2. Entering from a foreign port or place where vessels of the United States are not ordinarily permitted to enter and trade	.02 or .06	[4] 2.00	[4] .50
3. All others:
(i) Built in the United States	.02 or .06	.30	.50
(ii) Not built in the United States	.02 or .06	.50	.50

[1] This does not apply on the first arrival of a vessel in a port of the United States from a foreign or intercoastal voyage if all the officers who are not citizens are below the grade of master and are filling vacancies which occurred on the voyage.

[2] The special tax and light money do not apply if the vessel is documented as a vessel of the United States before leaving the port.

[3] This does not apply if the vessel is under a certificate of protection and the owner or master files with the collector the oath required by 46 U. S. C. 129. An unrecorded bill of sale is not such a document as will exempt a vessel from the payment of light money under 46 U. S. C. 128, and the recording of such bill of sale after the arrival of the vessel is not sufficient to relieve it from the payment of the tax.

[4] This is to be collected on each entry of a vessel from such a port or place.

(d) Tonnage tax shall be imposed upon a vessel even though she enters a port of the United States only for orders.

(e) The fact that a vessel passes through the Canal Zone does not affect the rate of tonnage tax otherwise applicable to the vessel.

(f) For the purpose of computing tonnage tax, the net tonnage of a vessel stated in the vessel's marine document shall be accepted unless (1) such statement is manifestly wrong, in which case the net tonnage shall be estimated, pending admeasurement of the vessel, or the tonnage reported for her by any recognized classification society may be accepted, or (2) an appendix is attached to the marine document showing a net tonnage ascertained under the so-called "British rules" or the rules of any foreign country which have been accepted as substantially in accord with the rules of the United States, in which case the tonnage so shown may be accepted and the date the appendix was issued shall be noted on the tonnage tax certificate, customs Form 1002, and on the master's oath, customs Form 3251.

(g) The decision of the Commissioner of Customs is final on any question of interpretation relating to the collection of tonnage tax or to the refund of such tax when collected erroneously or illegally, and any question of doubt shall be referred to him for instructions.

(R.S. 4153, as amended, secs. 2, 4, 28 Stat. 743, as amended, R.S. 4154, as amended, 4219, as amended, 4225, as amended, 4131, as amended; 46 U.S.C. 77, 78, 79, 81, 121, 128, 221)

§ 4.21 Exemptions from tonnage taxes.

(a) Tonnage taxes and light money shall be suspended in whole or in part whenever the President by proclamation shall so direct.

(b) A vessel shall not be liable to the payment of tonnage tax or light money merely because—

(1) It comes into port for bunkers (including water), sea stores, or ship's stores; transacts no other business in the port; and departs within 24 hours after its arrival.

(2) It arrives in distress, even though required to enter.

(3) It is brought into port by orders of United States naval authorities and transacts no business while in port other than the taking on of bunkers, sea stores, or ship's stores.

(4) It is a vessel of war or other vessel which is owned by, or under the complete control and management of the United States or the government of a foreign country, and which is not carrying passengers or merchandise in trade or, if in ballast, which is not ar-

[33] "Whenever any vessel, licensed for carrying on the fisheries, is intended to touch and trade at any foreign port, it shall be the duty of the master or owner to obtain permission for that purpose from the collector of the district where such vessel may be, previous to her departure, and the master of every such vessel shall deliver like manifests, and make like entries, both of the vessel and of the merchandise on board, within the same time, and under the same penalty, as are by law provided for vessels of the United States arriving from a foreign port." (46 U.S.C. 310)

"Whenever a vessel, licensed for carrying on the fisheries, is found within three leagues of the coast, with merchandise of foreign growth or manufacture, exceeding the value of $500, without having such permission as is directed by section 310 of this title, such vessel together with the merchandise of foreign growth or manufacture imported therein, shall be subject to seizure and forfeiture." (46 U.S.C. 311; see also 46 U.S.C. 325)

If such a vessel puts into a foreign port or place and only obtains bunkers, stores, or supplies suitable for a fishing voyage, it is not considered to have touched and traded there.

[34] "In order to expedite the dispatch of vessels carrying passengers operating on regular schedules and arriving at night or on a Sunday or a holiday at a port in the United States at which such vessel is required by law to report arrival and make entry and from which it is required to obtain a clearance, the collector of customs, or any deputy collector of customs designated by him, if the vessel departs during the same night, Sunday, or holiday on which it arrives may, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, receive the report of arrival and entry of such vessel from and give clearance for such vessel to the master or other proper officer thereof on board such vessel: Provided, That bond, as prescribed in section 1451 of this title, is given to secure reimbursement to the Government for the compensation of, and expenses incurred by, such customs officers in performing such services, who shall be entitled to rates of compensation fixed on the same basis and payable in the same manner and upon the same terms and conditions as in the case of customs officers and employees assigned to lading or unlading at night or on Sunday or a holiday." (19 U.S.C. 1435b. Sec. 102, Reorg. Plan No. 3 of 1946; 3 CFR, 1946 Supp., Ch. IV)

[35] "Upon vessels which shall be entered in the United States from any foreign port or place there shall be paid duties as follows: On vessels built within the United States but belonging wholly or in part to subjects of foreign powers, at the rate of thirty cents per ton; on other vessels not of the United States, at the rate of fifty cents per ton, and any vessel any officer of which shall not be a citizen of the United States shall pay a tax of fifty cents per ton.

"A tonnage duty of 2 cents per ton, not to exceed in the aggregate 10 cents per ton in any one year, is imposed at each entry on all vessels which shall be entered in any port of the United States from any foreign port or place in North America, Central America, the West India Islands, the Bahama Islands, the Bermuda Islands, or the coast of South America bordering on the Caribbean Sea, or Newfoundland, and a duty of 6 cents per ton, not to exceed 30 cents per ton per annum, is imposed at each entry on all vessels which shall be entered in any port of the United States from any other foreign port, not, however, to include vessels in distress or not engaged in trade.

"Upon every vessel not of the United States, which shall be entered in one district from another district, having on board goods, wares, or merchandise taken in one district to be delivered in another district, duties shall be paid at the rate of 50 cents per ton: Provided, That no such duty shall be required where a vessel owned by citizens of the United States, but not a vessel of the United States, after entering an American port, shall, before leaving the same, be registered as a vessel of the United States. On all foreign vessels which shall be entered in the United States from any foreign port or place, to and with which vessels of the United States are not ordinarily permitted to enter and trade, there shall be paid a duty at the rate of $2 per ton; and none of the duties on tonnage above-mentioned shall be levied on the vessels of any foreign nation if the President of the United States shall be satisfied that the discriminating or countervailing duties of such foreign nations, so far as they operate to the disadvantage of the United States, have been abolished. Any rights or privileges acquired by any foreign nation under the laws and treaties of the United States relative to the duty of tonnage on vessels shall not be impaired; and any vessel any officer of which shall not be a citizen of the United States shall pay a tax of 50 cents per ton." (46 U. S. C. 121)

[36] There may be five payments at the maximum (6-cent) and five at the minimum (2-cent) rate during a tonnage year, so that the maximum assessment of tonnage duty may amount to 40 cents per net ton for the tonnage year of a vessel engaged in alternating trade.

[37] See footnote 36.

[38] "A duty of 50 cents per ton, to be denominated 'light money', shall be levied and collected on all vessels not of the United States which may enter the ports of the United States. Such light money shall be levied and collected in the same manner and under the same regulations as the tonnage duties: Provided, That no such duty shall be required where a vessel owned by citizens of the United States, but not a vessel of the United States, after entering an American port, shall, before leaving the same, be registered as a vessel of the United States." When the application for refund is based upon a claim that more than five payments of regular tax at either the 2-cent or the 6-cent rate have been made during a tonnage year, the application shall be supported by a statement from the collector at the port where the application is submitted and from the collector at each port at which any claimed payment was made verifying the facts and showing in each case whether refunds have been authorized. The application shall include a certificate by the owner or by the owner's agent that payment of tonnage tax at the applicable rate has been or will be made for each entry of the vessel on a voyage on which that rate is applicable before the end of the current tonnage year, exclusive of any payment which has been refunded or which may be refunded as a result of such application. (c) The application shall be made within 1 year from date of the payment.

(d) The collector of customs to whom payment was made shall make any refund authorized by the Commissioner of Customs. The records of payment of tonnage tax shall be clearly noted to show each refund authorized.

Landing and Delivery of Cargo

§ 4.30 Permits and special licenses for unlading and lading.

(a) Except as prescribed in paragraph (f), (g), or (k) of this section or in § 5.2 of this chapter and except in the case of a vessel exempt from entry or clearance under 19 U.S.C. 288[55] no passengers,[56]

[44] "Vessels entering otherwise than by sea from a foreign port at which tonnage or lighthouse dues or other equivalent tax or taxes are not imposed on vessels of the United States shall be exempt from the tonnage duty of 2 cents per ton, not to exceed in the aggregate 10 cents per ton in any one year." (46 U. S. C. 132) This statute applies to a vessel arriving in the United States on a voyage otherwise than by sea from a port in the province of Ontario, Canada, only.

[45] "Whenever any fine, penalty, forfeiture, exaction, or charge arising under the laws relating to vessels or seamen has been paid to any collector of customs, or Coast Guard official, or consular officer, and application has been made within one year from such payment for the refunding or remission of the same, the Commandant of the Coast Guard or the Secretary of the Treasury, as the case may be, if on investigation he finds that such fine, penalty, forfeiture, exaction, or charge was illegally, improperly, or excessively imposed, shall have the power, either before or after the same has been covered into the Treasury, to refund so much of such fine, penalty, forfeiture, exaction, or charge as he may think proper, from any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated." (46 U. S. C. 8)

[55] "Enrolled or licensed vessels engaged in the foreign and coasting trade on the northern, northeastern, and northwestern frontiers of the United States, departing from or arriving at a port in one district to or from a port in another district, and also touching at intermediate foreign ports, shall not thereby become liable to the payment of entry and clearance fees, as if from or to foreign ports; but such vessels shall, notwithstanding, be required to enter and clear; except that when such vessels are on such voyages on the Great Lakes and touch at foreign ports for the purpose of taking on bunker fuel only, they may be exempted from entering and clearing under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner of Customs may prescribe, notwithstanding any other provision of law: Provided, That this exception shall not apply to such vessels if, while at such foreign port, they land or take on board any passengers, or any merchandise other than bunker fuel, receive orders, discharge any seamen by mutual consent, or engage any seamen to replace those discharged by mutual consent, or transact any other business save that of taking on bunker fuel." (19 U.S.C. 288)

[56] "If any passenger is unladen from any vessel or vehicle without a special license or permit therefor issued by the collector, the master of such vessel or the person in charge of such vehicle and every other person who knowingly is concerned, or who aids therein, shall each be liable to a penalty of $500 for each such passenger so unladen." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 454; 19 U. S. C. 1454)

cargo,[57] baggage,[57] or other article [58] shall be unladen from a vessel which arrives directly or indirectly from any port or place outside the customs territory of the United States and no cargo, baggage, or other article shall be laden [59] on a vessel destined to a port or place outside the customs territory of the United States, if customs supervision of such lading is required,[61] until the collector shall have issued a permit or special license therefor on customs Form 3171.

(b) Application for such a permit or special license shall be made by the master, owner, or agent of the vessel on customs Form 3171, and shall indicate the type of operations desired. An agent of a vessel may limit his application to operations involved in the entry and unlading of the vessel or to operations involved in its lading and clearance.

(c) No unlading [60] or lading [61] requiring customs supervision shall be done at night or on a Sunday or holiday unless the application on customs Form 3171 is supplemented by a request of the master, owner, or agent of the vessel for overtime services of customs officers and the request is approved by the collector. Such approval, together with the permit, shall constitute a special license. The request for overtime services of customs officers, if made at the time the application to unlade or lade is filed, may be on customs Form 3171 in the space provided therefor, but if made thereafter, shall be on customs Form 3853. Such request for overtime services must specify the nature of the services desired and the exact times when they will be needed, unless arrangements are made locally so that the proper customs officer will be seasonably notified during official hours in advance of the rendering of the services as to the nature of the services desired and the exact times that they will be needed. Such request shall not be approved unless the required cash deposit or bond [62] on customs Form 7567 or 7569 shall have been received, except that, when a carrier has on file a bond on customs Form 3587, no further bond shall be required solely by reason of the unlading or lading at night or on a Sunday or holiday of merchandise or baggage covered by bonded transportation entries. If a request for overtime services is limited as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section appropriate words such as "to enter and unlade", or "to lade and clear", shall be used in the request. Separate bonds shall be required if overtime services are requested by different principals.

(d) Except as prescribed in paragraph (f) or (g) of this section, a separate application for a permit or special license shall be filed in the case of each arrival. The permit or special license shall not become effective until the master shall have made preliminary or formal entry or, in the case of vessels not required to enter, the master shall have reported the arrival of the vessel.

(e) Stevedoring companies and others concerned in lading or unlading merchandise, or in removing or otherwise securing it, shall ascertain that the applicable preliminary customs requirements have been complied with before commencing such operations, since performance in the absence of such compliance renders them severally liable to the penalties prescribed in section 453, Tariff Act of 1930,[63] even though they may not be responsible for taking the action necessary to secure compliance.

(f) A special license on customs Form 3851 running for any period up to 1 month and in multiples of months thereafter but not to exceed 1 year nor longer than the period of the supporting bond may be granted to a carrier operating passenger vessels making three or more trips a week between a port in the United States and a foreign port, or to an owner or agent of vessels employed in the fisheries or used as ferryboats, including car ferries, to unlade merchandise, passengers, or baggage, or to lade merchandise or baggage in the case of any or all of such vessels at night or on a Sunday or holiday when customs supervision is required. The application for such a special license shall be on customs Form 3851 supplemented by a request on customs Form 3853 for overtime services of customs officers. Such request for overtime services must show the exact times when overtime services will be needed unless arrangements are made so that the proper customs officer will be seasonably notified during official hours in advance of the services requested as to the exact times that the services will be needed. The special license shall not be granted unless the required bond on customs Form 3587, 7567, or 7569 shall have been filed.

(g) The collector may also issue a permit running for any period up to 1 month, and in multiples of months thereafter but not to exceed 1 year, to unlade or lade vessels specified in paragraph (f) of this section during official hours. Customs Form 3851 (modified) shall be used for such purpose.

(h) A special license for the unlading or lading of a vessel at night shall be re-

[57] "* * * After the entry, preliminary or otherwise, of any vessel or report of the arrival of any vehicle, the collector may issue a permit to the matter of the vessel, or to the person in charge of the vehicle, to unlade merchandise or baggage, but except as provided in subdivision (b) of this section merchandise or baggage so unladen shall be retained at the place of unlading until entry therefor is made and a permit for its delivery granted, and the owners of the vessel or vehicle from which any imported merchandise is unladen prior to entry of such merchandise shall be liable for the payment of the duties accruing on any part thereof that may be removed from the place of unlading without a permit therefor having been issued. Any merchandise or baggage so unladen from any vessel or vehicle for which entry is not made within forty-eight hours exclusive of Sunday and holidays from the time of the entry of the vessel or report of the vehicle, unless a longer time is granted by the collector as provided in section 484, shall be sent to a bonded warehouse or the public stores and held as unclaimed at the risk and expense of the consignee in the case of merchandise and of the owner in the case of baggage, until entry thereof is made." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 448 (a); 19 U. S. C. 1448 (a))

[58] "Vessels arriving in the United States from foreign ports may retain on board, without the payment of duty, all coal and other fuel, supplies, ships' stores, sea stores, and the legitimate equipment of such vessels. Any such supplies, ships' stores, sea stores, or equipment landed and delivered from such vessel shall be considered and treated as imported merchandise: Provided, That bunker coal, bunker oil, ships' stores, sea stores, or the legitimate equipment of vessels belonging to regular lines plying between foreign ports and the United States, which are delayed in port for any cause, may be transferred under a permit by the collector and under customs supervision from the vessel so delayed to another vessel of the same line and owner, and engaged in the foreign trade, without the payment of duty thereon." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 446; 19 U. S. C. 1446)

The provisions of section 446, Tariff Act of 1930, do not apply to vessels of less than 5 net tons. (T. D. 45431)

[59] "If any merchandise or baggage is laden on, or unladen from, any vessel or vehicle without a special license or permit therefor issued by the collector, the master of such vessel or the person in charge of such vehicle and every other person who knowingly is concerned, or who aids therein, or in removing or otherwise securing such merchandise or baggage, shall each be liable to a penalty equal to the value of the merchandise or baggage so laden or unladen, and such merchandise or baggage shall be subject to forfeiture, and if the value thereof is $500 or more, the vessel or vehicle on or from which the same shall be laden or unladen shall be subject to forfeiture." (Tariff Act of 1930, section 453; 19 U. S. C. 1453)

[60] "No merchandise, baggage, or passengers arriving in the United States from any foreign port or place, and no bonded merchandise or baggage being transported from one port to another, shall be unladen from the carrying vessel or vehicle on Sunday, a holiday, or at night, except under special license granted by the collector under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe." (Tariff Act of 1930, section 450; 19 U. S. C. 1450)

The term "at night" includes the hours from 5 p. m. of any day to 8 a. m. of the following day.

[61] "No merchandise or baggage entered for transportation under bond or for exportation with the benefit of drawback, or other merchandise or baggage required to be laden under customs supervision, shall be laden on any vessel or vehicle at night or on Sunday or a holiday, except under special license therefor to be issued by the collector under the same conditions and limitations as pertain to the unlading of imported merchandise or merchandise being transported in bond." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 452, 19 U. S. C. 1452)

[62] "Before any such special license to unlade shall be granted, the master, owner, or agent of such vessel or vehicle, or the person in charge of such vehicle, shall be required to deposit sufficient money to pay, or to give a bond in an amount to be fixed by the Secretary conditioned to pay, the compensation and expenses of the customs officers and employees assigned to duty in connection with such unlading at night or on Sunday or a holiday, in accordance with the provisions of section 5 of the act of February 13, 1911, as amended (U. S. C., 1952 edition, title 19, sec. 267). In lieu of such deposit or bond the owner or agent of any vessel or vehicle or line of vessels or vehicles may execute a bond in an amount to be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury to cover and include the issuance of special licenses for the unlading of such vessels or vehicles for a period not to exceed one year. * * *" (Tariff Act of 1930, section 451, as amended, 19 U.S.C. 1451)

fused by the collector if the character of the merchandise or the conditions or facilities at the place of unlading or lading render the issuance of such special license dangerous to the revenue. In no case shall a special license for unlading or lading on a Sunday or holiday be granted except on the ground of commercial necessity.

(i) The collector shall not issue a permit to unlade cargo or equipment of vessels arriving directly or indirectly from any port or place outside the customs territory of the United States, except on compliance with one or more of the following conditions:

(1) The merchandise shall have been duly entered and permits issued; or

(2) A vessel bond on customs Form 7567 or 7569 shall have been given; or

(3) The merchandise is to be discharged into the custody of the collector of customs as provided for in section 490 (b), Tariff Act of 1930.[65]

(j) Bonds are not required under this section for vessels owned by the United States and operated for its account.

(k) In the case of vessels of 5 net tons or over which are used exclusively as pleasure vessels and which arrive from any country, the collector in his discretion and under such conditions as he deems advisable may allow the required application for unlading passengers and baggage to be made orally, and may authorize his inspectors to grant oral permission for unlading at any time, and to grant requests on Form 3853 for overtime services.

(R.S. 2793, as amended, secs. 446, 448, 450–454, 490, 46 Stat. 713, 714, 715, as amended, 716, 726; 19 U.S.C. 288, 1446, 1448, 1450–1454, 1490)

§ 4.31 Unlading or transshipment due to casualty.

(a) When any cargo or stores of a vessel have been unladen or transshipped at any place in the United States or its customs waters other than a port of entry because of accident, stress of weather, or other necessity, no penalty shall be imposed under section 453 [66] or 586 (a),[66] Tariff Act of 1930, if due notice is given to the collector of customs at the port at which the vessel thereafter first arrives and satisfactory proof is submitted to him as provided for in section 586 (f), Tariff Act of 1930, as amended.[66] The collector may accept the certificates of the master and two or more officers or members of the crew of the vessel, of whom the person next to the master in command shall be one, as proof that the unlading or transshipment was necessary by reason of unavoidable cause.

(b) The collector may then permit entry of the vessel and its cargo and permit the unlading of the cargo in such place in his district as he may deem proper. Unless its transportation has been in violation of the coastwise laws, the cargo may be cleared through customs at the port where it is discharged or forwarded to the port of original destination under an entry for immediate transportation or for transportation and exportation, as the case may be. All regulations shall apply in such cases as if the unlading and delivery took place at the port of original destination.

§ 4.32 Vessels in distress; landing of cargo.

(a) When a vessel from a foreign port arrives in distress at a port other than that to which it is destined, a permit to land merchandise or baggage may be issued if such action is necessary. Merchandise and baggage so unladen shall be taken into customs custody and, if it has not been transported in violation of the coastwise laws, may be entered and disposed of in the same manner as any other imported merchandise or may be reladen without entry to be carried to its destination on the vessel from which it was unladen, subject only to charges for storage and safekeeping.

(b) A bond on customs Form 7567 shall be given in an amount to be determined by the collector to insure the proper disposition of the cargo, whether such cargo be dutiable or free.

(Sec. 449, 46 Stat. 714; 19 U.S.C. 1449)

§ 4.33 Diversion of cargo.

(a) If an emergency exists at the port of destination and authority under section 449, Tariff Act of 1930,[67] is desired for a collector to permit a vessel which has entered with imported merchandise or baggage shown by the manifest to be destined to his port to proceed to another port of entry in accordance with the residue-cargo bond procedure, the owner or the agent of the vessel shall make written application for such authorization stating the reasons and agreeing to hold the collector and the Government harmless for such diversion.

(b) Merchandise and baggage unladen at the second port under these circumstances may be (1) entered in the same manner as other imported merchandise and baggage, (2) treated as unclaimed, or (3) reladen without entry for transportation to its original destination.

(c) The inward foreign manifest of a vessel may be changed at any time following entry of the vessel to substitute domestic ports for either other domestic or foreign ports as ports of discharge of the merchandise shown on the inward foreign manifest. A written application for the diversion shall be made by the master, owner, or agent of the vessel to the collector of the port where the vessel is located, after entry of the vessel at that port. An amended manifest under oath covering the merchandise which it is desired to divert shall be furnished in support of the application. The amended manifest shall be filed in such number of copies as the collector may require for local customs purposes. The certified traveling manifest shall not be altered or added to in any way by the master or agent. When an application to divert to another port for discharge is approved by a collector for an intermediate port, he shall securely attach an approved copy of the application and a copy of the amended manifest to the traveling manifest and shall send one copy of the amended manifest to the collector at the port where the vessel's bond was filed.

[65] "At the request of the consignee of any merchandise, or of the owner or master of the vessel, or the person in charge of the vehicle in which the same is imported, any merchandise may be taken possession of by the collector after the expiration of one day after the entry of the vessel or report of the vehicle and may be unladen and held at the risk and expense of the consignee until entry thereof is made." (Tariff Act of 1930, section 490 (b); 19 U. S. C. 1490 (b))

[66] "If any merchandise or baggage is laden on, or unladen from, any vessel or vehicle without a special license or permit therefor issued by the collector, the master of such vessel or the person in charge of such vehicle and every other person who knowingly is concerned, or who aids therein, or in removing or otherwise securing such merchandise or baggage, shall each be liable to a penalty equal to the value of the merchandise or baggage so laden or unladen, and such merchandise or baggage shall be subject to forfeiture, and if the value thereof is $500 or more, the vessel or vehicle on or from which the same shall be laden or unladen shall be subject to forfeiture." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 453; 19 U. S. C. 1453)

[66] "The master of any vessel from a foreign port or place who allows any merchandise (including sea stores) to be unladen from such vessel at any time after its arrival within the customs waters and before such vessel has come to the proper place for the discharge of such merchandise and before he has received a permit to unlade, shall be liable to a penalty equal to twice the value of the merchandise but not less than $1,000, and such vessel and its cargo and the merchandise so unladen shall be seized and forfeited." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 586 (a), as amended; 19 U. S. C. 1586 (a))

[66] "Whenever any part of the cargo or stores of a vessel has been unladen or transshipped because of accident, stress of weather, or other necessity, the master of such vessel and the master of any vessel to which such cargo or stores has been transshipped shall, as soon as possible thereafter, notify the collector of the district within which such unlading or transshipment has occurred, or the collector within the district at which such vessel shall first arrive thereafter, and shall furnish proof that such unlading or transshipment was made necessary by accident, stress of weather, or other unavoidable cause, and if the collector is satisfied that the unlading or transshipment was in fact due to accident, stress of weather, or other necessity, the penalties described in this section shall not be incurred." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 586 (f), as amended, 19 U. S. C. 1586 (f))

[67] "Except as provided in sections 442 and 447 of this Act (relating to residue cargo and to bulk cargo, respectively), merchandise and baggage imported in any vessel by sea shall be unladen at the port of entry to which such vessel is destined, unless (1) such vessel is compelled by any cause to put into another port of entry, and the collector of such port issues a permit for the unlading of such merchandise or baggage, or (2) the Secretary of the Treasury, because of an emergency existing at the port of destination, authorizes such vessel to proceed to another port of entry. Merchandise and baggage so unladen may be entered in the same manner as other imported merchandise or baggage and may be treated as unclaimed merchandise or baggage and stored at the expense and risk of the owner thereof, or may be reladen without entry upon the vessel from which it was unladen for transportation to its destination." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 449; 19 U. S. C. 1449)

(d) If, as the result of a strike or other emergency at a United States port for which inward foreign cargo is manifested, it is desired to retain the cargo on board the vessel for discharge at a foreign port but with the purpose of having the goods returned to the United States, an application to amend the vessel's manifest under a procedure like that described in paragraph (c) of this section, except to substitute a foreign for the domestic port named as the port of discharge, may be made by the master, owner, or agent of the vessel. If the application is approved, it shall thereafter be handled in the same manner as an application filed under paragraph (c) of this section. However, before approving the application, the collector is authorized to require such bond as he deems necessary to insure that export control laws and regulations are not circumvented.

§ 4.34 Prematurely discharged, overcarried, and undelivered cargo.

(a) On written application of the owner or agent of a vessel, the collector may permit inward foreign cargo remaining on the dock, which was prematurely landed and left behind by the importing vessel, to be reladen on board the next available vessel of the same line on which it may be forwarded to the destination shown on the inward foreign manifest of the first vessel, provided the importing vessel actually entered the port of destination of the prematurely landed cargo. Unless so forwarded within 30 days from the date of landing, such cargo shall be appropriately entered for customs clearance or for forwarding in bond; otherwise, it shall be sent to general order as unclaimed.

(b) The collector may permit merchandise not landed at destination and overcarried to another domestic port through error or on account of an emergency to be returned in the importing vessel, or in another vessel of the same line, to the destination shown on the inward foreign manifest of the importing vessel, provided that vessel actually entered the port of such destination.[67a]

(c) Cargo so stowed as to be inaccessible upon arrival at destination may be retained on board, carried forward to another domestic port or ports, and returned to the port of destination in the importing vessel or in another vessel of the same line in the same manner as other overcarried cargo.

(d) When it is desired that prematurely landed or overcarried cargo be forwarded to destination by the importing vessel or by another vessel of the same line in accordance with paragraph (a), (b), or (c) of this section, an application therefor shall be filed with the local collector by the owner or agent of the vessel. Such application shall be supported by a manifest of the cargo in such number of copies as the collector may require under a residue cargo procedure as hereinafter described. Whenever practicable, the application shall be made on the face of the manifest below the description of the merchandise, if there is sufficient space therefor. The manifest shall specify the vessel on which the cargo was imported even though the forwarding to destination is by another vessel of the same line. The application shall be stamped and signed to show its approval.

(e) One copy of the manifest shall be certified by customs for use as a separate traveling manifest for the prematurely landed or overcarried cargo being forwarded as residue cargo, whether or not the forwarding vessel is also carrying other residue cargo. If application for forwarding to destination is made on the manifest, the new substitute traveling manifest shall be stamped to show the approval of the application thereon or if the application is on a separate document a copy thereof stamped to show its approval shall be attached to the substitute traveling manifest. A separate certificate on customs Form 3221 shall be attached to each such traveling manifest. An appropriate cross-reference shall be made on customs Form 3221 to show whether any other traveling manifest is being carried forward on the same vessel.

(f) A certificate (Customs Form 3221) signed by the collector and bearing notations suitably identifying the cargo as prematurely landed or overcarried cargo shall be attached to the substitute traveling manifest. The Form 3221 shall state the ports of departure and dates of sailing of the importing vessel. The permit to proceed, customs Form 1385, issued to the vessel transporting to destination the prematurely landed or overcarried cargo shall make reference to the nature of such cargo, identifying it with the importing vessel.

(g) A vessel with such prematurely landed or overcarried cargo on board shall comply upon arrival at each intermediate port and at destination with all the requirements of this part relating to foreign residue cargo for domestic ports. When such prematurely landed or overcarried cargo arrives at the port of destination under an approved application and substitute traveling manifest, the collector shall check to see whether the cargo covered by the application and substitute traveling manifest was included in the manifest filed on the original entry of the importing vessel at the first port of entry in the United States, to determine whether a post entry to the original manifest is required. The substitute traveling manifest, carried forward from port to port by the oncarrying vessel, shall be finally surrendered at the port where the last portion of the prematurely landed or overcarried cargo is discharged.

(h) Merchandise shipped from a domestic port, but undelivered at the foreign destination and brought back, shall be manifested as "Undelivered—To be returned to original foreign destination," if such return is intended. The collector may issue a permit to retain such merchandise on board, or he may, upon written application of the steamship company issue a permit on customs Form 7500–A allowing such merchandise to be transferred to another vessel for return to the original foreign destination. No charge shall be made against the vessel bond. The items shall be remanifested outward and an explanatory reference of the attending circumstances and compliance with export requirements noted.

§ 4.35 Unlading outside port of entry.

(a) Upon written application from the interested party, the collector of customs concerned, if he considers it necessary, may permit any vessel laden with merchandise in bulk to proceed, after entry, to any place outside the port where the vessel entered which such collector may designate for the purpose of unlading such cargo.[68]

(b) In such case a deposit of a sum sufficient to reimburse the Government for the compensation, travel, and subsistence expenses of the officers detailed to supervise the unlading and delivery of the cargo may be required by the collector.

(Sec. 447, 46 Stat. 714; 19 U.S.C. 1447)

§ 4.36 Delayed discharge of cargo.

(a) When pursuant to section 457, Tariff Act of 1930,[69] customs officers are placed on a vessel which has retained merchandise on board more than 25 days after the date of the vessel's arrival, their compensation and subsistence expenses shall be reimbursed to the Government by the owner or master.

(b) The compensation of all customs officers and employees assigned to supervise the discharge of a cargo within the purview of section 458, Tariff Act of 1930,[70] after the expiration of 25 days

[67a] See § 8.4 (h) of this chapter for the conditions under which such merchandise and goods removed from a port of intended entry under these or certain other circumstances may subsequently be cleared under a consumption entry which had been filed therefor before the merchandise was removed from the port of intended entry.

[68] "It shall be unlawful • • • to unlade the cargo or any part thereof of any vessel elsewhere than at a port of entry: Provided, • • • That any vessel laden with merchandise in bulk may proceed after entry of such vessel to any place designated by the Secretary of the Treasury for the purpose of unlading such cargo, under the supervision of customs officers if the collector shall consider the same necessary, and in such case the compensation and expenses of such officers shall be reimbursed to the Government by the party in interest." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 447; 19 U. S. C. 1447)

[69] "Whenever any merchandise remains on board any vessel or vehicle from a foreign port more than twenty-five days after the date on which report of said vessel or vehicle was made, the collector may take possession of such merchandise and cause the same to be unladen at the expense and risk of the owners thereof, or may place one or more inspectors or other customs officers on board of said vessel or vehicle to protect the revenue. The compensation and expenses of any such inspector or customs officer for subsistence while on board of such vessel or vehicle shall be reimbursed to the Government by the owner or master of such vessel or vehicle." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 457; 19 U. S. C. 1457)

[70] "The limitation of time for unlading shall not extend to vessels laden exclusively with merchandise in bulk consigned to one consignee and arriving at a port for orders, but if the master of such vessel requests a longer time to discharge its cargo, the compensation of the inspectors or other customs offi-

after the date of the vessel's entry shall be reimbursed to the Government by the owner or master of the vessel.

(c) When a cargo within the purview of the proviso to the first subdivision of section 431, Tariff Act of 1930 [71] is manifested "for orders" upon the arrival of the vessel, no amendment of the manifest to show another port of discharge shall be permitted after 15 days after the date of the vessel's arrival, except as provided for in § 4.33.

(d) All reimbursements payable in accordance with this section shall be paid or secured to the collector before clearance is granted to the vessel.

(R.S. 4206, secs. 431, 457, 458, 46 Stat. 710, as amended, 716, 717; 19 U.S.C. 1431, 1457, 1458, 46 U.S.C. 100)

§ 4.37 Lay order; general order.

(a) Any merchandise or baggage regularly landed but not covered by a permit for its release shall be allowed to remain on the wharf or pier until 5 p.m. on the fifth working day after the day the vessel was entered.[72] At the expiration of such period, any merchandise or baggage so remaining shall be deposited in the public stores or a general-order warehouse, except that, at the written request of the owner, agent, or master of the vessel, filed in duplicate on customs Form 3189, and at the risk of the owner of the vessel, the collector may issue a lay order allowing such merchandise or baggage to remain on the wharf or pier properly protected for a further period, which shall be specified in the order. The application for an initial lay order to allow the merchandise to remain on the wharf or pier beyond the fifth working day may be included, if the collector approves, in the space provided therefor in the application made on customs Form 3171 for a permit to lade or unlade.

(b) All merchandise or baggage unladen from a vessel for which no permit has been received before expiration of the original 5-day period, or extension thereof, shall be sent to the public stores or a general-order warehouse and held as unclaimed at the risk and expense of the consignee or owner.[73]

(c) Merchandise unladen after the expiration of the 25-day period prescribed in section 457, Tariff Act of 1930, for which no customs permit has been presented to the discharging inspector, shall be sent forthwith by the collector to the public stores or a general-order warehouse and stored at the expense and risk of the owner of such merchandise.[74]

(d) Merchandise taken into the custoday of the collector pursuant to section 490 (b), Tariff Act of 1930,[74] shall be sent to the public stores or a general-order warehouse after 1 day after the day the vessel was entered, to be held there at the risk and expense of the owner.

(e) Any merchandise which is apt to decrease in weight after importation shall be weighed before it is deposited in the public stores or a general-order warehouse.

(Secs. 448, 457, 490, 46 Stat. 714, 716, 726; 19 U.S.C. 1448, 1457, 1490)

§ 4.38 Release of cargo.

(a) No imported merchandise shall be released from customs custody until a permit to release such merchandise has been granted. Such permit shall be issued by the collector only after the merchandise has been entered and, except as provided for in § 8.28(c) or § 8.59 of this chapter, the duties thereon, if any, have been estimated and paid.

(b) When packages of merchandise bear marks or numbers which differ from those appearing on the manifest of the importing vessel for the same packages and the importer or a receiving bonded carrier, with the concurrence of the importing carrier, makes application for their release under such marks or numbers, either for consumption or for transportation in bond under an entry filed therefor at the port of discharge from the importing vessel, the collector may approve the application upon condition (1) that the contents of the packages be identified with an invoice or transportation entry as set forth below and (2) that the applicant furnish at his own expense any bonded cartage or lighterage service which the granting of the application may require. The application shall be in writing in such number of copies as may be required for local customs purposes. Before permitting delivery of packages under such an application, the collector shall cause such examination thereof to be made as will reasonably identify the contents with the invoice filed with the consumption entry. If the merchandise is entered for transportation in bond without the filing of an invoice, such examination shall be made as will reasonably identify the contents of the packages with the transportation entry.

§ 4.39 Stores and equipment of vessels and crews' effects; unlading or lading and retention on board.

(a) The provisions of § 4.30 relating to unlading under a permit on customs Form 3171 are applicable to the unlading of articles, other than cargo or baggage, which have been laden on a vessel outside the customs territory of the United States, regardless of the trade in which the vessel may be engaged at the time of unlading, except that such provisions do not apply to such articles which have already been entered.

(b) Any articles other than cargo or baggage landed for delivery for consumption in the United States shall be treated in the same manner as other imported articles.[75] A notation as to the landing of such articles, together with the number of the entry made therefor, shall be made on the vessel's store list, but such notation shall not subject the articles to the requirement of being included in a post entry to the manifest.

(c) Bags or dunnage constituting equipment of a vessel may be landed temporarily and reladen on such vessel under customs supervision without entry.

(d) Articles claimed to be sea or ships' stores which are in excess of the reasonable requirements of the vessel on which they are found shall be treated as cargo of such vessel.

(e) Under section 446, Tariff Act of 1930, collectors may permit narcotic drugs, except smoking opium, in reasonable quantities and properly listed as medical stores to remain on board vessels if satisfied that such drugs are adequately safeguarded and used only as medical supplies.

(f) Application for permission to transfer bunkers, stores, or equipment cers whose services are required in connection with the unlading shall, for every day consumed in unlading in excess of twenty-five (25) days from the date of the vessel's entry, be reimbursed by the master or owner of such vessel." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 458; 19 U. S. C. 1458)

[71] "• • • the master of any vessel laden exclusively with coal, sugar, salt, nitrates, hides, dyewoods, wool, or other merchandise in bulk consigned to one owner and arriving at a port for orders, may destine such cargo 'for orders,' and within 15 days thereafter, but before the unlading of any part of the cargo such manifest may be amended by the master by designating the port or ports of discharge of such cargo, and in the event of failure to amend the manifest within the time permitted such cargo must be discharged at the port at which the vessel arrived and entered. • • •" (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 431; 19 U. S. C. 1431)

[72] "• • • After the entry, preliminary or otherwise, of any vessel or report of the arrival of any vehicle, the collector may issue a permit to the master of the vessel, or to the person in charge of the vehicle, to unlade merchandise or baggage, but except as provided in subdivision (h) of this section merchandise or baggage so unladen shall be retained at the place of unlading until entry therefor is made and a permit for its delivery granted, and the owners of the vessel or vehicle from which any imported merchandise is unladen prior to entry of such merchandise shall be liable for the payment of the duties accruing on any part thereof that may be removed from the place of unlading without a permit therefor having been issued. Any merchandise or baggage so unladen from any vessel or vehicle for which entry is not made within forty-eight hours exclusive of Sunday and holidays from the time of the enry of the vessel or report of the vehicle, unless a longer time is granted by the collector, as provided in section 484, shall be sent to a bonded warehouse or the public stores and held as unclaimed at the risk and expense of the consignee in the case of merchandise and of the owner in the case of baggage until entry thereof is made." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 448 (a); 19 U. S. C. 1448 (a))

[73] "Whenever entry of any imported merchandise is not made within the time provided by law or the regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, or whenever entry of such merchandise is incomplete because of failure to pay the estimated duties, or whenever, in the opinion of the collector, entry of such merchandise cannot be made for want of proper documents or other cause, or whenever the collector believes that any merchandise is not correctly and legally invoiced, he shall take the merchandise into his custody and send it to a bonded warehouse or public store, to be held at the risk and expense of the consignee until entry is made or completed and the proper documents are produced, or a bond given for their production." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 490 (a); 19 U. S. C. 1490 (a)) as provided for in the proviso to section 446, Tariff Act of 1930, shall be made and the permit therefor granted on customs Form 3171.

§ 4.40 Equipment, etc., from wrecked or dismantled vessels.

Ship's or sea stores, supplies, and equipment of a vessel wrecked either in the waters of the United States or outside such waters, on being recovered and brought into a United States port, and like articles landed from a vessel dismantled in a United States port shall be subject to the same customs treatment as would apply if the articles were landed from a vessel arriving in the ordinary course of trade. Parts of the hull and fittings recovered from a vessel which arrived in the United States in the course of navigation and was wrecked in the waters of the United States or was dismantled in this country are free of duties and import taxes, but if such articles are recovered from vessels outside the waters of the United States and brought into a United States port, they shall be treated as imported merchandise.

(Sec. 446, 46 Stat. 713; 19 U.S.C. 1446)

§ 4.41 Cargo of wrecked vessel.

(a) Any cargo landed from a vessel wrecked in the waters of the United States or on the high seas shall be subject at the port of entry to the same entry requirements and privileges as the cargo of a vessel regularly arriving in the foreign trade. In lieu of an inward foreign manifest to cover such cargo, the owner, underwriter (if the merchandise has been abandoned to him), or the salvor of the merchandise shall make written application for permission to enter the wrecked cargo, and any such applicant shall be regarded as the consignee of the merchandise for customs purposes."

(b) All such merchandise shall be taken into possession by the collector of the port in which it shall first arrive and be retained in his custody pending entry. If it is not entered by the person entitled to make entry, or is not disposed of pursuant to court order, it shall be subject to sale as unclaimed merchandise.

(c) If such merchandise is from a vessel which has been sunk in waters of the United States for 2 years or more and has been abandoned by the owner, any person who has salvaged the cargo shall be permitted to enter the merchandise in the district in which the vessel was wrecked free of duty upon the facts being established to the satisfaction of the collector at the port of entry." Any other such merchandise is subject to the same tariff classification as like merchandise regularly imported in the ordinary course of trade.

(d) If the merchandise is libeled for salvage,[77] the collector shall notify the United States attorney of the claim of the United States for duties, and request him to intervene for such duties.

PASSENGERS ON VESSELS

§ 4.50 Passenger lists.

(a) The master of every vessel arriving at a port of the United States from foreign territory and required to make entry, except a vessel arriving from Canada, otherwise than by sea, at a port on the Great Lakes, or their connecting or tributary waters,[78] shall submit a passenger and crew list as required by § 4.7 (c). If the vessel is arriving from noncontiguous foreign territory and is carrying steerage passengers, the additional information respecting such passengers required by customs and immigration Form I–418 shall be included therein.

(b) A passenger within the meaning of this part, except § 4.51, is any person carried on a vessel who is not connected with the operation of such vessel, her navigation, ownership, or business. (Sec. 9, 22 Stat. 189, as amended, sec. 431, 46 Stat. 710, as amended; 19 U.S.C. 1431, 46 U.S.C. 158)

§ 4.51 Examination of vessels with steerage passengers.

The collector (the surveyor at New York) of the port at which any vessel carrying steerage passengers arrives from noncontiguous foreign territory shall direct an officer to make an examination of the vessel and to admeasure the compartments or spaces occupied by passengers [85] other than cabin passengers during the voyage for the purpose of enforcing the Passenger Act of 1882 (46 U.S.C. 151–162). Such admeasurement shall be made in the manner provided by law for admeasuring vessels for tonnage. Such officer shall compare the number of passengers found on board with the list of passengers furnished on customs and immigration Form I–418 by the master to the collector and shall make a report on customs Form 1462 in duplicate to the collector (through the surveyor at New York) who shall forward one copy to the Commissioner of Customs.

(Sec. 11, 22 Stat. 190, as amended; 46 U.S.C. 160)

§ 4.52 Deaths of passengers.

The penalty of $50 provided for in section 10 of the Passenger Act of 1882 (46 U.S.C. 159) shall be imposed upon the master or agent of every vessel bringing steerage passengers from noncontiguous foreign territory unless there is paid to the collector, within 24 hours after the entry of the vessel, $10 for every death by natural disease which occurred on board the vessel among such passengers over 8 years of age during the voyage and prior to the arrival of the vessel within the collection district.

(Sec. 10, 22 Stat. 190; 46 U.S.C. 159)

FOREIGN CLEARANCES

§ 4.60 Vessels required to clear.

(a) Except as otherwise povided for in this section, every vessel bound for a foreign port or ports shall be cleared [90] for a definite port or ports in the order of its itinerary, but an application to clear for a port or place for orders, that is, for instructions to masters as to destination of the vessel, may be accepted if the vessel is in ballast or if any cargo on board is to be discharged in a port of the same country as the port for which clearance is sought.

(b) The following vessels are not required to clear:

(1) A licensed yacht or undocumented American pleasure vessel not engaged in trade nor in any way violating the customs or navigation laws of the United States.[90]

[76] "• • • The underwriters of abandoned merchandise and the salvors of merchandise saved from a wreck at sea or on or along a coast of the United States may be regarded as the consignees. • • •" (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 483; 19 U. S. C. 1483)

[77] "Whenever any vessel laden with merchandise, in whole or in part subject to duty, has been sunk in any river, harbor, bay, or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, and within its limits, for the period of two years and is abandoned by the owner thereof, any person who may raise such vessel shall be permitted to bring any merchandise recovered therefrom into the port nearest to the place where such vessel was so raised free from the payment of any duty thereupon, but under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe." (Tariff Act of 1930, sec. 310; 19 U. S. C. 1310)

[77] Salvors have an uncertain interest in the goods salved, dependent upon the decree of a competent tribunal, and have a presumptive right without such decree to possession of merchandise salved by them from abandoned wrecks. The salvors are entitled in either case to make entry of derelict or wrecked goods.

[78] "Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, no collector of customs shall require a master or owner of a vessel arriving, otherwise than by sea, at a port or place in the United States on the Great Lakes, or their connecting or tributary waters, from a port or place in the Dominion of Canada to furnish a list of passengers on board such vessel." (60 Stat. 882)

[85] For the purposes of this section and the Passenger Act of 1882, the term "passenger" has the meaning stated in § 4.50 (b), except that it does not include any person under 1 year of age nor any person picked up at sea, and two children between 1 and 8 years of age shall be counted as one passenger.

[90] "The master or person having the charge or command of any vessel bound to a foreign port shall deliver to the collector of the district from which such vessel is about to depart a manifest of all the cargo on board the same, and the value thereof, by him subscribed, and shall swear to the truth thereof; whereupon the collector shall grant a clearance for such vessel and her cargo, but without specifying the particulars thereof in the clearance, unless required by the master or other person having the charge or command of such vessel so to do. If any vessel bound to a foreign port (other than a licensed yacht or an undocumented American pleasure vessel not engaged in any trade nor in any way violating the customs or navigation laws of the United States) departs from any port or place in the United States without a clearance, or if the master delivers a false manifest, or does not answer truly the questions demanded of him, or, having received a clearance adds to the cargo of such vessel without having mentioned in the report outwards the intention to do so, or if the departure of the vessel is delayed beyond the second day after obtaining clearance without reporting the delay to the collector, the master or other person having the charge or command of such vessel shall be liable to a penalty of not more than $1,000 or less than $500, or if the

(2) Any vessel under frontier enrollment and license which during a voyage on the Great Lakes will touch at a foreign port only for taking on bunker fuel.[91] (See § 4.62.)

(3) A vessel exempted from entry by section 441, Tariff Act of 1930.[92] (See § 4.5.)

(4) A vessel of less than 5 net tons which departs from the United States to proceed to a contiguous country otherwise than by sea.

cargo consists in any part of narcotic drugs, or any spirits, wines, or other alcoholic liquors (sea stores excepted), a penalty of not more than $5,000 nor less than $1,000 for each offense, and the vessel shall be detained in any port of the United States until the said penalty is paid or secured: * * *" (46 U. S. C. 91)

"Whenever, under any provision or provisions of any statute of the United States, it is made the duty of the masters of vessels to make entry and clearance of same, it shall be lawful for such duties to be performed by any licensed deck officer or purser of such vessel; and when such duties are performed by a licensed deck officer or purser of such vessel, such acts shall have the same force and effect as if performed by masters of such vessels: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall relieve the master of any penalty or liability provided by any statute relating to the entry or clearance of vessels." (46 U. S. C. 91a) (For clearance via domestic ports, see § 4.87.)

[91] "Enrolled or licensed vessels engaged in the foreign and coasting trade on the northern, northeastern, and northwestern frontiers of the United States, departing from or arriving at a port in one district to or from a port in another district, and also touching at intermediate foreign ports, shall not thereby become liable to the payment of entry and clearance fees, as if from or to foreign ports; but such vessel shall, notwithstanding, be required to enter and clear; except that when such vessels are on such voyages on the Great Lakes and touch at foreign ports for the purpose of taking on bunker fuel only, they may be exempted from entering and clearing under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, notwithstanding any other provisions of law: Provided, That this exception shall not apply to such vessels if, while at such foreign port, they land or take on board any passengers, or any merchandise other than bunker fuel, receive orders, discharge any seamen by mutual consent, or engage any seamen to replace those discharged by mutual consent, or transact any other business save that of taking on bunker fuel." (19 U. S. C. 288.)

[92] See footnote 5, § 4.3.

(c) For the purposes of the laws relating to clearance of vessels, the Canal Zone is foreign territory. The certificate of clearance on customs Form 1378 shall be modified by striking out "to a foreign port" and substituting "to the Canal Zone." Vessels which will merely transit the Canal Zone without transacting any business there shall not be required to be cleared because of such transit. A vessel under enrollment and license or license is permitted to trade with the Canal Zone.

(d) In the event that departure is delayed beyond the second day after clearance, the delay shall be reported within 72 hours after clearance to the collector who shall note the fact of detention on the certificate of clearance and on the official record of clearance. When the proposed voyage is canceled after clearance, the reason therefor shall be reported in writing within 24 hours after such cancellation and the certificate of clearance and related papers shall be surrendered.

(e) No vessel shall be cleared for the high seas.[93]

(R.S. 2793, as amended, 4197, as amended; 19 U.S.C. 288, 46 U.S.C. 91, 111, 123)

Clearance shall be granted on customs Form 1378.

(R.S. 4197, as amended, 4200, as amended, 32 Stat. 172, 72 Stat. 1736; 46 U.S.C. 91, 92, 95, 883–1)

§ 4.85 Vessels with residue cargo for domestic ports.

(a) Any foreign vessel or vessel of the United States under register or frontier enrollment and license, arriving from a foreign port with cargo or passengers manifested for ports in the United States other than the port of first arrival, may proceed with such cargo or passengers from port to port provided a vessel bond (customs Form 7567 and 7569) in a suitable amount is on file with the collector at the port of first entry.[115]

(b) Before a vessel proceeds from one domestic port to another with cargo or passengers on board as described in the preceding paragraph, the master shall present to the collector at such port of departure an application in triplicate on customs Form 1385 with subdivision 1 properly executed as an application for a permit to proceed to the next port of call. Each application shall be accompanied by customs Form 3221, Certificate on Vessel Proceeding to Another Port With Foreign Cargo, in duplicate (in triplicate at the first port on the opposite coast when the optional port of delivery procedure provided for by § 4.86 has been followed), with the information called for by the form shown thereon in conformity with the data shown on the oath filed at the first port of entry by the master on customs Form 3251 (see § 4.9 (a)). However, at subsequent ports of departure, the required certificate on customs Form 3221 may bear the following notation in lieu of showing foreign ports and dates of departure therefrom:

For foreign ports and dates of departure therefrom, see attached Form 3221 issued at ----------, the first domestic port of entry. These movements shall be recorded as foreign transactions.

Upon the execution of subdivision 2 of Form 1385 as a permit to proceed, the second and third copies thereof shall be returned to the master for filing at the next domestic port of call. There shall also be returned to the master the vessel's document, if on deposit and a copy of the complete inward foreign manifest of the vessel certified at the first port of entry (referred to hereinafter as the traveling manifest),[116] to which shall be attached one of the copies of each certificate on Form 3221, signed by the collector at the port of issuance. If no inward foreign cargo or passengers are to be discharged at the next port of call, that fact shall be indicated on customs Forms 1385 and 3221 by inserting after the name of the port to which the vessel is to proceed the phrase to "load only" in parentheses. The name of that port will not appear in section (a) of subdivision 1 of Form 1385 or in the list of ports for which cargo or passengers are destined in the body of Form 3221. The part of the traveling manifest, which covers articles acquired abroad by the officers and members of the crew (curio list), together with the unused crew declarations prepared for such articles, shall be placed in a sealed envelope addressed to the customs boarding officer at the next port of call and given to the master of the vessel for delivery.

(c) Upon the arrival of a vessel at the next and each succeeding domestic port with inward foreign cargo or passengers still on board, the master shall report arrival and shall make entry within 24 hours. To make such entry subdivision 3 of customs Form 1385 received by the master on clearance from the preceding port shall be completely executed by him and both copies thereof presented to the collector. The master shall also present to the collector the master's oath on customs Form 3251, the traveling manifest with the certificates on Form 3221 signed by the collectors at the preceding ports,[117] a manifest (in such number of copies as may be required for local customs purposes) of any cargo or passengers on board manifested for discharge at that port (referred to hereinafter as an abstract manifest), or a "pro forma" manifest if no inward foreign cargo or passengers are to be discharged at that port, and lists in duplicate of all unentered articles acquired abroad by the officers and members of the crew which are still on board and of the stores remaining on board. The traveling crew purchase manifest (curio list), together with the crew declarations, furnished by the prior port of call to the master shall be delivered by him to the boarding officer. In the case of a vessel arriving at the first port on the coast with cargo manifested on the opposite coast as being for optional ports of delivery as provided for by § 4.86, a manifest in original only of all inward foreign cargo remaining on board with the ports of actual intended discharge designated shall be furnished by the master on entering his vessel. The traveling manifest shall serve the purpose of a copy of an abstract manifest at the port where it is finally surrendered. The abstract or "pro forma" manifest shall be ready for presentation to the customs boarding officer upon the arrival of the vessel at the port. The "pro forma" manifest shall be on customs Form 7527–A or B bearing the following legend:

Vessel on an inward foreign voyage with residue cargo for ----------. No cargo or passengers for discharge at this port.

No additional vessel bond on customs Form 7567 or 7569 need be filed at subsequent ports of entry.

(d) If any error or omission in the preparation of the Form 3221 is discovered after clearance of the vessel from the port of first arrival, it shall be corrected by the master or agent of the vessel by filing a supplemental oath on customs Form 3251 with the collector at the port where the error or omission is first discovered. That collector shall notify the collector at any preceding port of the correction and forward the supplemental oath to the collector at the port of first arrival.

(e) The original traveling manifest, together with the signed certificates on customs Form 3221 which were attached thereto at preceding domestic ports of call, shall be finally surrendered to the collector at the port of final discharge in the United States of inward foreign cargo for which a substitute traveling manifest has not been issued under § 4.34 (e) for retention in the collector's files, unless residue foreign cargo remains on board for discharge at a foreign port or ports, in which case the original traveling manifest shall be so surrendered to the collector at the final port of departure from the United States with any such cargo on board, regardless of whether the vessel proceeds to an intermediate foreign port under § 4.89. The traveling crew purchase manifest (curio list) shall be finally surrendered to the boarding officer or collector at the port where the vessel first departs directly for a foreign port.

(Sec. 439, 442, 443, 444, 623, 46 Stat. 712 as amended, 713, 759, as amended; 19 U.S.C. 1439, 1442, 1443, 1444, 1623)

§ 4.86 Intercoastal residue-cargo procedure; optional ports.

(a) When a vessel arrives at an Atlantic or Pacific coast port from a foreign port with cargo for delivery at optional ports on the opposite coast and the master, owner, or agent is unable at that time to designate the specific port or ports of discharge, the manifest filed on entry shall show all such optional ports of discharge. The traveling manifest shall show all the optional ports of delivery. Upon arrival at the first port on the opposite coast, the privilege of optional port of delivery expires and the master, owner, or agent shall then designate the port or ports where the residue cargo is to be discharged as required by section 431, Tariff Act of 1930. For this purpose, a manifest in original only of all inward foreign cargo remaining on board with the ports of actual intended discharge designated shall be furnished by the master along with the other documents required on entry of his vessel. The traveling manifest shall be amended to show the designated ports of discharge and shall be used to verify the abstract manifests surrendered at subsequent ports.

(b) On clearance from the first and each succeeding port on the second coast, the certificate on customs Form 3221 shall show the actual ports of discharge as determined at the first port.

(c) The names of the ports of destination, as designated at the first port of arrival on the second coast, shall be reported to the collector at the port of first arrival on the first coast by endrosement on a certified copy of the complete inward foreign manifest which shall be forwarded by the agent of the vessel.
